CRAFTY INSURRECTOS TRAP MEXICAN TROOPS AND SLAUGHTER MANY

Over 100 of the Regulars Said to Have Been Killed.

Unsuspecting Men Decoyed Into a Narrow Mountain Gorge.

Deadly Fire Then Poured Upon Them From the Heights Above.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 22, via Marfa, Tex., Jan. 23.—More than 100 soldiers were killed in a three days' battle between the Mexican federal troops and insurrectos in the mountain between the Mexican federal troops and insurrectos in the mountain between Ojinaga and Cuchillo Parrado.

The government troops were caught in a trap and were literally mowed down by the storm of bullets which swept their ranks from three directions. The insurrectos occupied the cliffs and mountains and the soldiers were in the road with only one way of escaping and that blocked. Of the 200 men who went into the pass only forty escaped so far as known. They joined the column under Col. Dorantes.

The revolutionists' loss is said to have been slight, only five men being killed, according to their reports.

The fighting started Jan. 16 when a small band of insurrectos were routed at Coyaman. A column of 200 pursued the fleeing insurrectos and ran into the trap set for them.

A detachment of insurrectos was seen after the fight with thirty-two captured Mauser rifles.

The battle lasted all day Jan. 17.

TO ABOLISH DRUG PERMIT

Aim of Measure Now Before the North Dakota Legislature.

No Liquor to Be Sold, Except on Physician's Prescription.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — The drug permit is again in the limelight and vigorous efforts are to be put forth during the present legislative assembly to secure amendments to the present law that will do away entirely with the time-honored drug permit and substitute the system of selling spirituous liquors for medicinal purposes, only on the prescription of a regularly licensed physician. Provision for this change in the manner of handling the drug store feature is contained in a bill prepared by the committee on temperance of the senate, and which has been referred back to that committee.

Two years ago there was a bitter fight over the drug permit question

SENATORIAL FIGHT ON IN NEW JERSEY

Interest in Coming Election Is Now at Fever Heat.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23.—Interest in the election of a United States senator to succeed John Kean, Jr., Republican, increases as the time approaches for a vote in the two houses of the legislature. With the Democrats in control the fight continues to be between James Smith, Jr., the leader of the state organization, and James E. Martine, who received the party indorsement in the primaries.

Since the followers of Martine decline to enter a formal and binding caucus, the Democratic leaders have substituted therefor the less formal conference at which the senatorship will be discussed tonight but no formal vote taken. The first vote will be taken in the house and senate separately tomorrow. On Wednesday at noon the two houses will vote together.

Governor Wilson declined to say anything for publication regarding the senatorship beyong a reiteration of his oft-expressed belief that Martine will surely be the victor.

RESCUED FROM LAKE IN THE TEETH OF A GALE

Sailor on Gasoline Launch Falls Overboard During a Storm.

Companions Put About and Save Him at Risk of Lives.

Word of a thrilling mid-winter Lake Superior rescue reached Duluth Saturday when the gasoline fishing schooner Turner, owned by the Booth line, reached the harbor from a trip along the north shore.

While the little boat was straining ahead in the teeth of a gale last week, with a heavy load aboard, Peter Peterson, one of the crew of three, was knocked into the freezing waters of the lake. He was trying to lash a cask to the deck after it had been jerked loose and was pitched head first into the lake when a particularly large wave kicked the barrel against his body.

Fortunately, one of the other men

WILL ISOLATE PLAGUE SPOT

Suburb of Harbin to Be Shut Off From Rest of World.

Harbin, Manchuria, Jan. 23.—Fudziadian, a suburb of Harbin, and the particular plague spot of Manchuria, is to be isolated as the first systematic step toward exterminating the plague that has grown more threatening every day.

This was decided upon at a conference participated in by the taotai, the head of the local Chinese government, and English and Chinese physicians. The movement is due to pressure brought to bear by the Russian government, which realizes the seriousness of the situation.

A Russian physician who has just completed an inspection of Fudziadian, discovered three plague sources in the neighborhood of which 7,000 persons reside. Corpses are piled high in the streets and in the yards adjoining the homes. Last week there were 1,500 deaths in Fudziadian. The pneumonic type of the plague predominates.

Senator Gamble of South Dakota Supports Findings of Committee.

Says He Had Majority After Throwing Out Tainted Votes.

Washington, Jan. 23.—In support of the finding of the sub-committee of the committee on privileges and elections that investigated the election of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois, Senator Robert J. Gamble of South Dakota of the sub-mommittee, today addressed the senate. Mr. Gamble gave a summary of the testimony before the sub-committee, giving his view of his hearing as to whether Mr. Lorimer lawfully is entitled to his seat in the senate.

In order to invalidate Mr. Lorimer's title to membership Mr. Gamble held that it would be necessary to prove:

"That in his elections he participated in, had knowledge of or sanctioned one or more of bribery or attempted bribery.

ABERDEEN HAS $200,000 FIRE

Division Headquarters and Stations of Milwaukee Railroad Destroyed.

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 23.—The division headquarters, local freight house and passenger station of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad here were burned today.

The fire started from the explosion of a heater in a freight shed, and spread so rapidly that the train dispatchers managed to get out of the building with only their typewriters.

The movement of trains on the entire Montevideo division for 250 miles is tied up until wires can be restored.

Division Freight Agent O. F. Waller estimates the loss of freight, buildings and records at $200,000. In the passenger station the records and tickets were saved.

JUDGE DEALS SEVERE BLOW TO THE DEFENSE IN THE SCHENK TRIAL

Rules Out Testimony of All Witnesses Alleging Conspiracy.

Adjourns Court to Decide on Exceptions By Attorneys.

State Will Not Put on Any More Witnesses in Rebuttal.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 23.—An abrupt stop was put to the taking of testimony in the case of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk this morning at 11:15, the state announcing that no more witnesses were to be put on in rebuttal.

This followed an important ruling of Judge Gordan, who, on motion of Prosecuting Attorney J. B. Handlan, ruled that testimony of Mrs. Jane Hedges, the only witness offered by the defense to show the alleged conspiracy of the Schenk family to rid themselves of the defendant, should be stricken from the record.

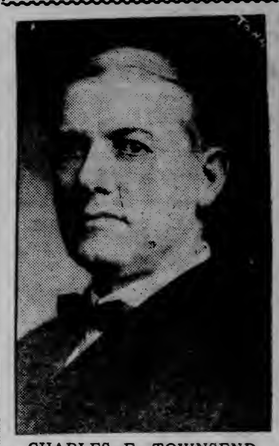

This order of the court completely knocked out the conspiracy allegation, weakening the case put on by the defense. Mrs. Hedges had testified that Albert Schenk had said to her: "John has bought his wife a $6,000 automobile. Every time she goes out in it I hope she will break her neck. I will leave no stone unturned to rid the family of that woman."

The testimony of Dr. Benjamin Morrison was also excluded.

Dr. Myers, who was the star witness for the state, had testified that

CHARLES E. TOWNSEND,

SENATOR CARTER MAY YET BE CHOSEN

An Effort Will Be Made to Elect Him, It Is Said.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 23.—Chief interest in the senatorial situation centers in the Republican caucus to be held this evening.

Although the Republicans have three less than the required number to elect, the exceptionally strong pressure being brought to bear upon Republican members, known to be opposed to Senator Carter, to enter the caucus, leads many to suppose that a strong effort will be made to force the re-election of the present senator.

Mr. Carter's closest friends in Helena, however, deny that there is anything in the air, and they assert that Senator Carter would not accept a re-election that in any way would appear to be tainted.

No progress was made by the Republican leaders today in their efforts to get the four insurgent Republicans into that caucus.

The Democrats have lost one member, Representative Terrett of Custer county, who died last week in Los Angeles, reducing the Democratic vote from 54 to 53. This does not materially change the situation as Representative Terrett never attended the session having been absent since he was elected. It requires 52 votes to elect. The Democrats have 53 and the Republicans 48. It is expected that Governor Norris will order a special election in Custer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Terrett. The Republicans will make a strong effort to elect a Republican which, if successful, would increase their membership to 49 or three less than the required number.

EXTRADITION OF CHARLTON

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Are Heard in New Jersey Court.

Strong Fight Made to Keep Alleged Murderer in United States.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23.—After several postponements, the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Paul Charlton to prevent the extradition of his son, Porter Charlton to Italy to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, came up again today before Judge Rellstab in the United States circuit court here today. Porter Charlton was in court, having been brought from the Hudson county jail at Jersey City.

He is represented by R. F. Clarke of New York. Pierre P. Garven, prosecuting attorney of Hudson county, appeared in court as the representative of the Italian government.

The United States government has honored the requisition of the Italian government for Charlton's extradition.

WANTS AN EXPERIMENT STATION ON THE RANGE

WANTS GUNBOAT AT CHINESE PORT

American Consul General Desires Protection at Hankow.

Hankow, China, Jan. 23.—American Consul General Robert Brent Mosher today communicated with his government, asking that a gunboat be sent to this port to protect American interests in the event of a continuation of the riots that began yeserday. The disorders began following he circulation of a report that the British police had killed a coolie. During the rioting considerable damage was done and British and German marines were landed from gunboats in the harbor to defend the foreign community.

Fighting between the Chinese and the authorities supported by the marines resulted in the death, probably, of twenty Chinese and the injury of several foreigners.

Today the foreign concessions were protected by Chinese troops. The rioters having been checked in their lawlessness, have now instituted a boycott against all foreigners. Business in the city has been suspended.

School of Mines Urges the Need of Such an Institution.

Prof. Barneveld Speaks Very Strongly in Favor of Pending Bills.

There should be a state mines experiment station on the range for the increased efficiency it will make possible at the state school of mines, and for the reason that it will offer the people of the state opportunities to learn what value may be possessed by ores found on their lands. That is the argument advanced in favor of identical bills introduced in the legislature by Senator S. A. Nelson of Lanesboro and Representative H. O. Rustad of Whalen, and it is backed strongly by Prof. Charles Evan Barneveld of the mines school, who was in Duluth today.

BACK FROM WOLF HUNT

Duluthians Return From Woods With Twenty-Two Hides.

Lake Captain Has Narrow Escape From Animal Caught in Trap.

Capt. John Earhart, Capt. John Masse and John Blackwood returned this morning from their annual wolf hunt. They spent a week in the woods near Drummond and brought back some exciting tales of narrow escapes.

Capt. Earhart and Capt. Masse are well-known lake captains who have been sailing large vessels many years. Each year they have made it a practice to go into the woods of Northern Minnesota to hunt wolves. As a rule they lay up their boats too late to get in on the deer hunting, so they compromise on going after the more ferocious game. They say that they find it extremely interesting and that they wouldn't miss their yearly hunt "on a bet."

They reported that the wolves are numerous in the woods at the present time, but that the hunting is hard because of the deep snow. They managed to get a couple with their rifles, but had much more success in the poisoning line. They pitted their ingenuity against that of the wily wolves and landed twenty of them in this way. They not only had a lot of fun, but when they collect their bounties they will have more than paid the expenses of their trip, with enough cash on the credit side to have the hides fixed up so that they can present them to their friends. Since their first two or three trips they have acquired so much experience that whenever they leave they are able to make promises of rugs in advance, with little prospect of not being able to make good.

One device which they learned from an old timer has proved particularly effective. They have had such universal success with it that they have been loath to tell what it was, but it leaked out in a burst of confidence which was as surprising as it was unexpected. They take the head of some animal and fairly saturated it with poison. After which they have chopped a hole in the ice of a lake or a stream and frozen it into the ice. When the wolves come along they generally take it for the whole carcass of the animal and fall upon it ravenously. The first time they bagged a whole pack of nearly a dozen in this manner. Not one of them had gotten as far as the shore before dropping to the ice dead.

Captain Earhart had about as narrow an escape as any of them this trip. He came upon a large timber wolf which had been caught in a trap by the hind foot. Had it not been for the fact tehat he had his automatic rifle in his hands he would probably have lost his life. The animal had evidently been in the trap several hours and struggled deperately to get away, as was shown by the fact that when Capt. Earhart approached the foot was left in the trap when he made a desperate leap towards him. The sharp jaws of the trap had worn away most of the leg before the captain reached the animal. Having learned from past experiences to take no chances with the ravenous brutes Capt. Earhart was prepared. He fired almost as the wolf leaped. The first shot knocked him over, but he had to put three more into it before it ceased its struggles. Capt. Earhart says that he is going to have it mounted whole, minus the foot, and place it on top of the cabin of his boat.

CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE

Foreign-Going Marine of the United States Practically Extinct.

Representative Greene Tells of Neglected Shipping of Country.

Washington, Jan. 23.—In an address before the National Merchant Marine congress here today, Hon. William S. Greene, chairman of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries, said in part:

"It is a deplorable fact that the foreign-going marine of the United States, once the finest in the world, is now practically extinct. Our great country, of over 90,000,000 of the most vigorous human beings on earth, has but eleven vessels engaged in its foreign ocean-going trade. England has more than 11,000 vessels, while Germany has over 2,000 and Japan nearly 1,000. It is also a deplorable fact that, owing to the lack of operating ships, we handle practically none of our enormous oversea trade. Other nations transport over 92 per cent of it for us. In 1861 we carried 65 per cent and in 1835 over 90 per cent.

"We are paying foreign shipping companies $200,000,000 annually for handling the nation's ocean business. We have so neglected our shipping that when the navy made its memorable world tour it was conducted by twenty-seven colliers flying the flags of foreign nations. With powerful England and Germany ruling the Atlantic, aggressive Japan intent on the mastery of the Pacific, and America with practically no ships at all, is there not a condition here to make thoughtful Americans ponder deeply?"

A Patriotic Duty.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Restoration of the American merchant marine was characterized as "a patriotic duty" and "not a political expedient," by Representative Richmond P. Hobson of Alabama today in an address before the National Merchant Marine congress.

"In addition to high-class vessels for auxiliary naval purposes our merchant marine must have a large tonnage of cargo-carriers," said Mr. Hobson. "In the present state of international competition it will practically be necessary to induce or drive cargo into American bottoms. The act should provide for a reduction of not less than 5 per cent on goods that are dutiable and an assesment of 2 per cent ad valorem on the free list. In addition I believe we could remit the head-money tax on immigrants brought in American bottoms, and could well pay out of the United States treasury the tolls required by the Panama canal.

"A measure embracing both cargo carriers and high-class vessels for naval auxiliaries could be drawn to meet the essential requirements of both Democrats and Republicans and thus take the matter out of politics."

UNCLE SAM'S BUSINESS BIG

Large Increase in Receipts of the Postoffice in Duluth.

Figures Are Compiled for Last Year in Two Departments.

The business transacted by the postoffice in Duluth in the last year far overtopped that of the year before, as is strikingly shown by the figures compiled by Postmaster A. P. Cook. These statistics show:

Money order receipts—
1910 grand total	$4,329,901.18
1909 grand total	3,400,864.60
Increase in 1910	$ 928,736.58
Postal receipts—
1909 grand total	$ 295,082.22
1910 grand total	328,251.65
Grand total increase	962,005.91

This is considered to be a remarkably good showing, and it is certain that the increase for the present fiscal year, ending June 30, will be much larger, the recent Christmas business of the Duluth postoffice far exceeding that of the previous year.

BIG BASKET BALL GAME

Y. M. C. A. and Central High Will Clash Tuesday Night.

Strong Teams to Go Against Each Other in Premier Event.

The big basket ball game of the year in Duluth, that between the Y. M. C. A. and Central high school teams, will be played tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Last year a crowd that packed the spectators' space in the big gymnasium saw the game between the two teams and this year a simflar crowd is expected to turn out.

The high school team was victorious in the game played last year and the Y. M. C. A. boys have not forgotten the defeat. They and their supporters would be delighted to turn the tables this year and they will make every effort to do so.

The high school team is a strong one, the victory over the Nelson Dewey five by a score of 51 to 15 last Friday night being an example of its strength. The Y. M. C. A. team is thought to be stronger than the one that went down before the students last year and the game should be a good one.

The second teams of the association and the high school will also play tomorrow night, the halves of the two games being alternated. The first game will start about 8:15.

The teams will line up as follows:

First teams:

Y. M. C. A.	Position.	High School.
Boemer	f	Harris
O'Donnell	f	Waldron
Ward	c	Osman, Jeronimus
Slack	g	Johnson
Hamilton	g	Solheim

Second teams:

MISSED THE FATAL TRIP

Los Angeles Man Planned to Fly With Ralph Johnstone.

Tells of Aviator's Nervy Fight With Death at Denver.

Richard Watson Hildebrand, a very well known young business man of sunny Los Angeles, who is a guest of the Spalding, and a member of the Los Angeles Aero club, hasn't as yet got over thanking fate, or his lucky star, or whatever destiny it is that sometimes guides men from seeming lurking death. It may be added here that Mr. Hildebrand is a fatalist.

They have the aeroplane, the biplane and several other air flying fevers in Los Angeles, according to Mr. Hildebrand. He has ridden in air ships many times, in fact had contemplated owning one, when the incident occurred that he believes will forever prevent him from again becoming what they term a "bug."

The young man from Los Angeles met and became a great admirer of the late Ralph Johnstone, perhaps the most daring aviator who has yet tempted fate. It was this admiration for the reckless young rider of the air that led Mr. Hildebrand to go to Denver to witness the big meet, where Johnstone met his tragic death.

On the very morning of that eventful day, a day that will live long in the memory of those thousands of spectators who witnessed the cool and nervy fight against death made by Johnstone, says the man from California, Hildebrand had promised a flight with Johnstone. Johnstone didn't go up that morning, as he worked over his machine for the record flight he was to attempt later in the day—and, who knows that this decision on the part of the aviator did not save the life of Hildebrand.

Rode With Hoxey.

"I have ridden with Hoxey in Los Angeles and the experience was so thrilling that it fascinated me, became a sort of obcession," said the Los Angeles man. "There are a lot of us Los Angeles fellows who are crazy about this aeroplane game. I wanted more of it, and as I had become very friendly with Johnstone, I easily secured his permission to ride with him.

"There were several members of our club who went to Denver to see the flights. It was at the Colorado city that Johnstone promised to take me for an air trip, which I believed would be more thrilling than any experience that I had ever gone through.

"Poor Johnstone and his mechanicians worked over his machine until it was late, and then decided that he would make that attempted record flight, the last trip the poor chap ever made. I was ready and we would have gone, but for the delay caused in the plans of the greatest aviator that ever drove an airship in this country. I have not quite recovered yet from thinking, wondering if the same fate that overtook poor Ralph would have happened to me. He was fearless to the point of recklessness; caution was not part of his character, and if the day was set, as I have always believed the fate of man is worked out, it might have happened on our planned trip.

"No one can describe adequately, if that is just the word, the sight of that heroic battle with death. I don't believe that Johnstone lost his nerve, one bit of it, or for one moment gave up his grim fight to regain control of his machine. That vast throng held its breath as he dropped nearer and ever nearer to the earth, fighting, working bravely, like the man he was, grimly, desperately, yet with all his faculties cool and clert, to ward off the hand of death that was slowly reaching out to clutch him.

His Superb Courage.

"The scene when he struck the ground is too dreadful to more than allude to. Men and women turned away, sickened at the terrible spectacle. Ghastly is the only word I can use. It was terrible, and yet the thing that will always remain in my mind as the most vivid remembrance, is the superb heroism, the dauntless courage displayed by this man. He played a risky game, as do all these aviators, only he was more daring and reckless than any of the air men I have seen, and the way he met death was typical of his character. He died in the harness, as they say, courageous, cool and even calm. I don't even believe fear clutched at his heart, for Ralph Johnstone had a heart that knew no fear, and I believe he will ever be counted as one of the bravest men who have ever played a game where death was always grimly near."

NORTH DAKOTA ANTI-PASS LAW

Likely to Be Patterned After Federal Law On Subject.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The general sentiment among the Republican members of the senate seems to favor the passage of an anti-pass law similar to the Federal statute, that fact being brought out at a general conference on Saturday evening. At the same time considerable sentiment favorable to the Oregon primary election law, except as it bears on the election of United States senator, was found to exist.

As a result of the meeting an effort will be made to pattern the anti-pass legislation after the federal law as far as possible.

At a meeting held this morning the state treasurership investigation committee organized by electing Representative Norheim of McKenzie county as chairman, and Senator Allen of Emmons as secretary. No other action was taken except to discuss the mode of procedure. The resolution to investigate the work of the state auditing board passed the senate this afternoon.

New York, Jan. 23.—An involuntary petition has been filed in the United States district court against the stock exchange firm of Sig H. Rosenblatt by three creditors with claims amounting to $4,650, for money due on stock transactions.

The liabilities are given as $600,000 and the assets at about $200,000.

The firm's difficulties are not regarded as important from a stock market trading viewpoint.

BARRY IS AGAIN SEEKING FREEDOM

Convicted Murderer Claims That His Sentence Has Expired.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a writ of habeas corpus, returnable today before Judge Winchester of the Burleigh district court, William Barry, convicted in Cavalier county of murder, is seeking freedom from the state penitentiary, where he has been confined since 1900. The writ in question is directed against Warden Hellstrom and arguments will be made within the next two days.

The contention is made by Barry at this time that the only legal sentence passed against him was one for ten years and that that expired several months ago.

The warden officials are holding Barry on a life imprisonment sentence which, it is claimed, was modified by the supreme court.

Barry's case is one of the most sensational that has ever been brought before public notice in this state, and his new effort to gain freedom is but a continuation of the fight that he has been making for several years.

SHE WAS NO INFANT.

Dublin Times: A story is told of a servant girl brought to a hospital suffering from the effect of an overdose of poison. When questioned as to her motive for taking it, she replied:

"I wasn't feeling well, and I went to my mistress's medicine chest. This bottle was marked, "Three drops for an infant, six for an adult, and a tablespoonful for an emetic." I knew I wasn't an infant. I wasn't sure about an adult, so I thought it must be the emetic, and I took the spoonful."

"Correct Dress for Women."

Inventory Forces Fur Prices to Lowest Notch

Our strong determination not to include costly furs and fur coats in our record of merchandise left from the year's business, causes new and radical price lowerings on expensive furs. For we prefer to take great losses on cost prices, rather than to have our records show costly furs on hand!

Shrewd women will realize what an exceptional opportunity this is, and we expect many to buy for future, as well as immediate use—read the prices and reckon the savings. As to qualities it makes no difference how much the price is lowered—these furs are the same high-grade furs that we bought to sell at regular prices—and our good name and reputation is as much at stake on furs at sale price, as at regular price.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Wives of Duluth druggists are quite willing to agree with the wives of the Spokane druggists, declaring that they have no home life, have started a campaign to remedy the evils which make a druggist's business so different from other business. They claim there is no understanding among the drug store men and as a consequence the men are forced by competition to keep open their stores late at night and all day Sunday and it keeps them away from home nearly all the time.

The women in Spokane are holding meetings, and the wives of all druggists in the city are discussing plans of prevailing upon their husbands to get them to come to an understanding. Among the things they want is to have them close their stores on Sundays except for a couple of hours in the morning and evening. They will also try to devise some method whereby all drug stores will close at a certain time at night.

The unity of prices is another matter which they are taking up and the weekly plan of payment of drug bills is a matter they are hoping for.

Mrs. Max Wirth said this morning that she certainly agreed with the plan and thought the effects would be a decided benefit. "I would be glad to do whatever I can in the matter, to help it along," she said.

Mrs. S. J. Nygren said: "I would certainly meet any such plan with approval and would be very glad if something could be accomplished."

Mrs. E. M. Tredway said: "We have been here twelve years and no improvement in the hours has ever been made, but I don't see why, if some systematic action were taken, the druggists would object. The hours are certainly hard enough for them and it would be for their own comfort and convenience. I have heard some talk of this plan but not of anything being done here."

Another woman said that she thought such a change would be very welcome and she would be very glad to see it. Still she felt that the management of business affairs ought to be left to the men and that as they were the ones most affected by the work they ought to bring about the change themselves if they wanted it. "I don't believe in mixing up in my husband's business at all."

The plans of the Western women have been indorsed and agreed with and wether the women here will do as much for their husbands remains to be seen.

PRINCESS ALEXANDRA OF FIFE.

There are many rumors connecting the names of ex-King Manuel of Portugal and various princesses of the world. It was reported at one time that an alliance might be formed with the one daughter of the emperor of Germany. But it has always been considered more likely that he would ally himself with the royal family of Great Britain because Portugal and Great Britain have always been closely allied. The latest report which appeared in the foreign press is that he is to marry Princess Alexandra of Fife, a daughter of the princess royal and neice of the late King Edward. Foreign newspapers do not take many liberties with royalty and this statement, made circumstantially by the Universum of Leipzig, should therefore be regarded as almost official. The full name of the princess is Alexandra Victoria Alberta Edwina Louise. She was born May 17, 1891, and is the oldest child of the princess royal and her husband, the duke of Fife. She has one sister, the Princess Maude, who is now almost 18. They are simple young women, brought up in the old fashioned way, which was popular during the reign of Queen Victoria and which has come into fashion again with the inauguration of King George. The Fifes have plenty of money, which is fortunate, as there seems some uncertainty about the fortune of Manuel. It is reported that Portugal will give him an income, but just at present it is said that he is living in somewhat straitened circumstances in England.

Violet Sachet Powder.

Mix well together the following ingredients: Orris root, powered, 1½ pounds; oil of bergamont, 15 drops; oil of bitter almonds, 10 drops; otto of rose, 10 drops; extract of musk, ½ ounce. After mixing, place the powder in an airtight jar for a week or longer; it can then be placed in thin paper envelopes, carefully sealed, or in thin bags. The fragrance lasts longer than a liquid perfume and it is more convenient in powder form for placing among linen.

Rosewater.....4 ounces

Useful Hints.

Since good health and spirits are manifested by the clearness and alertness of the eyes, so every derangement of the bodily functions leaves its impress upon them.

Unconsciously, when vexed or tired even, one frowns, and soon the habit is produced, and ugly furrows appear, marring the beauty of the brow.

To remove these lines, stretch the skin smoothly between the thumbs and forefinger of the left hand, and vigorously rub a little skin food in a direction opposite to that in which they are formed.

THE AGREEABLE GUEST

By POLLY PAGET.

The agreeable guest is not the one who is not always thinking of her own good times. She is ready for any gaiety, but does not look injured when pleasures seem slack.

The girl who cannot content herself with a book or fancy work when her hostess is busy, will always have a sigh of relief drawn for her leaving.

The agreeable guest knows how to fit in. She wins the hearts of the old folks and has the children at her heels. She cheerfully helps when the maid leaves or will preside at a meal in the sudden absence of her hostess.

Aggressiveness has lost many a girl a coveted invitation. No one is anxious for the society of the girl who forces her personality. It is possible to be aggressively agreable as aggressively disagreeable.

The girl of neutral manners may not be brilliant, but she is not cranky, officious, hypercritical nor given to showing off, monopolizing conversation and demanding attention. She appreciates what is done for her, and never thinks of fault-finding at what is not done.

The guest who is bright and cheerful at all times, and takes things as they come, is a happy addition to any household.

THE EVENING STORY

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

By Raoul Daubigny.

"Pouf!" said Monsieur the Professor. His forehead was high, and a phalanx of letters made an inspiring tail to his name. "I am on the brink—I say—on the brink! Tomorrow the world shall know that the problem of the ages is to all intents and purposes solved. My friend, I have imprisoned the—shall I call it, for your benefit the gas?—the gas that is behind every scientific mystery. I have challenged the Atmosphere and the Atmosphere has replied to my challenge. I have driven the Atom back upon itself. We shall shortly be able to divide and sub-divide that which has so entirely baffled us hitherto * * * Tomorrow when my little test tube has cooled—it stands now on my laborartory table—so simple in outward seeming, so tremendous, so unthinkably momentous in its possibilities, I shall be able to separate this gas, which I have named psuchidum, from the liquid."

"And, roughly, your theory will be—?" inquired the Englishman, who stalked at his side.

"My theory will be—providing my demonstration is successful—that this psuchidum, the compound parts of which I shall be able to exactly tabulate, has existed from all time; chaos, in fact, was but another word for it. It surged about in the luminous ether till it found a denseness or scantiness of that ether exactly suitable to its purpose, and it generated first a formless something, and then a world—then all worlds with their infinite complexity."

"And this process has been going on for all time, and will go on for all time?"

"Precisely."

Their walk had taken them into the rose garden, the Professor was one of the most successful rose growers in France, where little Estelle, the gardener's daughter, was busy with a pair of scissors, clipping off dead roses, and bestowing them in a red and yellow basket.

The Englishman asked a question. "It has taken years of research to find the exact substance, and the exact proportion of the substances which have yielded this discovery, eh?"

"It has taken thirty years," the Professor told him; "the best part of one's life. I have traveled to such uncivilized portions of the earth as would alarm a practiced explorer. In Central America, for instance, when I required a peculiar ore, obtainable only in the bed of one small river—I seized a little hemp amid a shower of arrows from the natives—only one little lump; but it was priceless."

"Without swamping me with technicalities," inquired the Englishman, "you have, as I take it, created the Creator?"

"I believe so; tomorrow we shall know."

Little Estelle's eyes were round—her mouth was very wide open. Monsieur the Professor had not noticed her. Behold a calamity! He never failed to pinch her cheeks as a rule. Moreover, Monsieur, who could tell such charming stories if he would, and make the roses come alive and chatter, was talking nonsense—very stupid nonsense today. Behold an occasion for tears!

"Then," said the Englishman slowly, seeming to ponder sadly on the matter, "you have lost—God?"

The Professor thrust out his lean hands as one who dismisses something or someone; and as he passed from the rosery and out of earshot he repeated, but sadly, too, "Yes; I have lost God."

"Yes, I have lost God."

The little Estelle understood that at any rate. She murmured it to herself several times.

Was it astonishing, therefore, that Monsieur had not stayed to pinch her cheeks or pull her curls and call them elfin bells, or laugh and pretend to find little people among the rose petals?

He had lost God! Little Estelle shut her round black eyes tight and made a desperate effort to fancy the abysmal tragedy of it. She left the roses—she left the little red and yellow basket lying on its side and went as fast as she could run home. It was dinner time when she arrived. She said nothing to her father, who was a widower, on this immense theme.

At last her father, losing patience, chided her. "What foolishness is this—eat thy soup, and think of the many who need it," he said. But the soup had no taste in it. The mignonette in the window had no smell. Even her father's upbraiding had no meaning and did not move her, and all because the Professor had lost God.

It was while she played with her saveloy, pretending to nibble it, that the inspiration came. She did not doubt that her kind friend Saint John had sent it to her and it must be acted upon.

After dinner she climbed to her garret and, standing on her bed, reached with hands that trembled and shook and felt feverish, for her treasure—the thing she loved best in the world.

"Yes, I have lost God." Only these words ringing in her ears nerved her for the task she had set herself. The Professor was her kindest friend. She loved him—therefore no wrench was too painful to make for his sake.

Estelle did not enter the house of Monsieur by legitimate means, for she stood in constant dread of Madame Dandeau, the housekeeper. Instead, leaving her slippers on a flower bed hidden beneath the ample leaves of a cluster of peonies, she watched her opportunity. Fate, in the shape of a bonfire, which kept her father chained to the kitchen garden, and some very tough ivy clinging to the most sequestered corner of the house, aided her. She climbed the ivy, and passed into a half-opened window.

If it had not been that Monsieur was so merry and charming—that he loved little girls—that he knew such a host of stories—Estelle would have turned back even now.

Tears welled into her eyes as she took a sudden agonized farewell. She pressed a kiss reverently upon the something which she carried and placed it on the table propped against what looked like a tiny glass vase of water. With a lingering backward glance and a courtesy, she stole towards the window—one of her gray stocking legs was already over the sill, when a small crash made her look around. The tiny vase of water had toppled over: Estelle returned and mopped it up with the corner of her pinafore. It was only water—and nothing was spoiled. Then she laid the little empty vase down and stole away. There was no need to worry, for, after all, what is a trickle of water that one should disturb oneself?

And then the little Estelle climbed down the ivy.

"I cannot understand you great men," said the Englishman, almost irritably, the next morning. "The labor of thirty years it spoiled; an experiment of intense vital importance to the world falls through; the stream of speculation wisdom, theorization which has agitated your brain for years is rudely dammed, and you look no more upset than when you found Camille had overboiled your breakfast egg."

The Professor's lean fingers reached to his hair and pushed it back from his forehead; it was a movement that, with him, usually signified relief.

"Your Danish King Canute," said he, "pretended to set bounds to the sea, to teach his fulsome court a lesson, eh?"

"Yes."

"I have not pretended. I believed it was possible to set bounds to something greater than the sea, but—"

"Well?" said the Englishman.

"But it isn't." The Professor crossed the room and recrossed it to lay a hand on the Englishman's shoulder.

"Come into the laboratory," he said.

The Professor, stooping over the table, whereon lay a collection of instruments, great and small, lifted two things.

One was an empty test tube, the other a crucifix.

The figure of Christ, fashioned in cream plaster of Paris, hung with bowed head upon an ebony cross.

"But how—what—?" the Englishman frowned in astonishment, and lifting a finger, touched the crucifix reverently.

"I know no more than you," the professor told him, "nor shall I inquire."

"But your wasted years?" the Englishman lamented. "You will begin to collect your materials afresh at once? It will be easier the second time."

"What shall you do?" The Englishman grew impatient.

The Professor hung the crucifix on to a jutting nail immediately over the table where his greatest experiments had been made.

"'So far shalt "thou go, and no farther,'" he quoted. "I shall go back to my roses."

A New Store With An Old Name

This store was established in 1871 just forty years ago. No other store hereabouts can point to such a record of service. Not only has this business been built on service and rock-ribbed honesty of purpose, but it has ever kept apace with the City's growth. In fact it has even been a wee little in advance of the City's growth, preferring to let its patrons look forward rather than backward in review.

Forty years sounds like an awfully long stretch, but we are really a new store in methods, equipment and progressiveness! Witness our phenomenal growth, our handsome store unequaled in the entire Northwest, our splendid assortments of goods, and ever-watchful guarding of our patrons' interests.

We are planning even greater things for the coming year. Many sensational innovations will be announced from now on.

The first of these is the establishment of The Finest Corset Establishment in the Entire Northwest.

Under the direction of Miss Reich and Miss Morgan, formerly of Donaldson's, Minneapolis, with an efficient corps of expert fitters, such as no other Duluth store has yet had, and a modern

Corset Alteration and Repair Shop

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CITY GOES INTO COURT

Grand Forks Has Started Proceedings Against Grand Forks County.

Writ of Mandate to Force County to Show Cause in Court Feb. 1.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of the failure of the board of county commissioners to reconsider the resolution passed restraining the county auditor from issuing the necessary warrant to allow the county treasurer to pay over to the city of Grand Forks its share of the road and bridge fund, an action has been started on the part of the city authorities.

County Auditor Hans Anderson has been served with an alternative writ of mandamus calling on him either to pay over the $1,753.21 in question or to show cause in the district court before Judge C. F. Templeton at 10 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 1.

Since the passing of the resolution the mayor and city attorney have appeared before the commissioners and explained the position of the city in the matter pointing out that the paying over of the money was not only customary and provided for by law, but that it was just and equitable. The attitude of the commissioners is that the law is unreasonable and unconstitutional. The litigation will undoubtedly be carried to the supreme court.

LUMBERJACK IS HACKED TO DEATH

Man Believed to Be James Elwood Brutally Murdered Near Hayward.

Hayward, Wis., Jan. 23.—Sheriff Clarke of Sawyer county has a dragnet out seeking to catch the slayer of a lumberjack supposed to be James Elwood, who was murdered in the town of Lenroot about three miles from here. He had been killed with an ax, the head and body being chopped into an almost unrecognizable mass. A mail carrier discovered the boby late Saturday afternoon. As one hand of the body was frozen, it is supposed the murder was committed during the morning.

The head had been cut in several places with an ax and the shoulders were also chopped. Blood stained the snow for several feet and there was every indication of a desperate struggle.

Murderer Removes Socks.

A short distance away, the murderer had evidently removed his socks, for a pair smeared with blood was picked up. The tell-tale ax was near. It had a very short handle and there was also a bloody handkerchief, but it had no distinguishing marks.

In the pockets of the murdered man was an empty pocketbook, and an envelope with this return address: "Return to James Elwood, ——, Minn."

The town or city in Minnesota had been marked out in such a manner that there was no way of making it out.

There was a satchel containing a quantity of new clothes which are believed to have been the property of the murdered man. From the fact that only those who are employed by the lumber company ordinarily have any reason to use the road where the body was found, it is conjectured that the victim was a woodsman who had been away for a little time to buy clothing and supplies and was on his way to return to work.

An inquest will be held today.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

GIVE ULTIMATUM TO E. W. BACKUS

Fort Frances Officials Said to Have Given Promoter Final Notice.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 23.—Controversies of long standing between Fort Frances, Ont., and American interests represented by E. W. Backus, Minneapolis, were considered in a conference in Minneapolis between Fort Frances officials and Mr. Backus. A tacit understanding was reached.

According to the Fort Frances officials the improvement of the water power of the Rainy river at Koochiching falls was to be assessed at a flat valuation of $25,000. Their version of the controversy is that the Backus interests, which control the power through an agreement with the Canadian government, has paid no taxes in six years.

Failing to obtain any understanding with Mr. Backus, the local government fixed the valuation of the power improvements, levying the full rate. The taxes for the last year on this basis amounted to about $11,000. Mr. Backus and his associates had a right to appeal, but this right expired Jan. 1, and no appeal had been filed by that time.

Fort Frances at the present time can use $11,000 to good advantage and as a consequence a party of city officials decided to call on Mr. Backus to ascertain what he proposed to do.

Mr. Backus, according to the Canadians, agreed to pay the money.

Fort Frances was represented by Mayor D. C. McKenzie, A. D. George, city solicitor, Alderman J. L. Meyers, and H. A. Tibbetts, private attorney for Mayor McKenzie.

It is understood that the ultimatum was presented to Mr. Backus that unless the taxes are forthcoming within a reasonable time the water power improvements, valued at $400,000, would be seized by the municipality and operated for its advantage.

OLD SORES
DUE TO DISEASED BLOOD

Every symptom of an old sore suggests diseased blood. The inflammation, discharge, discolored flesh, and the fact that local applications have no permanent effect toward healing the ulcer, shows that deep down in the system there is a morbid cause for the sore. But more convincing proof that bad blood is the cause for these places is furnished by the fact that even removing the sore or ulcer by surgical operation does not cure; they always return. Nature will heal any sore if the blood is pure and healthy, but until the circulation is cleansed of all impure matter and supplied with nourishing and plasmic qualities the infected condition of flesh is OBLIGED to remain. S. S. S. heals Old Sores in a perfectly natural way. It goes into the blood, removes the impurities and morbid matters, adds nourishing qualities to this vital fluid, and brings about the very conditions that are necessary before any sore can heal. S.S.S. is a perfect blood purifier, acting directly on the circulation through the stomach and digestive members. Its use makes rich, red, healthy blood, which nourishes all flesh tissues instead of infecting them with the virulent matter which keep old sores open. DYSPEPSIA-PROOF

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed By Any Stomach.

Costs You Nothing to Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail. Stuffed Olives.
Boston Clam Chowder.
Strained Gumbo.
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms.
Roast Beef Hash.
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut.
Lobster a la Newburg.
Baked Pork and Beans.
Combination Crab Salad.
Hot Mince Pie.
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look anyhow as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50c a package."

Yes, it is true. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE NATIONAL LEAGUE

Declaration of Principles.

The declaration of principles signed by nine Republican United States senators, the governors of six Republican states, thirteen members of the house and others is as follows:

"We the undersigned associate ourselves together as the National Progressive Republican league.

"The object of the league is the promotion of popular government and progressive legislation.

"Popular government in America has been thwarted and progressive legislation strangled by the special interests which control caucuses, delegates, conventions and party organizations and through control of the machinery of government dictate nominations and platforms, elect administrations, legislatures, representatives in congress, United States senators and control cabinet officers.

Legislation Defeated.

"Under existing conditions legislation in the public interest has been baffled and defeated. This is evidenced by the long struggle to secure laws for the control of railway rates, the revision of the tariff, statutes dealing with trusts and combinations, a wise reconstruction of the monetary laws, the conservation of natural resources and the enactment of all legislation solely for the common good.

"Just in proportion as popular government has in certain states superceded the delegate convention system, has progressive legislation been secured.

"The Progressive Republican league believes that popular government is fundamental to all other questions. To this end it advocates

"First—The election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

"Second—Direct primaries for the nomination of all elective officials.

"Third—The direct election of delegates to national conventions with opportunity for the voter to express his choice for president and vice president.

"Fourth—Amendment to state constitutions providing for the initiative, referendum and recall.

"Fifth—A thorough general corrupt practice act.

"State organizations:

To Co-operate With States.

"The league will co-operate with progressives in the several states, and wherever acceptable, will render assistance in promoting the organization of state leagues.

"Whenever requested by any progressive state league or by progressive leaders in state legislatures, the National Progressive Republican league will aid in the preparation of appropriate bills and resolutions and will furnish speakers and literature in support of legislative action upon the propositions enumerated in the five numbered paragraphs set forth in the foregoing declaration of principles.

The signers are:

United States Senators.

Jonathon Bourne, Jr., Oregon.
Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana.
Joseph L. Bristow, Kansas.
Norris Brown, Nebraska.
Albert B. Cummins, Iowa.
Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota.
Joseph M. Dixon, Montana.
A. J. Gronna, North Dakota.
Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin.

Alfred L. Baker, Illinois; Ray Stannard Baker, Massachusetts; Louis D. Brandeis, Massachusetts; Charles R. Crane, Illinois; Frank L. Dingley, Maine; James R. Garfield, Ohio; Hugh T. Halbert, Minnesota; Francis J. Heney, California; Frederick C. Howe, New York; Fred S. Jackson (congressman-elect), Kansas; E. Clarence Jones, New York; William T. Kent (congressman-elect), California; George S. Loftus, Minnesota; William L. La Follette (congressman-elect), Washington; Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania; Amos Pinchot, New York; James A. Peterson, Minnesota; George L. Record, New Jersey; Gilgert E. Roe, New York; W. S. U'Ren, Oregon; Merle D. Vincent, Colorado; William Allen White, Kansas.

Senator Bourne, president of the league, made the following statement in regard to its organization and purposes:

Speaks For Itself.

"The declaration of principles of the National Progressive Republican league speaks for itself. While its membership is confined to those who believe that the Republican party represented by progressive Republicans offers the most encouragement for the establishment of these principles, there is no purpose to make it a political organization in the sense of promoting the political fortunes of any man or men.

"The enactment of legislation carrying out the program is its sole aim and purpose. It stands ready, whenever acceptable, to aid Democratic as well as Republican legislators to secure such legislation.

"The league will at once enter upon an aggressive campaign. State legislatures will be organized and upon request furnished with bills, literature and speakers. Permanent headquarters will be maintained for carrying on the work.

"Precise uniformity of legislation in the different states is not to be expected. Account must be taken of the conditions in each state as to the details of the legislation to be urged, the object being to insure popular government in the end.

"Membership in the National Progressive Republican league consists of those who have signed the declaration of principles and constitution and of those who may hereafter be elected by a majority vote of the members.

"I expect to devote my entire time to the work of the league, so far as my official duties will permit. The league will be a permanent organization. Its founders have planned for a continuance of its work for a number of years."

LA FOLLETTE IS BEHIND IT

ator Bourne, Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Cummins, Clapp, Dixon, Gronna and La Follette. While the Wisconsin senator's name appears last, it is generally understood here that he has been the originator of the movement. While he is inspired in part by a feeling of hostility toward the administration the chief moving cause of his activity in pushing the movement is his ambition to sit in the White House. He will be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1912. If he fails to secure first honors himself he will bend every energy to defeat the renomination of President Taft. In addition to Senator Clapp of Minnesota, Representatives Davis and Lindbergh have joined in the movement, as have the following representatives from Wisconsin: Cooper, Cary, Lenroot, Morse and Nelson.

Senator Cummins of Iowa has also been credited with presidential aspirations, but apparently he has abandoned them for the present, as he has also signed the pronouncement which was written by La Follette and is designed to promote the latter's ambition to be president.

with the present so-called McCrea bill successful over a measure that made provision very much similar to that contained in the committee bill that is now before the assembly.

Under the provisions of the newly proposed measure it is made unlawful for any druggist to sell liquor except for medicinal purposes, and then only on the prescription of a physician. No prescription shall be filled except on the day that it was given, or on the next succeeding day. A physician assisting any one in getting liquor for anything else than medicinal purposes is held to be just as guilty as the druggist who might sell liquor without authority of a prescription.

Briquetting Lignite Coal.

Thorough tests in the briquetting of lignite coal are proposed by the substation of the school of mines at Hebron in the event that an appropriation for $17,000, requested by a bill introduced by Senator McDonald of Morton county, is forthcoming. Prof. Snyder, in charge of the operations at the station, proposes to have an exhibit of the lignite briquettes in Bismarck during the next few days for the purpose of giving the members of the assembly an idea of the success that has been attained up to date, and what may be expected in the future with proper financial support. The $17,000 appropriation is for the purpose of purchasing additional machinery by which the plant will be enabled to turn out about thirty tons of the finished product each day. The plan is to dispose of this lignite to the state institutions.

Given More Time.

Additional time is asked by the game and fish investigation committee in a resolution introduced in the senate. Under the provisions of the resolution the fortieth day is fixed as the time for which the report must be forthcoming. Under the original resolution the twentieth day of the session was the time set.

A favorable report will be made by the state affairs committee of the senate on the question of starting an investigation into the work of the state auditing board. There is another resolution before the committee relating to the proposed investigation of the board of school and university lands.

The senate elections committee has presented majority and minority reports on the question of woman suffrage. The majority report favors the indefinite postponement of the measure, while the minority report wants the bill passed. Senators Garden and Gibbens sign the minority report.

Introduction by Representative Scutt on Saturday afternoon of a bill abolishing capital punishment, reopens a fight that was waged two years ago, when a similar bill was killed in the senate, the house not having an opportunity of passing on it.

Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

Establishment of a sanitarium at Dunseith for victims of tuberculosis in the state is proposed by the Wesley Fasset bill, introduced Saturday afternoon. Under it an appropriation of $23,000 is provided, of which amount $5,000 is to be used for the construction of the main building. A board of five trustees is authorized, one of whom shall be a member of the state board of health, while two shall be regularly licensed physicians. The board is empowered to name a superintendent who shall have complete charge. An annual appropriation of $5,000 is made for maintenance, with $3,000 included in the first year's appropriation for the erection of cottages.

Under the terms of a bill introduced by Senator J. E. Stevens of Grand Forks county, provision is made whereby either the husband or wife may secure money that may be on deposit in a bank in the name of the other, in the event that one dies. At present money that is on deposit in the name of the husband cannot be secured by the wife except through the work of the probate court, and because of the necessity of such procedure, there is always a long delay. Mr. Stevens seeks to make this point entirely clear by providing that the wife or husband shall have the right to take such money without having to go through court, authorizing the banks to turn the deposits over as may be requested.

Uniform Accounting System.

Uniformity in the accounting systems of the departments of state and in the state institutions is proposed by Senator J. G. Gunderson of Nelson county in a bill that he has introduced. Under the provisions of the bill a uniform accounting system commission of the members is appointed to have charge of the work, while an appropriation of $39,000 is carried for the expense of the first two years.

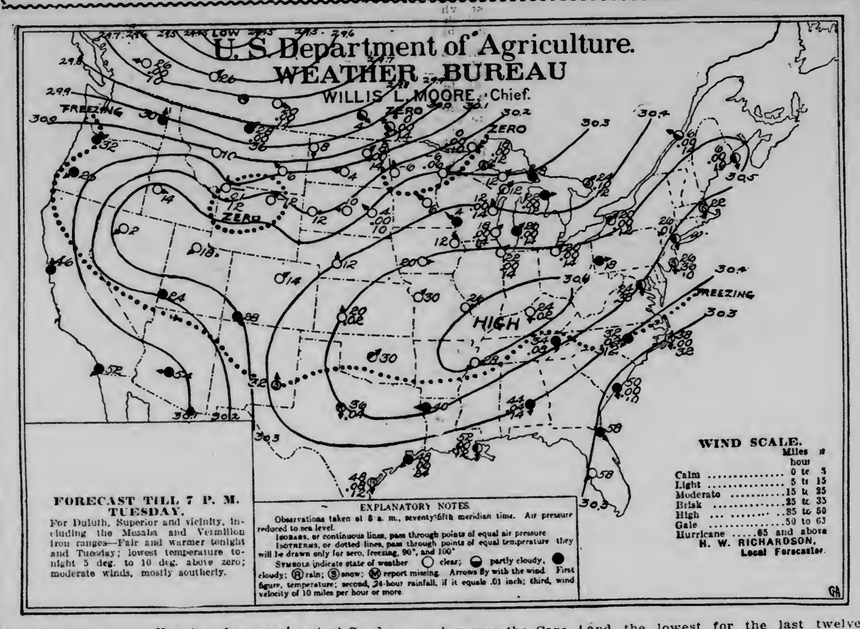

Compensation of $10 a day is allowed each member while actually engaged in the work, but no member may draw more than $2,000 in the full two year term. An appropriation of $4,000 is allowed for the employment of an assistant secretary, while $25,000 is allowed for expenses and research work. The board is to organize by the election of a chairman and secretary, and it is provided that those officers may draw not more than $4,000 in the two years of work.

A committee of the house and senate is also to investigate the business methods of all public offices, including counties, municipalities and independent and special school districts and report to the next legislative assembly legislation necessary to work reforms which will place all departments under a like system.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FAIR

Yesterday was some day out of doors and the skating rinks, ski hills and other places for winter sports were crowded with people. It was the kind of a winter day one is glad to live through and today is another of the same kind. The mercury dropped to 7 deg. below zero last night, but it was while most people were sleeping and it wasn't very noticeable this morning. The weather man says the fair weather will continue through tomorrow with higher temperatures.

Duluth had an ideal winter day a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:44 and will set at 4:57 this evening, giving nine hours and thirteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The area of low pressure now central over Alberta has caused warmer weather throughout the Northwest, the Upper Mississippi valley and greater portion of the Lake region, and milder weather will result at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours, attaining points somewhat above zero. A low pressure condition central Sunday morning over the Carolinas and Tennessee caused rain or snow over all of the South except the Lower Mississippi valley. The Upper Mississippi valley high pressure has advanced its center to the Lower Ohio valley, resulting in colder weather over Atlantic and Gulf states."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Upper Michigan—Fair and warmer tonight and Tuesday.

Minnesota and Iowa—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer tonight and in east portions Tuesday.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Friday; rising temperature.

North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer tonight.

Montana—Increasing cloudiness with probably rain or snow in west portion tonight or Tuesday; warmer tonight.

Shippers' forecast: Protect 36-hour shipments of perishables against temperature 5 deg. to 15 deg. above zero in the Eastern Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

Mrs. Schenk bought lead poison from him after John O. Schenk came back from Europe, and that she attempted to buy arsenic poison on the morning after the defendant had offered the detective nurse $1,000 to give Schenk the poison.

Dr. Morrison testified that Dr. Myers was an employe of Dr. Thomas M. Haskins, a brother-in-law of John Schenk and who was also alleged to have been implicated in the "conspiracy."

The defense excepted to both rulings and court adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon to receive copies of the instructions from both sides. Those of the state had already been prepared but the defense was taken unawares and asked time to report.

Handlan offered eleven instructions for the state, to nine of which there were objections.

IN DEFENSE OF LORIMER

through bribery, a sufficient number of votes were actually voted for him to change the result of the election."

Not even by the "prosecution" in the case, declared Mr. Gamble, was it claimed that Mr. Lorimer participated in any corrupt practice.

The legislature of Illinois was held up by the speaker as a body in which corruption has prevailed. Money had been distributed after adjournment but never had it been shown by any evidence worthy of belief, in the opinion of Senator Gamble that such funds had been used for the election of a United States senator.

"I feel," said he, "that if Senator Lorimer be guiltless as regards these practices and a sufficient number of votes for him were not tainted or corrupted, then he should not be made to suffer as a result of a practice which appears to have been in vogue throughout different legislative sessions, as affecting matters of legislation solely, and disassociated from the election of a United States senator."

Senator Gamble analyzed the vote cast in the election and argued that even the exclusion of the votes alleged to have been tainted would yet leave Mr. Lorimer a clear majority of 1.

WANT LIVESTOCK MARKET HERE

Farmers Suggest That City Provide Place to Sell Meat and Poultry.

Good results that would follow the establishment of a livestock and meat market in Duluth were called to the attention of A. B. Hostetter by the members of the Jackson Farmers' club, which was organized in Hermantown Saturday, and as a first step toward securing such a market it is proposed to hold a market day each month, on the co-operative plan.

Mr. Hostetter, as agricultural secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, assisted the Hermantown farmers to launch their organization, which has a membership of twenty. The officers are: President, Chris Ugstad; vice president, J. W. Johnson; secretary, J. B. Kimball; treasurer, Benjamin Erickson.

It was suggested that a shelter shed should be provided in Duluth for the farmers who will come to this city to dispose of their products on the local market. Livery charges are too heavy to be borne by the men from the farms and their horses require shelter.

The co-operative market now being operated here was given the indorsement of the Jackson club, which will do all it can to make that enterprise entirely successful.

Superior street, on returning from the West end, she was confronted with a burglar, who leveled a revolver at her head.

Instead of throwing her hands over her head she said that she turned and ran downstairs with a scream. Officers were sent back with her, but when they reached the scene the alleged intruder had fled. None of the other roomers reported losses.

Dunbar Wins Grand Aggregate and Duluth and Minneapolis Events.

Whyte Wins St. Paul Jobbers' Trophy and Hurdon the Spalding.

After winning the grand aggregate, the Duluth Curling club event, the Minneapolis Curling club event, second in the St. Paul Jobbers' and forfeiting in the International and Western Curling club events, Robert Dunbar, the crack St. Paul curler, who with his rink had the Northwestern bonspiel completely tied up last week, left for his home Saturday night.

It was a great bonspiel week and it is now all over but a few games to be played today, the final applause, and the games to be played around the stove in the curlers' room.

It was the most successful curling bonspiel ever held in the Zenith City. There was an even half hundred rinks entered and this record beats the best ever made before, by twelve. All week the curling of "Bob" Dunbar of St. Paul and his rink, was the feature. The Saintly City man certainly curled in great form and had he stayed it is generally conceded that he might have taken home with him a greater part of the jewelry that is left over to be fought for by Duluth, West Duluth and Superior rinks.

Whyte's Showing.

Elmer Whyte and his Duluth rink took second honors. They captured second honors in the grand aggregate and this was the only rink that during the week scored a victory over the invincible "Bob," winning the St. Paul Jobbers' event by it.

For winning the Minneapolis event Dunbar's men each received a beautiful piece of furniture. Southerland of Selkirk took with second honors the four jeweled scarf pins. Zauft of West Duluth took third, the prizes being scarf pins and cuff links.

Elmer Whyte's rink took the four silver loving cups as an award for winning the St. Paul Jobbers'. Dunbar took second and the four pieces of cut glass. Raup of Portage took third and the imported German steins. Bradley's Duluth rink took fourth and the solid brass ink wells.

The first prizes in the Duluth Curling club event were four gold watches. Dunbar and his men took them back to St. Paul. Robertson's Arlington rink took the four mahogany drawing room clocks. Hurdon's Duluth rink took third and the four percolators. Smith of Superior with fourth took the pocket knives offered as fourth prize in this event.

The Murray rink of Minneapolis curled well all through the 'spiel but they ran up against old and experienced rinks at just the wrong time and they took no jewelry back to Minneapolis with them. Near the last they made a determined effort by recruiting some of Conkle's Arlington rink but they were put out of the running Saturday in the afternoon game.

All the Duluth rinks made a good showing. Whyte made the best record Hurdon, Bradley and Richardson finished with good records, getting in on some of the prizes.

The Western and International events are still to be played off. A few games will wind up the Western.

Hurdon finally copped the Spalding event. He met A. K. Smith of Superior in the finals and the Superior man lost by one point. The final score was 9 and 10.

The 'spiel was, as a whole, the most successful from every standpoint that has ever been held in the city and the officers are to be congratulated. A. W. Withrow made an excellent manager. He kept the fees going all the time. The games were run off with no confusion.

Only two games were played this morning, Jacobi winning from Chase of Superior in the third round of the Western event, and going into the semi-finals, when Reedal forfeited.

Russell won his game from Hurdon in the International and goes into the semi-finals.

GOOD MUSIC AT FREE CONCERT

Large Crowd Hears Good Program—A. R. Bjorkquist Is Soloist.

The interest taken in the free concerts at the Masonic temple does not seem to diminish by their repetition and each Sunday afternoon sees a large crowd of people making towards the temple and for an hour and a half they are being educated and entertained by the best music which can be given on the organ especially adapted for concert music.

The selections of the vocalist, A. R. Bjorkquist, yesterday were particularly well sung and showed the singers range of voice and style. The beautiful farewell of St. Paul as Ephesus, "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," from the oratorio, "St. Paul," by Mendelssohn, called on all the resources of the vocalist and he responded very satisfactorily each word distinct and the splendid tenor voice filled the auditorium, pleasing the audience who demanded an encore which called for Metcalf's "At Nightfall;" a very pleasing piece well sung. Probably to the majority, Balfe's ballad, "Come Into the Garden, Maud," received the preference and it was beautifully and artistically sung; the singer entering into the spirit of the piece in such a manner that the audience demanded insistently an encore which was responded to by the second of C. McDermid's cycle, "Faith, Hope and Charity."

The popular portion of the instrumental music fell to the Selections and Overture of Auber's opera "Fra Diavolo." Massenet supplied the semi-classic in his "Ball Scenes," in three movements; the first representing the sentimental chatter, or perhaps twaddle which characterizes the sitting around period at a ball; the second a brilliant dance and the third a a slow march and finale. The second number consisted of his well known "Scenes Picturesque," the first of which is the "Angelus," a beautiful piece of composition and orchestration; slow and of a religious character, varying from the simple melody for one instrument to the full organ and all in decided contrast to the second movement, a thorough Bohemian, rollicking, fete dance. Wagner, with his grand opera, "Flying Dutchman," concluded the program with Liszt's arrangement of "The Spinning Song" and the magnificent overture in which is depicted in tone the history of the doughty Dutchman who, finally, through a woman, defied the devil himself and came out triumphant. It contains great descriptive music as well as the more soft and tender portions calling for the full range and capacity of the organ.

OLD GUARD RETURNED.

William Barnes of New York Chairman of Republican State Committee

New York, Jan. 23.—William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who led the fight against Theodore Roosevelt last fall in the Saratoga convention, was chosen chairman of the Republican state committee here Saturday to succeeed Ezra R. Prentice, resigned. The position had been offered by cable to James Wadsworth, Jr., former speaker of the assembly, but he was out of reach and no reply had been received when the committee met.

There were three candidates in the field, James Wadsworth, Jr., Senator Seth Hancock of Ilion and Mr. Barnes. For the first time in many years the balloting was held behind closed doors, and when the vote was counted it stood: Barnes, 25; Wadsworth, 3; Hancock, 4. Mr. Barnes did not vote.

Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee, who lead the fight in this city for Theodore Roosevelt against Barnes last fall, moved that the vote be made unanimous and it was done.

DYING IN WRETCHED HUT.

Former Lieut. Governor Tillman Ostracized for Killing Editor.

Edgefield, S. C., Jan. 23.—Estranged from wife and relatives, deserted by one-time friends, and penniless, James H. Tillman, recently lieutenant governor of South Carolina, and slayer of N. G. Gonzales, editor of the Columbia State, is dying in a wretched hut near here, attended by an old negro, who is his only companion.

But for the old negro it is said Tillman would have starved to death. Once the most popular politician in South Carolina, Tillman has been ostracized since he killed Editor Gonzales, who was unarmed, although he was acquitted by a jury.

Tillman sought to enter the ministry in 1904, but the church barred him. His wife left him, and he was stricken with the illness from which he is dying. He is a nephew of Senator B. R. Tillman, and a son of George D. Tillman, who was a representative in congress.

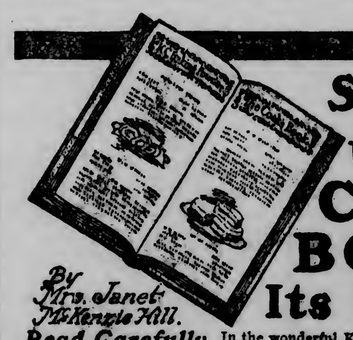

MICHIGAN STUDENTS HURT WHILE COASTING.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 23.—Seven students of the University of Michigan were injured, four seriously, Saturday night, when a large bobsled coasting down the Geddes avenue hill alewed from a bridge and plunged into a culvert ten feet deep. It is believed the bobs were running at a speed of forty miles an hour. Four of the coasters were young women.

The seriously injured are Misses Lyle Noble and Lillian Scott of Hancock, Mich.; Miss Ruth Moffatt of Flint, Mich., and Rufus Siple of Ann Arbor. Both Siple's ankles are reported broken, Miss Moffatt's arm is broken and the other two are suffering from shock and internal injuries.

NEW CHURCH IS STARTED

Corner Stone of New First Unitarian Building Is Laid.

Christianity More Than Creed, Says Pastor in Sermon.

The corner stone of the new First Unitarian church at Eighteenth avenue east and First street was laid yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large crowd. The ceremony was in charge of Rev. George R. Gebauer, pastor of the church, assisted by Victor Stearns, president of the Minnesota Unitarian association; Dr. H. V. Goetchius and other members of the congregation. The stone was laid by Mr. Stearns.

The new building will be of native stone and will seat about 250 people. It is expected to be completed June 1.

"The Corner Stone" was the subject of the sermon preached by Rev. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday morning, the sermon relating to the corner stone, which was laid in the afternoon.

"We would not only put the memories of the past in that stone, but the thoughts of the present which becomes the future as we speak," he said. "We would deposit therein aspirations not so much for ourselves as individuals as for our great cause. In what should these aspirations for our church consist? Should we wish that when again this stone be lifted it be done to erect in the place of this little chapel we are building a large and mighty Unitarian cathedral which would cover the whole block? You know the idea of one shepherd and one flock is very pleasing to most people, especially if that flock bear the brand of their own denomination. Perhaps I am religiously faultily constructed, but that idea does not appeal to me. I do not have in my soul that Unitarian imperialism which would conquer the whole United States and the islands of the sea. I do not believe that gradually the whole world is going to be exactly of the same mind, which is my mind, and I confess I do not care.

"Not that my Unitarian convictions are weak or my notions of theology are not trusted by me. No, the reason is, that though I much love Unitarianism, I love still more Christianity in its widest and deepest interpretation of which it is but a part and still more than this the spirit of religion pure and simple, which gave birth to Christianity. I do not care more to see the the whole world Unitarian than I wish to see it all Baptist or Presbyterian. What I put in the corner stone here is the wish that the time of the church of God may dawn, the time, when in spite of theological differences, the churches will be joined in the spirit of pure religion and undefiled; when they will realize that there is more faith in the world than expresed in all the church creeds together, more than in the Lutheran catchism and in the Episcopal book of prayer and more, too, than is found in Unitarian rationalism and that perhaps the deepest saving faith can never be expressed in words, but is a holy communion between the eternal soul and its Infinite Father.

"I long for the time when the church of 'Divine Love' will be supreme, the church without label, serving the needs of men and when the various denominations will be but so many gateways that open into the vineyard of the Lord and lead to His holy hill. You see I want a vaster thing than even our Unitarianism 'theologically' interpreted. I want the spirit of Unitarianism as it proclaims itself in the noblest and best of our faith, who never sneered at the belief of others but with love and sympathy saw beneath passing and mistaken notions the spirit of true religion. And I believe that that time will come the more quickly when we shall cease talking and preaching about the things which divide us from others, but ever proclaim the things which unite us.

"In that spirit I would that we laid the corner stone for our new church. And though we do not lay that stone in the name of Christ, as other churches do, but in the name of God, it will stand for what is essential in the symbolism of the Christ. It means that this church will be erected for the worship of all that is good and true and beautiful in the world, even God, and that its pulpit will ever proclaim that true worship of God remains not at the altar on bended knee but goes forth on the highways and byways in the service of man. Does not the worship of Christ mean this to the orthodox brother?

"In a way, indeed, his Christ is our God and our God is his Christ. Of course I recognize other notions with which he fills his idea of Christ. They may divide Him from us, but they do not deeply divide Him from us. And whatever these distinctions or differences may be, they do not concern us. Let us not trouble what the brother believes and what his creed and how he lives his creed. Let us rather ask, what of our belief; what of our life? Does it rest upon the foundation stone, that head of the corner which is the eternal God of love?.

"That corner stone stands as a reminder of all we aspire to be and are not. That word Unitarian cut in the stone speaks of high ideals of life and service. As we shall pass it on Sunday to enter the church the simple inscription on the stone will say to us: 'Have you been Unitarians in spirit and in truth this week? Have you been just and kind and pure and worshipped the God of love by loving service to man?'"

May Be Appointed Regent.

London, Jan. 23.—It is reported that the duke of Connaught will be appointed regent during the king's absence in India for the coronation. This will probably delay his replacing Lord Grey as governor-general of Canada.

With a Severe Cough the Bowels Need a Laxative.
Make This Laxative Cough Syrup Cheaply at Home.
Any one can make a full pint of finest acting laxative cough syrup for about 75 or 80 cents. About eight times cheaper than labeled cough syrups, because a pint will last a family a long time. First, obtain of any well-stocked druggist 2½ ounces of essence Mentho-laxene; empty it into a pint bottle. Then make a syrup with a pint of granulated sugar and a half pint of boiling water. Stir, let cool and fill the bottle with the syrup. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two. Eight to ten doses daily will act as a mild laxative, check the cough instantly and cure it quicker than anything you can buy. This syrup builds up the strength of the system and makes the tissues of the lungs and throat healthy.
Chronic cases yield most readily to its beneficial action. Give children less according to age.

CERTAINLY ENDS STOMACH MISERY
Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Go in Five Minutes.
You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.
Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.
Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.
Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.
Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

DISTANCE TARIFF LAW DENOUNCED BY EXPERT

Secretary Hall of Traffic Commission Calls It a Bad Measure.

Sees Menace to Commerce of State in Senator Cashman's Bill.

"The distance tariff bill introduced in the Minnesota legislature by Senator Cashman of Owatonna is a distinctly bad measure," said G. Roy Hall, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club traffic commission, today.

"Senator Cashman is a nurseryman. I don't know whether he is also a horticulturist, of the type of Luther Burbank, but it is perhaps safe to say that if he had a tree which grew to a sturdy stalk and seemed to be generally flourishing, but was not giving the fruit that it naturally should, he would devote himself seriously to the business of studying the cause for this inferior fruitage and seek means of correcting the defect. If he decided that it would be well to attempt a cure by a grafting process, it is safe to assume he would be very careful and thoughtful in selecting the variety of the tree from which he took the material for this operation. He wouldn't grab up the first thing that came to hand, graft it onto his ailing tree and then trust to luck for results.

"But that is what he proposes to do to the sturdy tree of commerce in the state of Minnesota. He admits that the distance tariff law may, if enacted, have results of which he has no knowledge. He says it makes no difference what will happen, that he doesn't know what may happen, but he is satisfied that nothing amiss can result—because a distance tariff law has been in operation in Iowa for twenty-three years.

"Iowa has had such a law for that period of time, it is true. Also, it is true that Iowa has no large cities. Why? Because the distance tariff law gives Chicago and Omaha advantages over the jobbers located in Iowa cities. Chicago and Omaha jobbers and manufacturers ship into Iowa points and pay interstate rates. Iowa merchants ship to Iowa points on the basis of the state distance tariff law, which rates are higher than interstate rates, because the railroads find intrastate business more expensive to handle than interstate. The intrastate rates are a handicap to all the towns in Iowa, but Des Moines has become the largest city in the state and is a town of some importance, commercially, because the roads in that state radiate from Des Moines. The distance tariff rates immediately operate in favor of that city, naturally.

"In arguing for the distance tariff act, Senator Cashman says that the railroads of Minnesota earn $4,600 a mile, which is true. This earning rate he compares with that of Iowa roads, which is $1,800 a mile. If it is proposed to reduce the earnings per mile of Minnesota roads, and that is done, where does it leave us? Under the gross earnings tax law, the railroads pay state taxes at a ratio of $112 a mile. Suppose we figure that tax on the Iowa basis—it would run $72 a mile. No gain for the state there, under the distance tariff law.

Hits Taxpayers.

"As for the taxpayers of the state, the Iowa plan would hit them hard. It would be up to them to make up the difference, through some method of taxation, between a $112 and a $72 gross earnings tax. And that is not the only increased tax that would devolve upon the public. It has been demonstrated that the distance tariff law increases rates and decreases competition—really eliminates competition between the roads. It is a scheme of freight tariffs that cannot but be entirely pleasing to the roads, for the elimination of competition would result in greatly decreasing the cost of operation.

"Having no competition, the roads would make no effort to handle shipments speedily. Trains would not move until loaded to hauling capacity. There would be no incentive for improving the service, as the roads are constantly trying to do today.

"As to rates. Under the long and short-haul clause, the roads are not permitted to charge a greater rate for shipments to an intermediate point than to a farther point. The result is that when competition develops at a central point, the shippers between the two terminal centers get the lower rate imposed by the competitive bidding for that traffic. Under the distance tariff law, the most direct line would get the business automatically, as the more indirect line must charge the shipper on the basis of its mileage, and not the other road's. Then the intermediate points would lose their lower rates.

"In interstate traffic, to which the distance tariff would apply exclusively, the roads would necessarily collect equal rates from all. That would eliminate the decreased rates allowed distributing points. Whenever the industries of a city grew to such magnitude that the best interests of the surrounding territory demand it, the state railroad commission orders the roads to put into effect rates from that place 5 per cent lower than the common rate. This is a benefit not only to the distributing center affected, but is a great benefit to all the towns in the territory. Without this beneficial arrangement, flourishing centers of trade and manufacture would lack a decided incentive to growth which they now possess. Iowa is a case in point. Its commerce and manufactures are handled from outside the state.

Duluth Can Dodge.

"If the distance tariff law is enacted by the Minnesota legislature, Duluth will be the beneficiary immediately, but not permanently, perhaps. It appears to us that it is more important to nourish and foster the commerce of the entire state rather than to look with a wholly selfish eye to the immediate interests of Duluth. Duluth's traffic can all be handled as interstate commerce. All that is necessary is to route shipments via Superior. That routing makes the shipment interstate commerce and the state distance tariff law can have no effect on it. This point has been settled definitely and conclusively by the interstate commerce commission and by decisions of the federal supreme court.

But the interests of Duluth are so closely and inseparably intertwined with those of all other parts of the state that it would be anything but desirable to build up purely local commerce at the cost of the real prosperity of the whole state."

WOULD TEST ALL CATTLE

Milk Inspector Wants Their Sale Prohibited Until They Are Inspected.

Annual Report to Health Department Contains Some Interesting Information.

The prohibition of the sale of cattle for any purpose until they have been tested for tuberculosis, is recommended by Milk Inspector Grant E. Owens in his annual report, submitted today to Dr. H. E. Webster, health commissioner.

It is said that the passage of an ordinance containing this requirement would cause the seller to seek out the officials of the department, whereas they are now kept constantly on the lookout to detect untested cows, resulting in a substantial benefit to the health of the public as well as benefiting the animal industry in Duluth and tributary territory.

The report also states that the work of the department would be greatly facilitated, in the matter of making tuberculosis tests, if a large barn or shed were provided where all cattle shipped into the city might be housed until they have been tested and tagged. It is asserted that the work has been greatly aided by the sediment tester, which enables the officials to show the dairymen without giving rise to doubt, that their milk contains dirt. Legislation is asked requiring outside shippers to cool their milk, and keep it cool until it reaches its destination. Much of it is injured by standing in the hot sun on railroad platforms. The department further advises that a great deal would be accomplished in the way of stamping out glanders if the watering troughs were abandoned.

Inspector Owens has made the interesting calculation that the daily consumption of milk in Duluth is .44 pints per person, on a basis of 78,500 population. He accounts for the apparently small average consumption by the use of condensed milk.

The Year's Work.

During the year he and his assistant, Conrad Wicklund, tested 1,912 cows for tuberculosis in the city, 604 cows outside the city, condemned 19 cows, took 262 samples from wagons, took 83 samples of restaurant milk, 85 samples of shippers' milk, made 362 visits to dairies in the city and 94 visits to dairies outside the city, issued 157 licenses to milkmen and 226 to stores, quarantined 47 horses for glanders and killed 32 of them.

The report states that approximately 4,362 gallons of milk are sold daily in the city, supplied by a total of 2,545 cows. The statistics do not include the cows owned by private families, whose milk is used for home consumption and not sold.

The report is as follows:

"No milk has been sold in the city which has not been derived from cattle which have undergone the test for tuberculosis. This work has required vigilance and care but we have been rewarded for our efforts by an awakening of both the dairymen and the public to the importance of the question involved. Our efforts have not been confined alone to securing milk for the public free from the danger of tuberculosis. We have been carefully guarding it along other lines to prevent it from contamination of any sort and without going into detail, we can positively assure you, that we are securing for our city milk of a very high grade.

Need of a Shed.

"The work of the department in the matter of testing for tuberculosis would be greatly facilitated if a large barn or shed was provided where all cattle shipped into the city for dairy purposes, might be housed until they were tested and tagged. In those cases of cattle which do not show positively that they are infected with tuberculosis we place what we call a suspicious tag in the ear. This protects any prospective purchaser and makes the owner desirous to have the animal retested at the end of six weeks.

"We believe an ordinance should be passed by the city preventing the sale of cattle for any purpose which have not been tested for tuberculosis. Such an ordinance would cause the vendor to seek us out to have the test made where—as now we are kept constantly on the lookout to detect the untested cow. Such an ordinance we think would do much for the public health as well as benefit animal industry in the city and contiguous territory. The outside dairymen have been conforming pretty generally to our demand that they ship to the city only milk from tuberculin tested cows.

Milk Supply Good.

"The milk supply of the city in comparison with that of other cities is of a very superior quality. We think we may congratulate ourselves upon the fact that our efforts have shown such excellent results. The sediment tester which we have adopted has proven of inestimable value in convincing dairymen by ocular demonstration our ability to detect the lack of cleanliness in their methods. We regret the fact that we have not as yet convinced the country shippers the necessity of cooling their milk and keeping it cool until it reaches its destination. We believe legislation along these lines to be in order. No dairyman should be allowed to permit his milk to stand for hours in the hot sun awaiting the train by which it is to be transported to the city. A room should be provided and kept cool for its reception until the train arrives.

"This branch of the department has also the care of contagious disease in horses, the principal of which is glanders, of which there have been a number of cases in the city. In each case the horse has been condemned and the animal slaughtered and the premises thoroughly fumigated and cleaned. We would advise following in the footsteps of Minneapolis in regard to this matter. In this latter city they have abandoned the drinking troughs throughout the city and as a result have had to contend with a good deal less of this disease."

INDORSED BY THE PRESIDENT

Canadian Reciprocity Agreement Goes to Congress Next Thursday.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The new Canadian reciprocity agreement will be presented to congress next Thursday, accompanied by a strong message of indorsement by President Taft. Almost simultaneously, Mr. Fielding, the Canadian minister of finance, will submit the agreement to the Canadian parliament in session at Ottawa. In each case the agreement will be accompanied by detailed statements of the precise effect of the changes recommended in the existing tariff law, with comparisons of the existing and projected rates.

Absolute silence still is maintained by the officials here as to the nature of the changes, but there is reason to believe that they are sure of hearty approval in at least one quarter, and that is by the American purchasers and consumers of print paper.

Excluding Sundays and one legal holiday, only thirty-one days will remain of the present session of congress after this agreement is laid before it. Its acceptance by the legislative branch of the government depends entirely on the absence of any serious organized opposition which could prevent action upon the project before March 4, when the session must terminate.

THE BONDING SCHEME.

In the Open Court there appears a communication regarding the proposal to ask the legislature to pass an enabling act to permit the city of Duluth to issue bonds for the purchase or erection of an electric light plant. The letter was received too late on Saturday to admit of publication on that date, but it is given today.

The Herald has pointed out before, and it takes this occasion to do so again, that the passage of the proposed enabling act would put the city in an unfortunate position financially. At present Duluth has issued all the bonds that it can issue without an appeal to the legislature for authority to extend that privilege. The city's credit is good, and that is something that cannot be said of all municipalities. But investors are wary of buying where there is a surplus of issues, and the fact that another three-quarters of a million dollar issue had been authorized would have a tendency to injure the city's financial standing, as the buyer in the bond market makes little distinction between authorization and an actual offering for sale. Therefore it is advisable to go slowly in seeking such authority.

Of course if the issuance of the proposed bonds were necessary it would put the matter on another basis. But is it necessary? Those who are advocating the passage of an enabling act say that they want the authority to hold over the Duluth Edison Electric company as a club when the time comes to renew the present contract with that company. The idea is that better terms could be made if the city had authority to buy the plant whenever it saw fit to do so. There is no complaint made regarding the terms of the present contract, but it is claimed by the advocates of the enabling act that they are afraid the old terms, which expire next September, cannot be duplicated.

As far as has been shown, there is no basis for that fear. This city has been provided with unusually cheap light service, where municipal lighting was concerned, and there is less cost to the citizens for the electricity used in their homes than is charged in many cities, larger and smaller than Duluth. The city already owns and operates its gas plant, and the gas rates, too, are lower than they are in most cities. The ownership of that plant and the rates given on gas provide in themselves a club that should prove sufficient deterrent if the electric company thought of trying to increase the cost of its service.

The Herald, in taking the position it does on this bond-authorizing scheme, is not making an appeal for the Duluth Edison company. The Herald knows and appreciates what every citizen should know and appreciate—that Duluth is getting reasonable service at reasonable rates. But The Herald does not believe that it is advisable to seek authority to issue bonds when there is no apparent necessity for such issuance. It has been the consistent policy of Duluth not to resort to bond issues except when that course was necessary, and the city's credit has thriven under that policy. To change it would be to injure Duluth's credit, and to that The Herald is opposed.

THE SANITARIUM FOR CHILDREN.

St. Louis county is to be congratulated on numbering among its people men and women such as those who are preparing to erect a department for children in connection with the proposed county tuberculosis sanitarium. Also, the men and women who have taken up this project are entitled to the warmest appreciation of all citizens of the county. They offer to spend $10,000 in the erection of a children's pavilion, and turn it over to the county on condition that the county provide for its support.

With such a proposition there was but one thing the county commissioners could do—accept the offer with sincere appreciation. The action taken by them concludes the preliminaries of the plan, and St. Louis county is to lead the state in caring for the children who may be afflicted with the disease.

It is a work not only of comfort, but of the greatest value. Tuberculosis, thanks to the study of men versed in disease, is not today the public scourge it was ten or twenty years ago. Means of combating it have been found, and the policy of providing public institutions, at which those afflicted may receive treatment and also learn to care for themselves, has become so general that there are those who make the prophecy that the "white plague" ultimately will be stamped out.

To provide a place where children may receive this treatment and instruction means that the conquest of man over the disease will come that much sooner. It is rarely that any affliction of the character of tuberculosis becomes firmly fixed in the body of a growing child. The same extra vitality provided by nature to insure growth and development serves as a weapon against the encroachment of disease. By means of the children's pavilion in the county sanitarium this weapon can be utilized to the fullest extent.

There is no reason why children could not be admitted to the regular department of the county institution, but the women who are planning the provision of a separate place for them have seen and pointed out objections to the mingling of the children and the adults, and they are right. By giving the children a separate place the discouragement natural to mingling with adult tuberculosis patients will be avoided, and a healthier mental atmosphere can be provided for the younger unfortunates. The plan also involves provision for school advantages, and this in itself is all-important. By means of the proposed addition to the sanitarium the afflicted children will be given not only a better chance for life and health, but they will be provided with a basis for an intelligent hope for their own future and with knowledge that will aid them in overcoming disease themselves and make them able to help others who may be afflicted.

The plan for a children's pavilion is excellent and the men and women behind it should receive hearty support in carrying it out.

ARE YOU REGISTERED?

Don't forget that tomorrow is registration day for the city election next month. On the first day of registration there were comparatively few names put on the books by the officials. Was yours among them? If it wasn't you had better get out tomorrow and see that it is placed there, so that you can have something to say about the election of the next city council.

To be sure there will be one more day to register, but you may be called out of town that day, or you may be sick or infernally busy or something like that. Register tomorrow and get it over with. Then you can rest easy in the knowledge that on election day you can take your part in the management of city affairs.

MR. HITCHCOCK, ECONOMIZER.

Discontent among employes and patrons of the United States postoffice department was told of in a dispatch from Washington published in The Herald a few days ago, and the nature of the complaints cited did not throw particular credit on the much-bragged-of savings which Postmaster General Hitchcock has effected in the administration of that department. According to that dispatch, postoffice employes are telling of overwork and patrons are complaining of failure to establish deliveries where they are needed, both in the cities and on rural routes.

Neither of these forms of complaint is particularly new. It might be said that it is the nature of employes to find fault, and that it is the nature of patrons to demand too much. In both cases the postoffice department has made the same reply—"the financial condition of the department does not warrant further expenditures."

In this connection it is worth while to consider an article written by Don C. Seitz, business manager of the New York World, for the February number of the World's Work. Mr. Seitz arraigns the postoffice department severely for exerting itself "to repress energy and curtail custom." He points out that the postoffice department is in fact in the position of a great corporation "which built or rented 5,580 buildings, hired as many local agents, with 179,480 assistants and 41,152 men and horses for delivery purposes in rural districts, made contracts for transportation at a fixed rate for a term of years," and then, by means of policies of repression and curtailment, lost $5,848,567 of its stockholders' money on a total annual business of $224,128,657.62.

These policies of repression and curtailment, Mr. Seitz sees exemplified in the abandonment to express companies of huge amounts of business that the postoffice could just as well handle without increased cost and to the advantage of the income side of the postal financial sheets, and in the failure to go out after business instead of repelling it by restrictions and multiple regulations. "Postal rates are not too low," he declares. "They are far too high," and in support of this statement he cites the workings of the Canadian postoffice, which, with lower letter and second-class rates, less patronage and more difficult delivery districts, showed a profit of $743,210.25 in its last fiscal year, or 6.71 per cent of its gross receipts. This, if applied to the mammoth business of the United States postoffice, would mean a net income from the department of $15,012,887.45, instead of a loss of more than $5,000,000. England, it appears, reaped a postal profit of $24,543,725 last year, and Japan, with lower rates than ours and a parcels post, $9,850,000. And Postmaster General Hitchcock presumes to pat himself on the back for a deficit of over $5,000,000, and President Taft pats the places Hitchcock can't reach.

The writer shows how the postoffice department loses business because the newspapers will not use the mails. The system is too slow and cumbersome.

Here are some statements from Mr. Seitz's article: The postoffice today is not more than 60 per cent efficient; it ought to be at least 90 per cent, with its monopolistic advantages; it needs more business and should hunt for trade instead of driving it out with a club; the "deal" with the express companies should end, the department should demand a parcels post.

In support of these statements Mr. Seitz gives instances of "fatuity" on the part of the government in the conduct of the postal business, and shows wherein that management is costing the people millions every year in appropriations, where it ought to be adding to the national income.

To be sure those lost millions must come out of the public purse, but the American public never yet complained of expense when it got its money's worth, when every dollar it put into any project was returned to it full value in service or property. The postoffice department could just as well be giving the public better service and getting the amounts of the annual deficit directly through the ordinary channels, and that too without raising its rates, as to be draining the people through taxes that go to make up a deficit and bring the public absolutely nothing in return for the expenditure. Put the postoffice on a business basis, and there will be a complete wiping out of the deficit, and the president and the postmaster general will not need to do their little mutual admiration act. The public will attend to it for them.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Growth in the North.

Aitkin Age: Some of the smaller Minnesota cities are making gains in population that are worth taking notice of. In the past ten years, Chisholm, which was not in existence at the time of the last census and was destroyed by fire two years ago, has grown to a place of 7,684. Virginia jumps from 2,926 to 10,973, Hibbing from 2,481 to 8,832. Cloquet has 7,031, Brainerd 8,526, Little Falls 6,073, St. Cloud 10,600.

And yet some people are slow to admit that reapportionment is the just and right thing.

Men Who Go To the Sky in Ships.

Austin Transcript: The record of thirty-nine experienced aviators killed last year disputes the assumption that the conquest of the air is impending. A wonderful mechanical plaything has been developed. Will the genius which created it and the appalling sacrifices made in its exploitation ultimately produce something really worth while?

It may take a long time, but even that cautious phrase may be uncalled for, in view of the remarkable progress that has been made in the brief period in which men have known how to get far enough up in the air on flying machines to fall to their death. It is difficult to believe that these sacrifices are made in vain.

Bouquets and Brickbats.

Little Falls Transcript: The bill providing for equal suffrage has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature amid a shower of roses from the fair suffragettes. Brickbats may possibly follow later.

Coming from this source, the suggestion contained in Editor Fuller's concluding sentiment may be a threat.

Leading Them To It.

Hibbing Tribune: An organization is being formed in Hibbing to fight the practice of young men callers who keep the electric lights burning beyond the midnight hour and never talk matrimony. The society will probably be known as the "Parental Surveillance Association of Hibbing."

Surely, the young ladies of Hibbing are not less adroit conversationalists than those of other towns? And why keep the lights burning?

Read That—Then This!

Anoka Herald: Dancing is over expensive. Why should a fellow pay $6 to $8 to hug a girl in public when he can get a box of candy for 50 cents and go up to the house and sit in the hammock all the evening?

Couldn't Anoka and Hibbing arrange for an exchange of instructors, as American and foreign universities do? But doesn't that hammock suggestion make your teeth chatter?

Good Use For 'Em.

Brainerd Dispatch: Northern Minnesota has unlimited possibilities in vegetable raising. Why not establish canning factories?

And can all the knockers.

Aldrich and Brandeis.

Wabasha Herald: Do you remember what a certain distinguished senator said about the expenses of running the government? Now comes a Mr. Brandeis and says that the railroads can save $1,000,000 a day. And their talk is cheap, too.

Yes, it's a whole lot less expensive than is the waste they talk about.

Division of Blame.

Pine County Pioneer: Any system which divides the people of this country into classes is wrong. Any man who tries to stir up class hatreds is the enemy of the republic.

Any man who uses his wealth to create unjust and unfair conditions is much more to blame than is the man who attempts to cure those conditions by resort to the methods of the agitator.

Prevents Railway Accidents.

Consular Reports: The following account from the London Times of a demonstration made in Sydney, Australia, was transmitted by Vice Consul General Richard Westacott of London:

"In the presence of the chief railway engineers of New South Wales and New Zealand and the consulting engineer of the commonwealth, a successful demonstration was recently made of a device for preventing railway collisions irrespective of the human factor or of signals. An engine entering an already occupied section automatically whistles, and, if the engine driver fails, an electric controller automatically applies the brakes. The invention undoubtedly prevents collisions between trains going either in the same or in opposite directions, and whether on single or on double lines. The inventor claims that the controller also deals with derailments at points or curves, and completely eliminates the human factor from accidents."

Kindness to Horses in Switzerland.

Basle correspondence Pall Mall Gazette: English people traveling on the continent have often been troubled to see the unkind way in which animals are treated, more especially in Paris, Italy and Spain. Some of the continental countries have only lately established societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

In Switzerland there has for some time existed a strong animal protection society, which has now organized classes for cab drivers, coachmen and all who have charge of horses. These classes are very largely attended by cab drivers and others who intend to take up a line of life in which they will have much to do with horses. Examiners being veterinary surgeons, police inspectors and cab proprietors.

An examination was held the other day, the pupils having been examined in what they had learnt during their course of lessons—that is how to drive, the best kind of harness and the proper way of harnessing, how to look after and feed horses, and what horses can be expected to do and what not. "Students" who wish to attend these classes but cannot afford to do so are given assistance from a special fund for the purpose.

Reward of Art.

Washington Star: "Those people talked all the time you were playing. They couldn't hear a word of your music."

"That's all right," replied the eminent performer. "My music prevented me from hearing their conversation?"

"College Spirit."

Chicago Post: Some young men, in pursuit of higher education in a nearby university town, have been haled before a nondegreed magistrate and fined for disturbing the peace, simply because they tried to take forcible possession of a moving picture theater.

If we are to pursue higher education, how are we going to head her off if such obstacles are thrown in the way? When a knowledge of differential calculus and the binomial theorem, to say nothing of the expired languages, prompts young men to put the kibosh on the average moving picture, then hurrah for higher education! The higher the better.

A Maine Captain.

Slightly Different.

OUGHT TO GO SLOW ON THE BONDING SCHEME.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I saw in The Herald last night an account of a meeting of the delegation from here at St. Paul at which the proposition of asking the legislature to authorize the issuance of more bonds by Duluth was discussed. The men at that meeting who said there was sure to be opposition in Duluth were dead right. There is opposition here, and I am part of it. I don't believe we need those bonds, at least not now. What's more, their authorization would only be a detriment to the city, in its financial standing. What do we want of such power when we are already bonded up to our eyes and more? Of course many cities own their electric light plants, and others are buying them right along, or building them where there isn't any handy that they can buy. But those are the cities that are being held up by light companies or else can't get such service even at holdup rates. Duluth is more fortunate, and as long as that is the case, what is the use of heaping up a fresh lot of indebtedness on ourselves or of hurting our reputation abroad by threatening to do so? If the city were in the grip of a soulless corporation it would be different. But our electric company is unusually soulful, and I don't believe it is going to throttle us. Let's stick to our present debts and not try to hobble ourselves with any new styles in that line.

AN OPPONENT OF THE BOND IDEA.
Duluth, Jan. 21.

SHORT NAMES FOR TELEPHONE EXCHANGES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In view of the fact that the Zenith Telephone company is contemplating a change in its already efficient service much like the change recently inaugurated by the Bell system, I would like to make a suggestion which I think should appeal to every user of the telephone and most particularly to the busy business man.

I refer to the method of calling numbers when the company operates more than one exchange. For instance in calling different numbers at present on the old telephone, the subscriber is compelled to use the words "Melrose" or "Calumet," etc. The idea is all right and one which is in use in all the large cities of the country, but let us hope that the Zenith people will pick out their calls in a business-like manner and with no idea of getting a poetic name for any certain exchange, which is a menace to rapid service and entirely unbusinesslike. For instance, the words, "Main," "East," "West," etc., could be used much more appropriately than such silly names as "Calumet," "Melrose," and "Florence."

This may sound trivial to the casual telephone user, but it is a serious handicap to rapid calls to the business man who is using his telephone constantly, not only for local but long distance calls.

PUBLIC SERVICE CITIZEN.
Duluth, Jan. 22.

WANTS TO KNOW WHY THE ENABLING ACT IS SOUGHT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The city council has asked the legislature to enact a law giving Duluth authority to issue bonds to the amount of $700,000 to build an electric light plant. The measure is now before the St. Louis county delegation, and apparently its intention is to put it through after making some minor changes in it.

Personally, I must confess I don't understand this.

Why does nobody ask certain obvious questions about this proceeding?

For instance, how did it happen that Duluth is preparing to embark on a new municipal ownership enterprise? Who decided that it was necessary, advisable or feasible? What is the occasion for it? Can the city afford it? What effect will this proposed issue of new bonds have upon the credit of the city and the salability of other really necessary bonds, even if the authorization is not used by the city? Will not the fact that the issuance of a large amount of bonds depends only upon a political flurry and a hurried vote of the people, make it still more difficult than it is now to sell Duluth bonds, even though, for the present, no action is taken?

When the city went into the water and gas business, there was great need of it, and the city never took action more advisedly. The water supply was tainted—poisoned, in fact—and rates were high. What circumstances are there now that parallel that condition and make this proposed action necessary? Is there complaint of rates or service under the present electric lighting condition? I have heard of none.

Before this action is taken, shouldn't there be more discussion of the subject? Ought it not to be necessary that somebody explain why this step is needed? Should a move so momentous, so costly, so menacing to the city's credit, be taken as a mere matter of course?

For one, I would like to have more light on this subject, and if no better reasons are offered for this proposed enabling act than I have heard so far, action should be taken to stop the passage of this measure. Very truly,

JOSEPH SELLWOOD.
Duluth, Jan. 23.

An Ancient Race.

Auckland correspondence London Standard: Mr. Clement Wragge, who has just returned to New Zealand from Sydney, is as convinced as ever that the inscriptions he discovered at the Bay of Islands have nothing to do with the Maoris, but have a prehistoric origin.

Mr. Wragge, speaking on the subject the other day, said: "These marks have to my mind been made by a people allied to those who built the wonderful statues and carved the marvellous inscriptions on Easter island. The latter have nothing to do with the Polynesians, but are allied to those found in Central and South America long ages ago. In fact, they refer to the Atlantean race which intermingled with the still more ancient race of Lemurians. These, I am convinced, inhabited a land which once existed where is now the Pacific ocean. Easter island, Pitcairn, Tahiti, Raiatea, Fiji, New Caledonia, Rarotonga and the main foundation rocks of New Zealand, Southeast Australia and Tasmania are undoubtedly," declared Mr. Wragge, "the remains, sticking up, of that old Lemurian land.

"I have information," he added, "that in the north of New Zealand there are to be found in certain caves human bones of enormous size — far larger than those of human beings of today. If this is true, they are the bones of the old Lemurian-Atlantean race."

"Wolf Moneth."

London Chronicle: January, the month with the Latin name, had a grimmer name in Saxon England. Richard Verstegan is his "Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities," a curious book published in 1673, writes: "The month which we now call 'January,' our Saxon ancestors called 'wolf monat' to wit, 'wolf moneth,' because people are wont always in that month to be in more danger to be devoured of wolves than in any season else of the year; for that, through the extremity of cold and snow, those ravenous creatures could not find other beasts sufficient to feed upon."

Close Relations.

Washington Star: "You advise that man's constituents to stand by him?"

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I advise 'em to stand by close enough to watch everything he does."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1891.

At the annual meeting of the Pilgrim Congregational church it was stated that the present membership is 312, of whom 24 are absent from the city. There are 416 scholars enrolled in the Sunday school. The annual election resulted: Clerk, J. M. Anderson; trustees, K. S. Munger and C. H. Clague; treasurer, E. G. Chapman; assistant, Wardwell Ames; music committee, Messrs. Selden, White and Ames.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL ACT.

Consular Reports: The administration of the industrial disputes investigation act is referred to at length in the annual report of the Canadian labor department, just issued. The number of disputes dealt with during the year under its provisions was 30 and the total references since its enactment 82.

The 30 disputes dealt with under the act were distributed among the various industries as follows: Coal mining, 9; metal mining, 2; railways, 13; street railways, 1; freight handlers, 2; longshoremen, 1; teamsters, 1; civic employes, 1, and industries other than public utilities, 1. It is estimated that the total number of employes affected in the disputes was 30,320.

The amendments made to the act last session had for their object: (1) To relieve employes under certain circumstances from the necessity of stating on oath that the necessary authority to declare a strike had been obtained; (2) to place the onus of invoking the act on the party proposing a change in wages or hours, where any such proposed change results in a dispute; and (3) to increase slightly the remuneration paid to members of the board other than the chairman.

During the year 1909, 1,279 fatal and 2,718 serious accidents occurred throughout Canada. This is an increase of 7 in fatal and 441 in non-fatal accidents.

Simplicity of Expression.

Boston Record: A story was told on Martin Lomasney at the Cape Cod commercial travelers' dinner by Representative Poe of Leominster: "Last session Lomasney was seen talking to someone in one of the corridors, and as I passed I heard these words: 'Shall I write him?' 'No,' said Lomasney; 'never write a thing when you can talk, and never talk when you can nod your head.'"

NEW YORK ACT "STOPS SHOW"

Bernard and Weston Feature of New Bill at the Orpheum.

Two young Jewish lads "stopped the show" at the Orpheum last evening, the audience refusing to see the next act until one of the lads had twice stated that they "didn't know any more."

The boys, whose names are Mike Bernard and Willie Weston, scored one of the biggest hits ever made in the new theater. They are just opening a tour of the Orpheum circuit, coming here direct from Hammerstein's New York theater. Bernard has a knack for playing popular music in a popular manner, and his partner is the cleverest singer of popular songs ever heard in the Duluth Orpheum. Weston has an imitation of Bert Williams that is a shout, and he has two or three other comic songs that "got across" in great shape. The act seemed to just catch the fancy of the audience, and the boys were brought back for about four encores.

The other feature of this week's bill is the appearance of "Marvelous Dick" the dog which writes and draws. Dick is the real "high brow" of canine performers. He doesn't jump through hoops or climb stairs on his fore paws, but he does problems in mental arithmetic, and draws pictures with a pen that is strapped to his paw. It may be that the mental arithmetic is really done by the dark haired French gentleman who owns Dick, but the signals to the dog are so well concealed in the owner's French patter that the audience was unable to catch them. Dick also draws a triangle, a square and a circle, writes his own name, and finishes with a caricature of his owner. Dick is certainly something new in the trained dog line. Duluth is the first American city where he has appeared, as he has just come from Europe for a tour of the Orpheum circuit, opening here.

An artistic little sketch in which the well known character actor, Maurice Freeman appears, is another attractive number on this week's bill. The name of the sketch is "Tony and The Stork" and it tells an appealing little story of the experiences of Tony, an Italian, in a hospital, where he has gone to find his wife. He is informed that she and her baby are dead, but later this is found to be a mistake. Mr. Freeman is a finished artist, and his act is most delightfully presented. That vaudeville audiences appreciate a good dramatic sketch well presented, was proven by the enthusiastic reception given Mr. Freeman.

The Six Flying Banvards have a pretentious casting act on the high trapeze. Their trampolin mat tumbling was better than their casting. The Banvards are former circus performers, having been featured with the Ringling show, and their act smacks of the white topped tents.

Ben Beyer and his brother have a real novelty in a bicycle act. They work rapidly and with great dexterity, many of the tricks being new and sensational. It made a first class opening act.

Johnny Stanley and Ruby Norton present what they call "A Few New Vaudeville Ideas." They have a clever idea for their opening. Stanley appearing in the audience as a "fresh" usher passing water. He later goes on the stage and they present two or three good songs, and some bright comedy. The best feature of the act is Stanley's imitation of the famous English comedian, "Laddie Cliff," which is very cleverly done.

Paul Florus plays the xylophone and gets some real music out of it. This instrument is usually kicked around vaudeville houses and played in cheap musical acts only. Mr. Florus has attempted to give it some standing as a musical instrument and play it as it as it should be played. The audiences yesterday seemed to thoroughly enjoy his act.

The overture by the Concert orchestra, "The Hungarian Lutespiel," and the Orpheum motion pictures complete an excellent bill, which willl continue all week, with a daily matinee.

MUSICAL COMEDY AT THE EMPRESS

Pretty Girls and Catchy Songs Feature the New Vaudeville Bill.

Featured by a real musical comedy in four scenes with pretty girls, catchy music, some new and clever steps, some gowns that are dazzlers and some young men in natty attire and with good voices, the new vaudeville bill, which opened yesterday at the Empress theater is interesting and entertaining throughout.

The new show is one that is really worth braving a cold night to witness. It takes a pretty good bill to drag one from slippers, a good book and the fireside in zero weather, but no one apparently regretted it yesterday for there was more enthusiasm desplayed than on any opening day in many weeks.

The girls, who with De Haven and Sidney manufacture music and fun, are about as lively and hard working a chorus as has been seen in Duluth this winter. With clever lines and catchy songs, they give a performance that is really worth while.

The act is one of the most pretentious given at the Empress this season. The first scene is in a hotel lobby in New York, the next in a New York railroad station and the third is a midwinter scene. "At the Telephone" is an up-to-date and catchy musical number that yesterday came in for several encores. The girls of the chorus go into the audience with the telephones and sing from there. The idea is novel and attractive. There are several other excellent numbers, and the whole act seems to have plenty of life and snap. It is just opening a tour of the Sullivan & Considine circuit, coming from New York.

The Braggaar Brothers are athletes. They are good athletes, too, and they get a lot of good comedy out of their act. They do many of the old tricks and some new ones in the very short time they are on. The audience could have stood for a much longer performance from these clever men.

Jere Sanford and his voice are well known to vaudeville audiences. His voice is just as good as ever and his songs are new. He makes about fifteen minutes pass in a very enjoyable manner.

Jack Springer and Ruby Church have a playlet entitled, "Who Is It?" It is full of bright comedy and yesterday it kept the three audiences in roars of laughter. In the playlet a mother-in-law, who is at outs with her son-in-law, and a statue of the said mother-in-law make all kinds of complications out of which there grows a lot of fun. Mr. Springer and Miss Church are former members of "The Squaw Man" company and both are talented actors.

Edwin George is a comedian and juggler. He juggles all kinds of articles, and his comedy is as good as his juggling.

The bill as a whole has plenty of variety and is fully up to the high standard set during the last few weeks, during which there has been a decided improvement in the Empress bills.

Gertrude Elliott.

Miss Gertrude Elliott, Glad, in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," due here soon, is of the expressed opinion that acting in London is less in the nature of work than it is here—because, as she puts it, the "player takes more kindly to his task, whatever it may be." She adds: "I may best explain, perhaps, by saying that the London actor or actress goes to social functions or takes up sports to fill in the time between performances, while the American player goes to the theater simply to earn the wherewithal to indulge himself socially and recreatively." Further: "The London actor blends the theater with the remainder of his existence so well and easily that one is not obsessed by the thought that his calling differs from that of the layman. Over here, no matter how hard one may try not to be a thing apart from everyday life, one is forced always to remember that he is an actor, and, therefore, to be treated as if superhuman — or, perhaps, not human at all!"

the point that in the hearing before the committing magistrate, evidence should have been permitted to be presented by the defense and at the expense of the government where the defendant was unable to pay the cost of presenting such evidence.

The point was raised because Judge Blair, as the committing magistrate at the preliminary hearing in Jersey City, refused to entertain evidence offered to prove young Charlton to be insane.

Counsel took up the international question involved, that is the right of Italy to ask for Charlton's extradition. He held first that in the absence of a treaty or act of congrses the president is without power to grant extradition. He made this point by way of laying the foundation for an argument that even in the case of a treaty the president was without power to grant extradition unless the treaty contained an obligation to do so.

Mr. Clarke went into an extended argument to show that under the Italian government's interpretation of the treaty between the two countries, the power of extradition does not lie where the accused person is a citizen of the asylum country. An alternative point made by Mr. Clarke was that Italy having refused to grant extraditions on application of the United States has broken the treaty.

heard his cry and turned in time to see him disappear beneath the surface, to come up again in a few seconds. Every effort was made to reach him immediately, but without success. Every line went astray, blown about by the high wind. Another circumstance was against them. As it happened Peterson floundered in the trough of the sea as the fishing boat mounted the crest of the waves.

Seeing that they could not reach him in their position they threw the engine into full speed ahead. Taking their lives in their hands every minute Capt. Fred Hokanson and his assistant, J. Ekler, made a complete circle, coming back upon the drowning man. By an exhibition of the most remarkable seamanship they made the turns in safety and swung alongside Peterson. They threw him a line, which he was able to grasp and hauled him aboard. As his head reached the level of the deck they grabbed him by the arms and shoulders, just in time to save him from sinking back to a watery grave. Completely exhausted and unconscious they dragged him to the deck. Alternately they worked over the prostrate body and administered restoratives. Peterson got every attention and suffered no ill effects from his terrible experience.

How he was able to keep his head above the water so long is a marvel. Even in mid-summer, when the surface of the lake is warmest, it is difficult to remain in the lake more than a few minutes. Only the best of nerve and an iron constitution enabled him to do so, as it must have taken ten minutes or more at the very least to bring the boat back into a position where those on board could render him assistance.

Capt. Hokanson and his assistant are entitled to great credit for saving Peterson's life. That they were able to manage the small craft in the teeth of the gale and at the same time manage to render assistance to the man overboard, is little less than a miracle. When other men familiar with the lake heard of what they had done they exclaimed that both of them are entitled to Carnegie medals.

Lake navigation at this season of the year is practically closed except for one or two boats which ply along the shore, and some fishermen, who get out when the weather is favorable. The trip is extremely dangerous and the hardy sailors who make it realize that they may be taking long chances.

Peterson went overboard off what is known as Little Two Harbors. It is but a small village and not much heard of. When asked this morning if they didn't have a hard time of it, Capt. Hokanson waved the suggestion aside with a remark to the effect that it wasn't much. "We just swung the boat around and threw him a line," was the only comment that he made.

On Jan. 18, Col. Dorantes advanced from Ojinaga with reinforcements. He circled about, avoiding the deadly pass and entered the mountains from the west. He discovered the insurrectos and a continuous fight for two days followed.

Dorantes then retired into the foothills and is now awaiting reinforcements.

Last night another column of a hundred soldiers left Ojinaga for the relief of Dorantes. Several wounded insurrectos and a number of wounded soldiers have been taken to San Juan. The insurrectos had cared for the wounded soldiers, treating them with the same consideration shown their men. There are about 800 soldiers and armed citizens of the government forces near Ojinaga and the insurrectos have about the same number in the district.

the range and its experts are experimenting with low grade ores," said Prof. Barneveld today. "These experiments are being made for the Oliver company exclusively, however, and the results they secure are not available to any one else, but it shows what a private company thinks of the value of such experiments. I am going to the range to do what I can to interest the people there in this measure, and to impress upon their minds that this bill was introduced by legislators representing a Southern Minnesota district. Therefore, if we are going to get any action by the legislature, it will be necessary for the Northern delegations to get behind it and push it without delay. If they don't, they may see it traded off for a bridge and road bill, or something like that, and the range will fail to get the experiment station,

Will Not Move School.

"It is not proposed to remove the school of mines from its present location. But the school suffers from lack of contact with the industry of the state. It is now where it belongs, at the university. Annually the students at the school are taking to the mining fields for practical experience, but they do not get as completely in touch with actual operations and related work as they should. It would cost several hundred thousand dollars to equip a new school on the range and the natural solution of the problem is the establishment of an experiment station. There is now no place where the farmer or settler can send a specimen of ore that he may find while drilling a well except to a private assayer. It would be necessary to have a man at the experiment station to assay the ores used in experimentation, so the facilities would all be there for giving the settler the advantages of the plant.

"These bills are the result of a demand on the board of regents, by interests outside of the university, that the school of mines serve the state by furnishing engineering supervision to all state departments that may have to deal with the mineral industry of the state, and by making provision for the free assays of ores and mineral specimens found in the state," said Prof. Bamerald. "They are presented to meet a state need, in the interests of conservation of capital, equipment and energy.

"The school of mines has satisfactorily served the tax commission in estimating ore reserves as a basis for tax valuation for the past two years. More work will be required from the school along this line. The necessity of promptly and efficiently meeting future demands in filed and office requires additional funds if the state is to derive the greatest benefit from the work of both departments.

"The state auditor has charge of state mineral lands. He feels that these state lands should have just as careful engineering supervision as private fee owners give their interests. The department looking after the business and financial end of this work can to good advantage utilize the school of mines for engineering assistance, and thus avoid duplication of equipment, supervision and labor that would follow in the maintenance of a large independent engineering organization.

Research Work.

"These bills will enable the school of mines to engage in logical problems connected with the mining industry. The Federal Bureau of Mines has promised co-operation with the proposed experiment station.

"On the industrial side, it will fill another long felt want. It will provide a place where the citizens of the state may come for information and advice along mining and metallurgical lines and where they may send for identification, and free assay if necessary, specimens of ores, rocks, clays and minerals. This will be a great advantage to the land owner, the farmer, the professional man and the merchant in both farming and mining communities.

"It seems logical that the state should turn to the school of mines for the work above outlined. Great advantage will be gained by the school of mines, on the educational side of its work, from closer contact with the practical side of an enormous state industry. The bills do not contemplate making any instructor in the University a member of any state department, bureau or commission.

"The purpose of these bills, therefore, is to equip and maintain a mines experiment station in connection with the school of mines so as to meet all these needs; do all this work with maximum efficiency and minimum expense to the state, and enlarge greatly the scope of technical instruction."

Copy of the Bill.

Following is the text of the bill:

"A bill for an act to create a mines experiment station in connection with the school of mines of the University of Minnesota and defining the powers of the board of regents in connection therewith and appropriating money therefor.

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

"Section 1. There shall be established, equipped and maintained, under the direction of the board of regents, a mines experiment station in connection with the school of mines of the University of Minnesota, to promote the development of mining and mineral resources of the state; to assay speciments of ores, rocks, clays and minerals; to make such assays free of charge for private parties, subject to such regulations as the board of regents may deem necessary; to make mining and metallurgical experiments in the treatment of such substances and in the utilization of mining and metallurgical by-products; to investigate methods of mining and the use of explosives; and to undertake such other mining and metallurgical problems as may seem desirable. The board of regents shall also have authority in its discretion and so far as its resources will permit to perform all the engineering work of the state tax commission, and to do such other work along the lines above outlined as may be requested by other state departments.

"Section 2. The board of regents shall have authority to co-operate with and to enter into agreements with other state surveys, departments or bureaus, for the purpose of carrying out work in common fields and avoiding conflicts and duplications of said work. The board shall also have authority to co-operate with and receive aid from the federal bureau of mines, or any other government.

"Section 3. Bulletins shall be issued from time to time, giving the results of investigations carried on by this experiment station.

"Section 4. For the purpose of establishing and manitaining this mines experiment station, the sum of $25,000 for equipment and $25,000 for maintenance for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1912, and the sum of $30,000 annually thereafter, is hereby set aside for equipment and maintenance, and appropriated for the purpose of this act.

"Section 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage."

THREE BURNED WITH DWELLING

N. C. Hanson and Two Children Perish Near Albert Lea, Minn.

Albert Lea, Minn., Jan. 23.—N. C. Hanson and two of his children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their residence on a farm in the township of Riceland, Friday night, while two other mmebers of the family were perhaps fatally burned. The origin of the fire is not known. The flames spread so rapidly that escape was impossible and the victims were suffocated and then burned beyond recognition.

The farm is owned by George Peterson of Hayward, and the house was old and inflammable.

KILLED BY FALLING LOG.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Vincent, aged 17, was killed while at work at Keelers camp, near Daggett, by being hit by a falling log.

EMERSON MAN IS STRUCK BY ENGINE

Canadian Customs Officer May Not Survive His Injuries.

Pembina, N. D., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert Hamilton, for several years mayor of Emerson, Man., lately appointed immigration inspector of the Canadian customs, was run down by a switch engine while en route to his daily duties and so badly injured that the amputation of his right limb was necessary.

He is in a serious state and his recovery is doubtful. Mr. Hamilton was walking along the track at the time of the accident and, having his head muffled on account of the storm, did not hear the engine which was following him.

He is 67 years old and is the grandfather of Cecil Hamilton of this city, who lost his arm last spring by being run over by an engine at the Northern Pacific depot.

Poisoning Ashland Dogs.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six dogs were poisoned yesterday in the city. This number was reported to the sanitary policeman, and the chances are, that others were poisoned, but no report was made. One of the animals, belonging to Fred Perrin was saved. The others died. There is no longer any doubt that some one in the city, has long been systematically poisoning dogs, scattering poison at intervals of a month or so, sometimes waiting for several months before continuing the work.

HARTLEY MINER LOSES HIS LIFE

Charge That Had Not Exploded Goes Off When Not Expected.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unexpected explosion of dynamite in the Hartley mine claimed the life of Erich Vimbeck, a miner, aged 30, and married, during the morning.

Vimbeck had fired two holes the previous evening, one of which unknown to him failed to explode. Upon returning to work in the morning he put in several small charges for the purpose of loosening the earth. The concussion of the smaller charges caused the left-over charge to explode, the unfortunate man receiving a frightful charge of rock and frozen earth which killed him instantly.

GILBERT VOTERS NOW PREDOMINATE

Are Expected to Swing the Coming Missabe Township Election.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest is being displayed in the approaching Missabe Mountain township election the caucus for which will be held in the township hall on Adams avenue. Since the annexation of the many adjoining locations, residents at the Gilbert end of the township are in the majority, and in the coming election no Evelethians will be allowed to participate. Among candidates mentioned are J. B. Thompson of Gilbert who will run for treasurer. This office is now filled by Albert Davey of this city, who is among the Evelethians who will be compelled to leave office in March, by reason of the recent annexation. C. G. Fulton, it is reported will try for the position of clerk now filled by S. E. Helps also of this city. Mayor P. R. Cosgrove is mentioned as a candidate for the position of supervisor, while a host of other Gilbertites are being talked of as successors of the Eveleth officials.

To Decide 1912 Polling Place.

At the coming caucus and election the township voters will decide the location of the 1912 polling place, and it is thought Gilbert will be selected, as the possibilities of a joint township and city hall being erected at Gilbert are very good. The local hall is of brick construction, and can be purchased. It is probable that the city may purchase the structure for library purposes, though many would be opposed to that move. The hall is at present being used by the school board for kindergarten purposes.

VIRGINIA EVILDOERS.

One Theft, a Cutting and a Wild West Stunt Pulled Off.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leo Billy appropriated a coat from a dummy in front of the store of Ben Milavetz, Saturday night. Officer Gately saw the "touch" and arrested Billy.

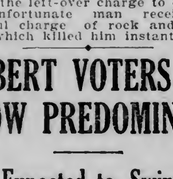

Albert Devich is alleged to have cut two of his companions in a drunken melee. The men are all Italian miners. Devich claims that the two men pounced upon him and that he used the razor for self protection. After the cutting Billy made hot tracks towards his home and after a chase of about seven blocks was captured by Officer Riordan. The two men were taken to the office of Dr. Crowe. The wounds proved to be ugly, but not of a dangerous nature.

Victor Maki, while intoxicated, undertook to shoot up the neighborhood of the North side, but was halted by Officer Larson before any serious damage was done. Maki fired three shots into the home of Mrs. Mattson, but for what reason is not known.

AURORA MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Health of Range Village Is Considered Good During 1910.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual report of the health officer of the village of Aurora has just been issued and speaks well for sanitary conditions.

There were 131 births in 1910, 60 males and 71 females, and 34 deaths, as compared with 76 births and 37 deaths in 1909.

There was no diphtheria at all in the village during the past year and only six cases of scarlet fever and three cases of typhoid fever. There were three cases of scarlet fever at the opening of the schools last fall but the school physician at once quarantined all members of the affected families and confined the disease to the original cases. This speaks well for the thoroughness of the work of the school physician, Dr. R. P. Pearsall, who is also health officer.

That there were only three cases of typhoid fever speaks well for the water and sewer system as during the past year there were epidemics of this disease in almost every range town and Duluth.

The report of the health officer shows Aurora to be a very healthy village, a fact which is being made much of by the citizens.

The increase of money order business in the Hibbing postoffice over 1909 was $175,261.86.

The foreign money orders are for the most part to Italy, Austria, Sweden and England.

The total amount of other business for the year ending was $25,468.48, an increase of $3,220.43 over the business of 1909.

The total expenses of the Hibbing office for the year were $13,579.96, leaving a profit to Uncle Sam from this office of $11,888.52.

MR. HOUSE OPTIMISTIC.

Head of Iron Range Road Looks for Good Year on Ranges.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 23.——(Special to The Herald.)—President F. E. House of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad came here in his private car Saturday. He was accompanied by General Manager J. H. McLean of the Oliver Iron Mining company, Land Commissioner L. B. Arnold of the Iron Range road and George D. Swift, assistant secretary to the Oliver Mining company. Mr. House said that the logging roads this year are in much better condition than for several seasons past, and that many more are being employed. He said that his road especially is getting a big log haul this year on account of the forest fires during the late summer and fall.

Talking of the prospects for the coming year he said that while it was impossible to state with any certainty just what the year would bring forth yet he felt optimistic of the future and remarked: "I am looking for a good year and personally feel quite optimistic over the coming season. Of course, many of the large interests are waiting the decision of the supreme court before commencing any further extensions but the future I think looks good."

TWO HARBORS LIBRARY IS WELL PATRONIZED.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A report issued by Miss Borresen of the public library shows the increase in the percentage of non-fiction books circulated during the past year as compared with 1904. During 1910 the percentage ran 16.8, while in 1909 it was but 10.9, and each month shows an increased attendance in the reading room.

VIRGINIA GREETS DIVISION MEET

Delegates Welcomed to City and Start By Having a Dinner.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—About fifty delegates from the several range and northern St. Louis county towns and districts are here to attend the county division meeting being held in Hawkinson hall. At noon a banquet was served the visitors together with the mayor and members of the city council and school board. An address was delivered by Mayor Hawkinson. At 1:30 the business session was called to order and the views and opinions of the various delegates are being heard. Although there is opposition to the proposition of dividing the county from Eveleth and Hibbing, the balance of the representatives seem to favor the idea. It is said that Hibbing wants a county of its own and this no doubt will be brought out this afternoon. Visitors and citizens are wearing badges inscribed "Iron County."

To Represent Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 23.—The following delegates represent Hibbing at the county division meeting today in Virginia: A. P. Silliman, Victor L. Power, Frank Ansley, C. M. Atkinson, John C. Curran, David Graham and R. W. Hitchcock.

EVELETH DON'T LIKE IT.

Census Returns Prove to Be Very Disappointing.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — The announcement in Saturday's Duluth Herald showing Eveleth's population to be but 4,014 was received here with much surprise, as the most conservative had placed the figures at over 7,000. Municipal officers predicted a population of 7,409.

Many believe that the population of the adjoining locations should have been included in the census.

MORE RAIDS PLANNED.

Additional Arrests of Eveleth Location Blindpiggers Expected.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crusade against blindpiggers, which proved so disastrous for those tried will be continued, according to report.

Evidence is being gathered against blindpiggers in the locations and it is reported that four warrants will soon be served on alleged boarding house keepers for dispensing liquor illegally. The boys who figured so prominently in the recent cases are expected to again be the state's star witnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stratton, who have been visiting in Duluth, returned yesterday.

A. R. Folsom of Buhl was in town today on a business visit.

KELLY LAKE NOTES.

Kelly Lake, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business here is moving along briskly, a large quantity of logs being handled every day. The cut is much larger than for many years and every indication points to a very successful season.

One of the best attended dances of the season was given here on Friday last. Nearly 100 people were present, many driving in from the surrounding territory.

Five Evelethians Attended.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — Eveleth was not very well represented at the county division meeting at Virginia today, as the Commercial club delegation declined to attend because of the stand taken by the club against the movement. George A. Perham, one of the committee, is an avowed county division advocate, while the chairman, John Glode, and James Floyd, believed that it would not be necessary to inform the meeting of the attitude of the local club in person.

But few of the committee consisting of the city council, city attorney, city clerk and health commissioner, appointed by the president of the council, attended as many are opposed to county division and others were indisposed.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department has been having a busy time lately being called out three times in two days. Saturday night the brigade had another run, a shack being burned on Pine street.

The judges were J. Pomeroy of Hibbing, Ben Gallagher and Jack Farrington of Chisholm. Clifford H., who won the free-for-all is an unbeaten horse and is steadily improving, while Allen Wilkes is a recently imported animal giving great promise.

The next meeting will be held at Virginia next Saturday and will be the second contest for the trophy presented by a local concern.

GOES MANY MILES TO ESCAPE FINE

Evelethian Goes to Alaska and New Mexico Then Returns, Case Dropped.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A trip of over 2,000 miles to escape a probable fine of not more than $10 was the experience of Joe Fumage, a Spruce miner who recently returned from the West after spending a year and a half there. On July 4, 1909 Fumage became involved in a scuffle with a friend in which the latter was worsted. The police were notified, but Fumage made his escape by hiding in a cellar. Later in the day he borrowed $20 and took the next train for Montana, where he was employed a short time. But thinking he would be safer outside of the states, he went direct to Alaska, and failing to secure employment there, returned to New Mexico. After a short sojourn in the land of the Aztecs he traveled east and finally procured employment in South Dakota. Hearing that little would be done to prosecute him, he returned to Eveleth. The case has been dropped, being of a petty nature.

ARRESTS MAY FOLLOW

Use of Condemned Virginia Building for a Dance.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A dance was given at the Roosevelt auditorium Saturday night in honor of the Duluth Central High School Hockey team. In view of the fact that the auditorium has been condemned by Fire Chief Thayer because of its inadequate fire protection facilities the permission to use the auditorium for this entertainment is considered by the chief a violaton of the state law and the ordinances of the city. The chief stated last night that he would take the matter up today with City Attorney Poirier, and if it is found that the law has been actually violated arrests might follow. Mr. Poirier is also attorney for the school board.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Grand Rapids high school girls' basket ball five defeated the Chisholm five here Saturday night 80 to 1.

The young men of the town are taking great interest in skiing and though most of the jumpers are boys of 18 and 19, jumps of sixty feet are not uncommon, while the record jump for the local slide is seventy-five feet.

SAY LEWIS HAS BEEN RE-ELECTED

Friends Claim His Retention as President By 10,000 Votes.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 23.—Friends of President Lewis today claim that he has been re-elected as head of the United Mine Workers of America by 10,000 votes. Many are claiming the election of John P. White of Oscaloosa, Iowa, for president. The result of the election will be announced either this afternoon or tomorrow.

By a rising vote the recommendation of the credentials committee to seat the delegates from nine local unions in central Pennsylvania, whose seats were contested, was defeated, the vote being 321 for and 405 against. TWO MEN KILLED IN SALOON FIGHT

Several Others Injured in Serious Row at Mellen, Wis.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a free-for-all fight between lumberjacks at Mellen, last Saturday night, two men were killed and several received minor injuries. The dead are:

ALBERT J. McADAMS of Superior.

JOHN GORDON, a camp foreman.

Martin Miller was arrested and rushed here to the jail to avoid the danger of further trouble. John White, a chum of Miller,s got into a fight outside of a saloon and Miller rushed to the rescue of his chum. He says that three lumberjacks had his chum cornered and grabbing a sled stake he proceeded to clear the field. He crushed the skulls of McAdams and Gordon and they never spoke after they fell. With the two dead men at his feet he remained in undisputed possession of the field, but submitted quietly to arrest and was rushed to the jail, at Ashland to avoid further trouble. Miller is an Austrian, 27 years old, over six feet tall and as strong as an ox. His blows crushed the skulls of McAdams and Gordon like egg shells. He makes no denial of his crime and apparently cares little for it. His only explanation was: "Three Swedes attacked a brother Austrian and I stopped them, that's all."

READS "THE SKY PILOT" TO AUDIENCE OF MEN.

Ralph Connor's "The Sky Pilot," as read by Adrian M. Newens at the Y. M. C. A. held the intense interest of an audience of several hundred men yesterday afternoon. Mr. Newens, who is a member of the faculty of Iowa State college, is well known for his Lyceum work and yesterday his interpretation of the Connors book demonstrated that his laurels as a reader have been fairly won.

Next Sunday the speaker will be Raymond Robbins of Chicago, famous as a social reform and political worker. Mr. Robbins has been prominent in settlement work in Chicago and has taken a leading part in politics for many years. As a lawyer he helped prepare the case against Lee O'Neil Browne, alleged bribe agent in the Lorimer scandal.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BARTON WILL BE REFEREE

Minneapolis Man Will Decide Struggle Between Lehto and Ordemann.

Duluth Friends of Big Norwegian Are Planning Reception for Him.

George A. Barton, sporting editor of the Minneapolis Daily News, and one of the best judges of wrestling in the Northwest, who has acted as third man on the mat in a number of important contests and who seconded Frank A. Gotch in his famous contest with Zbyszko in Chicago last spring, will most likely referee the big match between Lehto and Ordemann Thursday evening.

Lehto's manager has stated that he has no objection to a man of Barton's reputation being the referee, while naturally Ordemann will be pleased with the selection of the Minneapolis newspaper man. Barton is competent and fair, qualities that the managers of both men are ready to recognize.

The program Thursday evening promises to be an exceptionally good one. The pictures of the famous Gotch-Zbyszko contest, which occurred in Chicago last spring, will be shown, then there will be the contest between Martin Johnson of this city and Chris Person.

Ordemann will come to Duluth Thursday morning and rest up for the contest. Reports from Minneapolis say the big fellow has quite recovered from the effects of his terrific struggle with the Russian Lion. Ordemann has been resting since last Tuesday. He will resume training today, according to the reports from Minneapolis, and will do just enough to keep him in the pink of condition for the encounter with Lehto.

The big Minneapolis Norwegian will be welcomed by a number of his countrymen of this city. He has long been a great favorite in this city and his victories over Dr. B. F. Roller, Cutler, Fenby and Earnst and his remarkable showing against Hackenschmidt the present season, have boosted the stock of Henry even higher.

Then, too, he is near to the hearts of the fans of this city because of his residence here a short time. Ordemann has many friends in Duluth who know him personally, and these friends will give him a hearty hand of welcome.

Lehto has been training hard ever since the contest with Person and during the present week will simply take light work, as he is already in the pink of condition.

PROCTOR HAS RIGHT SPIRIT

New Athletic Body Formed for Promotion of All Sports.

Proctor got the proper athletic hunch last evening and formed the Proctor Athletic association, an association of the best young men of the town, who will use every effort to promote amateur athletic sports.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one and the spirit shown augurs well for the success of the efforts of the new organization.

Indoor baseball will be taken up immediately by the association, basket ball later in the winter, and this summer the men behind the club will endeavor to place in the field the fastest baseball team that Proctor has ever had. There is some good material at Proctor for a strong indoor team and an effort will be made to schedule a contest with one of the Duluth teams.

Football will be taken up next fall. It is the intention of the members of the association to secure competent coaching and use every means at their command to put a team in the field which will compare favorably with the strongest teams of this city.

The general committee in charge of the organization of the association is composed of F. T. Mitchell, J. B. Meehan, H. L. Schell, B. McCabe and A. L. Ledin. F. T. Mitchell and A. L. Ledin are the boosting committee and will see that the new organization gets the proper amount of support among the townspeople. W. H. Crane was in charge of the meeting, acting as chairman. Another meeting will be held in the near future, when further steps will be taken in the completion of many of the details of organization.

CHISHOLM INDOOR TEAM IS SEEKING GAMES.

Chisholm's star indoor baseball team would like a game with either the Adams Athletic club team or the strong Company A team. The manager of the Chisholm team asks that the game be played in this city, if arranged.

Not in the past two years has the Chisholm team lost a game, according to the statement of Manager Bebe. On Jan. 31 the Chisholm aggregation will play Eveleth for the range championship.

Managers of the two Duluth teams can arrange for a game with Chisholm by addressing I. Bebe, who has charge of the range team.

WOLGAST AND JONES WILL NOT BREAK.

Cadillac, Mich., Jan. 23.—There will be no break between Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion, and Tom Jones, his manager, according to the former's assertions today. Reports have been current that the two would separate because of Wolgast signing for three short bouts. "I will cancel or postpone my dates before Jack O'Brien's Philadelphia club if Manager Jones insists," said the Michigan fighter. "There is a provision in my contract with O'Brien that if I am not in shape to fight boxers of big caliber by next month the dates are to be deferred.

"Manager Jones' only objection to my signing for the three six-round bouts is that he does not think I will be in shape to do myself justice. I will follow his advice. Mr. Jones will continue to manage me," concluded the lightweight champion.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

Open House at the Duluth Ski Club—Fred Beell May Return to the Mat—Lehto and Ordemann—The Curlers Have Gone.

(BY BRUCE.)

Tomorrow evening the grounds of the Duluth Ski club will be thrown open to the public. The directors of the club have decided upon this method of showing the people of Duluth what has been done the present season and what a fine and modernly equipped outdoor sports club this city can boast of. With the grounds brilliantly lighted, and with the new improvements made the present season completed, many who have not made the trip to the grounds the present year will be surprised at what has been accomplished.

It might be stated here also that the policy of the club has changed with its organization. It is a private club, as is the Duluth Boat club or the Duluth Curling club, and those without tickets have no right to enter its gates. The reception Tuesday evening is open to the public, however, and has been arranged for the express purpose of showing some people who have never visited the grounds of the club what fine arrangements have been completed for the lovers of the various sports of winter.

Tobogganing as well as skating is one of the features of the club. It is the announced intention of the directors to have skating in the near future. By damming the creek a fine natural rink could be secured. Though this may not be done the present winter, members of the club and prospective members are assured of another feature by next year at least.

These features show that the old Duluth ski club has branched out into an organization embracing practically all the sport features of winter in a northern climate.

The Duluth Boat club is one of the finest fresh water organizations in the entire country. Duluth people are very proud of this fact, as well they have reason to be. With the same push and energy the growth of the Duluth Ski club should be progressive. The elements for success are within the grasp of the members of the board of directors.

Tuesday evening the public will have the opportunity of using the equipment of the club, of seeing what has been accomplished, and of generally showing its approval of the efforts the members of the organization are making to assure the success of their club.

Freddy Beell May Come Out.

In a letter from Fred Beell the writer is informed that the little Badger may take on some of the boys the present season. While the Little Demon didn't state positively, for he has that strain of German cautiousness in his nature, that he would come out, there is a quiet belief that he has been training on his Wisconsin farm as he never trained before and that he is in better shape the present winter than he has been in for years.

There is hardly a lover of wrestling who does not wish the little chap would forsake the farm for a few matches. His defeat of John Lemm last year showed that he is still the master of any man anywhere his own weight. Then, too, there is something about Fred's wrestling that gets the public. He is so clever, so fast and pulls so many remarkable feats of agility and is such a wonder in pulling that little round body of his out through seemingly impossible holds, that it is a treat to watch him work.

If Fred does forsake the farm, though he loves that old Marshfield piece of ground, where he hunts about every day of the winter, he will add zest and merriment to the great old sport, for bear in mind that Beell is always in shape. He leads the healthy outdoor life of the farmer and hunter, and Fred is a boy who keeps away from the bright light and the stuff that not only leaveth a headache but also impairs the health. Beell should still be good, for he has lived a healthy and sensible life, and he is yet younger than some of the men actively engaged in the mat game at the present time.

Lehto Going After Big Ordemann.

Lovers of excitement are due to see class, tone and rapid action in the match of Thursday evening if Karl Lehto carries out his expressed intention of going after Henry Ordemann, the big and powerful Minneapolis Norwegian.

In his match with Hackenschmidt, Lehto was compelled for the most part to use every ounce of his remarkable strength to stay on the mat with the strong man of Europe. While Ordemann showed in the recent Minneapolis match that he is almost as good as the giant Russian, he does not possess anywhere near the almost stupefying human strength possessed by the citizen of London.

Lehto figures that there may be one chance and it is worth going after. In his match with Person Lehto showed that he knew something about offensive wrestling, and if he carries into execution his expressed intention of going after Ordemann, some excitement at least may be promised.

Ordemann has naturally and usually a placid nature that leapeth like the angry serpent when riled. In the Person match last winter, big Henry carried some kind of a grudge against venerable Chris and a badly sprained knee was the result. Kid Cutler of Chicago secured a bad knee out of his engagement with Ordemann early the present wrestling season. These are evidences of the qualities that lurk beneath the unusually sunny nature of the Norsk giant.

Then, too, Henry has been on the trail of Lehto every since last winter. He has long wanted an opportunity to get Lehto on the mat. His time has come, is near at hand, and there may be something doing when the Norwegian and Finn clash. Lehto can take pretty good care of himself when the going gets rough, as instance the time when "Doc" Roller nearly cracked his knee with a toe hold and Karl retaliated by almost kicking the genial doctor's wrist off.

Like Ordemann, Lehto has the strain of the primitive stuff when aroused from his ways of placidness, and he has informed his friends that he does not in the least dread any roughhouse stuff.

Some of the Finnish friends of Lehto should caution him not to rile the giant from Minneapolis. One time during the progress of the first Corbett-Jeffries battle at Coney Island, some one asked Corbett as he came to his corner, why he didn't take a chance, set himself and try to knock Jeff out.

"I don't want to get the big fellow mad," replied Gentleman Jim.

The same cautiousness might be advised on the part of the friends of the young Finn. He is as strong as a young bull, has all kinds of endurance and is game to the finish, no matter how it may come; and yet he should really hesitate before becoming too familiar with a man of Ordemann's reputation—a wrestler who has already put several of our most prominent grapplers on the shelf of temporary retirement.

No; don't rile the big fellow, Karl.

The Curlers Are Leaving Us.

Today will probably see the finish of the bonspiel which has proved probably as successful as any ever held in this city. The bonspiel has been remarkable for the playing of Bob Dunbar and also for the really wonderful playing shown by Elmer Whyte in that sensational defeat of the St. Paul skip.

Duluth thoroughly enjoys the Northwestern bonspiel and the week has sped with speed seeming the greater because of the pleasure brought to our doors by the presence of the curlers. They are a fine bunch of men, big, genial and good fellows, every one of them. Therefore we hate to see them go.

CHIPPEWA FALLS RIDER IS FIRST

Duluthians, However, Make Longest Standing Jumps at Annual Ski Tourney.

Ole Flering and John Evanson, both of Duluth, jumped 120 feet yesterday afternoon at the annual tournament of the Superior Ski club at Billings Park hill, it being the longest standing jump of the day. No new records were established at the tournament.

Anders Haugen of Chippewa Falls took first money, scoring 273 points. Ole Flering was a close second, scoring 268 1-3. J. Gjerstad of Stoughton scored 262 1-3; Ole Nordby of Superior, 260 1-3, and H. Anderson of Red Wing, 258.

In the amateur class there were some interesting jumps with Barney Riley, the little Irishman from Coleraine still holding the boards with first place. Barney scored 262 points; Arnold Olson of Duluth was hot after him with 259. Simon Erickson of Superior was third, with 239 1-3, and fourth money went to C. S. Grindon of Duluth with 223 1-3.

Ole Flering and E. Diesen, both of Duluth, made a twin jump of 112 feet. The crowd at the slide was rather small, but enthusiastic.

The prizes, consisting of $125 in cash for the professionals and a gold watch, two gold rings and a watch fob for the four winning amateurs were given out at a banquet of the Superior club, which was held at the Sons of Norway hall last evening. National President C. H. Mason was present and acted in the capacity of toastmaster. Among the speakers were ex-Mayor H. W. Dietrich, H. T. Peterson, Charles Flagstad, H. H. Borgen of Duluth, Dr. Hovde, president of the Duluth club, and others.

JOHNSON WANTS RAISE.

Washington Star Argues With McAleer as to His Pay Slip.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Walter Johnson is one of the few players who has failed to come to terms with Manager McAleer. The star pitcher of the Nationals, while not a hold-out, is carrying on a most convincing line of correspondence with his manager regarding his value to the team. Johnson was one of the best paid pitchers in the American league last season, but when he signed that contract he gave notice that he would expect a substantial increase this year. This increase was tacked on to the contract sent him by McAleer, but it seems that it is not up to Johnson's expectations.

Having been convinced, by the praise which other players, critics and rival managers have heaped on him, that he is one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever developed, Johnson expects to be paid accordingly, and the chances are that when he affixes his signature to a contract this spring it will be at a figure as high as any pitcher in either major league is receiving, not even barring Christy Mathewson.

MINNEAPOLIS DEFEATED.

West Side High School Trimmed 31 to 10 By Normal Five.

The Minneapolis West Side high school basket ball team was defeated 31 to 10 by the Superior normal school quint Saturday night. The score would indicate a walkaway for the locals, but such was not the case as the contest was a gruelling one from the start.

As an intermission attraction, the Carpenter Alumni were defeated 34 to 10 by the Normal Cubs.

The Blaine Alumni basket ball aggregation will go to Minneapolis, Friday evening, where they will meet the St. Joseph's school team. If the Flour City bunch is defeated, the Blaine Grads will lay claim to the northwestern championship.

WOULD FIGHT JEFF.

Big Al Kaufman Claims Willingness to Meet Crushed "Hope."

According to advices from the coast, Al Kaufman, the giant California heavyweight, who is really the best white man in the game today, has challeged Jim Jeffries. Kaufman says Jeff will not have to fight Johnson if he wants to return to the game and that he will bet $10,000 through Billy Delaney that he can beat the former champion.

Jeffries was challenged by Kaufman before he fought Johnson and laughed at the California Giant, telling how easy Kaufman was. Al could have whipped Jeffries then or the day he fought Johnson in Reno. In fact, it is a good bet that he can beat Jeffries right now.

While Jeff laughs at Kaufman he would have been doing the right thing by his backers if he had fought Kaufman before he fought Johnson and showed the public whether he was able to whip a good man. If the bout had been on the level he would have lost to Kaufman in all probability and a whole lot of people would be thousands of dollars to the good now because they would not have had the opportunity to back him against Johnson.

SCHEDULE CHANGED.

Harvard Drops Football Relations With West Point—Dates Changed.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 21.—The Harvard Athletic committee in an official announcement last night stated that the Crimson football team will play Princeton at Princeton on Saturday, Nov. 4, two weeks before the Tigers' game with Yale.

It was further announced that arrangements have been made for a game with Dartmouth at Cambridge, Nov. 18, and that the annual game with Yale would be played on the stadium on the 25th. While the full schedule was not given out, it was explained that since the Princeton game would be played at Princeton the regular game with West Point would be dropped for this year because of the team's inability to play more than one game away from home. It is expected also that a game with Cornell will be arranged for Nov. 11, although a definite conclusion with the Ithacans has not been reached.

WILCOX SETS NEW RECORD AT LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23.—Howard Wilcox, driving a National, broke the American five-mile competition speedway record at the motordrome yesterday. His time was three minutes, thirty-seven seconds.

A new record for the same distance was made for cars of 600 cubic inches or less displacement, by J. Nikrent in a Knox. His time was 3:38 2-5.

De Palma won the ten-mile free-for-all in 6:54 and Wilson the five-mile free-for-all in 3:42 4-5.

Wilcox also won the fifty-mile class C race in 40:23 4-5.

NATIONAL CHESS TOURNAMENT OPENS.

New York, Jan. 23.—Play in the national chess tournament in which are entered the best metropolitan experts and representatives of Boston and Chicago, in addition to F. J. Marshall, United States champion, and J. R. Capablanca, Cuban champion, began in New York shortly before noon yesterday. Capablanca, who will arrive from Cuba in time to start in the second round today, was the only absentee and was given his bye in the opening round.

The winners of the opening round were F. J. Marshall, R. T. Black, champion of the Brooklyn Chess club, Charles Jaffe, Paul Johner and Oscar Chajes of Chicago, the Illinois state champion. Only one drawn game was recorded and this was credited to A. F. Keyembourg of this city against Albert B. Hodges, the Staten Island player.

West Parks Win.

The West Park hockey team yesterday defeated the Maroons of the West end by the score of 1 to 0. It required an extra half of ten minutes to decide the contest. Relburg starred for the West Parks, while Larson proved the strongest player for the Maroons. The game was fast and interesting.

CENTRAL HOCKEY TEAM WINS FROM VIRGINIA.

Central high school hockey team defeated the Virginia high school seven in that city Saturday evening. It was the first game of the season for the hill top boys, and for that reason, the victory was doubly welcome. The score was 4 to 0, it being necessary to play two extra periods. In each of these periods the Central players scored two goals.

As the result of the victory over Virginia it is very probable that the Central players will seek other games. With practice it looks as if the Central seven will develop into a very strong team.

CHINESE INTERPRETER FOR UNCLE SAM.

SOCIALIST MEETINGS

Thomas Van Lear of Minneapolis Addresses Two Large Audiences.

Working to Secure Two or Three Members of City Council.

Hundreds of Duluth Socialists turned out yesterday to hear two addresses by Thomas Van Lear, who was that party's candidate for mayor of Minneapolis at the recent election. The meetings were held in the afternoon and evening in Great Eastern hall, and on both occasions the hall was filled to its capacity. John A. Keyes, candidate for special municipal judge, also spoke, and the meetings are described as overflowing with enthusiasm.

Mr. Van Lear is an able and effective speaker and he has a large personal following among the working men of the Northwest, his position as secretary of the machinists' union bringing him into contact with hundreds of them weekly. Mr. Van Lear has been in the vicinity of Duluth since last Friday and he remained here today.

At the afternoon meeting Mr. Van Lear devoted his attention to the economic side of the Socialists' faith, reviewing the situation from the evolutionary standpoint. His conclusion was that no mere reform movement or patchwork policy would be at all effective to remedy conditions which the people are insistent should be remedied. The only real and true remedy, he said, was for the masses of the people, that is, the working people,—to unite in the political and industrial field and acquire in a proper and orderly manner the means and instruments of industrial distribution and operate them in the interest of the people.

At the evening meeting Mr. Van Lear spoke more particularly of the political aspects of the situation. He declared that the two old parties conived together and acquiesced in the appropriation of all the natural resources by a few great corporations or aggregations of capital. They could not, he said, under any policy ever announced by them, change the condition of things.

From Bad to Worse.

"Under the governmental policies of the old parties, conditions would continue to go from bad to worse," said Mr. Van Lear. "The concentration of capital would continue, and so would the exploitation of the masses of the people. So it would be until perhaps the masses would be goaded on to a resort to forcible means of resistance. That is not the proper way to revolutionize industrial conditions, but the working classes themselves should unite at the ballot box and place the machinery of government in their own hands."

Mr. Van Lear cited the instances of cities where the Socialists have gained a voice in municipal government and declared that success had always crowned their efforts. He referred particularly to those cities where the process of change is now going on.

In his talks Mr. Keyes paid particular attention to city issues and the platform on which Duluth Socialists are asking for votes. He said that if a number of Socialists are elected to the council no more railroads will be allowed to go through the town, ruining public parks and spoiling the residence property of citizens. No more would water be supplied to special interests at a rate less than the cost of pumping it, he said, and he added that the question whether consumers are getting poor gas, pushed through the mains at high pressure in the interest of "the fellows who are furnishing the gas," would be at once investigated.

"If we haven't brains enough here in Duluth to solve the problem that press for solution, we would go to Milwaukee and the University of Wisconsin and draw on the whole Socialist organization in the United States for assistance," said Mr. Keyes, explaining that the Wisconsin university has the best and most nearly complete statistical library in the world and could supply any volume of accurate information relating to the municipal questions. "The Socialist organization means business and is working in the interest of the masses of the people."

Mr. Keyes said today that he is confident his party will succeed in electing at least two or three members of the council, and Mr. Van Lear is optimistic about the growth of the organization. He says it is steadily increasing in strength throughout the wide territory he visits, and he added he has no doubt the Socialists will elect the next mayor of Minneapolis, adding that he didn't mean to say he will be that man. He is giving no thought to that contingency, he said.

DOGS GROWING TOO VICIOUS

Pack of Curs Attack West Duluthian—Several Are Shot.

To be chased with a pack of howling wolves on a lonely country road may be an experience full of thrills and horror, according to Undertaker W. H. Richter of 425 Central avenue, who says that he can go one better and tell the story of how he was pursued by a pack of ordinary every-day curs and right in West Duluth, too.

Mr. Richter registered a kick at the West Duluth police station yesterday. He said that he believed that when things got to such a stage that teams had to be stopped on account of a pack of dogs that infests the neighborhood of Sixtieth avenue west and Grand avenue, that a halt should be called somewhere.

When Mr. Richter showed up at the police station yesterday afternoon, he displayed a torn lap-robe and pointed out to Officer Root, where one of the horses he had been driving had been bitten in the leg by one of the vicious canines. He stated that at Sixtieth avenue west and Grand avenue, he was attacked by a large yellow animal leading a pack of at least six or seven curs of all sizes.

The dogs snatched at the robes in the cutter, in which Mr. and Mrs. Richter were riding and it was only by main force that he saved it from being dragged out and torn to pieces. Others of the pack bit at the horses and it was only after a severe fight in which a whip was brought into play that the canines subsided.

Mr. Richter has not been alone in making complaints of this sort with regard to the dogs of that vicinity. Roenh Bros., who run a livery recently have complained that they have been molested by the animals, who seem to travel in a pack under the leadership of a big yelow tramp dog.

Lieutenant Wilcox sent an officer to that vicinity after Mr. Richter told his story and the policeman shot two of the larger and more vicious dogs. Others will be shot if their owners do not keep them muzzled, say the police.

MISFORTUNE HAS PURSUED FAMILY

Melvin Johnson, Whose Brother Was Murdered, Dies After Long Illness.

Melvin Johnson, aged 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Johnson, old residents of West Duluth, is dead at the family residence, 6324 Worden street, as a result of tuberculosis of the throat.

The young man had been afflicted with the disease for several months. Recently his illness took a turn for the worse. He died shortly after 6 o'clock this morning.

Henry Johnson, who was murdered in North Dakota a few months ago was a brother. Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters and five brothers. The sisters are Mrs. O. T. Mitchell of this city, Mrs. A. T. Gordon of Virginia, and Inga, who lives at home. The brothers are Carl Johnson of Fergus Falls, William, Martin, Arnold and Richard of Duluth.

The Johnson family has had more than its share of misfortune within the past year. Henry, one of the older brothers to Melvin was murdered last summer. Mrs. O. T. Mitchell, living at 801 West Fourth street, a sister, lost her 4-year-old child, who was accidentally burned to death, and Richard, a younger brother, is afflicted with tuberculosis and is reported to be in a serious condition.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence. Rev. Hugo J. P. Selmger, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, will preach. Interment will be made at Oneota cemetery.

K. O. T. M. WILL INSTALL OFFICERS.

West Duluth tent No. 2, K. O. T. M. will install its officers, recently elected, at a meeting this evening at Great Eastern hall, Central avenue. The following will take the oath of office:

Past commander, R. J. Gundry; commander, C. E. Eaton; lieutenant commander, J. Kroll; record keeper, O. Buell; finance keeper, O. Buell; chaplain, J. McDonald; sergeant, S. C. MARKET DROPS AT THE CLOSE Losses Shown on Coppers on Day's Dealings---Local Market Quiet.

The proposed congressional investigation of the United States Steel corporation, the calling of an assessment by the Helvetia company and rumors that Hancock is also considering the calling of an assessment knocked the props from under the copper market today and caused a sharp decline toward the last of the session. In support of the market was the fact that copper sales last week were exceptionally heavy and a good demand for the metal is developing.

The market during the early hours today was narrow in its trend, being almost wholly in the hands of the professionals. Toward the close, there was a scurrying for cover as stocks began to go down and the market was active in the closing hour.

Amalgamated opened at $64.75, touched $64.87½, fell off to $63.50 and closed at $62.62½ bid and $62.78½ asked. Butte-Bailakiava opened at $6.12½ and closed at $6 bid and $6.50 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $18.50, touched $19 and fell off to $18.75 bid and $19.25 asked at the close. Lake opened at $34 and fell off to $33.75 at the close. North Butte opened at $28, touched $28.75 and closed at $28. Calumet & Arizona closed at $47.75. Superior & Pittsburg opened at $14.25 and closed at that figure.

The local stock market was devoid of features today. Denn and Carman were in fairly good demand and several sales were made in each. Butte Alex Scott part paid sold at $2, Denn at $5.06¼, $5.12½, $5, $5.12½ and $5.25, Red Warrior at $1.62½ and $1.56¼, Calumet & Montana at 73c, Calumet & Corbin at 30c, Carman at $1, 95c, $1.06¼ and $1.12½, Keating at $1.62½, North American at $2.50 and $2.56¼, Copper ueen at 20c and Summitt at 58c.

The Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg companies' production of blister copper for the month of December is as follows: Calumet & Arizona, 1,900,000 pounds; Superior & Pittsburg, 2,175,000 pounds.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is more active and prices are showing no further inclination to sag. Lake is 12⅞ to 13 cents, and electrolytic 12½ to 12¾ cents a pound. Bids of 12.80 cents for lake this week have been refused. Some small lots of electrolytic at forced sale about ten days ago brought 12⅜ cents and the fact was widely heralded as a slump in the price of copper; but the only real decline occurred two weeks ago when the asking price for electrolytic was reduced from 13 to 12⅜ cents.

"There has been more misrepresentation of the copper situation and more misleading statements circulated recently than at any previous time in two or three years. There are powerful interests in this country who are exerting their influence all the time to make it appear that metal prices are fractionally lower than they actually are. The big foreign buyers constantly manipulate the London market for G. M. B., or standard copper, making it look exceedingly weak whenever they wish to buy large supplies of the American producers.

"What is more exasperating than this is the readiness with which some commercial and financial newspapers lend their columns to the dissemination of false statements detrimental to the copper market; for by so doing they help to depress and injure one of America's leading industries, and they become allies of the foreign manufacturers who buy hundreds of millions of pounds of copper in this country every year.

"A New York paper, in its issue of last Tuesday, has an outrageously misleading statement, under a Boston date line, concerning the world's present surplus of copper. If the editor of that paper did not know that the writer of the article included several items in his tabulation of stocks and copper which were also covered in other items in the same tabulation, he should resign his position; and if he did know, and still allowed the article to be published, this is double reason that he should resign.

"As a matter of fact, copper is one of the brightest spots in the entire business situation. It has been stated recenly that there are more pounds of unsold wool than of surplus copper in this country. The copper producers are running at much nearer their full productive capacity than any other industry that can be named. What other industry is there that furnishes full and complete statistics such as are now published by the copper trade?

"There has been a shrinkage of about 90,000,000 pounds in the world's accumulated surplus of copper in the past seven or eight months, and this amount more than equals the total curtailment of production so far. Compare the volume of business being done by the large electrical companies and the growing prosperity of the telephone and telegraph companies with the condition of the U. S. Steel corporation, which is now running its plants at about 50 per cent capacity, and reporting from month to month a steadily decreasing volume of unfilled orders, and it will convince you, if you are open to conviction, that the copper trade must be very much more prosperous, and that it has a brighter future outlook than practically any other industry."

SHOT DOWN BY UNKNOWN MAN

David Graham Phillips Is the Victim—Assailant Commits Suicide.

Mr. Phillips was taken to Bellevue hospital, where it is said that his condition was considered serious. His assailant died from the effects of the shots he sent into his own body.

Four or five shots were fired, and it is reported that two of the shots took effect. The man then turned the weapon upon himself.

INDIAN LAND FRAUDS.

Arrangements Being Made to Bring White Earth Cases to Test.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge M. C. Bisch, special assistant to the United States attorney general and United States District Attorney C. C. Haupt, have been in Minneapolis today conferring with Judge C. A. Willard and representatives of the defendants in the alleged White Earth Indian land frauds.

The federal attorneys wished to arrange with counsel for the defendants for a hearing and select some one of the demurrers for a test argument. They also wanted to come to a decision as to which judge, C. A. Willard or Page Morris, should hear the cases, and set a time and place for the arguments. It is not likely that the arguments on the demurrers will take place for three or four weeks. The chances are that St. Paul will be selected as the place for the hearing.

TUNING A BELL.

Scientific American: "What a beautiful tone that bell has!" is often heard. There are few, however, who know how a bell receives its joyful or solemn tones.

All bells after they are cast and finished must go through a process of tuning the same as any other musical instrument before they respond with a clear, true tone. Every bell sounds five notes, which must blend together in order to produce perfect harmony.

The tuning of a bell is done by means of shaving thin bits from various parts of the metal. It is as easy for an expert bell tuner to put a bell in tune as it is for a piano tuner to adjust his instrument to perfect chords.

At first thought it would seem that a bell would be ruined should the tuner shave off too much at the last tuning, or the fifth sound, but such is not the case. He would, however, be obliged to begin over, starting again with the first tone and shaving the bell until it gave forth its harmonious sound at the fifth tone.

CLOQUET BOYS GIVEN ADVICE

Director of St. Paul Y. M. C. A. Boys' Department Talks to Them.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fifty boys last night lustily sang "Dad" Fagenstrom's own song, "Smile Whenever You Can," when Mr. Fagenstrom gave the boys at their rooms in the Y. M. C. A. building a practical talk. Nearly 100 boys stood up and sang "America" when the first of Mr. Fagenstrom's stereoptican pictures, the American flag, was thrown on the screen. Mr. Fagenstrom is the director of the boys' work at the Y. M. C. A. in St. Paul.

Mr. Fagenstrom talked to the boys straight out from the shoulder, his subject "Archery," using the bow and arrow to illustrate family life, the bow the parents, and the arrows the children. He warned the boys that the harvest of wild oats is sure and that every seed multiplies in misery. He urged the boys to get a grip on an ideal, a hero, some man whose influence would lift them up, and he said: "There are men who entered into my boyhood life who grip me yet! Get the grip, boys, 'Get the grip!'" He urged the boys to look up and threw on the screen a picture of a punching bag and told the lads to "go after their difficulties with the gym method and punch hard!" saying that "ridicule and scorn are harder for a boy to face than a cannon's mouth." He urged them to be clean, abjure cigarettes, vile thoughts and language.

The majority of the boys remained to the men's meeting, the regular Sunday afternoon club, and the gym room was filled with men who listened to Mr. Fagenstrom on "American Boyhood."

CLOQUETITES TO VOTE.

Question of Carriers Working Sunday Will Be Submitted.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Within the next few days it will be definitely decided whether or not Cloquet mail carriers are to have the Sunday free from their duties, as the matter is being submitted to the public for vote. The boys are taking with them today and tomorrow, on their rounds little blanks for voting, distributing them at each house and later collecting them. Through a slight misunderstanding the idea has gone abroad here that the object of the oampaign is to entirely close the postoffice on Sunday, and there has been considerable discussion over the matter. But the object is only to leave the carriers free, as the law requires that the office be open at certain hours. The boys are working hard to gain this privilege and it is generally felt that their patrons will vote "yes" on the slip, as the carriers say that their part of the mail delivery on Sunday is comparatively light, but nevertheless that it keeps them there just the same. They hope that Cloquet will fall in line with the movement that is general in many large cities.

CLOQUET ODD FELLOWS GREET HEAD OFFICERS.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Odd Fellows celebrated a notable occasion Friday evening, as three of the prominent officers of the grand lodge were their guests. They were P. There was a school of instruction, and the past grand degree and the grand lodge degree was given to those not already having them. Speeches were made by the visiting officers and local Odd Fellows, and the event closed with an excellent lunch.

PREVIOUS PRICE OF WIRE WAS TOO LOW.

New York, Jan. 23.—Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, declared today that the recent advance of $1 a ton in steel wire prices by the American Steel & Wire company, a subsidiary of the steel corporation, was because the previously prevailing price was too low to insure a reasonable margin of profit.

He would not comment on the possibility of price changes on other steel corporation products but said that the outlook was good.

WOMEN FIGHT DENEGRE BILL

Duluth Century Club Executive Committee Acts on Measure.

Oppose Move to Deprive Wives of Rights Now Possessed.

The "Denegre bill," which is being fought by the Federation of Women's Clubs through its legislative committee all over the state, was brought up for discussion this morning at a meeting of the executive board of the Twentieth Century club, which was held in the library club room.

The women contend that Senator James D. Denegre's bill relating to the transfer of land will rob a wife of her dower interest in the real estate owned by her husband and they intend to oppose its passage.

Mrs. Josephine Schain of St. Paul, chairman of the legislative committee of the state federation with the other committee members, Mrs. R. F. Kinney and Mrs. C. G. Higbee, president of the Federation, have spent several days lobbying against the bill and have obtained the promise of Senator F. E. Putnam, chairman of the senate committee on judiciary, to arrange a hearing at which the women may express their objection to the bill.

Position More Inferior.

The women feel that this will be "a step backward and will make a wife's position more inferior than it is now, and is unjust to women," to quote Miss Schain.

They give their opinion that the present law giving the wife an interest in all lands and hence requiring a wife's signature to warranty deeds and mortgages is a wise one for the children as well as for her own interests.

The present law, according to the 1907 amendment of section 3648, Revised Laws of 1905, reads:

"Section 3648—The surviving spouse shall also inherit an undivided one-third of all other lands of which decedent at any time during coverture, was seized or possessed, to the disposition whereof by will or otherwise such survivor shall not have consented in writing."

Senator Denegre would amend this statute to read as follows:

"The surviving spouse shall also inherit an undivided one-third of all other lands of which the decedent at the time of death was seized or possessed, to the disposition whereof by will or otherwise, such survivor shall not have consented in writing."

Write to Legislators.

The Duluth women, after discussing the question, decided to write to the representatives from this part of the state, urging them to oppose the bill.

It was decided to divide the department of the club which is now under the head of "Philanthropy and Reform" into two separate departments and the work of the Neighborhood house in the West end, which is now under the direction of that department, will come under the department of "Philanthropy."

TRAGIC ENIGMA IS NOT SOLVED

Police Unable to Find Woman Whom Sick Man Raved About.

The police have been asked by D. M. Gill of Spokane to furnish him as much information as possible about Mrs. Frank Davis, in order to enable him to solve an enigma with which he has been confronted.

Some time ago he asked the local police to locate her. He explained that a man had been ill in the Spokane hotel in that city, and in a delirium had called constantly for the woman, saying that she was his wife.

When he recovered consciousness and was told that the police had been asked to help find her, he violently denied that she was his wife or that he knew anything about her. Mr. Gill writes that the patient has considerable property in the shape of titles to Indian lands in that part of the country, and that he is anxious to locate the woman, to learn whether or not she is the man's wife. It is understood that the man is very nearly dead. Should he die, his wife would be entitled to the property.

Detective Toewe recognized her from a battered photograph which accompanied the letter, and said that he remembered her. She and Davis had lived at a hotel near Seventh avenue west as man and wife. The proprietor, Dr. French, also says that he remembers the couple.

The police have been unable to get any trace of her.

INJURY SUIT AGAINST CITY

John Soderblom Wants $5,000 for Failure to Repair Sidewalk.

John Soderblom, as guardian of George Soderblom, 7 years old, is suing the city of Duluth for $5,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the lad when he stepped into a hole in the sidewalk on Ninth avenue east July 25 last.

The plaintiff in the action states that it was the duty of the city to keep the walk repaired.

As a result of the fall he claims that the lad sustained a fractured arm that has kept him out of school. The father claims also that the boy was made dangerously ill as a result of the accident.

BEGGED FOR A GOLD FILLING

Pedestrian Thinks "Touch" Was a Little Too Strong.

Bernard Dougherty is the boldest beggar who has hit Duluth for a long time, according to the police. He infringed on the city Saturday afternoon and he hadn't been on the street five minutes before he began asking people for money. He met one pedestrian who didn't have any money and who smiled at him when he said so. Dougherty noticed as the man smiled that he had gold-filled teeth.

"Take that gold out of your teeth," he is alleged to have said. "That's just as good as the cash to me."

That was too much for the citizen with the gold-filled teeth and he notified a policeman, stating that a man who would go that far might go so far as to commit a crime to get money.

Dougherty admitted the charge in police court this morning and only grinned when the tooth was mentioned. He got the alternative of $5 and costs or five days. He went over the hill.

WIFE CHARGES ILL-TREATMENT

Hattie Duvall Says Husband Struck Her and Knocked Her Down.

Hattie Duvall, 31 years old, has filed an action for divorce from her husband, William Duvall, 37 years old, with the clerk of the district court, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

In her complaint she states that she has suffered at the hands of her husband a long and systematic course of cruel treatment. She states also that he has been in a state of habitual drunkenness for a year past.

On April 28, the present year, she says that he brutally struck, beat and bruised her, and knocked her down. She says that as a result of the treatment on this occasion she was greatly injured, terrified and frightened.

In spite of the fact that he has a business which makes him many thousands of dollars each year, she states that he has failed to provide for her properly.

She complains that he calls her vile names in the presence of their friends. She asks an absolute divorce and such other relief as the court may deem proper.

Olga Sharpley, 20 years old, wants a divorce from her husband, Harry S. Sharpley, 21 years old. She states in her complaint that they were married at Vancouver, Wash., in 1909, and that after only a few months of married life, he deserted. She states that she was treated in a cruel and inhuman manner and that on one occasion, he threatened her life with a revolver, which he carried in his pocket at all times. There is a minor child, a girl, and she asks its custody.

SUPERIOR

GRAND JURY TO PROBE CENSUS?

Superior Telegram Says Surprise May Be Sprung in Federal Court.

The Superior Telegram says: "It was reported in court circles today that one of the reasons for the picking of a federal grand jury was to investigate the alleged tampering with the census returns for the city of Superior. A number of attorneys admitted having heard the rumor and some of them claimed to have knowledge of the fact that federal authorities have been collecting evidence to be placed in the hands of the grand jury.

It is understood that none of the enumerators are under suspicion of wrong-doing, but persons not connected with the census bureau are said to have possibly violated the laws in 'assisting' the regular enumerators. The 'assistance' was of doubtful value, inasmuch as Superior is credited in the official returns with only the number of people shown in the uncorrected returns of the enumerators.

"According to one report, a Superior attorney has been retained by a local client to represent him in the event that anything is done before the grand jury. The attorney in question declined to either confirm or deny the statement, but insisted that his name and that of his client be kept out of the papers.

"There may be a request made for some indictments,' he said, 'but I do not believe that any of them will be returned. In the first place, those who worked on the census without appointments from the government had no authority and necessarily could not have padded the census, as their figures could not be accepted. As I understand the report, it is not the enumerators, but others whose cases are to be considered by the grand jury. If anybody is to be indicted my opinion would be that it must be the enumerators, as they made the sworn returns to the government.'"

THROUGH BUSINESS SLACK.

Ann Arbor Line Officials Here Talk of Traffic Conditions.

J. J. Kirby, general passenger agent of the Ann Arbor line, and T. F. Butler, general freight agent of the same line, accompanied by A. Ellison, commercial agent of the line at Minneapolis, are in the city today looking up business in this territory, seeing the various local railroad men and inquiring into business conditions.

Messrs. Kirby and Butler said that locally business is very good on their line, but that through business routed over their road from connecting lines has been very light, indicating that general business conditions on the various Western railroads is not of the best.

Mr. Kirby expressed the opinion that the Western roads are going to enjoy a very good passenger year. He said business conditions point to a general increase in all industrial fields, which invariably meant an increase of passenger travel.

Both Mr. Kirby and Mr. Butler are from Toledo, Ohio, where the general offices of their road are located. The Ann Arbor routes some through freight originating in this territory, and it is this business in particular that brings the officials here.

MARKET IS SUPPORTED

Grain Prices Hold Up Well in Face of Bearish Conditions.

Fractional Declines at Close—Flax Closes Slightly Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 23.—A market having a tendency to decline was well supported today and most markets showed gains in wheat prices, although there was a slight falling off in Duluth. May lost a mere fraction, the close being unchanged to ⅛c off compared with Saturday's close. July wheat lost ⅛c. Flax was ½c higher than at the close Saturday.

There was a decrease of 1,186,000 bu in the visible supply of wheat, but world's shipments were very much heavier than either last week or last year and there was also a big increase in the stocks on passage. The liquidation, which sent the market down last week and especially at the close Saturday, continued somewhat today and the market felt the effect during the early hours of the session. Later support was given and there was a general advance toward the close, bringing prices nearly to Saturday's closing level in Duluth. The range of the market was slight.

Wheat closed ⅝@¾d lower in Liverpool, ¼c higher in Paris, ⅝c lower in Antwerp, and 1c higher in Budapest. In American markets, there was a slight decrease in Duluth, and slight increases in St. Louis and Kansas City, while New York lost.

July wheat opened ⅜c off at $1.06½ in Duluth, fell off to $1.05⅝, advanced to $1.06¼, fell back to $1.06, went again to $1.06⅝ and then to $1.06⅞, closing at $1.06¾-⅞-¾. July wheat was ⅛c off at $1.07⅜ nominal.

May flax opened unchanged at $2.65, fell off to $2.64, advanced to $2.66 and went off to $2.65½ at the close. Oats were unchanged. Durum ½c off at 90½c for May, rye unchanged and cash 90½c for May; rye unchanged; barley unchanged, and cash wheat 1c under May.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,186,000 bu, corn increased 813,000 bu, and oats increased 345,000 bu. On passage wheat increased 2,592,000 bu and corn increased 229,000 bu. World's shipments of wheat were 11,072,000 bu against 9,376,000 bu last week and 8,992,000 bu a year ago. Corn, 3,883,000 bu against 5,247,000 bu last week, and 2,055,000 bu last year.

The total wheat taken by Continental countries the past week was 6,376,000 bu against 5,080,000 bu last week and 3,328,000 bu last year.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market showed a steady undertone at the opening with prices ¼d lower. The weakness in America of Saturday was offset by a large decrease in local stocks here, light worlds' shipments to the United Kingdom, 2,752,000 bu against 4,696,000 bu last year. After the opening the market became heavier with some realizing and prices declined ⅛@¼d. This pressure came largely from the fact of freer La Plata offerings, continued liberal shipments from Russia and the reserve on the part of buyers. Indian shippers are offering old wheat freely at lower prices. At midday the decline was checked by the bullish French official report and at this time prices were ⅜@½d lower than Saturday.

"The corn market was steady and about unchanged. The decline in America was offset by light world's shipments."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Shows Weakness, But Bullish Foreign Reports Act as Offset.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—With world shipments large as expected, 2,000,000 bu more than a year ago, wheat today showed weakness, but bullish reports from France acted somewhat as an offset. There was also a decrease in stocks at Liverpool. An official statement from Paris estimated the territory under wheat at 13,816,000 acres against 15,572,000 a year ago. On the other hand, cash demand on this side of the Atlantic continued disappointing to holders and there was anything but an encouraging situation for owners of flour. The market opened active, ¼c lower to ⅛@¼c up. May started at 98¾c to 99⅛c, and gradually sagged to the underlevel.

After a further drop, the market rallied on account of a big decrease in the United States visible supply, but selling became heavy and the tone nervous. The close was at 99¼@99⅜c for May, a net gain of ⅜c.

Room traders sold corn because of the weakness in wheat. May opened a sixteenth off to a like amount higher at 49⅞@50c, and sank to 49¾c.

The fact that country sales were not large steadied prices. The close was firm with May at 50c, a net gain of a shade.

Resting commission orders to buy prevented much decline on the part of oats, although the market was easy with other grain. May started unchanged at 34⅝c, and sold off to 34½@34⅜c.

A big run of hogs led to a decided fall in prices for provisions. First sales were 5c to 17½c down, with May options at $18.42½ to $18.47½ for pork, $9.75 to $9.77½ for lard and $9.77½ for ribs.

JOHNSON MEMORIAL.

Sculptor Confers With Members of the Executive Committee.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew O'Connor, the sculptor with whom the John A. Johnson Memorial commission has been negotiating for a design for the Johnson merial to be erected at the state capitol, is in St. Paul today conferring with the members of the commission. He met C. W. Ames, C. D. O'Brien, St. Paul; B. F. Nelson and D. M. Neill, Minneapolis, of the executive committee this morning in the office of the St. Paul institute. The question of a memorial was informally discussed. It has practically been decided to abandon the first site under the windows of the governor's office in the west wing of the state capitol. C. D. O'Brien expressed himself strongly as favoring a more conspicuous site and suggested the open square just in front of the main entrance to the building.

A KING'S HOBBY.

London Daily News: The late King of Siam had an extraordinary hobby—that of collecting empty match boxes of all nations. In this connection an interesting story is related. During one of his visits to this country the king while passing down Bond street one afternoon accompanied by two members of his suite espied an empty match box which had been discarded by its owner and thrown away into the middle of the thoroughfare.

Without a moment's thought the monarch dashed into the middle of the crowd of traffic, grasped the much coveted treasure and was nearly run over by a passing cab. The fact, however, that he was able to add a new specimen to his collection—gathered under such circumstances—more than compensated him for the risk which he had run.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

List Moves Up Strongly and Then Declines Under Active Selling.

Heavy Trading in United States Steel Feature of Morning Session.

New York, Jan. 23.—Pronounced firmness was shown by the market on moderate dealings at the opening today. The exception was United States Steel, which opened in two lots aggregating 4,400 shares at 77½ and 77⅝, later making a further advance of ¾ over Saturday's close. Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific advanced a point each, with substantial fractional gains in many other active issues.

United States Steel continued to be in demand and advanced 1¼, with stimulating effect on the rest of the list, which hardened on a relatively light volume of business. Railway issues shared prominently in the improvement, Atlantic coast line, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific rising a point and St. Paul 1¼. Pacific Telephone was up 1 point. Realizing sales took the edge off the advance before 11 o'clock and the market became quiet.

Heavy trading in United States Steel shares was the feature of the morning session, the strength of the stock resulting from the announcement after the closing on Saturday of an advance in the price of wire products. The rest of the list moved up strongly, although it subsequently displayed some hesitation, the professional element being disposed to await the outcome of tomorrow's city bond issue. Before noon there was an active selling movement in progress, Reading running off from 157⅞ to 156. The list otherwise lost practically all of its early rise. Bonds were steady.

The market closed weak. Stocks were under pressure again in the closing dealings with some issues touching the lowest figures of the day. St. Paul and Missouri Pacific started the decline, which soon spread to other leaders.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 23.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 5 points, near months being higher on steady cables, while later positions reflected bear pressure, and shortly after the opening the whole list broke to a net loss of from 5 to 15 points under local selling and scattering liquidation, which appeared to be inspired by the census report showing 11,254,115 bales ginned to Jan. 16, against 9,787,592 bales to the same date last year. This indicated a ginning for the period of approximately 170,000 bales against 140,000 for the same period last year, and seemed to be taken in local circles as suggesting a commercial crop of a little over 12,000,000 bales. Southern buying and realizing by recent sellers checked the decline around 14.88 for May, and there was a rally of 6 or 7 points from the lowest.

The body of Ocey Snead was found in a half-filled bathtub in a partly furnished house in East Orange, N. J., Nov. 29, 1909.

Engineer Switzer Dead.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 23.—Chief Engineer Switzer of the Canadian Pacific railway is dead in Montreal, of pneumonia. Mr. Switzer was formerly located in Winnipeg, receiving promotion to chief engineer, with headquarters at Montreal, a month ago. For several years he was an engineer on the Panama canal.

ENEMIES OF BEAUTY.

London Daily Mail: What happens to all the beautiful children so that when they grow up so few of us have any physical attractiveness and so many are positively plain? In a group of children coming home from school, for instance, an ugly face is quite the exception, but among an equal number of men and women, whether rich or poor, not more than one or two in a dozen are passably good looking.

The fact is easily explained. In children the most beautiful features are the eyes, the mouth, the hair and the complexion. Now the eye scarcely grows at all. An infant's eye is almost as large as an adult's. And so, as the face increases in size this feature becomes less noticeable.

Moreover the brilliancy of the eye, which gives animation, is gradually lost. This depends partly on prominence, partly on a covering of moisture, and the pains and worries of life both dry the ey and depress it within its socket.

A thousand things combine to destroy the beauty of the thin, soft, delicate skin of a child. Winds and dust roughen it, caustic soap dries and cracks it; skin diseases, though they pass, leave their mark, and, worst of all is the indigestion and disordered livers which are produced by improper feeding, tight corsets, sedentary life and worry.

The hair, which if hanging loose covers large ears and softens the harsh outlines of the face, we cut off or tie up, deliberately throwing away this aid to good looks.

As for the small, beautifully curved mouth of the child, it suffers more than any other feature. The full red lips become thin and blue, the teeth grow large and the curves disappear, leaving often a long, horizontal slit.

This is almost inevitable because of the growth of the bones and the development of the eating muscles. If you compare a child's with an adult's face you will see that the skull proper is relatively much larger in the former. The cheek bones and jaw bones of a young child are small and at first there is very little muscle. At the same time the face is full and round because of the abundance of fat.

But when the necessity for eating solid food arises the jaws grow rapidly and powerful muscles to operate them are developed.

Those who recommend us to eat whole-meal bread and other foods requiring much mastication are quite indifferent to our beauty, for nothing spoils it more than large jaw bones and prominent jaw muscles.

Wrinkles of all sorts increase the degradation of beauty. A healthy child has no wrinkles. Observe how a grown person's forehead wrinkles up when he is giving attention or thinking hard. A child's forehead remains quite smooth in the same circumstances.

Wrinkles around the eyes come from loss of fat, and in other parts of the face from the expression of emotions, which is always accompanied by muscle movements.

Really, when we come to think how numerous are the enemies of beauty—fear, sorrow, worry, disease, dust, wind and all the unfavorable influences of work—it is not after all surprising that so little of our childish beauty remains in later life.

JONAH SHIPS UNPOPULAR.

Answers: The disastrous explosion in Submarine A1 may make it difficult to find crews to man her in the future. She is the same vessel which, earlier in her career, sank with all aboard.

Both in our navy and in the merchant service there are ships which have become unpopular because of the ill luck which seems to dog them.

There was the destroyer Thrasher. After one or two small accidents she ran slap into the cruiser Phaeton off Plymouth. Having been repaired, she put to sea, but had got no farther than the Lizard before an explosion on board sent her home again, with three poor fellows stiff and stark. Later on she ran ashore.

Then there was the Lynx, also a destroyer. On her trial trip she ran into a merchant vessel called the Lizard and sank her, being badly damaged herself. Next a boiler tube burst, and, lastly, she drove ashore on the Lizard.

Lizard is an ill-omened name for a British ship. We have lost no fewer than three units of our navy which bore this name. All ships named after reptiles seem to share the same ill fortune. We have lost four Vipers, four Serpents, two Snakes, two Dragons, one Adder, one Alligator, one Basilisk, one Crocodile and one Cobra.

Quite recently a ghastly explosion occurred aboard the French training ship La Couronne. A gun burst, killing four men and wounding twenty others. This was the third accident which had occurred in this ship within four years. The first was on April 20, 1906; the second on Aug. 3, 1907. In each case it was a 6.5 gun which burst; in each, premature explosion of a cartridge was the cause, and in each at least three men were killed.

The Texas is the "hoodoo" of the American navy. Within five years she experienced eight accidents. Twice she broke down, twice she went ashore. She had a series of explosions in her stokehold, and, finally, when at firing practice, both her 12-inch guns were fired simultaneously and the double discharge caused the guns to break from their foundations and the decks to be shattered in an amazing fashion, several men being badly hurt.

Another unlucky unit of the United States navy is the Connecticut. While she was on the stocks an attempt was made to cripple her by boring holes in her sides. At her launch the bottle of champaign failed to break on her bows. During her trials serious defects developed in her machinery. Then, after several small accidents, she ran on a reef and grounded off Culebra island.

Almost a record of ill luck was held by the steamer Daphne of Glasgow. When launched on the Clyde she turned turtle, drowning 200 men. She was raised and repaired, and on her maiden voyage went ashore near Belfast. She was got off, and her owners changed her name to Rose. The change was useless. She foundered in Belfast lough, and soon afterward was broken up and sold for old iron.

The annals of the sea would hardly furnish a parallel to the amazing run of ill luck suffered by the German bark Planet. Chartered to carry a cargo from Mazatlan, Mex., to Plymouth, she was blown ashore by a hurricane and her cargo had to be discharged and restowed. At last she started, but had not gone far before scurvy struck down officers and crew. She was sighted by a London steamer, who lent her a navigating officer, and her own captain and both mates died soon afterward. Eventually she reached Queenstown, where a new captain took charge. He received orders from two different agents to take the vessel to Liverpool and Havre respectively. While he hesitated, two firms set up claims to her cargo and the Planet was attached. Later, she was further arrested for salvage at the suit of the owners of the London steamer. It was months before the various claims were settled.

WITCHCRAFT AMONG MOORS.

Travel and Exploration: Belief in witchcraft is very prevalent among the Moors. An old negress, a servant of ours, Jemeea, was a reputed witch, of the craft of the Genowa. She asked for a week's holiday once, during which she was to drink the blood of a sheep, perform various incantations, and prophesy. Hamed, another servant, consulting her when in an inspired condition, the oracle declared that he had a very bad temper and must sacrifice next morning a red hackled cock. He did so.

A few days later, Jemeea being absent, her fellow-servants explained that a very old negress ought to have had some of the blood, but Jemeea had drunk the lot. Then devils had choked the old woman and Jemeea had gone to the funeral. She then became head sorceress, vice very old negress choked as aforesaid.

Jemeea could never go to the public oven to fetch her cakes, pies, etc., for there were djinns there who would buffet and maltreat her. On the eve of a certain feast she asked leave to propitiate demons who were constantly making her drop and break our crockery and fall down and hurt herself.

With all her witchcraft, she was simple enough in some things. We told her once she might bring six friends to our Christmas party when we had a big Christmas tree, a magic lantern, etc. So six negresses came, saw, received trifling presents and went away much gratified.

But others of her acquaintance, disappointed, fined old Jemeea for not having invited them, and she paid like a lamb.

I played wizard on her once. We had received among other novelties from England a most weird-looking lamp shade of artfully colored paper, which when placed over the lamp, showed the illuminated head of a huge owl, with great, glaring, red-rimmed eyes.

Having carefully arranged it one evening, I called Jemeea to the dining room door and, pointing to the terrific apparition in the otherwise darkened room, said: "Jemeea, who is that man?" Shrieking, she fell on the floor and clasped my knees in abject terror, imploring my protection from a bigger djinn than she could conjure up.

HEARING IS POSTPONED

Johnson Trial Awaits Completion of Wilson Assault Case.

Boy's Mother Comes From Virginia to Be With Her Son.

The case of the state against Algot Johnson, the boy bandit, who, with Charles Melodrowski, held up the night clerk of the McKay hotel and later escaped arrest for a few hours in a sensational escape from a street car, did not go on before Judge Cant of the district court as was expected. It will begin late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

In place of the Johnson case, the action of the state against Charles Wilson, charged with assault, was begun. Wilson is accused by the grand jury with having stabbed Alex Hill at No. 18 North Sixth avenue west, on Jan. 3. The affair is supposed to have followed a drunken brawl. Hill was stabbed in the back, but the injury did not prove serious. The case will be a short one as there are but a few witnesses to be examined. It is expected that it will be over at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Johnson case will follow at once if the case is finished early enough and in case it drags out the afternoon, Johnson will go on trial Tuesday morning.

Algot Johnson's mother is here from Virginia for the trial. She is much worried for fear they will hang her son. Algot, too, is very much worried over his trial and was glad that it was postponed until tomorrow.

It is very probable that Charles Melodrowski, Johnson's partner in crime, will testify during the trial. Melodrowski was convicted of murder in the second degree at the trial of last week. He was the one who actually fired the shot that cost Officer Harry Chesmore his life. Johnson, it seems, did not pull his gun until after the shooting had taken place. Then he pulled it and helped his partner to escape by threatening the conductor in charge of the car.

It may be that a hard time will be experienced in drawing a jury for the Johnson case. The affair has been given such publicity and has been talked over so generally that a great many have the matter settled in their own minds as to what the verdict and sentence should be.

As in the case of the state against Melodrowski, the public will be excluded from the Johnson trial.

MAY SOMETIMES SHOOT OFFICER

Justifiable When Policeman Exceeds Authority, Says Judge.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—At the second trial today of men accused of taking part in the strike riots in the Moabite quarter, the presiding judge took occasion to say that citizens were justified in resisting police officers who exceeded their authority. During the disorders a squad of mounted police rode down and ruthlessly sabred a party of newspaper representatives. Referring to the case of an innocent pedestrian whom the police had killed, the court declared that any one who shot down a guilty policeman was within his rights and could not be punished. The judge who presided at the first trial also censured the officers of the law and the prosecutor at the present proceeding said the guardians of the peace had committed excesses in suppressing the riots.

ALOFT THE LONGEST.

Aviator Parmalee Remains in the Air 3 Hours and 39 Minutes.

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—San Francisco's aviation meet produced a new American endurance record yesterday when Phillip Parmelee, piloting a Wright biplane, remained aloft for 3 hours 11 minutes and 49 1-5 seconds.

At Los Angeles the late Arch Hoxsey was credited with an unofficial record of 3 hours and 17 minutes.

A crowd of over 25,000 cheered the aviator as he wheeeled above them and when he finally descended, he was given an ovation. Several enthusiasts, among them Eugene B. Ely, hoisted Parmalee on their shoulders and carried him in triumph to a stand in the middle of the field, where Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, with other army officers and a number of women crowded about the aviator to extend congratulations.

"I could have remained up longer," said Parmalee, "but my seat grew so hard and my hands and feet so numbed with the cold that I decided to come down after clinching the American record."

MONEY FOR FOREST FIRE SUFFERERS

Mattson's Bill for Buying Seed Unanimously Passed By House.

Bill for Separate State Reformatory and Prison for Women.

Resolution Fixing March 15 as Day for Final Adjournment.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this noon unanimously passed Representative Mattson's bill appropriating $25,000 to be used in buying seed for the relief of the sufferers from last fall's forest fires on the border. The money goes to the state college of agriculture, which is to distribute it to those whose applications are approved by the several county boards.

Representative Mattson explained his bill, and Representative C. A. Congdon of Duluth made a brief but moving speech in its favor as the best charity that could be provided for the fire sufferers.

Representative Robertson offered a bill providing a tax of one-tenth of a mill for those schools which maintain departments of agriculture, domestic science, manual training and commercial courses, each school having all these to get $2,500, and $625 being al-

PORTUGAL STILL HAS ITS TROUBLES

Priest Is Said to Be Inciting the Soldiers to Mutiny.

Lisbon, Jan. 24.—The government is experiencing some difficulty in the provinces. At Leira, seventy-five miles northeast of Lisbon, a Catholic priest, named Fariah, has been arrested, charged with treason in inciting the soldiers to mutiny to bring about the restoration of the monarchy. Many monarchists, including journalists, have been exiled from the county.

At Aveiro, a seaport town in the province of Beirt, the editor and staff of a newspaper which is attacking the government, have barricaded themselves in their building, armed with rifles and bombs, and stand ready to resist if attacked by troops which have been ordered to the scene.

Great Britain, Italy and other countries have made representations to Portugal relative to much of the property of the religious orders, which was seized by the government at the time of the expulsion of the religious orders. These powers claim the real owners of the church property are their subjects and ask that restoration be made. The government probably will comply with the demands.

SIXTH BALLOT IN NEW YORK FRUITLESS.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24.—There was no choice for United States senator today on the sixth ballot.

The only changes in today's ballot were made by Senator White of Schenectady and Assemblymen Myers of Schenectady and Martin of Saratoga, who voted for Curtiss N. Douglas of Albany. White and Myers formerly voted for Martin H. Glynn, and Martin yesterday deserted Glynn for Sheppard.

COST OF GOVERNMENT IS STEADILY GROWING IN STATE AND NATION

Per Capita Burden in Minnesota Is Now Figured at $29.97.

Denegre to Withdraw Measure That Has Aroused the Women.

Ramsey County to Fight Dunn's One-Mill Road Tax Bill.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a limit to the cost of living—the size of the individual's store of cash and credit.

There appears to be no limit to the cost of maintaining government, because it is always possible to squeeze out a few more taxes here and there, and if the project conceived in the mind of a public official cannot be carried out by direct taxation there is always the easy resort of issuing bonds.

That the expense of government in nation, state, county and community is steadily increasing is made painfully clear by a pamphlet issued by the Minnesota tax commission, the last section of its annual report, in which there is a shrewd and penetrating analysis of governments costs by Ralph D. Hess, assistant professor of eco-

Madison, Wis., Jan. 24.—In the assembly today the vote for United States senator gave La Follette, Republican, 59; Weisse, Democrat, 27, and Kleist, Social-Democrat, 12. Two Democrats were absent.

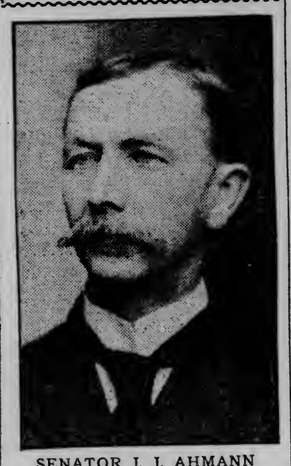

The senate will vote on United States senator this afternoon. Senator La Follette's re-election is a foregone conclusion.

Assemblyman Gettle today introduced a bill providing for amendment of the state constitution permitting the use of the initiative and referendum. This measure is intended to carry out the pledges of the different party state platforms.

Another bill provides that all employed persons having the right to vote shall have two hours in which to cast their ballot on election day.

A joint resolution introduced in the senate provides for amendment of the constitution allowing women to vote.

INCREASE PROPOSED

In County Payments for Patients in North Dakota Insane Asylum.

Expected No More Maintenance Appropriations Would Be Necessary.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maintenance appropriation bills will be a thing of the past in North Dakota so far as the state asylum for the insane is concerned, in the event that a bill introduced by Representative De Nault of Jamestown, providing for an increase in payments for keeping patients at the hospital, becomes a law. Under the terms of the bill the amount that counties would have to pay the asylum for the care of patients would be increased from $10 to $15 a month each, such increase meaning a total increase in receipts during the next two years of about $50,000.

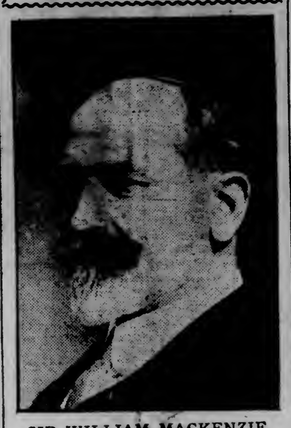

Introduction of this measure grows out of a visit to the asylum of a legislative junketing committee this week. It was found that the hospital is badly crowded and in sore need of additional buildings in which to house the patients, of which there are now 708, with a net increase each month of about eight patients. This will mean that two years hence the hospital will have a total list of patients of about 900.

Under the De Nault bill, the maintenance fund would total approximately $142,000 a year, and it would only be a matter of time before no further maintenance would have to be appropriated out of the general fund by the legislature.

The committee, composed of Senators La Moure, Duncan and Kretchmar and Representatives Ployhar and Stern, is strongly in favor of an appropriation that will allow for the construction of a new ward building during the com-

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Physicians Say Author Phillips Has Some Chance of Recovery.

Most of the Bullets Went Clear Through Victim's Body.

New York, Jan. 24.—"His chances are fair," was this morning's report from the bedside of David Graham Phillips in Bellevue hospital, where the author was taken yesterday afternoon after he had been shot down in the street by Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, a musician with a fancied grievance, who followed his murderous assault by suicide on the spot.

Watchers by his bedside were cheered through the night by the resistance the patient was showing to the wounds which the six shots from the automatic pistol had inflicted upon him.

All things considered, the nurses and medical attendants of Mr. Phillips felt justified today in describing his night as one of comparative comfort. The author's condition is still considered critical, however.

Dr. D. L. Hotchkiss of the Bellevue visiting staff expressed the professional view of the danger to be most feared in speaking of the wound in the author's right lung. The possibility that pneumonia might develop from this wound caused the grave apprehension.

"One saving factor," said Dr. Hotchkiss, "is that the bullets are very small. They are of steel and of high velocity, proof of which is had through the fact

ALGOT JOHNSON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF DULUTH OFFICER

Only Two Jurymen Secured During Morning Session of Court.

Boy's Mother Will Be With Him During the Trial.

Algot Denies That He Drew His Revolver on Street Car.

It took all morning, in the case of the state against Algot Johnson, to draw two jurymen. They are: E. G. Millette of Eveleth and A. S. McDonald, manager of the Zenith Dedge company.

Algot Johnson is the second of the boy bandits who on Jan. 6, after holding up the night clerk of the McKay hotel, rifled the cash register, and shot Officer Harry Chesmore, the policeman who arrested them. Charles Melodrowski, the boy who was convicted of murder in the second degree by a jury in district court last week, was the one who actually fired the fatal shot.

Johnson is represented by Attorney E. J. Kenny. The lad's mother is here from Virginia for the trial and she took her place beside her son when the case went on trial this morning. Young Johnson is very much interested in the trial and does not carry the indifferent air that Melodrowski did at

CAPT. CHAS. BARR DIES IN ENGLAND

Famous Skipper Falls Forward in Arms of His Wife, Dead.

Southampton, Eng., Jan. 24. — Capt. Charles Barr, the noted American yachtsman, died suddenly of heart trouble here today.

Capt. Barr had been in this country since last spring, when he brought over his last command, the schooner Westward, built by the Herreshoffs for A. S. Cochran of the New York Yacht club. With the Westward Capt. Barr won many trophies at the regattas at Kiel and Cowes last summer.

His success as skipper of the defenders of the American's cup gave him a high place in European yachting circles from which news of his unexpected demise called forth many expressions of keen regret.

Capt. Barr had appeared to be in perfect health this morning. He was having breakfast with his family when suddenly he placed a hand upon his heart and, with a cry of pain, fell forward into the arms of his wife, dead.

BURGLARS GET GEMS

Rob Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., of Jewels Worth $35,000.

Thirty-Three Detectives Are Now Working on the Case.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 24.—It became known today that while the family of William Thaw, Jr., were at dinner last night, the residence was robbed of jewels valued at $35,000. Included in the valuables is a pearl necklace, worth $17,000, the property of Mrs. Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw had been in the closet where her jewels were kept half an hour before dinner. Only her maid was in the room, and after locking the door as usual, Mrs. Thaw joined the family in the dining room. A short time later she returned to the closet for the pearl necklace. The door was locked but the necklace was gone. A hasty examination showed other jewel cases had been emptied of their contents.

Mrs. Thaw aroused the household and it was found that the thieves had taken only the gems. Today thirty-three detectives are working on the case. No evidence that the house had been entered had been found, yet the time of each person in it was accounted for. The police believe that some one, well acquainted with the house, entered with a skeleton key and with a similar key unlocked the door of the jewel closet.

Mrs. Thaw is a sister-in-law of Harry Kendall Thaw, who was tried for shooting Stanford White, the New York architect.

ALL SHOW EFFECTS OF THE STRAIN

Chief Counsel for Mrs. Schenk Worn Out By Long Trial.

Defendant Breaks Down and Cries Bitterly During Arguments.

Case May Be Given to the Jury By Tuesday Evening.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 24. — J. A. O'Brien, chief counsel for Mrs. Laura F. Schenk, appeared ill and the strain of the trial seemed beginning to show its effect. Mr. O'Brien sat through the session wearing his overcoat.

The arguments were resumed by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fred L. Maury, who opened for the state yesterday. He reviewed the testimony of the experts, who had examined John O. Schenk, telling how one after the other had agreed the millionaire packer was suffering from lead and arsenical poisoning. He completed the review of the case and again launched into an arraignment of Mrs. Schenk, adhering strictly to the line he had used in his opening statements.

Would Oust Dr. Myers.

At the meeting of the Ohio County Medical association last night, charges were made against Dr. J. W. Myers, witness for the state in the Schenk trial, alleging he has engaged in criminal practice and asking that he be expelled at once from the society. Dr. Myers in a statement declared he would prove himself innocent of the charges brought against him.

For the first time since the trial began Mrs. Schenk broke down and sobbed. The assistant prosecutor had

STRIKE RIOTS IN CHICAGO

Two Tailor Shops Wrecked and Non-Union Men Driven Out.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Two tailor shops were partly wrecked, more than 100 non-union tailors were driven into the street, and six arrests were made in a riot incident to the garment workers' strike her today. Many of the tailors were bleeding from cuts and scratches before the disturbance was quelled.

The trouble started when about 200 strikers and their sympathizers appeared at the shop of William Tuitte. Fifty non-union tailors, including both sexes, were at work at their machines. The strikers drove them into the street, wrecked their machines, and mutilated the garments upon which they have been at work.

As the frightened workers rushed into the street many were beaten and felled to the pavement. A riot call was sounded but before the bluecoats arrived the strikers had fled. Not stopping to interrogate the injured, none of whom was seriously hurt, the police followed, and found the rioters in front of the shop of Mrs. M. Baumgarten. Forty-five employes of the latter had been driven into the street and roughly handled. The police charged the crowd with drawn clubs. Policeman Ole Solberg was beset by six of the strikers who beat him to the ground, but after fifteen strenuous minutes the crowd dispersed, leaving six of the alleged ringleaders in the hands of the officers. The riots are the first of a serious nature in several weeks.

UNION LABEL CAMPAIGN INAUGURATED IN DULUTH

Movement Will Be Taken Up in All Parts of the Country.

Labor Unions Plan to Interest Entire Nation in Their Label.

There has been begun in Duluth a campaign that is destined to have a very important effect on the commerce of the nation within a comparatively short time, and the "union label" is its slogan.

The boot and shoe workers' union has inaugurated the work, and that it is effective work was demonstrated last night, when C. J. McNorrow, organizer for that union, presided over a meeting in the Owls' hall. It was a meeting and an entertainment, and the solid, informing features of the event overtopped the amusement features, with-

ATTACKED AND ROBBED BY TRIO

Superintendent of Insurance Company Has a Tough Experience.

Orange, N. J., Jan. 24.—Three burglars, one a negro, broke into the bedroom of John Baton, assistant superintendent of the Colonial Life Insurance company's Orange branch early today and felled Baton with a blackjack, after he had put up a fight in which he twice knocked the negro to the floor.

The thieves ransacked his pockets, got $14 and made their escape, after setting fire to a heap of paper which they placed alongside the unconscious man who lay bound and gagged.

A policeman, summoned by the owner of the house, broke into the room in time to save Baton's life. Baton was not badly hurt.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 24. — James E. Martine received forty votes when the ballot for United States senator was taken today. The total vote of both houses was as follows:

Martine, 40; Smith, 10; Hamil, 1; Stokes, 22; Griggs, 5; Governor Fort, 1; John Kean, 1. Necessary to a choice, 41.

Former United States Senator Smith, realizing that he could not win the senatorship, released all his supporters from any further obligation to vote for him, and Mr. Martine's election tomorrow is assured.

A. B. Hostetter Wants Place for Farmers to Sell Stock.

Believes It Would Help Decrease the Cost of Living.

"Duluth is working towards a commission form of government, and as a complement to that form of government a municipal abattoir would be a very good thing," said A. B. Hostetter, agricultural secretary of the Commercial club today, when asked what is the ultimate probable result of the launching of the movement for a livestock exchange in this city. Mr. Hostetter was not facetious in his remarks, but very much in earnest.

The remarkable thing about this movement is that it originated outside the city. Mr. Hostetter went to Hermantown Saturday and assisted in organizing a farmers' club, known as the

SUBPOENAS NOT SERVED

Foreman of the Grand Jury Wants the Sheriff to Explain.

Also Wants Another Deputy Sheriff to Guard Courtroom.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 24—Foreman Isaac Woodyard of the Vermillion county grand jury, appeared before Circuit Judge E. R. E. Kimbrough as soon as the latter opened court today and asked the court to cause Sheriff John Shepard to explain why he did not serve subpoenas given him to serve by the grand jury. Woodyard also asked that a deputy sheriff other than Fred (Dr.) Vutrich, be appointed to guard the grand jury room.

The request of Foreman Woodyard caused a sensation inasmuch as Sheriff Shepard was mentioned in the first reports, which later were denied, as having admitted buying votes. It was for him, according to the stories which met with such prompt denial when published that City Attorney Frank W. Jones is alleged to have bought votes, as related to the grand jury yesterday by newspaper men.

Vutrich, the deputy, was one of Sheriff Shepard's chief workers in the last election and preceding primary. An ethical reason—Vutrich's energy in the election—is believed to be the objection to his services.

Foreman Dissatisfied.

A rumor was circulated early today that Foreman Woodyard, who has appeared from the very first as the one central figure of the investigation was dissatisfied with the way witnesses were being questioned before the grand jury and that he would ask that either an assistant to State's Attorney John H. Lewman or a special assistant state's attorney be named to conduct the examination.

The grand jury would not deny the rumor. Action in this regard if any was taken, it was said, would not come before late in the day.

State's attorney Lewman has not claimed at any time to be the moving factor in the investigation, but has refused to announce any of his plans or commit himself in any way, except to say that he was only the servant of the grand jury and would await the commands of that body. He said that not he, but the grand jurors would arrange the order of evidence to be heard and the conduct of the whole investigation.

Subpoenas For Many.

Among those for whom subpoenas had been issued for appearance today were City Attorney Jones whose conversation with the two newspapermen, and the subsequent assertions and denials as to its nature brought the matter to a crisis; E. X. Lesuere, Speaker Cannon's son-in-law, and Peter Sanichas, the Greek politician whom Frankenberger, the newspaper man, accused before that body of having sought to get the newspaper man out of the county.

At Lesuere's home it was stated last night that he had left the city and that the informant, over the telephone did not know when he would return.

WEST END

SAY RETAINING WALL IS NEEDED

West End Property Owners Fear Miller's Creek Will Overflow.

A retaining wall along Miller's creek between First and Second streets at Twenty-sixth avenue west is wanted by residents of that section, who say that the stream is liable to overflow its banks this spring and damage their property.

Any hard rainstorm, the home owners say, causes the water to overflow. It is very inconvenient, they claim during the summer months. With the expenditure of about $2,000, it is thought that a first-class retaining wall could be constructed to prevent the water damaging the adjacent property.

Among the property-owners who are active in the agitation are Mrs. A. Emerson, Edward Dahl, and Andrew K. Love, all of whom live on and own property abutting Twenty-sixth avenue in the vicinity of the creek.

FOR PERMANENT TARIFF BOARD

House Committee on Ways and Means Agrees to Measure.

Washington, Jan. 24.—A permanent tariff board of five members to investigate all questions for the benefit of congress is provided for in a bill unanimously agreed upon by the house committee on ways and means today. The bill, effective July 1, contains substantially the provisions of the Longworth and Dalzell bills.

When the White House learned today that the committee had agreed unanimously to report favorably on the bill, President Taft expressed great gratification. He was informed shortly before noon by telephone from the capitol that with slight modifications the bill he approved of had been agreed to by both Republican and Democratic members of the committee.

One change is made in the measure which will allow the senate as well as the house to call upon the commission for information. The bill, it is said, will be taken up next Monday under suspension of the rules and the White House believes it will pass. Further, it believes the bill also will pass the senate, although Senator Bailey publicly intimated his intention to oppose it.

Minnesota Men Appear Before the House Judiciary Committee.

Washington, Jan. 24.—C. M. Johnson of Detroit, representing the business interests of that and other Minnesota towns, told a sub-committee of the house judiciary affairs committee yesterday that land transactions in Mahnomen county and in a part of Becker county were at a standstill owing to a cloud on titles to allotted land that had been disposed of under provisions of the Clapp amendment.

The sub-committee consisted of Representative Hanna of North Dakota, Kendall of Iowa, and Latta of Nebraska. The Steenerson bill providing for a new enrollment of White Earth Indians, was before it all the afternoon, and Representative Steenerson spoke in its favor.

John Carl of White Earth, Gus Beaulieu and others will be heard by the committee today. If a favorable report is made on the bill it may be possible to add it as an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill, which Senator Clapp hopes to have passed this week.

GERMANS IN CONVENTION

Sons of Herman Hold Their Annual Gathering in Duluth.

About Ninety Delegates From Outside the City in Attendance.

The annual convention of the Sons of Herman opened at 10 o'clock this morning in the Owls hall and was attended by over ninety delegates from various cities and towns of the state, in addition to the officers of the lodge.

The convention was opened by President Gustav Borchert, who in turn welcomed Mayor Cullum, who welcomed the visiting sons to the city and delivered the principal address of the morning.

Part of the morning was taken up by routine work of the committees and the reports of the various officers. The report of the financial condition of the lodge, showed that it is in a very prosperous condition, with no indebtedness and money in the treasury.

The annual election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that several of the committee reports will be made at this afternoon's session. During the noon hour today refreshments were served to the delegates in the ante-room of the hall.

Almost every town of any size in this part of the state is represented by a delegate, and the lodge has its own press representative in the person of F. C. Neumeier, who is a newspaper man of Stillwater.

In his address this morning Mayor Cullum extolled the virtues of the sturdy German character, enumerating some of the great accomplishments in science, literature and the arts that have been contributed by representatives of the German race. He also touched upon the many benevolent acts done by the Sons of Herman in this country. His honor welcomed the visiting delegates on behalf of the city and also on behalf of the many Germans of Duluth, many of whom are members of the order.

FRAME BARNS ARE BURNED

Fire Destroys Property of Teamster in the East End.

Two frame barns belonging to J. H. Ezard, a teamster, of Thirty-fourth avenue east and Fifth street, were burned to the ground last night about 10:30 o'clock. The loss was about $800, covered by insurance.

The fire department had great difficulty in reaching the scene because of the deep snow. An engine would have been useless because of the lack of water pressure, it is stated. The barns were practically empty. Fortunately, the wind was blowing away from the residence and another large barn on the same property.

Heimbach's rubber heels are interchangeable, from shoe to shoe, thereby making them wear level.

CATSUP WILL BE ANALYZED

Case Against Toledo Manufacturers Will Be Pushed By Government.

Deputy United States Marshal W. B. Mallory yesterday shipped to the authorities at Washington a dozen bottles of catsup.

Mr. Mallory is a man of versatility, but he is not in the catsup business. These dozen bottles were sent to the authorities for analysis, and if the chemist finds that their contents do not live up to their labels there will be trouble for the Harbauer-Marlean company of Toledo, which concern shipped 798 cases of the goods to the Stone-Ordean-Wells company last autumn.

On information from a government chemist in Michigan, the goods were seized here by Marshal Mallory. In memory of which event there still reposes in the office of the federal agent a case of that self-same catsup. The seizure was made Oct. 21.

It is charged that the goods are not properly labeled. Under the pure food and drugs act this is a serious oversight on the part of the manufacturers. Perhaps not an oversight, but worse, in the eyes of the law. The dozen bottles sent to Washington were selected one by one from as many of the 798 cases, each case containing two dozen bottles.

Since the seizure was made, the complaint of the government has been amended in a technical way, and the federal court will try the case when it gets around to it, if the twelve bottles sent by express don't get lost.

Public Schools of Cloquet Preparing to Observe Feb. 22.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Feb. 22, the teachers of the public schools will give a patriotic entertainment, participated in entirely by pupils, the funds to be used to buy books for the children's department at the public library.

Last year the schools gave a cantata, "The National Flower," which was a great success. Two performances were given, and a third would have drawn a full house. Next month's entertainment will probably be equally successful.

The sophomore class of the high school gave a party in Beaupre's hall, Friday evening, only the teachers and faculty of the high school being present, outside the class.

A party of twelve young people drove to the Fred Stuart home, near Wrenshall, Friday evening, and made merry until the late hours.

Boyd Cartwright had his arm broken Saturday evening, while jumping a fence, in company with some other boys, on their way to the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. C. H. Blake and Rev. C. W. Lowrie have been assisting Rev. Watt of Carlton in some special meetings.

The funeral of Mrs. David Sandstrom took place Sunday afternoon from the Swedish Lutheran church, Rev. C. O. Swenson officiating, and was attended by many people. Mrs. Sandstrom was a pioneer resident of Cloquet and leaves a husband and eight children.

Miss Merita Armstrong entertained a number of friends at her parents' home Saturday afternoon.

The French Altar Guild of the Catholic church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William Dupont.

The annual charity ball of the Ladies' Charitable association will be given in the Nelson opera house Friday evening, Jan. 27, and promises to be an unusually elaborate affair. The tickets are $2.00.

For the remainder of the cold weather the Methodist Ladies' Aid has decided to meet only once in two weeks.

Casselton, N. D., Jan. 24.—A young man rooming in the Knight block fell asleep with a cigarette in his mouth and came too only to find bedding afire and things looking pretty serious. He hauled the bed down stairs and hapened to find a couple of men going to their rooms nearby, who took a hand in putting out the blaze that had started in carpet and furniture.

FAILS OF MAJORITY

But Senator Dupont Will Undoubtedly Be Elected on Joint Ballot.

Dover, Del., Jan. 24.—The separate ballot for United States senator taken in the two houses of the legislature at noon today resulted: House—Senator Henry A. Dupont, Republican, 22; Willard Saulsbury, Democrat, 13. Senate—Dupont, 8; Salusbury, 8; Robert G. Houston, Republican, 1.

Senator Drexler, the Republican leader whose independent attitude resulted in a tieup of the senate at the opening, voted for Houston.

The failure of Senator Dupont to receive a majority in each house necessitates a ballot in joint session at noon tomorrow.

WOMAN'S REALM.

"It reads well, but the whole thing was attempted sneak legislation, thwarted by the women and thus made a lesson to any such lawmaker." This was a statement made by Mrs. C. G. Higbee, president of the state federation of Women's clubs in a letter written to Mrs. F. L. Barrows of this city yesterday. She referred to the statement issued yesterday by Senator J. D. Denegre in St. Paul which follows: "I will at the first opportunity ask permission to withdraw the bill and will be glad to turn it over to any aspiring statesman who wishes to carry on this educational campaign and widen his acquaintance with the fair sex throughout the state. 'Vox feminarum, vox populi.' (Signed) J. D. Denegre."

She also said, "Denegre admitted when told to send the men backing the bill to defend it at the mass meeting, that these men could not appear as it would ruin their business, showing it to be a bill which could not stand the light of day. In other states where this law exists there are other laws which we have not, modifying or even nullifying this.

"We shall have our mass meeting this afternoon and have explanations of the bill. It has not been withdrawn yet. Some senators wanting to have fun with Denegre, are planning not to permit Denegre to withdraw it."

She said that they were not giving up the fight, and the women in St. Paul will icontinue active in the matter until it is actually withdrawn.

Duluth club women will let the matter drop where it is for a time unless the withdrawal is opposed and more action becomes necessary.

Beauty Hints

By MADAME MASEE.

A MASSAGE CREAM WORTH TRYING.

Here is a home-made massage cream that should be on every woman's dresser: Get three ounces cerol at the drug store and dissolve in pint of boiling water; stir until cool and smooth. Wash the face, neck and arms and dry carefully, then apply cream, massaging in well. You will find this inexpensive cream works wonders with muddy or sallow complexions, and clears the skin and pores of impurities, giving it a rosytoned hue of health.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Helen: It is wasting time to massage for scrawniness or underdevelopment. You should try the Vaucaire method which builds up from the inside. This feeds starved and shrunken tissues, rounds out the form and makes a figure plump and symmetrical. The following recipe can be made at trifling expense: Get an ounce of true gallol from your druggist and put in a syrup made by dissolving a cup and a half of sugar and water to make a pint. Two teaspoonfuls before meals is the dose.

J. V.: Shampooing with eggol is not sufficient. You should use a good hair tonic to tone the scalp and hair follicles. An excellent tonic can be prepared at small cost if you get an ounce of beta-canthol at the drug store and pour in a bottle containing a half-pint each of alcohol and water. Massage the scalp at night with a little of this and you will be truly surprised at results. After using a short time the hair regains its lustre and grows in thick, long and fluffy.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Waterproof Cements For Pipes.

Waterproof cements for gas and water pipes are particularly adapted for use on a small scale.

Ground white lead or red lead is rubbed into a stiff paste with thick linseed varnish.

This cement is extensively used in connection with wrought-iron gas pipes for the protection of the riveted seams in gasometers, hot water ovens and cast iron flange pipes for hot water heating appliances. The cement made from red lead is also known under the name of red lead cement. In some cases ground gypsum is added to it. Red lead cement dries slowly, but resists water even before it has quite hardened. When quite hard it holds very fast.

The following cement is less expensive than that made with red lead as described—one part of white lead, one part of manganese ore, one part of white pipe clay mixed with linseed-oil varnish, or two parts of red lead, five parts of white lead and four parts of pipe clay, mixed with linseed-oil varnish.

For use with water pipes on a large scale—twenty-four parts of Roman or Portland cement, eight parts of white lead, two parts of silver litharge and one part of resin are mixed together in a fine powder, with the addition of eight or ten parts of boiled linseed oil—old—in which one part of resin is dissolved.

Fruit in Tins.

Fruit put up in tin cans should be taken out when the can is opened for use. If allowed to remain after the can is opened the action of acid juices upon the solder when exposed to the air may form acetate of lead, which is poisonous.

Helps For the Housekeeper.

Hot vinegar will remove stains from glass.

An old mackintosh can be used for various things. Amongst others it will make an excellent apron for use when washing or gardening. It will keep the dress beneath perfectly clean.

Stains on polished furniture can be removed by first covering them with salad oil. After a few hours rub on methylated spirit. This will take out all marks and add a brightness to the wood.

For cockroaches a correspondent writes that she finds a mixture of sugar and borax most destructive to cockroaches. This is a hint which will be useful to many.

Girls' Men Friends

By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS.

Once upon a time the idea of any young girl being friends with a man was absolutely unthinkable.

A man was either a lover—and he had to be a declared lover pretty quickly or stern parents demanded his intentions!—or he was nothing. The merest acquaintance—a ball partner—never on any account was privileged to obtain more than two dances in an evening and with whom "sitting out" would have led to open scandalizing.

We have changed all this with a vengeance today, and the change is mostly for the better. If it is not quite, the fault lies mainly with Master Dan Cupid, who will creep in disguised as friendship and cause trouble by only transfixing one heart instead of two.

It is rather curious to note the difference in girls' friendship with men.

With some girls they never happen at all, either because the girl is too unsympathetic to attract them or that she is one of those foolish fair ones who plainly show that marriage is the goal for which they are ceaselessly striving, than which, by the way, there is no more sure method of not reaching it.

There is the girl whose men friends will turn into lovers, and the girl who must satisfy her heart on friendship her life long, although she is, to all outward seeming, equally worthy of love.

The quantity and quality of her men friends all depend on the girl herself.

Cynics are given to sneering at the possibility of friendship betweeen a man and a girl, and they are so far right that, granted the damsel is neither unsympathetic or the hunter of men described above, and granted also, that both are fancy free and no one happens along that one or the other elects to like better, then—well, they will be an odd pair of mortals if it is friendship only to the end of the chapter.

It would be difficult to say who profits most by friendship—man or maid. Both serve to widen the other's horizon, both help to round off corners and improve away undesirable traits of character—that is, if the friend is what he, or she, should be.

The average girl is sardly awake to the fact of the influence for good she may exert over every man with whom she is brought into frequent friendly contact, if she only chooses to exert it.

Much of it is, of course, unconscious. The mere being herself—if she is a sweet-natured, true hearted gentle woman—will help a man to be his own better self, and raise her whole sex in his estimation.

But there are times, when she has gained his whole confidence, that she falls indeed unless she consciously influences him for his own good, and very seldom indeed will she fail to do so.

Not for a single moment should a girl forget what is due to her womanly dignity in her relations with men friends.

The "hail-fellow-well-met" manner of some men towards the girl they are pleased to call their "best pal" is utterly objectionable. So is the bestowing of nicknames and the absence of all ethose little graceful courtesies that should mark all intercourses between men and women.

This sort of so-called friendship is harmful to both.

Because she is his friend should be a reason for greater consideration on a man's part, greater courtesy, greater care that the world shall know he holds her in all honor.

And the girl who accepts anything less is greatly to blame, and more than likely has bitter cause to rue her folly in after days.

Sometimes her men friends stand in the way of a girl's settlement for life.

Seeing her always surrounded by a crowd of intimates, or, worse still, by one, a might-be suitor loses heart, and perhaps decides that any effort on his part to win her would be in vain; for a lover never by any possibility believes in another man's merely friendly feeling for his beloved. Judging all men by himself, he sees a rival in everyone—consequently, an intimate man friend often does unwitting harm.

There are some things that can never be forgotten, and forever afterwards remain as barriers in the path of friendship.

Once let anything approaching flirtation creep in, and any true friendship is impossible. And if for no other, the girl who values her men friends will keep them at a certain distance.

Yet "distance" scarcely is the fitting word. Mutual sympathy and understanding bring hearts very near together. Perhaps it comes nearer the truth to say that all pretence is impossible between friends, and flirtation being but make-believe, and rather vulgar make-believe at that, it and true friendship can never have aught in common.

After Everybody, What?

By CARA REESE.

After everybody is in what are you going to do with everybody?

After everybody is in the uplift movement, the betterment league, the peace commission; after everybody is in the church unity," the "forward" in the church unity," the "forward" jubile; after everybody is in the brotherly circle, the "help one another" and the love feast, what are you going to do with everybody?

And after all the "higher ups" and the "lower downs" and the "mediums" are in the despair clubs; the hungry clubs and the hard times clubs, what are you going to do with everybody? It is not the getting started always, nor the union of interest, nor the coming together that accomplishes things, but it is the utilizing of a combined energy to some beneficial purpose. A "getting together" that is not much more than a name and possibly a set of resolutions is not worth the trouble of the mere act of joining hands. And after the sinners are in and specifically branded, if the getting together stops at that point and no downright good resultant, again of what value? After everybody is in, what are you going to do with everybody? What are you going to do with church union?

After you have driven out the money changers, so to speak, knocked idols from their pedestals, tumbled the mighty from the high seats; after everybody is in a turmoil, or in difficulty, or sore straits, what are you going to do with everybody? And if everybody gets riled up over a heavy disbursement of millions for peace and kicks the neighbor's dog or starts a quarrel just to relieve feelings, what are you going to do with everybody? A fight is a fight, and fair play means a right to settle scores on the spot even to the point of kicking back.

It isn't one or two people these times, but it is everybody. Now what is everybody going to do, or now that everybody is in, what is to happen to everybody? Now that the physicians are joining interests for the betterment of physical welfare, now that the nurses are of one accord in a spirit of helpfulness, now that "service" is the popular and familiar password; now that everybody is in for medical inspection and hygienic improvement what are you going to do with everybody, push on, or stand still?

Ah, no, it is not the getting together, but it is the doing of something afterwards. After everybody is in union, in bond or affiliated, what then?

THE EVENING STORY

AT CROSS PURPOSES

By John Allison.

"You won't have to go out tonight, will you, dear?" said pretty Mrs. Fairway, smiling, to her spouse at breakfast.

"Sorry, Lil, but the fact is, there's a special meeting of the lodge, and they want me to take the chair. You see—"

"Oh, yes, I see." On a hardened note: "A lot you care whether I weary myself to death sitting here alone."

"Why, that's what I was coming to, you dear old Cinderella. I've got charming company for you—a beauty, take my word. I've got her at the office for the past week. She'll suit you down to the ground. And what a picturesque contrast! Lil, believe me, she's as dark as you are fair."

"Oh, it's come to that, Mr. Thomas Fairway," with a glitter in the eyes that pierced him. "You're to choose your own company and mine as well, now." Then with chilling sarcasm: "Perhaps you would like to describe her charms?"

"Hang it, Lil—L—ha, ha! I don't mind if I do. She's got the loveliest glossy black hair; soft, liquid eyes and the prettiest little ears. That reminds me, Charlie, my head clerk, photographed her with her feet on his desk, and he says—"

"Thank you. Keep your photograph to gaze upon. I've no doubt what Charlie would say. Like master, like man. He knows your taste, I suppose. I hope I may meet Mrs. Charlie, that's all."

"Why, Lil, you're not jealous of a mere—"

"A mere typist. Indeed! Thank goodness, I couldn't be jealous either of her or of any of your aristocratic clients." A quiver of the upper lip. "I don't think I ever cared enough for you. You know very well I only married you out of pity."

"Right-o! And isn't pity encored all over this philanthropic planet?"

"Yes; except when thrown away on a pitiable wretch like you."

"Well, it was out of pity I took her in. Was not that like the kind old heart you said beat here—before we were married?"

"Kind fiddlesticks! She's got to work for what you pay her, I expect."

"She doesn't work, silly. She simply sits all day by the fire and—"

"Smiles at you, likely. How delightful! She deserves a good salary for that—and the clerks who laugh behind your back, too."

"Who mentioned a salary? Why, all she gets could be put in a—saucer."

"Very smart, sir. Is it at your precious lodge you learn vulgarity?"

"Vulgarity be hanged. Dash it, Lil, fancy you jealous of a—"

"I'm not jealous, I tell you. But I've had my suspicions—you and your lodges and clubs, and late at business. I shan't stand it. There!" stamping viciously on the carpet.

"Here, mind the old Axminster, anyway; if I'd known there was to be all this bother I'd have smothered my humane instincts and let her die in the gutter."

"Well, men like you ought to remember that charity begins at home."

"Oh, but give a fellow a chance to explain."

"Please don't. If you do not choose to get rid of her—"

"Great Scott! Why, we need her to catch—"

"Customers, no doubt. If that's what Fairway & Sweatem, once reputable lawyers, of 156 Cheatem street, have come to, I am sorry indeed for the firm. You can please yourself," rising, with hauteur; "but I'm going home to mother."

"Humph! Well, I hope she'll take you in."

"Thank you. I'll tell her that."

"What?"

"What you hope."

"Dash it, I didn't mean it that way. Wouldn't ma just pat me on the back? You know how fond she is of—"

"Of decent charity, yes. But what do you call taking in glossy-haired, liquid-eyed, small-eared beauties? Pretty charity!"

"Here, wait a moment. You mustn't go now. I shan't know what to do with her. She'll be here directly with the office boy. I told him to fetch her at nine o'clock sharp."

"Indeed! Well, the house is yours; my company is my own. You'll find plenty of cakes in the pantry, and doubtless"—with withering scorn—"your 'beauty' can pour out her own tea."

"Tea be hanged! She doesn't take tea, or cakes either. Whoever heard of a—"

"Then you know where the wine is kept. Perhaps you won't go to business today?"

"If you weren't so confoundedly jealous you would have let me explain that—"

"Silence, sir! I hate you—I hate Charlie—I hate—"

"Halloa! There goes the bell. She's come, and Billy has her—good morning, Billy—in a basket."

"Tom, you dear. What a lovely little black Persian! I never saw such a sweet beauty in all my life!"

Good and Evil

By CARA REESE.

"What is good?" "What is evil?" There is nothing backward about you in your zeal to get at the bottom of things. What is the matter with the preacher?

Good, broadly speaking, is a mighty ocean of unsounded depth, tranquil, undiminished and eternal. Evil is merely the froth and the curl of the waves on the top, a splash and curveting, a lashing and buffeting, a surface fury, that is all there is to evil. Underneath are the everlasting arms, as you might style the undisturbed volume of the mighty force. Ah, yes, evil lashes itself mountain high, it bellows into the caverns, it leaps and launches its tumult against the rocks, it breaks on the shores, it takes its awful toll of human life, but it is only a surface, a running before the wind, a tempest in a teapot. Good is the boundless, fathomless, unshrinkable depths! You can never get away from the lure of the good. You may be beaten and tossed and drift like a rag in the riotous waste of the surface turmoil, you may be lost, forsaken, a forlorn hope clinging to a broken spar, you may be nothing but a fragment in the contemptuous drift, but the "good" is going to claim you after all if only your bleached bones with the soul and marrow washed out; all to the good is where you go.

Nobody is to escape the "good" after awhile. The "good" dominates, controls, lies in wait and unerringly as the bird flies you will draw night into its loving fold even the most willful of spirits. Because the "good" survives, while "evil" perishes. There is one reason why evil is so rampant and boisterous and always rippling or curving and tossing the spray in an endeavor to win or to hold victims, because its power and sway are limited. It is only a surface commotion at the best.

Now you know where you go to. Straight into the keeping of eternal good and eternal truth. If you intend to play with the surface, if you have been drawn into the splashing and dashing before you were fully aware, if you have fallen overboard from the deck of the church, or if cruel fate has thrown you helpless into the storm, then wiggle and struggle along the best you can. There are life lines dangling in the waste, there are beacon lights along the shore, sometimes there are "preservers" and not all of sawdust; human drift as far gone as you are has sometimes been rescued.

But no matter what, secure, or a waif in the storm-tossed waves, hug fast the truth, that "good" is what lasts, and all to the good, is where souls, big and little or microscopic will be garnered at last.

NURSERY IDEAS

Fat Foods and Warmth.

Do not forget that during the winter fatty foods help to keep up the heat of the body. Suet puddings and such foods are useful. Cod liver oil is found to be an excellent preventive against cold-catching for delicate children, and should be given regularly during the winter months if the doctor says that it will be beneficial.

Miserably Cold Feet.

If a child constantly complains of cold feet after going to bed, there is probably a defect in his circulation. In a case like this, it is well to provide a hot water bottle, which should be of indiarubber, with a flannel cover. Place it between the under-blanket and sheet.

Snug and Cosy Sleeping Bag.

A cosy covering for an infant's bed is a sheet of thick wadding half a yard long slipped into a nainsook covering made the shape of an envelope. This case and the flap can be trimmed with lace and frilling and can easily be washed. When the child is tucked up in this cosy bag the flap is turned down over the counterpane.

DOCTORS ADVISED OPERATION —DECIDED TO TRY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I want to tell you in a few words what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root did for me, believing that my testimony may do some other suffering person a great deal of good.

About six years ago, I was dangerously ill, consulted three doctors, all of whom said I had kidney trouble. One of the doctors analyzed my urine and reported that I had gravel, and further said that in order to regain my health and life, an operation would be necessary. I did not want to be operated on as I was afraid that I would not recover. Some one told me of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and said it was a reliable medicine for kidney trouble, so I decided to try it and went to Mr. Rose, the druggist, at 303 Central Ave., Minneapolis, and bought a bottle, took it, noticed results and continued taking it until I was entirely cured.

Having been free from any kidney trouble for over six years, I consider that I am absolutely cured and know that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has the credit.

I never fail to tell my friends about your remedy, as I believe it is the best of its kind. Your U & O Ointment is also very good. We are never without a jar in our house.

Yours very truly,
MRS. MARGARET E. ANDERSON,

VERDICT FOR THE PLAINTIFF

City Must Pay John Soderblom $2,042 for Injuries to His Son.

A jury in district court brought in a verdict for $2,042 in favor of John Soderblom, who asked $5,000 from the city of Duluth for George Soderblom, a minor, for injuries sustained when the lad fell into a hole in the sidewalk on Ninth avenue east during the month of July last, sustaining a fractured arm as a result.

The trial was one of the shortest personal injury actions that have been tried in the local court in some months past. It began yesterday morning and the verdict was returned shortly before noon today.

George Soderblom is but 7 years old. The father, the guardian claims, resulted in a dangerous illness and has also kept the lad out of school for some months.

The plaintiff maintained that it was the duty of the city of Duluth to keep its sidewalks in repair and the jury evidently agreed with him.

Second Degree Burglary Is Charge Preferred Against John Matuski.

John Matuski, 31 years old, was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon charged with burglary in the second degree. The complaint was made by Mrs. Inga Hanson, better known as Mrs. Inga Moe, 33 Garfield avenue, who alleged that Matuski had battered his way into her home at 11 o'clock Sunday night and beaten her cruelly.

According to Mrs. Hanson, Matuski became very angry Saturday after she told him that he would have to move. She says that he packed, but while doing so threw the furniture about the house. Sunday night about 11 o'clock she alleges that he came to the front door to demand admission. Whereupon she says that he smashed down the door and attacked her. She declares that Matuski beat her over the head, face and body. When she came to the police station to make her complaint she had some bruises on her head which substantiated her statements.

Matuski was brought to headquarters yesterday afternoon by Detectives Schulte and Irvine. The warrant states that he entered the premises of Mrs. Hanson in the night time with intent to commit a crime, which constitutes a burglary in the second degree. Matuski demanded a hearing, which was set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Bail was fixed at $1,000. Matuski has been arrested at $1,000. Mafother charges.

SECOND DAY OF REGISTRATION

Polls Will Remain Open Until 9 o'Clock in the Evening.

Today is registration day in Duluth. The polls were opened this morning at 6 o'clock and will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening, in order to give everybody an opportunity to register.

Those who voted at the primary election last month do not need to register again, but those who did not vote at the primaries must register today or Saturday, or they will not be allowed to vote at the municipal election next month.

J. T. Dunphy filed his petition with the city clerk this morning as an independent candidate for alderman in the Second ward. The move has been urged upon Mr. Dunphy for some time past by his friends, but he has been reluctant to enter the game. The political pot promises to boil merrily in the Second before election day, Feb. 7. Up to noon today the reports were that the registration throughout the city is very light. The candidates are hoping that this will show a decided increase late in the afternoon and in the evening.

INCREASE PROPOSED

ing year as the hospital is now badly crowded for space.

Drainage Board Problem.

Solution of the drainage board problem is proposed by Senator J. L. Cashel of Walsh county in a bill that he has presented. It does away with a number of the objectionable features of the present drainage law and substitutes some new features that the sponsor of the bill hopes to be able to incorporate into the law. It is a bill in which the land owners of the Red River valley are particularly interested because of their past experience with the present measure.

The Cashel bill provides that a petition of six land owners for a drain may be filed, but such petitioners must put up a bond for preliminary costs that might be incurred. The drain board proceeds to make a survey and then calls a meeting of the land owners interested, at the point nearest to the drain that will accommodate the most people interested. At this meeting the land owners may order the work stopped by a vote of the majority of those present, or if they are not satisfied with the survey they may call in the state engineer to make the survey, and his verdict shall be final. In the event that the land owners order the work discontinued, they are made liable for the expense incurred up to that time.

Under the present law when a petition is filed the board commences its work by having a survey made, lets the contract and makes the assessment. At that time the landowners may come in, but the board's power is arbitrary and the only recourse is in the courts. In the past the courts have held with the drain boards in practically every particular so that legal action has not been fruitful of good results from the point of view of the landowner. The notice of intention to construct drains, too, it is contended, is insufficient, while no means is provided for making payment of debts that might be incurred by the drain board on a project that is afterwards abandoned.

In Pembina county at the present time there are a number of warrants afloat on a drain that has not been constructed, the project being abandoned, and as there is no money to pay the warrants and no means of raising any, the holders of such warrants are in a quandary as to how they will be able to realize.

State Nursery Inspector.

Nursery men of the state will interest themselves again this year in legislation bearing upon their industry. A bill that was introduced two years ago by Anderson of Ramsey county, is to be introduced again this year and a number of the nursery owners of the state are already engaged in creating sentiment favorable to it. Their plan is to secure a law that will provide for a state nursery inspector whose work, it is expected, will be along the line of preventing the introduction of nursery plant diseases into the state. It is also for the purpose of preventing fraudulent operations upon the part of wild-cat nursery men.

Regulations concerning the construction of public buildings in the state are proposed in a bill introduced by Mr. Price of Cass county. It provides that, when any public institution of the state is about to do constructive work, the architectural work shall be let to an architect residing in the state. Bids shall be opened and read publicly and when practical the contract shall be awarded to a North Dakota builder who has been in business in the state not less than one year previous to the letting of the contract. Provision is made for an estimate of work done and the payment for the same at least once every calendar month, and no appropriation that is made for a building shall in any manner be diverted from that purpose. The board in charge of the building is required to supply the bond and insurance. Another feature of the bill is the fact that building materials produced in the state shall be used whenever possible.

HUNT MAY NOT BE CONFIRMED

Senate Committee Against Judge for the New Commerce Court.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Nearly half of the members of the senate judiciary committee are said to have taken positions against the confirmation of Judge William H. Hunt, now serving as a member of the court of customs appeals, and promoted to a circuit judgeship for assignment to the new commerce court. When his case was called up in the committee yesterday in consequence of the opposition his friends did not press the case, although all of the others appointed to circuit judgeships for service on the new court were ordered reported favorably.

The judges acted upon were Robert W. Archbald of Pennsylvania, John E. Carland of South Dakota, and Julian W. Mack of Illinois. Judge Martin A. Knapp, former chairman of the interstate commerce commission, was confirmed before the holiday recess for presiding judge. The four members of the court against whom there were not any contests were named to organize the new court as soon as those reported are confirmed.

Soon after the appointment of Judge Hunt was sent to the senate charges were filed against him by Montana land owners who alleged that while serving on the federal district bench he had aided smelting interests by delaying court proceedings brought by land owners who complained that their property was being injured by fumes from the Anaconda smelter of the Amalgamated Copper company.

The effect of the charge was to cast reflections upon Judge Hunt's integrity by seeking to show that he had been subservient to corporation influences.

A sub-committee took up the charges against Judge Hunt and made an investigation which resulted in two reports to the full committee, the majority being in favor of his confirmation. When the full committee considered the case yesterday, the Democrats are said to have opposed confirmation unanimously. They were joined by some Republicans and although no vote was taken, the meeting did not augur for confirmation at this session. Some senators even expressed the opinion that the president should withdraw the nomination.

No appointment has been made to the customs court to succeed Judge Hunt and it is the belief at the capital that if he is not confirmed for the commerce court he will retain his present position.

TWELVE JAPS ARE EXECUTED

Anarchists Convicted of Conspiracy Are Put to Death.

Tokio, Jan. 24.—Twelve anarchists convicted of conspiracy against the throne and the lives of the imperial family, were executed in the prison here today.

Those put to death included the alleged ringleader, Denjiro Kotoku, and his wife. Kotoku was a newspaper man, who, because of his radical writings, was obliged to leave Japan some years ago. He went to San Francisco, Cal., where he conducted a Socialist publication for a time. Later he returned to Tokio and is credited with having originated the plot which led to the death today of twelve of the twenty-six conspirators.

Twenty-four were condemned to death but the sentences of one-half the number were commuted to life imprisonment. Two others were given terms of imprisonment.

For either acute or chronic kidney disorders, for annoying and painful urinary irregularities take Foley Kidney Pills. An honest and effective medicine for kidney and bladder disorders. Sold by all druggists.

UNITED STATES AGAIN CHEATED

Millions of Dollars Lost in Non-Payment of Tobacco Duties.

New York, Jan. 24.—The Tribune says that a country-wide investigation by the treasury department has disclosed, it is said, discrepancies in the statistics of tobacco imports from Cuba which have deprived the government of between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 annually for the past five years.

According to the Tribune, tobacco trade statistics show that pure Havanna cigars must have 6 per cent "wrapper," while the statistics of the treasury department show a fraction under 1-5 of 1 per cent of the Cuban importations paying duty as "wrapper."

Advance reports on this investigation show, it is said, that the Cuban importations have been admitted under a classification which, in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, deprived the custom house of between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000, and it was said by treasury department officials that approximately the same sum had been lost to the government annually for at least five years past.

From the investigation thus far, however, it was the belief that this loss was more in matter of long established trade custom than fraud.

Collector Loeb is quoted as saying "we know that the tobacco trade has been getting the best of us, but the investigation has not proceeded far enough to determine yet to what extent."

The probable result of the inquiry, Mr. Loeb continued, would be an amendment to the customs regulations.

The Tribune says that in the trade it is an open secret that thousands of pounds of Havana leaf, which in the words of the tariff law is "suitable for wrappers" and is used as such, are brought into the country under the classification of "filler" at $1.25 duty less per pound than should be paid on everything which is used for wrapper.

SOCIETY WOMEN TABOO FACE POWDER

Returning from a trip abroad, Mrs. Mae Martyn, who writes on health and beauty subjects for numerous papers and magazines, gave the following interview:

"Yes, I found many changes in methods of beauty culture abroad. Perhaps the most surprising is that society women are discontinuing the use of face powder, for the reason that powder is not a permanent beautifier and tends only to clog the skin pores and eventually cause rough and bad complexions. In Paris and London liquid lotions are all the go. They do not rub off as easily as powder and give the skin that soft, velvety effect so much admired. The formula I brought with me is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint hot water, then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. The ingredients are inexpensive and can be bought at any drug store. This lotion is a wonderful remedy for a shiny, oily skin, and for cold sores."

MAY INVESTIGATE LODGE'S ELECTION

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—Criticism on the part of a Boston newspaper of the ballot by which Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was recently re-elected for another term, led District Attorney Pelletter to call upon Foster Coates, managing editor of the paper, for such evidence, if any, as might be in his possession, to substantiate charges which had been made.

The paper stated that a federal office holder and a Boston city official had secured the votes of two Democrats for Senator Lodge by promises. It is understood that if any evidence warranting an investigation is forthcoming, it will be placed before the grand jury.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it; Reach the cause; relieve the pain.

They cure, too, so Duluth people say.

Thomas G. Thompson, 624 W. Second St., Duluth, Minn., says: "I do not wish to withdraw anything from the statement I gave some years ago in which I told how effectively Doan's Kidney Pills had rid me of kidney complaint. For months I was bothered by pain and soreness in my back. I had other troubles and they all showed that there was much uric acid in my system. When I was feeling poorly, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills. I immediately got a box and they were just what I required. In a short time they cured me and about a year ago they quickly drove away a spell of backache that had come on me. HOW THIN FOLKS CAN GET FLESHY

New Accidental Discovery Gives Startling Results—Puts Flesh on Thin People and Rounds Out Imperfect Figures.

Simple Prescription Given.

For women—and men, too, for that matter—who can never appear stylish with anything they wear, because of abnormal thinness and angularity, this remarkable prescription is destined to solve the problem. As a beauty maker for the figure it is simply wonderful while it adds brightness to the eyes, and color to the cheeks and lips. It requires no particular dieting, but acts as an aid to nature by its peculiar action on the nerves and blood supply. The blood and nerves distribute over the body all the nourishment or flesh building elements obtained from the food. The trouble with thin people has always been that they do not absorb or retain enough of the fleshy matter to make them gain in weight even to a normal extent; but this new discovery of blending certain harmless drugs is a revelation to science, and hundreds have gained from ten to forty pounds in a few weeks. There is no danger of becoming too fat. When you get the right weight then stop using.

The general health and strength is greatly improved in anyone from the age of sixteen to sixty. Women soon get plump, with well rounded arms and full bust, and men become straight, strong-looking and healthy.

In a half pint bottle get three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces syrup rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardomom). Take a teaspoonful before and after meals, and weigh before beginning.

COSTLY FIRE ON COAL DOCK

Stubborn Blaze Has Been Smouldering for Two Weeks.

After smoldering for nearly two weeks in a big pile of anthracite coal, a fire which started two weeks ago on the coal docks of the Zenith Furnace company, West Duluth, has not yet been extinguished although the concern has had a crew of men fighting it day and night since it was first discovered.

Coal dock fires are among the hardest to put out. Water seems to have little effect and the blaze, which smoulder underneath a big pile, cannot be extinguished as an ordinary fire. It is necessary to dig the burning coal out first.

The origin of the blaze is not known. It is thought that it started from spontaneous combustion. The Zenith Furnace company has a water pressure system of its own which is more effective than the city's system, as higher pressure can be obtained.

Several streams of water have been directed upon the burning coal and clam shells have been brought into play to dig out the burning fuel. As yet, no call has been made for the local fire department, although it has been notified of the blaze and stands ready to be called if necessary.

Just what the damages will be, is not known, as Supt. Fred C. Harris could not be reached this afternoon and others at the company's office at West Duluth refused to give out any information regarding the blaze.

Two or three boats are tied up at the dock, but they are in no danger.

NEW ENGINE FOR NEW DULUTH

Western Suburb Will Have Fire Protection in Future.

The new fire engine which was purchased by the city for use at New Duluth, arrived yesterday from St. Paul and will be installed in the suburb some time this week.

The new engine cost $3,000 and will require another man and two additional horses at New Duluth. It is of modern type and capable of throwing a stream of water as far as most of the larger steamers in the city.

New Duluth, which is a fast growing section, will welcome the new apparatus, as it has long been needed. The agitation for the new apparatus has been one of long standing and was brought to a climax when there was a series of fires in the suburb last summer, thought to be incendiary.

QUIET IN THE COPPER MARKET

Few Changes in Prices as Result of the Day's Trading.

The copper market saw little activity today, losses and gains both being fractional as were the fluctuations in most cases. There was a general stiffening at the close and few stocks lost anything on the day's trading. A conference between officials interested in the proposed Calumet & Hecla merger and the declaring of the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the Butte Coalition were the principal items of news flashed over the wire.

Amalgamated opened at $63.75, advanced to $64 and closed at that figure. Butte Coalition opened at $18.87½ and closed at $19. Calumet & Arizona opened at $47.75, advanced sharply to $49.12½ and fell off again to $48 at the close. Lake opened at $34 and closed at $33.75. North Butte opened at $28, went to $28.25 and fell off to $27.87½ at the close. Superior & Pittsburg opened at $14.50 and closed at $14.12½.

The principal trading on the Duluth stock exchange was in Denn, in which 625 of the 2,290 shares traded in were exchanged. Denn sold at $5.25, $5.37½ and $5.43¾. Butte Alex Scott, part paid, assessment paid, sold at $2.87½. Calumet & Montana at 9 cents. Calumet & Sonora at 30 cents. Carman at $1.18¾ and $1.12½, old Butte & Superior at 86 cents, Cliff at $1.37½ and Keating at $1.68¾.

J. L. Washburn of Duluth is one of the attorneys for the Butte-Ballaklava Mining company in the hearing of the injunction proceedings brought against that company by the Amalgamated Copper company. The hearing is now in progress in Butte and Mr. Washburn is associated with T. J. Walsh of Helena in the defense, while the plaintiff company is represented by Attorneys C. F. Kelley and I. O. Evans.

The plaintiff company alleges that the Butte-Ballaklava company has been taking ore from veins which apex on the Mountain Chief and Right Bower claims of the Amalgamated. Much Butte-Ballaklava stock is held in Duluth and a great deal of interest is being taken here in the suit. Butte-Ballaklava interests are confident of their ability to show the court that the company has not infringed on the rights of the Amalgamated company, while the plaintiff company is just as certain that the Butte-Ballaklava company has been taking ore to which the Amalgamated holds title.

The Duluth people in control of Butte-Alex Scott are preparing to make a fight to retain the control. A notice has been issued to Duluth stockholders that Pittsburg people who will make a tender to control at the annual meeting have started a move to prevent the voting of any part paid stock on which the assessment has not been paid by today. They are urging Duluth stockholders to pay the assessment at the company's office, 402 Palladio building, in order that they may have their say in holding the control in Duluth. The Duluth people in control say they have been making every effort to put the mine on a shipping basis and they will continue to do so if allowed to remain in control.

SECOND CHOICE IS HAMMOND

Michael Horgan, Pioneer, Places Him Next to Bryan.

He is for one man first, last and all the time, and then he has a second choice, which is a paradox that should be docked, but it won't be, because it belongs to Michael Horgan.

Mr. Horgan, be it known, is a resident of Blue Earth, which is in Faribault county. Formerly he lived in Martin county. Formerly is right, because Mr. Horgan has lived in that part of the state since Horgan knows when. Just now he is intent upon getting a Republican governor to appoint him deputy game warden, which is less majesty, so far as Guy Eaton is concerned, if his neighbors had a lot to say about it, he would be appointed, for he deserves the appointment, but that doesn't always count in one's favor.

But speaking of the presidency, Mr. Horgan dilates to this extent:

"My first and last and all the time choice is that matchless patriot and friend of the people, the Peerless Leader, and I firmly believe that if he lives and wants the nomination no man can take it from him. And I also believe the people will command that the Peerless accept, and if he does the interests will not dare to beat him.

"My second choice is, and will be to the last, that sterling patriot, orator and lover of the people, twice elected from a dense Republican district, and at present on one of the most important committees of congress, I mean the Hon. Winfield S. Hammond."

Mexican cavalry has been sent down from Juares to watch the border on the Mexican side of the river.

These men would replace the present commissioners appointed by the governor.

MYSTERY CLEARED.

Dead Man on Train Had Railroad Ticket Bought of a Broker.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 24. — (Special to The Herald.) — The so-called mystery concerning the death from alleged strangulation on a Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railway sleeper of Theodore Hemingstraus of Utica, N. Y., at Thief River Falls, Minn., was cleared up today by the statement of C. C. Reynolds, cashier of the Housekeeper Publishing company of this city.

The railroad ticket found among Hemingstraus' effects was made out to L. R. Lowes. Lowes' relatives failed to identify the dead man.

Mr. Reynolds today said that L. R. Lowes, his brother-in-law, while here, had sold a railroad ticket to a ticket broker and that accounted for Hemingsraus having the ticket with Lowes' name on it.

Mr. Reynolds says his brother-in-law is somewhere in Kansas now. It is not believed that Hemingstraus' death was due to violence.

WHY HE CAME BACK.

Los Angeles Times: When Harvey Worthington Loomis was a young man he went abroad to study music. On the second day after his arrival in Paris he became intensely homesick, and returned to America on the same steamer that had carried him across the ocean. When he entered his home in Brooklyn his sister greeted him, excitedly exclaiming:

"Why, Harvey, are you ill? What is the matter?"

"Oh, nothing in particular is the matter," he replied, "except that I went away and forgot my tooth brush."

CRAWLING STONE LAKE.

In the northern part of Wisconsin is a large lake whose waters abound in fish. In this lake there is also a great rock which floats about in its waters. This rock, says a writer in The Red Man, is held by the Chippewa Indians as a sacred monument to the great Manito.

Stories are told generation after generation that this great rock was at one time the throne of the Great Spirit. Here he sat and ruled the people, the animals of the forest around and the fishes of the waters of this lake. As time went by this rock was gradually being worn away and the Great Spirit had to go to a new home.

Every summer the Indians hold dances near the place where the rock stands. This they do to celebrate the time when the Manito took his leave. They bring food and tobacco and place them on the rock so if the Great Spirit does not get enough to eat in the other world he comes down and gets the food that is placed by his former subjects.

No white man is allowed to catch fish in this lake, for the fish were put there by the Great Spirit for the Indians only. The rock floats about, being pushed by the waves, hence the name "Crawling Stone Lake."

To Wash the Nostrils.

To wash the nostrils every day should be the aim of every one wishing to be free from the disgusting symptoms of Nasal Catarrh.

Any one can readily rid themselves of nasal catarrh by obtaining from the druggist two ounces of antiseptic vilane powder. Use a half teaspoonful to a pint of warm water, and snuff up into the nostrils a half dozen or more times until all the slimy matter is removed. Also gargle the throat, and apply the following splendid catarrh balm to the nostrils: Mix a teaspoonful of vilane powder with a five-cent jar of vaseline.

This treatment cleans, clears, soothes and heals the mucous membrane and enables one to breathe freely through the nose.

BRONCHITIS

Weakening and Contagious

In an interview with a prominent man who has just recovered from a severe attack of Bronchitis, in the presence of his doctor, he said: "Bronchitis is not only a disagreeable disease but it is very weakening—it seems to poison the whole system. I was confined to my house for two weeks with a bad case, and I became very weak and lost 10 lbs.; besides it is very contagious. I gave it to my wife and she had a hard time as well as I, and I don't believe either one of us would have gotten off so easily if it was not for our doctor giving us Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which toned us up and brought our strength back quickly. I also noticed I began to increase in weight as soon as I began taking it—a desert spoonful four or five times a day in a glass of milk with an egg in it.

"In conclusion I must say I never believed that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was as good as it has proven to be—in the case of my wife and myself. It surely put us on our feet. No, I don't want you to use my name, but you may refer any one to me personally and I will tell them what I have told you."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey corrects the defective digestion of the food, increases the appetite, strengthens the heart, gives force to the circulation, cures insomnia and brings restfulness to the brain and nervous forces. It is pleasant to the taste and can be retained by the most delicate stomach. Our files contain thousands of letters from men and women in all walks of life testifying to the wonderful cures this great medicinal whiskey has brought about. It will help you—will keep you strong and vigorous. Sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by druggists, grocers and dealers, or shipped direct for $1.00 per large bottle. MAUD ADAMS IN "CHANTECLER"

Famous French Play Given Its First Production in English.

New York, Jan. 24.—With Miss Maud Adams in the title part, Edmond Rostand's famous French play "Chantecler" had its first production in English on any stage at the Knickerbocker theater last night. The event had been looked forward to many weeks and a packed audience witnessed the production. There being a jam on the street and the lobby, the few seats that fell into the hands of speculators brought large prices.

The version is a poetic translation of the original, not an adaptation. It is by Louis N. Parker. The production is lavish with a wealth of costumes and scenery.

Chantecler is not an allegory nor a satire. It is a play in which barnyard fowl and domestic animals, imbued with the feelings and passions of human, act the riddle of life. As it is marked out in the story of "Chantecler," the rooster was firmly convinced that the sun rises each morning because he crows, and gradually learns that it rises without his assistance.

Finally he becomes reconciled to the fact that even if he does not make the sun rise he does announce the dawn of another day to a sleeping world.

The role of "Chantecler" as interpreted by Miss Adams, is that of a man, masterful, passionately fond of his life's work and sure he is accomplishing it. He meets the pheasant, representing the modern development of woman, domineering, selfish, jealous of the man's success. Then follows his disillusionment, when the pheasant shows him that the day has dawned without his crow. And his reply is that his destiny is surer than the day.

When the curtain rose on the first act, showing the barnyard with its hens and ducks, the little chickens just out of their shells, the guinea pacing his cage, the great black cat asleep in the sun and the dog chained in his kennel, there was a stir of applause. The effect of "Chantecler" as he leaped on the garden wall with his bridesent tall and his majestic comb, was tremendous.

Miss Adams, in delivering Rostrand's prologue, appeared before the footlights in full evening dress for the first time in her career.

Among the distinguished people who attended were M. Le Feuve Pontalis, first secretary of the French embassy, sent expressly by the French government out of courtesy to Miss Adams.

GERTRUDE ELLIOTT COMING TO LYCEUM.

Gertrude Elliott in "The Dawn of A Tomorrow," will be the attraction at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday. Miss Elliott has made the largest kind of a hit in the role of the London waif. Her supporting company under the management of Liebler & Co., is said to be a remarkable one.

The play has the benefit of the fine acting of Fuller Mellish in the part of the rich man who finds a new hope and a new life in the slums. The several types who come out of the wonderfully realistic fog in the first act are full of color. The big hulk of a thief and his bruised and beaten wife are played with a rare sense of character by Arthur Barry and Julia Blanc. George Farren is the player of the doctor who prefers psychology to pills. Bennet Klipack acts the young thief, and Scott Gattl is the murder suspect. Angela Ogden is the actress of the country girl who found the city a poor place for trusting virtue. Sydney Booth plays young Holt.

The play is said to be wonderfully staged and its coming may be classed as one of the important happenings of the year in a social sense, as well as theatrical.

CIRCUS TROUPE AT THE ORPHEUM

The Six Flying Banvards, who are appearing at the Orpheum this week, are probably better known in the circus world than they are in vaudeville, although every year they spend the winter months touring the principal vaudeville circuits. The Banvards were with the Ringling show for two season, and then went abroad, appearing in the principal German cities. They also appeared in the great London Hippodrome, and have been seen at all the big state fairs and summer amusement parks in this country.

Miss Maude Banvard, whose work is one of the features of the act, is only 19 years of age. Her father and brother are also appearing in the act, and the other three members of the troupe are her cousins.

MUSICAL COMEDY ACT AT THE EMPRESS.

The musical comedy act presented by De Haven and Sidney at the Empress this week, is scoring a genuine hit. It is a pretentious act for vaudeville, for almost as much scenery and as many costumes have to be carried for a twenty-five minute act as for a musical comedy.

De Haven and Sidney not only succeed in leaving a good impression in this short time, but make a decided hit with their Matinee Girls.

The act is full of clever ideas and carries its own scenery. The railroad station scene is an exact reproduction of the entrance to the main sheds of the magnificent three million dollar depot which the Pennsylvania railroad has recently erected in New York city.

Another very beautiful scene is the winter scene which is cleverly produced and includes a hill, down which the boys and girls are seen coasting. This act is one of the biggest things ever presented in vaudeville in this city and carries out the constant aim of the Sullivan and Considine circuit, to present the highest class of vaudeville at popular prices.

PHOTOPLAY AT THE ODEUM AND LYRIC.

Down at the Odeum and Lyric theaters this week the new bills of photoplay are pleasing large audiences daily.

At the Odeum, "His Trust," a dramatic film; "The Count and the Cowboys," a comedy," and "Rival Dramatists," a comedy, are the films shown. Miss Maddox is singing "Gliding on the Snow."

At the Lyric the program consis s of: "The Old Water Jar," a dramatic film; "The Sophomore's Romance," a comedy film, and "Doctor Cupid," a comedy picture. I. S. Mistachkin is singing "Moonlight Dear."

"The Old Water Jar" at the Lyric teaches a strong moral lesson, telling the dramatic story of an old Indian's reform. "Dr. Cupid" is a very amusing comedy film, telling of the trick played by a young lover to overcome the prejudices of his prospective father-in-law. Needless to say, Cupid triumphs.

JEWELRY CLERK UNDER ARREST

Claimed to Have Taken Goods Valued at $132 From Store.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

The weather took on a soft aspect yesterday and last night was almost balmy. Today is another beautiful day, with the sun shining out of a cloudless sky and the mercury flirting with the freezing mark. It is not for long, however. The fair weather will continue, but the prophet on the hill top says another cold wave is brewing in the Northwest and will sweep down on Duluth with zero temperatures tonight.

Beautiful weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:42 and it will set at 4:58 this evening giving nine hours and sixteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"An increase in pressure over Saskatchewan and Alberta is attended by decidedly colder weather. In Alberta the temperature has fallen 30 deg. to 40 deg. during the last twenty-four hours. The easterly movement of this condition will cause a 10 deg. to 20 deg. drop in temperature in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight. This will be followed by a rise in temperature Wednesday afternoon as a shift to easterly wind is quite probable by that time. During the last twenty-four hours snow or rain fell over the plateau region, California and Gulf states."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Upper Michigan—Fair and colder tonight; Wednesday fair.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler in northeast portion Wednesday.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler in northeast portion tonight.

Iowa—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; moderate temperature.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; colder in northwest portion tonight.

South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight.

Montana—Unsettled with snow or rain in West portion tonight and Wednesday; colder in northeast portion.

Shippers' Forecast—Protect thirty-six hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in North Dakota, Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin.

SEARCHING FOR MURDERER HERE

Hayward Sheriff Believes Fugitive From Justice Is in Duluth.

Believing that the murderer of James Elwell, whose mutilated body was found near Hayward Saturday, is in Duluth, Sheriff Clarke of Sawyer county reached the Head of the Lakes late yesterday and immediately instituted a search for him. He was accompanied by a man named Anderson, who is said to be able to identify the suspected murderer.

It is claimed that the latter is an ex-convict, who was sent to the penitentiary from Superior for robbery about three years ago. The local police arrested a suspect yesterday, but he was immediately released as he did not fit the description sent out from Hayward.

ALGOT JOHNSON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF DULUTH OFFICER

the time of his trial a few days ago.

Although nearly a score of jurymen were examined this morning, but two were drawn. Some had the matter settled in their minds and nearly all had satisfied themselves as to what the punishment should be. Nearly all of them had discussed the case and some of them were against bringing in a verdict of first degree murder against one so young. In almost every instance there was something about each man that either the state or the defense objected to. In each case the man was excused.

In court Algot is bright and alert. He talked to his attorney about the case and his mother entered into the discusion. As in the case of the Melodrowski boy, the public is excluded from the courtroom. The jurymen are examined one at a time and only the juryman being examined is allowed in the room.

It is not known just what the defense will be, but it is supposed that an attempt will be made to show that there was no premeditation and that Algot, during the few minutes taken to escape from the officer, did not draw his gun. It was supposed that Algot drew his revolver with which to frighten the conductor, but he denied this recently to a reporter.

Was Badly Frightened.

It is also said that Algot had made up his mbind to give himself up on the robbery charge. He acted on the impulse of the moment, however, and ran with Melodrowski after the latter had killed the policeman. He says now that he was so frightened that he did not know what else to do.

These bits of information were gathered through a talk with Johnson. He talked freely about the whole matter and stated that if he had had but a moment to think matters over that he never would have run with Melodrowski. He says that he ran through fear and because he was confused more than anything else.

He states that there was no arrangement between himself and Melodrowski as to a plan for escape. He says that he was as much surprised as anyone when Melodrowski arose quickly to his feet, fired the shots and started for the door of the car.

It is not expected that a jury can be secured before tomorrow morning.

$70,000 HAS BEEN SPENT

Not One Cent in Cash Given By Fire Relief Committee.

Work on Border Will Be Completed March 1, Says Maj. Eva.

"About $70,000 has been disbursed by the relief committee since the fire at Baudette and Spooner," said Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club, today. Maj. Eva returned today from Baudette, where he attended to some business relating to the work of the relief committee.

"Not 1 cent in cash has been given out by the Red Cross," he added. "The only cash that has been given to the people there was that distributed by the people of Chisholm, and the Red Cross has an exact accounting of whatever was given out by them.

"There are about 100 houses built in each of the cities devastated by the fire besides the many which were built without the aid of the Red Cross. Both towns are prospering now. Teams enliven the streets all through the day, many of the people who have been put on homesteads coming in with loads of pulpwood. They were supplied with axes, provisions and clothing, besides shelter, and have gone to work with a will that speaks well for the future of the district.

"It is probable that the committee's work will be discontinued about March 1. After that there will be no need to use our relief fund. We have two hospital patients in Duluth and one in Minneapolis. All the others who were injured have recovered."

DEMURRERS TO BE HEARD IN DULUTH

Judge Morris May Sit On Alleged Indian Fraud Cases.

St. Paul, Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States District Attorney Houpt announced this morning that Judge M. C. Birch, special assistant to the attorney general, the Minneapolis representative of the defendants in the alleged White Earth Indian land frauds and Mr. Houpt have agreed to hold the hearing on the demurrers in the suits, if convenient to the judge, on Feb. 6. Duluth was chosen as the place. Mr. Houpt wrote last night to Judge Page Morris of Duluth, asking him if the time and place would be convenient.

Mr. Houpt said that the legal points raised in the demurrers filed are similar, and that no one case has been singled out for argument. A letter is expected from Judge Morris this afternoon saying whether the tentative arrangements are convenient.

CLOTHING IS GREATLY NEEDED

The Associated Charities Has Many Demands From Duluth's Poor Families.

The Associated Charities has many applications from persons desiring blankets and clothing of all kinds and shoes for men, women and children who are sorely in need of such articles and are unable to buy them.

Anyone having such articles in reasonably good condition and wishing to have them go to families where they are greatly needed, may send them to the Associated Charities' office, 306 courthouse, if they are not already in the habit of sending them to some other society.

Such gifts will be doubly appreciated if they are sent, as the Association has no messenger to send for them.

In many cases children either are not able to go to school for lack of proper clothing or else suffer from exposure i fthey do go. This also applies in not a few instances to the breadwinners of the family, who must go out every day to support the others.

Postoffice Appropriation Bill Carries Increased Pay for Them.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The postoffice appropriation bill was passed by the house today. The pay of carriers on the rural free delivery routes is to be increased $100 each per year by an amendment added just before the final vote on the measure was taken. An effort to substitute stamps for the franking privilege now in vogue was ruled out.

The expressions of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed, the recently successful flesh forming product, known as three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, is related by a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary layman to learn the heart throbs of distress which seems to effect so many young people who are abnormally thin. Also to know that the weight can be so readily increased by the use, regularly for several months, of this peculiarly named preparation, now obtainable of the best physicians and apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.

"ARROGANT ALIEN MARITIME TRUSTS"

Why Foreign Steamship Companies Are Characterized in Resolutions.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Emphatic resolutions charging gross discrimination on the part of foreign steamship companies against American manufacturers and urging congress to take vigorous measures to destroy "the arrogant, alien maritime trusts," were unanimously adopted today by the National Merchant Marine congress.

The convention also petitioned congress for the creation of "an independent steamship service of American ships, built for the naval reserve and to be honestly and ably managed in American interests."

In furtherance of the merchant marine movement the convention decided to circulate petitions among the labor unions and trade organizations of the country asking them to urge congress to immediate action on behalf of the American shipping interests so as to make possible increased manufactures at home.

James L. Ewell, secretary of the convention, spoke on the benefits that a merchant marine would have upon the export trade of the country.

FARGO REVIVAL STIRRING CITY

Religious Awakening in North Dakota Metropolis Is Breaking Records.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The revival spirit has captured Fargo and the city has awakened to a religious revival, the like of which has not been experienced in years.

Sunday night's wonderful meetings stamped this fact indelibly upon the minds of every person who attended. Those versed in evangelistic matters state that there is every evidence at hand of a moral and spiritual awakening that will go on and on til the city is shaken by its force.

At the First Presbyterian church the audience early filled the main auditorium and long before the service began the lecture room and the galleries were filled to overflowing. Hurry calls were sent out for chairs and the aisles and every available spot of space in the house was used and still they came in throngs. Many were unable to get even standing room in the house and went away before the services were under way.

Chorus of Forty Voices.

A great chorus of forty voices led the singing, and after the song service Rev. Mr. Sewery of the Broadway Baptist church preached a powerful sermon to an audience that hung on every word that fell from his lips. At least 1,000 people were present. The same story was the case at the First Baptist church, where nearly as many were present, but none were allowed to stand in that church, so many were turned away. The enthusiasm created by Rev. Mr. Sapp's sermon and the splendid music will be long remembered.

Last night the meetings were continued and for one night only the scene was shifted to the First Baptist church, where the services were held on account of a promise made some time ago to the Philharmonic society that they could have the First Presbyterian church on that evening for their annual recital.

CHANGES IN ROCK ISLAND

Shaking Up in Executive and Legal Departments Is Announced.

New York, Jan. 24.—Important changes are under way in the readjustment in the staff of the Rock Island railway system. George T. Boggs, it was announced today, has resigned as vice president, secretary and treasurer of the Rock Island company and as vice president, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company to take effect on or about Feb. 1.

Mr. Boggs will be succeeded as secretary and treasurer of the Rock Island company by J. J. Quinlan, now assistant secretary and treasurer of the company. The legal department will be transferred to Chicago and only the offices of transfer agent and the Eastern attorney will be maintained here.

H. M. Sloan, vice president of the railway and assistant to the chairman of the executive committee who has had his office in New York will go to Chicago on Feb. 1 as assistant to the president. Robert Walker, president of the Rock Island company and head of the legal department in New York also will go to Chicago and will probably have charge of the legal department.

It is understood that this is part of a plan for cutting down the expenses of maintenance.

GRAND ISLAND DEER ARE BEING REDUCED.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The deer in the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company's great game preserve on Grand Island, Lake Superior, have so largely increased in number that it has been deemed wise and expedient to reduce the size of the herd. For this reason hunting was permitted last fall and at the present time deer are being shipped to public parks in various parts of the United States. The herd numbers many hundreds. Orders have recently been received for fifty deer for shipment to points in New England, and of these the game keepers already have rounded up about forty.

REVOLUTION IS GROWING

Advices From Mexico Show That Uprising Is Increasing.

Victory of the Insurgents at Ojinago Is Confirmed.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Advices reaching the revolutionary representatives here are to the effect that the uprising in Mexico is growing rapidly in magnitude. A telegram received today from the chief of staff of Gen. Madera dated from headquarters in the field, confirms the news dispatches of the brisk fighting near Ojinaga yesterday. The telegram reads:

"Complete victory for the insurgents led by Col. Ortega near Ojinaga. Defeated federals and killed 150 out of 200. Another victory near Casas Grande obtained by Casillas with 300 insurgents against federal troops led by Col. Rabago. Casas Grande and railroads are at mercy of insurgents. Gen. Navarro is completely cut off and there is no news from him. Insurgents hold strong position between Navarro and Chihuahua. Dorango has joined Chihuahua and Sonora against Diaz. Near Torreon insurgents have 500 well armed men, they recently engaged federals, killing one of their leaders, a son of Col. Gonzales."

The dispatch closes with the statement that the insurgency movement has gained vastly within the past month.

The fact that the federal forces of Mexico suffered heavily in engagements with revolutionists near Galena, and that they are still calling for reinforcements, was reported to the state department today in a telegram from the American consul at Ciudad Juarez. The government troops, numbering 500, were attacked Jan. 20 by 600 insurgents, the battle lasting two days. News of the actual situation, the consul adds is being strictly censored and great anxiety prevails in the interior. The consul said he was reporting the details of the conditions by mail.

The tellers reported the result of the vote today as follows:

Seating the delegates, 964; against, 1,404.

Those opposed to President Lewis are claiming he is trying to withhold the announcement of the vote for president because he has been defeated by John H. White of Oskaloosa, Iowa. Lewis, however, claims he has been re-elected.

WHERE WILL IT STOP?

There is a basis for some pretty hard thinking among certain people, in the news brought by a Washington dispatch printed in The Herald last night about the organization of the Republican Progressive league. Where will this step end? Does it mean a new party, such as has been pretty freely predicted during the last twelve months? Or does it mean reformation of the old Republican party? Is it to be the means of a reorganization that will wipe out the old time Democratic opposition, or is it to prove a phalanx in national politics that shall serve as a center around which men of similar views from all factions can gather?

Of course efforts will be made to discredit the new league. It will be called such names as "the Soreheads' club" and the "Demagogues' Hope," by those who are not to be torn from their allegiance to the god of existing lines of partisanship. But calling names is nothing but one way of making a noise, and while the thunder of epithets is rolling around the political skies and awaking echoes in a few spots, the lightning will be shattering the strongholds that special privilege has built up with the aid of those who are too blind or too self-seeking to see or care for the wrong they were doing to the interests of the people.

Possibilities of a new party growing out of the movement are shown in the following sentence taken from the league's "declaration of principles:"

"It stands ready, whenever acceptable, to aid Democratic as well as Republican legislators."

Will a man intent on accomplishing the best thing possible for his state refuse aid, whatever its source? No. Then we may expect to see this new organization carrying on its fight for progressive legislation, not only where the old line Republicans are opposing the march of advancement, but wherever there may be Democrats in need of help in the same cause. This means an alliance between the progressive forces in each party, and such an alliance might easily prove to be the first step in an organization which will draw men entirely out of both camps, and unite them on a common basis and for common principles.

Perhaps it does not necessarily follow that a new party must be formed on that nucleus, but the movement is in line with the manner of growth of political parties in the past, and with the newer issues of today it may easily be that the principle will apply once more. The name is insignificant. If there is enough strength left in the two old parties to maintain their separate organizations, and to oppose the work of the league, a new name of some kind will be forthcoming, and in that case another party is inevitable. If either of the old parties accepts the principles of the league as its own, it must undergo a thorough revision of its plans, to meet the demands of these new leaders.

Whether the outcome be the rise of a new political organization or the regeneration of an old one, the formation of the league is an important step in political history, and as such it commands attention from every citizen.

FAVORED OF THE GODS.

In the old times, when a city prospered wonderfully or when one was found in which good things of any description abounded more than in most places, the people declared that city to be "favored of the gods." If the idea had been designed for that purpose it could not have been made to fit more closely to the Zenith City of the Unsalted Sea.

Duluth's summer climate is becoming widely known for its lack of the intense heat that makes life all but intolerable in other places, even within our own state. Duluth has commercial advantages, both through her proximity to the Great Lakes and because of the vast territory lying inland from her borders, whose equal is seldom seen. Duluth is located in a place that gives her a peculiar relation to the huge iron mines, so that their output passes through her trade channels before reaching the rest of the world, and with the opening of the new steel plant she will add another gigantic feature to her commercial life. And Duluth, with her ready access to one of the world's greatest waterways, offers opportunities and attractions to tourists and to her own citizens in the way of summer pleasures, that few other cities can equal and none, perhaps, can surpass.

But when the winter comes and closes the harbor and the river and the lake with bars and locks of ice, when the verdure that softened the rough outlines of the hills is lying faded and brown under the snow or droops beneath the weight of white that cannot rob the pines and firs of their summer robes, Duluth is no less favored. Then she changes the welcome breezes of summer for the health-giving rigors of the northern winter, and her commerce, instead of being carried in impressive hulls, is taken on tortuous ways by the monsters that follow ways of steel instead of water, and the closed cars that brought wheat for millions to be sent out from the city give place to flat-cars that bring in timber from the big forests to supply thousands upon thousands with material for building homes.

Then the boating, the fishing, the pleasure rides and excursions which are among the glories of the summer in Duluth are halted by the ice on lake and river, and their place is taken by activities unknown to the more insipid climates farther south. It is the season of winter sports and unless one has lived among them one can know nothing of the joy and health they bring.

Skating and skate-sailing and ice-boating on the river and the lake; skiing and snow-shoeing on the hills and through the woods; coasting—not the artificial, hampered kind that is known in places were men erect rough stands of wood with ungainly frame supports and rigidly smooth sloping surfaces, but glorious dashes down hills formed by nature's own hand, with plenty of snow and no bare spots, and where, if the coaster takes a tumble, he finds himself in a soft mass of snow instead of rolling over frozen ground and rough chips; curling for those who love the stane and broom, and sleighing, in cutters or big bobs. These are some of the sports that are familiar features of Duluth's winters, and that are unknown in the more southern places.

Truly Duluth is favored of the gods.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

With the Minnesota legislature considering a measure for the compensation of workmen who are injured, it is of interest to note the discussion of the constitutional phase of the question being carried on in other states. The same question has been raised in Minnesota, and the claim made that compulsory compensation cannot be provided for on account of the constitutional declaration that no man shall be made to surrender property without due process of law. Compulsory payment to injured workmen, it is claimed, would violate that provision, since the proposed law would be intended to operate without necessitating recourse to a suit for damages by the party injured.

In connection with this is raised the court-made principle of negligence and the provisions of the fellow-servant rule. The Indianapolis News, discussing the matter, says:

> It is very doubtful—at least it seems so to us—whether there can be a compulsory compensation act. As to the other principle, namely, whether an employer not at fault can be compelled to pay damages, we are not so sure. For the purpose of such legislation is to protect the workman, not against accidents due to the fault of the employer, but against those due to the hazardous nature of the employment. If the employer can be made to pay damages for an accident due to the negligence of the man suffering from it, it seems to us that the principle is established—namely, that the insurance is against hazard. • • • Certain employments are known to be peculiarly dangerous. • • • We do not see how lack of fault on the part of the employer can be a defense, for the hazard is still there.

Somebody must do this hazardous work, for its accomplishment is necessary to industry. But the rewards of the industry go to the employer, and under these circumstances there is justice in the principle that the man who helps him to these rewards should receive compensation if he is made to suffer through such employment.

There is yet another point involved, which should make the plan acceptable to employers. The process of law is slow, and under the present system it often is the case that the victim of the injury gets but a small part of the damages awarded. Lawyers take his case on the contingent basis—the only basis, indeed, on which he can hire legal help—and if the case is taken before two or three courts in the course of appeals, the legal fees and other expenses of trial quickly eat up the major part of the amount. Knowing that the size of his fee depends on the amount gained from the defendant, the lawyer not unnaturally makes the demand for damages as large as possible. This means that the employer is to be called on to pay not only for the injury to the employe, but also a nice sum to the attorneys on both sides, and it is hard to see why, under such circumstances, an act for compensation without a legal battle and the expense it involves would not be in the interests of employers.

MENTAL SWINE.

There is a class of human beings who have the most perverted sense of humor that can be imagined. They revel in the things that decent people shun and abhor. They take the same delight in the lewd and filthy story that the scavenging bird or animal does in an unsavory mess of carrion. But there is this difference—the bird and animal are so constructed physically that they get the kind of nourishment they need out of the food no other creature will touch, whereas the man who feeds his mind on filth only degrades his mental and moral power by every such indulgence.

There is another difference. The scavenging bird and animal will fight to keep others of its kind from sharing in the mess of carrion it has discovered, but the human swine who finds what, to his rotten mentality, seems a choice bit of filth, rushes off to pass it on to somebody else. It makes no difference to him whether the one he has chosen to share it with him is of the same degraded class as himself. He will inflict the putrid stuff on the most decent, clean-minded person he encounters, and will chuckle with delight as he passes it on.

There are state and city laws to govern such cases, and the officials on whom devolves the task of enforcing them do their best, but it is a difficult task. It is so easy to slip a piece of writing or printing into the pocket and keep it hidden from the eye of the law. The federal government, too, has provided strict rules against the passage of such matter through the mails, but who can tell the contents of a sealed envelope?

If the human swine who take delight in the circulation of the lewd and filthy would confine their traffic to those of their own stamp, perhaps the case would not be so bad. They would accumulate the rotten mess in their own minds and ultimately, from excess of indulgence in such putridity, carry their accumulations with them to the grave, or at the worst leave it to others like themselves, and the class finally would die out.

But they are not so merciful. They pass it on indiscriminately, and it gets into the hands of those who are too young to recognize it as the excrescence of the vilest part of the lowest order of human beings, and the cult gets new recruits from every generation.

There are enough who are so decent as to despise and abhor this particular kind of filth, to put an effective check on its circulation, if they were only brave and determined enough to use their power. If the decent-minded citizen would make it a point to protest against the outrage to his own mind when such matter is presented to it, and to turn the offender over to the proper authorities when the action is done in a form that is open to local, state or national action, he would be doing a service to all mankind and would help materially to put a stop to the accursed work of these mental swine.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Multiplicity of Lorimers.

Eveleth Star: It has come to be rather a dull day when somebody isn't investigating a Lorimer case somewhere.

That's what is so infinitely deplorable about it.

Clapp For President.

Cass Lake Times: Senator Clapp for president in 1912.—Wouldn't the American eagle and the Minnesota black eagle make a husky pair to draw to!

And wouldn't it be a scream!

When They Pass the Hat.

Princeton Union: That was a mean trick some villain played on the pastor of a Philadelphia church who hung up a sign, "Do not cough." The miscreant added the word "up" to the legend.

The admonition as amended probably was more effective than it was necessary.

It's Outrageous Insubordination.

Gilbert Herald: In the year 1910 the American hen laid seventeen dozen of eggs for every man, woman and child in the country. We have reason for believing that at least several dozens of eggs are still in the cold storage.

Then there are eggs which naturally incur the suspicion of the public—eggs which obviously did not require transportation facilities to get out of cold storage. We can't readily sympathize with the careless cold storage man, but that kind of egg ought to stay at home.

Gone With the Skirts.

Anoka Herald: The polka, hoop skirts and honesty in politics went out of style many years ago.

The polka doesn't hold any charms for us, but we could suffer the sight of the hoop-skirts if we could at that cost get the third item on the list.

Question of Smoking Up.

Mesaba Ore: Pierp Morgan spent $5,000 for 5,000 cigars for Christmas remembrances for his friends. We advised him early that we'd take "peerless" for ours, as dollar cigars are a trifle high-reaching for this class of financial endeavor.

Did you get it?

Attacking That Deficit.

Winona Independent: Once in awhile Postmaster General Hitchcock gets a good idea. His latest proposition is that all officers of the United States, and other persons authorized to transmit mail matter free, shall be provided with official stamps. By this method an accounting of the free postage can be arrived at and information by which it may be curtailed can also be obtained.

It might be a good plan, too, to check up the number of these stamps used during periods when mails are being weighed for the purpose of determining how much is due the railroads for carrying the mails.

Carnation for McKinley.

Faribault Journal: If ever a man's memory is worthy of remembrance by a carnation, it is that of William McKinley on the 29th of this month.

It certainly is one of the most pleasing bits of sentiment observable in this country and should not be forgotten.

"If."

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs, and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting, too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream, and not make dreams your master,
If you can think, and not make thoughts your aim,
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and built 'em up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings,
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginning,
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you,
Except the Will which says to them "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings, nor lose the common touch;
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a Man, my son!

—Rudyard Kipling.

German Prince's Walking Tours.

Pall Mall Gazette: The German crown prince's first experience as a traveler were somewhat different from those which he is now enjoying in the East. From his fourteenth to his eighteenth year his summer holidays were always spent in walking tours through Germany. These he accomplished in the true "wanderbursche" style, with a knapsack on his back and sleeping at roadside inns. At first he was accompanied only by his military governor, Col. von Falkenheyn, but latterly two of his brothers joined him. The strictest incognito was always preserved, the kaiser being of the opinion that his sons, traveling on foot and with no indication of their rank, would obtain a knowledge of the people which they could never acquire in any other way.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

TWO HARBORS AND THE GROSS EARNINGS LAW.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Everyone who is familiar with the tax problem can sympathize with the city of Two Harbors, which now faces a tax of over 62 mills. Duluth thinks 40 mills is high, but that is over one-third less than the tax at Two Harbors.

What is the reason for this unfair condition? Why should real estate values go down, while taxes go up? The writer believes no other town in Minnesota can show a similar condition, and I therefore feel exceedingly sorry for the property owners of Two Harbors, because they have no redress. In my mind, it is because the Duluth & Iron Range railroad is the only firm that employs labor in that city, and that road pays its tax to the state on the gross earnings basis. If this is not an injustice, then what is injustice?

It is no wonder that the populace of that poor town has turned Socialistic. Voting is the only recreation men have of which they are immune, in which they can do as they please and not lose their jobs. So at last November's election they turned every tradition upside down. This was not done as a grudge against the men defeated, but more as a rebuke to the powers that always have dictated the way they wanted things to be done.

The boys up there have just awakened, and have only started; they should keep it up. They should pay their taxes, but my advice to them is to sell their property as quickly as they can. Yours truly,

X. Y. Z.

THE "29" HAND IN A CRIBBAGE GAME.

To the Editor of the Herald—Will you kindly state in your "Open Court" column just what cards the possible "29 hand" consists of, that was mentioned in the item in your paper recently, regarding the continuous cribbage game.

Yours truly,
R. J. WEBB.

The Socialist Vote.

St. Joseph News-Press: The New York Sun has taken the trouble to figure up the Socialist vote last year and two years before with the object of revealing the increase. The totals show that in 1908 there were 417,406 votes and in 1910 there were 542,677, an increase of 125,271.

Ohio leads in the Socialist column, with 60,637 votes, nearly double the number cast in 1908. Then comes Pennsylvania with 53,053, a gain of nearly 20,000. New York polled 48,529, an increase of about 10,000. Illinois is ahead of New York with 49,687, a gain of 15,000. Wisconsin, where Milwaukee elected a Socialist mayor and a Socialist congressman, the total vote reached 39,547, a gain of 11,000. A surprisingly large number of Socialist votes were polled in Oklahoma—24,707, as against 21,729 in 1908. The vote nearly doubled in Nebraska, where the total reached 6,268. Kansas shows a gain of 2,964 with a total of 15,384; Missouri shows a gain of 3,283, with a total of 18,964, and Iowa shows 9,700 votes as against 8,937 in 1908.

In thirteen states there was a decrease—this happened in Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. The Sun writer shows that in twenty-nine Congressional districts carried by the Democrats, the Socialist vote was large enough to have changed the result if it had been added to the vote of the Republican candidate, who was defeated. Had the Republicans carried these twenty-nine districts they would have reduced the Democratic majority to five. It is quite evident from these figures that there is no danger that Socialism is going to sweep the country—not for a while, anyway.

An Alleged True Story.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Now this is a true story:

Bill is known everywhere as a "good fellow." He has his faults, but his heart is in the right place—that's what everybody says. Nobody ever came to him for help and got turned down. He had a family; none of our crowd had ever seen his family, but we knew he must be good to them, even though he never did appear to go home.

One evening five or six good fellows were sitting in the back room of a downtown saloon, and Bill was telling a story. A woman entered. She had a dark shawl over her head and we couldn't see her face, but she came directly over to our table. "Gentlemen," she said, "Christmas is coming, and I have nothing for the little ones. Can you help?"

Of course, it was Bill who responded first. He jumped up and plunged his hand into his pocket. We could hear the rustle of bills, and we knew that something more than mere silver had found its way into the trembling hand. Bill was blushing when he came back to us. We were shamed into offering something, but he would have none of it. He seemed confused—a little ashamed of his charity—but he would not let us help. And it was just like Bill to change the subject and go right on with his story.

And the woman? Oh, that was Bill's wife. We found out later that that was about the only way she could ever get any money out of him.

The "Barefooted Gazette."

London Chronicle: The carrying of firearms by burglars has been deprecated in Bostatska Gazeta, which apparently is the only newspaper to represent the views of the thieving fraternity. The first number of the Barefooted Gazette made its appearance in Moscow on July 1, 1908. At first it was regarded as a comic weekly, and the authorities paid no attention to it; but they soon discovered that it was the official organ of Russian thieves. Every week accounts of the latest burglaries and thefts were given, followed by comments in which mistakes that led to discovery and capture were criticised, and various points of the technique of theiving were discussed. The editor often pointed out the folly of carrying revolvers when pursuing the peaceful profession of burglary, and advised his readers to avoid bloodshed whenever possible. For some time the police were baffled in their attempts to find the publisher of this remarkable journal, but at length they succeeded, and the Gazette ceased to appear.

New Fields of Pitchblende.

Chicago Tribune: As long as the present process of extracting radium from pitchblende is so enormously expensive it avails little that new pitchblende fields have been found in the south seas. However, it is of scientific interest if not of commercial advantage. Certainly the radium manufacturers are not using all the pitchblende available at the present time.

Prof. Douglas Mawson, an Australian scientist who accompanied Shackleton on his polar dash, made the discovery at Olary, 257 miles north of Adelaide, in the form of a surface film found in the cracks of the rocks. Near the surface the film is discolored and tinted to various shades of yellow on account of the presence of carnotite. All the pitchblende from which radium has been manufactured up to a recent date came from the uranium mines in Bohemia, and the bulk of it still is mined in and about Bohemia, though small deposits have been found and partially developed in Colorado.

"The number of guides killed every year grows greater and greater."

Lippincott's: "I shouldn't mind having my contributions paid for on publication, were it not—"

"What?"

"That my meals have to be paid for on acceptance."

Chicago Tribune: "Clarence, you don't realize what it is to have all your career before you. I'd give forty years of my life to have your chances."

"Of course, you would, Uncle Benjamin. You'd be glad to give forty years of your life to anybody that would take 'em."

Chicago Tribune: "You exposed yourself needlessly, Marie," said Mr. Dorkins, severely. "Here you are threatened with a bad cold and you are in no condition to meet it."

"That's all you know about it, John," wheezed Mrs. Dorkins. "I've got ninety-eight handkerchiefs."

Detroit Free Press: "How is your daughter getting along with her vocal lessons?"

"Splendidly, splendidly. She's got so now that she can say 'I can't sing without my music,' just beautifully."

Birmingham Age-Herald: "He says he could quit drinking if he wanted to."

"I believe he could."

"Why are you so positive?"

"He stayed at a summer resort six weeks once without mailing a single souvenir postcard."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Booker is awfully narrow, isn't he?"

"Narrow isn't the name for it. Say, he asked me yesterday if I believed Santa Claus belonged to any church."

Washington Herald: "These stocks of yours are worthless."

"I don't care," said the woman. "The broker is very accommodating. He has exchanged them four times."

Harper's Weekly: "Did Jones finally get a separation from his wife?" asked Milligan.

"Yes," said Willoughby.

"Reno?" asked Milligan.

"No," said Willoughby; "he bought her a ticket for Europe, and she went."

New York Telegram: "What do you think is the height of meanness?"

"To borrow a newspaper man's revolver to commit suicide and furnish a story, and then pawn the weapon."

Toledo Blade: "I like her, but she's always fishing for compliments."

"Beware, my boy—she's untrustworthy, all anglers lie about what they catch."

Washington Star: "Does tobacco make a man nervous?"

"It is likely to," replied the physician. "If his wife objects to his smoking."

Chicago Tribune: Sinnicus—Borus, that last book of yours is pretty hot stuff.

Borus (struggling author)—It ought to be; every critic in the country has roasted it!

Baltimore American: Aviator—I am afraid we are in for a hard trip. I think I will revise the program.

Slobbs—I think not. I just saw the weather man going down the street with an umbrella.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: People inside of lunatic asylums should be able to write grand love letters.

Sentiment has most to do with a woman's happiness with a man's comfort.

Music has charms when it isn't being played by people who ought not to but always want to.

A Hint to Will Makers.

Philadelphia Journal: Mrs. Cyrus Brouse of Northumberland, Dauphin county, divided a plot of ground 240 feet square among her four sons. The plot was divided into four equal parts and the location of each designated on slips of paper to which strings were attached. The sons are Reuben and Frank of Northumberland and Thomas and Earl of Sunbury, and each drew a slip designating his share. All are satisfied, and two contemplate building on their properties in the spring.

To Use Schools for Election Purposes.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The use of school houses for election purposes and politcal meetings was urged by E. J. Ward, secretary of the Association for Public Play and Social Education, at the meeting of the council's speical committee appointed to investigate the plan.

Mr. Ward said that the city would save over $13,000 in years when two elections are held by using the lower floor of school houses for voting purposes, instead of the booths which must be erected each year.

ROMANCE OF THE GREAT LAKES

Detroit Journal: Says "Nicholas Nickleby":

"Charity must have its romance, as the novelist or playwright must have his."

That is curiously applicable to a thrilling drama—even a melodrama—that reached its heroic culmination shortly after midnight far out among the ice-hummocks of Lake Huron. Two fishermen of Port Sanilac, brothers, whose name and identity and worth to society are entirely negligible, were caught in the dirft of the ice-floes of the wintry lake and, in their fragile boat, carried seven miles away from shore. There, fast in the ice, with no food, with no fuel for a fire, they were marooned for fifty hours.

Meanwhile on shore the alarm had been raised. Among people who together fight the elements neither charity nor heroism is ever half-hearted. Business in the village of Lexington on the lake-shore has been suspended two days, because through glasses two black specks far out on the white surface were visible. One man was seen walking to and fro on the ice-floe. The other was lying down. On shore they built great bonfires and tended them all night, that the hope-giving rays might penetrate the winter darkness. Fishermen and lake-sailors worked all night, covering a fishing boat with sheet iron to withstand the terrific ice pressure. Two boats were stove in and forced to turn back.

All one night twelve of Uncle Sam's life savers worked, lugging their surf-boat across country, thirty miles from Harbor Beach, on a sled. The lighthouse was closed for the season, but the keeper manned it again and all night, by hand, turned the great reflector to aid the rescuers and cheer the marooned men.

At midnight a tug succeeded in smashing through the last ice-field and reached the side of the perishing fishermen on their ice-floe. They are back in Port Huron by this time and the town of Lexington, vastly relieved and supremely happy, has gone home "to get some sleep."

There is a good deal of genuine charity in the world, after all. And for the romance, which seems necessary to evoke real heroism, charity seems to be so much the better. It affords a stimulating, warming, tingling sensation to contemplate the shores lined with people and the heroic struggle to save these two fishermen.

"Old Shady" After Living on Coast Returns to South Dakota.

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 24.—W. V. Lucas of Santa Cruz, Cal., has filed in the United States land office at Aberdeen a soldier's declaratory statement on a homestead near Lantry, on the Cheyenne River reservation, and, will, it is presumed, take up his home on the claim. Mr. Lucas in the 90's represented South Dakota in congress for one term. He was a shrewd politician in the days of the Populistic tidal wave in the Northwest, and was familiarly known to South Dakotans as "Old Shady." Now, after several years' residence in the coast state, he is coming back to his old state to live. "Old Shady" is nearly 76 years of age, but evidently possesses still the unconquerable determination which made his political career successful.

Baptized at Karlstad.

Karlstad, Minn., Jan. 24.—Fourteen young men and women who have been converted to the doctrinal faith of the Baptist church at the recent revivals here, were baptized Sunday at the local Swedish Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. Ekstrom, the residing pastor, assisted by Rev. C. J. Hill of McIntosh.

PAINFUL TROUBLE WITH FINGER NAILS

Sometimes Three Fingers Without Nails at One Time. Began 25 Years Ago. No Permanent Cure. Began to Use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In a Short Time Nails Were Well. No Further Trouble.

"I have suffered from the same trouble [painful finger nails] at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying home remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but it was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail. Sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail. I had sometimes as many as three fingers in this state at one time.

"Perhaps ten years later, I began again to suffer from the same trouble. Again I tried various remedies, among them a prescription from a doctor of a friend of mine, who had suffered from a like trouble. This seemed to help somewhat for a time, but it was not a permanent cure, next tried a prescription from my own doctor, but this was so irritating to the sensitive, diseased skin that I could not use it. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had used the Cuticura Ointment previously on my children's scalps with good effect. I did not use the Soap exclusively, but I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment into the base of the nail every night thoroughly, and as often beside as I could. I had not used it but a few weeks before my nails were better, and in a short time they were apparently well. There was no more suppuration, nor inflammation, the nails grew out clean again. One box of Cuticura Ointment was all that I used in effecting a cure." (Signed) Mrs. I. J. Horton, Katonah, N. Y., Apr. 13, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton wrote: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails."

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHARLES WILSON TO BE DEPORTED

Alien Guilty of Assault Will Go Back to Old Country.

Charles Wilson was found guilty of assault in the second degree by a jury in district court yesterday. Judge Cant sentenced him to an indefinite term at the reformatory at St. Cloud.

He will probably have but a short term to serve at St. Cloud for it is expected that the United States immigration authorities will soon take charge of the case and send him back across the water from where he came about three months ago.

Wilson was found guilty of having stabbed Alex Hill during a drunken brawl which occurred on Jan. 3, at 18 Sixth avenue west.

nomics in the University of Minnesota. The report was laid on the desks of the members yesterday.

"The rapidly increasing budgets of our civil units," says Mr. Hess in his introduction, "are the source of growing apprehension and criticism, and they will so continue as long as the enforced contributors to government support are without accurate and satisfactory information concerning the conduct of the public exchequer. The ill-advised expenditures of certain departments of government have long been notorious, and the accumulating evidence of habitual betrayal of public trust must make a scientific and intelligible accounting of public funds imperative."

The Per Capita Burden.

The report shows that it costs the people of Minnesota, at the lowest calculation, $65,436,600 a year to carry on the governments of nation, state, county, city, school district and village. Reduced to a per capita basis, the public burden is $29.97 for every man, woman and child in the state, or $149.85 for each household of five persons. "This amount," says the report, "represents a tax of approximately 1.9 cents on each dollar of wealth within the state, or 38 per cent of the possible capitalistic income from such wealth at an interest rate of 5 per cent."

This cost is divided as follows:

Governmental Units—	Absolute cost.	Per capita cost.
Federal	$22,043,460	$ 9.05
State	7,527,297	3.63
County and township	19,606,755	9.45
City and village	16,259,088	7.84
Totals	$65,436,600	$29.97

Growth in government cost has been steady all along the line. For instance, the per capita expenditures for state purposes were $2.69 in 1907, $2.05 in 1908, $3.45 in 1909 and $3.36 in 1910—a temporary falling off in the last year. Even the cost of conducting the state legislature increased from $204,872 in 1907 to $222,511 in 1909.

In spite of an almost total lack of facilities for checking city expenditures, the report shows that the expense of conducting municipal governments in Minnesota is increasing much more rapidly than the population. The average cost of current government in twenty-three cities of more than 5,000 population is $10.93 per capita, and an average of $5.05 more is spent for permanent improvements. A marked tendency to avail themselves freely of the easy method of raising money by issuing bonds is noted among Minnesota cities. The average city indebtedness is $40.32, the figures running all the way from $1.60 per capita in Ely to $60.35 per capita in Duluth, by far the largest in the state, and nearly 50 per cent larger in proportion than the indebtedness of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The indebtedness on the average is 3.39 per cent of the valuation, runing from Ely with .17 of 1 per cent up to Duluth with 5.77 per cent against 3.39 per cent in Minneapolis and 3.71 per cent in St. Paul.

Denegre to Withdraw Bill.

Senator J. D. Denegre, whose bill to allow husband or wife to sell real estate without the other's signature has been the subject of very heated agitation among the women of the state, has succumbed and will withdraw his bill from the consideration of the legislature.

The Ramsey county commissioners have decided to fight R. C. Dunn's 1-mill road tax measure because Ramsey county would pay much more than it would get back. St. Louis county would pay still more than Ramsey county and get no more back, but its representatives will vote for the bill.

The house had a short and uneventful session last night, and the chief point of interest was that on motion of Representative Moyle Edwards of Breckenridge the recent custom of meeting at 11 o'clock was broken and an adjournment taken to 10 o'clock this morning. An attempt was made to make today's meeting hour 11 o'clock, but Mr. Edwards was there first with his simple motion to adjourn, which means 10 o'clock under the rules, and his idea was adopted. Many of the members are becoming restive under the 11 o'clock session plan, feeling that it kills the day without accomplishing much, and that the legislature isn't getting down to business rapidly enough. The senate met at 11 o'clock, but the chances are that the cystomary 10 o'clock session will be the rule within a short time in both houses. The committees are beginning to grind out bills, and general orders are increasing in both branches.

Fishery Bi'ls.

Representatives Mattson and Robertson last night introduced a bill regulating fisheries in international waters, with particular reference to the Lake of the Woods. It limits the number of fishing licenses that can be issued for that lake to seventy-six, and prohibits setting nets less than a mile from the mouth of the Warroad river. It also increases the size of the meshes in nets that may be used there.

Representatives Webb and Rines are the authors of a bill introduced last evening which authorizes the state game and fish commission to prohibit the sale of crappies, perch and sunfish caught in lakes that have been stocked by the state, when they are petitioned to do so by a hundred voters of the county in which the lake that is to be so protected is located. When such an order has been issued, those who violate it are to be fined or imprisoned.

Representative Fisher of Minneapolis, a hotel proprietor, introduced a bill last night providing a punishment of 90 days in jail or $100 fine for those who defraud landlords.

The St. Louis county delegation will have another meeting tonight, at which the various local matters laid over from the last meeting will be taken up, and an opportunity given to those who wish to be heard regarding them.

In Favor of Ahmann.

The senate elections committee last evening voted unanimously in favor of Senator J. J. Ahmann in the contest brought against his seat by Henry Emmel, a former member of the house.

The case came before the committee on a motion by Ahmann's attorneys to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that no showing has been made sufficient to base a contest upon, and that motion is granted.

The contest was based on the allegation that Ahmann was born in Germany, that his father did not take out his citizenship papers until Ahmann was over 21 years of age, and that as Ahmann never has been naturalized he is not a citizen and is therefore ineligible.

The committee holds that the burden of proof is upon the contestant to show first, that Ahmann was born in Germany, and, second, that he was more than 21 when his father became a citizen; and it finds that the proof is insufficient as to both counts.

The committee is to have a hearing this afternoon on the Farrington-Froshaug case, and will take up the Stephens-Saugstad contest as soon as possible, perhaps Wednesday evening.

SUGGESTS ABATTOIR AND STOCKYARDS FOR DULUTH

Jackson Farmers' club. In the discussion that took place in the Jackson schoolhouse the men of Hermantown made known some of their wants, among them a place and an opportunity to sell livestock and to buy livestock. Out of this discussion grew a suggestion that Duluth establish a clearing house for just this kind of business.

The situation is familiar to the people of Northeastern Minnesota. There are hundreds of settlers here who need cows, horses, chickens and every other kind of farm animals. There are other hundreds of settlers who have such livestock to dispose of. But they are far apart. And then there are shippers in other parts of the state who send to Duluth and other centers of population carloads of livestock for disposal to packers and dairy purchasers.

Get Together.

Now it is proposed that all these factors in the livestock market of Duluth shall be got together. At the present time Duluth has no large stockyards. The country is too new to have an established butchering business on a large scale. But with the agricultural, dairying and stock growing industries increasing in this region at the rate they are, it is certain that Duluth will be a shipping point for a great volume of the products of these businesses, and the natural conclusion is that among the important local industries will be large stockyards.

The most striking feature of the development of the agricultural and allied resources of this part of the state is the co-operative movement, expressed here more concretely, probably, than anywhere else in the United States. Following that trend consistently, it is the general belief among those most closely interested in the development of the stock raising industry here that the city should establish a municipal abattoir, so that there will be no reasonable chance of the stock raisers of Northeastern Minnesota losing to the meat trust whatever benefits may accrue from their work of developing this business here.

Preliminary to the realization of the ultimate aim, it is proposed that there shall be established here in Duluth a clearing house for the farmers of the territory tributary to Duluth, where they can bring the livestock they have to sell, and where they can come to buy the livestock that they need.

While planning this attack on the high cost of living, the "men behind" have their eyes on a number of lots adjoining the Armory, which are admirably suited to the purpose of a live stock clearing house such as they have in mind. It is proposed to build shelter sheds on the plot that may be secured, for the housing of the farmers' horses, and it will be necessary to build pens and sheds for the live stock.

The lots adjoining the Armory are not the property of the city, but as they are unused it is probable they could be secured for the purposes proposed.

Included in the category of live stock are pigs and chickens, which mean bacon and eggs and breakfast. Every morning Northeastern Minnesota eats breakfast, so this livestock clearing house proposition is more or less important, and if the pigs can be converted into bacon through the agency of the municipality, say the boosters, breakfast won't cost so much. Milk helps, too, and if the farmers are given a chance to get cows all through this region there will be a more general supply of milk, which means not simply feeding the babies, but means butter and cheese, besides prosperity and contentment among the farmers.

Monthly Market Day.

To begin with, it is proposed to have a monthly market day, when the farmers from all about can come in to Duluth with the animals they have to sell, and which they can take to a place where there will be willing buyers. Instead of peddling their property they will take it to a ready market, with the result that those who want to buy will have no difficulty in filling their needs and the venders will get better prices, perhaps, than otherwise they would.

Later, the market days will come more frequently. The natural progression will be toward a regularly maintained market for live stock, and that in time will graduate into a stock yards, maintained by the city. It is not proposed that the city shall be at any expense for this maintenance, but that charges for service shall meet all the expense and the city shall have complete control of the yards, more because of sanitary reasons than any other reason, except for the prospect of a municipal abbatoir.

The tendency in municipal development is toward the municipalization of such industries as have a bearing on the purse and the health of the average citizen, it is declared, and for that reason there can be no valid objection to the institution of such a municipal industry as is suggested by the backers of this movement.

TO U. S. SUPREME COURT.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 24.—Judge Rellstab in the United States circuit court, after an argument lasting all day, refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus for Porter Charlton, whose extradition has been requested by the Italian government to answer to a charge of having murdered his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, in Italy last summer.

Charlton, who is about 21 years old, is a citizen of the United States and after the murder came to this country and was arrested as he landed in Hoboken.

Before the committing magistrate counsel for Charlton sought to prove that he was insane at the time of the crime. Subsequently there was a hearing before Secretary of State Knox on the application of the Italian government. The secretary decided to grant the extradition.

Young Charlton was in court and after the decision was taken back to the Hudson county jail, where he has been confined since his arrest.

Counsel for Charlton immediately after the announcement of Judge Rellstab's decision said that the case would be carried to the supreme court of the United States.

At a meeting held after a banquet given by Virginia people, an organization was perfected with A. P. Silliman of Hibbing as president and D. P. McIntyre, city clerk of Eveleth, as secretary.

Defer Fixing County Seat.

It was agreed that an effort be made to amend the law so as to allow of the opportunity for voting on the proposition at a special election, and that instead of designating the county seat at the time of the special election to defer that matter until the matter of the division had been carried, then at the following general election to name the permanent county seat. The most feasible way to get the county divided is left to the executive and legislative committees. Speeches were made by N. B. Arnold, president of the Virginia Commercial club; Attorney Victor Power of Hibbing; John Owens of Tower, the first president of the village of Virginia; Editor R. W. Hitchcock of the Hibbing Tribune; John Costin, Jr., of Virginia; Dr. Fred Barrett of Gilbert; D. P. McIntyre, city clerk of Eveleth; Attorney A. R. Folsom of Buhl; Editor W. E. Hannaford of the Virginia Enterprise; J. D. Murphy, mayor of Tower; C. H. Sherman of Angora; Dr. J. C. Farmer of McKinley; Attorney L. M. Osborn of Virginia; Editor C. M. Atkinson of the Mesaba Ore of Hibbing; Joseph Mantell of Ely; Judge Louis Tillmans of Aurora; Judge R. J. Montague of Virginia; Attorney Don C. Anderson of Biwabik; C. A. Apull of Mountain Iron; F. S. Colvin, president of the Commercial club of Biwabik; Judge Edward Freeman of Chisholm; Editor E. A. Koen of the Biwabik Times. All expressed themselves in favor of dividing the county. Many were in favor of naming Virginia as the county seat if the division movement went through, and many were in favor of letting the voters decide as to where the seat should be placed.

Resolutions Are Adopted.

Following the speeches on the county division proposition the temporary organization was made permanent by the passage of the following resolutions, prepared by N. B. Arnold, C. M. Atkinson and E. A. Koen:

"Whereas, Delegates have been called from the various towns and communities in St. Louis county, and are this day assembled in Virginia, and expression has been made of the feeling of the various communities, now therefore, be it

"Resolved, By this convention here assembled, that we, and each of us, hereby express ourselves as being unalterably in favor of county division, and recommend that united, intelligent and persistent effort be made to bring about the division of St. Louis county, and the organization of the new county including the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges and contingent territory, and be it further

"Resolved, That the temporary organization be made permanent, that an executive committee of five, with A. P. Silliman as chairman, be appointed; that a committee on ways and means and a legislative committee be appointed, and an active campaign be started for county division."

Chairman Silliman announced the appointment of the executive committee, but deferred the appointment of the ways and means and legislative committees until a future date.

The Executive Committee.

The executive committee is composed of the following members: A. P. Silliman, Hibbing, chairman; N. B. Arnold, Virginia; Edward Freeman, Chisholm; E. A. Koen, Biwabik; D. P. McIntyre, Eveleth, secretary. The committee appointed Attorney William J. Archer of Virginia, clerk at a salary of $100 per month.

Just where the boundary lines will be drawn has not as yet been determined, but it is thought that they will be drawn from the south at a distance of about twenty-five miles this side of Duluth and running to the north to the dividing line between this county and the county of Koochiching.

The following delegates were present:

Buhl, A. R. Folsom, Gus Cronberg; Biwabik, Don C. Anderson, E. A. Koen, C. W. Bray, H. H. Salmon, C. L. Judd, F. S. Colvin; Gilbert, M. H. Radermacher, J. B. EVELETH WANTS NEW FIRE HALL

Two Sites for the Proposed Building Are Being Considered.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city property committee of the council is considering the advisability of vacating the present fire department quarters and the erection of a new fire hall on Pierce street between B and Chandler avenues, or one on Adams avenue and Jackson street. The fire officials claim that a building is badly needed, and argue that it is hard to establish a strong, experienced department in the present rather unsanitary quarters.

The city engineer, and other city officers are without adequate quarters, in the city hall, and it has been suggested that the present sleeping apartments of the fire department be converted into offices. The militia is also badly in need of new quarters as the armory has been condemned by State Adjutant Fred B. Wood, as unsafe and inadequate. The soldiers believe that if the city hall was extended, that the first floor of the building would be large enough for a drill hall. The militia is being supported by the city any many are favoring the plan of allowing the militia use of the present fire quarters which will no doubt be soon vacated.

that they went in the front of his body and came out at his back. Fortunately, the bullet fired into his abdomen swept along close to the skin and did not puncture the intestines, otherwise the outlook would be practically hopeless.

Only one bullet remained in the body —that in the right thigh, the removal of which was not deemed advisable at this time.

Overnight developments as to the motive of Goldsborough in shooting Phillips were few. That for some time Phillips had been receiving threatening notes, telegrams and telephone calls, was a fact known to his relatives and Goldsborough had been heard to say that he bore a grudge "against a certain writer" on account of a magazine article.

Friends of Goldsborough, who came of a prominent Maryland family, and was a Harvard man, were as much at a loss as ever today to explain his act. He was only 31 years old and had been regarded as a deep thinking student, devoted to his profession of music and to literary pursuits.

United States Senator A. J. Beveridge, Phillips' close friend and roommate at Depauw university, was admitted to the bedside of the injured man early this morning. Senator Beveridge had hurried from Washington to New York upon learning of the shooting. Phillips was conscious and recognized his former chum. Senator Beveridge went away in about five minutes, having been warned that the novelist could not stand the strain of a protracted visit.

Phillips Shot Six Times.

New York, Jan. 24.—David Graham Phillips, the novelist, was shot six times yesterday as he approached the Princeton club, by Fitzhugh Coyle Goldsborough, a Harvard man, who immediately afterwards committed suicide.

Phillips is at Bellvue hospital in an extremely critical condition, but as relatives hopefully express it, with "a chance for life." The body of Goldsborough, whose career at Harvard was brief, lies in the morgue. Apparently insane he had a fancied grudge against the author and sought his life. He was 31 years old; Phillips is 43.

The six shots broke the quiet of one of the most aristocratic neighborhoods of old-fashioned New York. The Princeton club, formerly the home of the late Stanford White, fronts on Grammercy park and at 2 o'clock of a bright afternoon, Phillips, who lives nearby at the National Arts club, was sauntering through the sunshine for an hour with his friends. A policeman stood not 100 yards away. Two pedestrians had just passed the club as Phillips approached.

Nobody saw anything to attract attention in the well-dressed Goldsborough, who was walking toward Phillips. There was no argument as they met, no quarrel, no opportunity for self-defense. The shiny barrel of the pistol glinted in the sunshine, a thin haze of powder floated from the muzzle and a rattle of shots followed.

Phillips staggered, but did not fall. He lurched against the iron railing that surrounds the clubhouse yards, with one hand to his body and the other grasping for support. Satisfied that he had been successful, the assailant fired the seventh shot into his own brain and fell dead.

Goldsborough came to this city last November and took rooms at the club. He was not a student and mingled but little with the life of the institution. Harrison W. Phillips, David Graham's younger brother, said that Goldsborough had been bothering David with letters and telephone calls to the Princeton club for a month or six weeks, but that his brother had never been able to learn what the man's grievance was. He thought perhaps they had met at some socialistic gathering and that Goldsborough had insisted that Phillips ought to "do something for the cause."

ALL SHOW EFFECTS OF THE STRAIN

completed his address which was filled with invective and hard words for the defendant. Attorney Frank A. O'Brien opened for the defense and when overcome by his allusion to "this poor defenseless woman here," Mrs. Schenk could no longer restrain her feelings. The stress of many weeks of anxiety and the days and nights in the court room were too much for her and she wept bitterly.

Pleads for Defendant.

Mr. O'Brien's speech made a plea of sympathy for Mrs. Schenk, a fierce attack on many of the state's witnesses and dwelt upon the unreliability of circumstantial evidence.

The state was charged by Mr. O'Brien with having brought a horde of Pittsburg detectives into the case, merely to worm their way into the affections of the defendant and to secure her conviction not for the good of John O. Schenk, but to rid the Schenks of John Schenk's wife. That they worked persistently to have her put the poison in her husband's medicine and to catch her in the act, and not accomplishing this, they had trumped up evidence against her.

Throughout Mr. O'Brien's pleas Mrs. Schenk kept her head bowed on the table and sobbed.

Dr. W. J. Myers, who testified that he had sold sugar of lead to Mrs. Schenk, was attacked by the attorney. The inference was left with the jury "that some one and not the defendant had poisoned the water and medicine if poison was actually found."

As the result of a conference of counsel the remaining arguments in the Schenk case will be abbreviated and may result in the jury retiring tonight.

out the audience knowing that fact. Mr. McNarrow talked about the union label and what it means. He showed of what importance to the labor unions movement that label is, and he imparted to his auditors an enthusiasm that is counted upon to result in union label crusades by all the different labor unions of the city.

At the Owls' hall last night many moving pictures were shown that informed the audience concerning the different varieties of union labels.

In view of the fact that two-thirds of the audience was composed of women the managers of the campaign are greatly encouraged. Women, they say, are the buyers of 75 per cent of the goods consumed in the United States, and if the interest of the women is enlisted, the union men believe their battle is won.

It is understood that such a campaign as has been inaugurated in Duluth, will be carried on throughout the country, with the backing of the American Federation of Labor. President Richard Jones of the Duluth Federated Trades assembly refused to be quoted on this phase of the campaign, but said he hoped to see all the local unions of this city take an active and aggressive part in the campaign that has been started.

Some years ago the trades unions of Duluth were a power. They were closely knitted together in an organization that was both potent and active, and it is believed that a concerted movement for the boosting of the products of union labor will result in a decided increase among laboring men in the local unions and their activities.

The lecture and free shows are designed to give the public information as to the aims and objects of the union label which necessarily will give a true perception of the aims of unionism in general, say the managers of the campaign.

Mr. Harding said that probably it was an unpardonable breach of etiquette for a new member to question the customs of the house, but lots of time is wasted, and custom notwithstanding, the house ought to buckle down to work.

There was some opposition on the ground that the resolution could have only a sentimental effect, but the resolution was adopted by a substantial majority.

Senator Moonan offered in the senate a joint resolution fixing March 15 as the day for final adjournment, and Feb. 23 as the last day for introducing bills, except at the request of the governor. If adopted the resolution would shorten the session a month.

Appendicitis Known Among the Ancients and Treated It as Such.

The Modern Surgeon's Hobby "The Knife"

Appendicitis, which is thought to be of modern origin, is as old as the human family. This disease was known among the ancients and many systems of treatment were in practice. There are many cases of appendicitis where operations are absolutely necessary and as well where operations are unnecessary.

With appendicitis are complicated many other diseases such as bowel, liver, stomach troubles, kidney troubles poor circulation, bad blood, weakness of the heart, female troubles, and a variety of similar troubles which more or less influence the primary cause of appendicitis. The surgeon's knife in these instances fails to bring about the required results. They fail to bring health to the patient and fail to remove the cause. Such operations leave the patients in a worse condition than they were in the first place.

Thousands of cases are being annually cured by Dr. Rea, and even cases that have been operated upon and where they have been in a worse condition than before the operation.

Dr. Rea's cures speak for themselves. He is a man amply prepared to combat with the different complications in all the phases of these diseases. His medical training has been of such character to warrant him sufficient confidence in himself to assure his patients whether or not it is best to have an operation or resort of milder methods.

Dr. Rea as a specialist, treats and cures all chronic, nervous surgical diseases, diseases of deep-seated, lingering and of long standing, such as heart disease, bad blood, tubercular diseases, cancer, tumor, varicocle, rupture. It is said by his friends that he has the ability to diagnose the disease of any patients without even asking them a question. This being so, he is not liable to doctor a patient for the wrong ailment.

We herewith take the liberty to publish the names of a few of the many cures he has made.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects, as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

MAYOR WANTS STREET RAILWAY TO CLEAN CARS

Also Serves Notice That It Must Sprinkle Between Tracks.

Other Recommendations Are Made in Communication to Council.

The council meeting last night was featured by a series of strong recommendations from Mayor Cullum relative to the city jail, street car sanitation and the collection of special taxes.

The mayor suggested that the health department officials be directed by the council to confer with the street railway company relative to having its cars cleaned and disinfected every day before put into service, or before each trip.

Mayor Cullum stated that he has served notice upon the company that it must be prepared next year to sprinkle between its tracks with oil or water in the outlying, unpaved sections of the city as well as in the sprinkling districts. He said that the huge clouds of dust rolling in the wake of the cars is not only decidedly disagreeable but very unsanitary.

Attention was called to the fact that the city is not making much headway in the collection of the wheelage tax. The city executive asserted that some way should be devised whereby the city would get the benefit of the money which it has coming in this manner. He said that a special officer has been mentioned, but made no recommendation as to whether one should be employed or not. The mayor was referred to the police and license committee.

Following another suggestion of the mayor the council passed a resolution asking the city attorney to investigate the distribution of the vessel tonnage tax prior to the last three years. The city has received about $12,000, or $4,000 annually, from this source the last three years, but according to the mayor, little or nothing was forthcoming in the years before that.

The mayor called attention to the criticisms of the board of control of the state relative to the condition of the city jail, recommending that more room be secured by the erection of an additional story. The council, by resolution, took the position that it has no authority in this matter.

Chief of Police C. H. Troyer strongly urged the hiring of a physician who could act in conjunction with the department as police surgeon. He suggested that Dr. Ignatius J. Murphy of the health department be employed, at an additional salary of $50 per month. He explained that Dr. Murphy could be reached at the health office during the day, and at night by telephone at nearby quarters. No action was taken.

The council passed a resolution introduced by Alderman Shartel giving it as the sense of the council that representatives of the legislature from the local districts support the bill now before that body, proposing to raise the gross earnings tax of the railroads from 4 to 5 per cent, on condition that the tax be in lieu of taxes only. This would enable municipalities to charge the railroads for assessments against their property for public improvements.

Next Saturday was fixed for hearing the residents of the Sixth ward, who are in controversy over the granting of a saloon license to C. Tiler at 1002 Garfield avenue. The license was held up a week ago. Last night two petitions were filed, one protesting against the issuance of the license that the place was a house of ill-repute and the other in favor of it. The latter had about twice as many signers as the former.

Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, attorneys for the Canadian Northern railroad, sent in a communication requesting that a committee of the council be appointed to hear the position of the railroad relative to the placing of posts in Grand avenue and Fifty-ninth avenue west. The council recently passed a resolution directing the company to put clear spans across these two thoroughfares.

Peter Olson and Chan Smith asked on behalf of the Hillside clubs whether or not the proposed bond issue of $200,000 is in lieu of the $200,000 issue authorized a year ago for the water and light department. The council passed a resolution answering in the affirmative.

The Welsbach Street Lighting company was directed to remove its standards on both sides of Third street, westerly from First avenue east, as their use has been discontinued.

The board of fire commissioners was authorized to advertise for a combination chemical and hose wagon for Lakeside, and to award the contract for the same, subject to the approval of the council.

The city engineer reported that in his opinion only greater confusion would result if the system of numbering houses on Sixtieth avenue east were changed. He asked for suggestions in this line.

The Minnesota naval militia was granted permission to use the basement of the armory for the storage of a large gun which it has received from the government.

An ordinance providing for the issuance of $10,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness for the permanent improvement fund had its first reading.

MEMORIAL OF JOHNSON

Sculptor O'Connor Arrives in St. Paul to Meet the Commission.

Artist Speaks of His Work and What He Will Do.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—Breathing Western air for the first time in his life and wonderfully interested in the signs of development on all sides, Andrew O'Connor, the American sculptor, who has been living in Paris for the past seven years, arrived in St. Paul Sunday. Eighteen years ago he visited Chicago, but this is the first time he has ever been so far West as St. Paul.

"It is all so new, I have not adjusted myself yet," he said yesterday as he was preparing to meet the executive committee of the Johnson Memorial commission.

"Those vast stretches of country between here and Chicago! How lonesome they must be in winter for the women and children, but how immensely prosperous in summer!"

"What Kind of a Man Was Johnson?"

Andrew O'Connor, whose work has won international fame, is here to catch the Western spirit. He wants to tread the path that John A. Johnson trod.

"What kind of a man was Johnson, anyway?"

This was the first question the artist put to his interviewer.

"You know the commission sent me a dozen or more pictures of him," he continued, "taken all on the same day. I understood, and they really reflected a man of many moods. One looked the journalist of 28 and another like a man of 65. He must have had a wonderfully mobile face to give all these impressions.

"I am here to confer with the commission and find out just what the people want in the way of a memorial. The first models submitted were the results of a study in no sense complete. I think a mistake probably has been made in judging the details too critically, for many of them must be changed before the work is completed.

Would Convey Subject's Strength.

"I want to create something which will convey the strength and position of the man in your history, but you can readily see that whatever is my work there are going to be many who will not see it as I intended it. The first sketch was the work of long study.

"I was limited by the scale of the building. The site was fixed, and it took some time to surmount the limitations imposed by some of the detail work of the building.

"I understand now a new site is to be chosen. It has been suggested that I draw a central figure and four other figures suggesting the industries of Minnesota, such as mining, lumbering, agriculture and manufacturing. I will try and get the viewpoint of the committee and meet with those who knew and loved Governor Johnson."

Some time ago Andrew O'Connor submitted a model of a bronze memorial for Governor Johnson. This was viewed privately by the members of the commission and a number of public men of the state. While some of the features of the work pleased, it was thought the central figure, John A. Johnson, did not typify the man. The models were rejected and the artist was requested to submit other models. The suggestion was made that he come West and meet the members of the commission personally. After some negotiation Mr. O'Connor decided to come.

Would Have Work Stand Alone.

"In a work of this kind," he said, "one must make something that will not be like something else that was done forty times before. It must stand for all time and be an ornament as well as a work of art. I have read about Johnson and studied the recent biography written by his secretary. The chief thing about a work of this kind is the study and the fixing in your mind just what you are going to work out. I want to produce something that will be lasting, when present generations have passed away."

Andrew O'Connor met the executive committee at 11 o'clock in the morning in the offices of the St. Paul Institute. The question of a memorial was informally discussed. It has practically been decided to abandon the first site under the windows of the governor's offices in the west wing of the state capitol. D. O'Brien expressed himself strongly as favoring a more conspicuous site and suggested the open square just in front of the main entrance to the building.

Will Hold Several Conferences.

Several conferences will be held with Mr. O'Connor. He will visit the state capitol and will probably have some suggestions to make relative to changes in the first sketches he submitted. He feels the sketches submitted as preliminary were too severely criticized, and that the prevailing scheme can be worked out in a satisfactory manner. It is rumored that O'Connor will make a portrait of Governor Johnson under the supervision of the commission, and that they be satisfied with it before the major portion of the new work goes forward.

Andrew O'Connor, who was born in Worcester, Mass., has done some very significant work, and is looked upon as one of the foremost sculptors of the day. He said that he has been making statues for the last twenty-eight years. Some of his best known work is the bas-relief, St. Bartholomew's church, New York. The work in this church first brought him into fame.

Stanford White and Mr. French were the chief collaborators in design. His work in the competition for the John Barry memorial won him great praise from the art critics. Among other statues are those of General Lew Wallace at Washington, D. C., and Crawfordsville, the home of Wallace.

Mr. O'Connor will likely visit St. Peter, the home of Governor Johnson, before he returns to Paris to begin again models of a new memorial. When the models are finally accepted it will take two years to complete the work.

BALANCED CREW ON TARIFF SHIP

Steel and Iron Industry Well Represented on the Committee.

Washington, Jan. 24.—In picking the members of the next ways and means committee, which will frame the new tariff bill, the Democratic caucus exercised its best judgment, and the result is a committee representing all classes and conditions of citizenship as well as a wide range of American geography. There is enough political buncombe in the make-up of the committee to balance its wisdom, and enough radicalism to please the most radical of Democrats at the same time that the conservative, the Eastern man, is looking admiringly over the list.

If there is one interest that seems well represented it is the steel and iron industry. It has several good friends on the committee, and the states where this industry thrives are all represented. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, A. Mitchell Palmer, Pennsylvania, and the chairman, Oscar Underwood of Alabama, all have iron and steel constituencies, and, while they are all good Democrats, they must heed the letters and telegrams from the "folks back at home."

Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, the chairman of the committee, was a steel manufacturer of Birmingham before he entered public life. He has been in congress sixteen years and with Champ Clark elevated to the speakership was the ranking committeeman on ways and means. He helped to frame the Payne bill and got a deserved reputation for industry and intelligence. He is a clean-cut man of 49, wealthy, well educated and well bred.

W. S. HAMMOND FOR PRESIDENT

Minnesota Congressman Mentioned as Democratic Possibility in 1912.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Representative Winfield Scott Hammond of Minnesota is mentioned as a Democratic presidential posibility in an interview with National Committeeman Harvey C. Garber of Ohio, printed in the Washington Post. Discussing the Democratic availables, Mr. Garber said:

"Ohio will present the name of Governor Harmon; Indiana will present Governor Marshall; New Jersey will declare for Woodrow Wilson; Governor Dix may be backed up by New York; Minnesota might do well in presenting Winfield Scott Hammond, who has made a record in congress. We must reckon with Foss of Massachusetts, and Hoke Smith of Georgia. For that matter if we turn to the South do not overlook Senator Bailey of Texas, who is a big, powerful figure.

"There will be no lack of candidates and no lack of enthusiasm for each one named, once their states declare for them."

Isaac Staples' Granddaughter Dies.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Harry C. Robertson, aged 37 years, died yesterday of pneumonia and heart trouble. She is survived by her husband and four children. She was the daughter of Charles Staples and granddaughter of the late Isaac Staples.

The funeral of Hugh McDonald was held yesterday from St. Michael's church, with interment at South Stillwater. He was 41 years of age. His body was brought here from Memphis, Tenn.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

COURT TURNS BARRY LOOSE

North Dakota Murderer Thrice Convicted Is Finally Given Freedom.

Twice Sentenced to Life, Is Liberated on Habeas Corpus Writ.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Barry, convicted in Calavier county nine years ago of the murder of Andrew Mellem today was released from the state penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus issued out in the Burleigh county district court. Barry was convicted of murdering Mellem in 1901 and sentenced to life imprisonment. On a second trial the jury found him guilty of murder in the second degree and gave him the minimum sentence but Judge Cowan, presiding over the trial, refused to accept that verdict and the jury was finally discharged without any further agreement.

Is Tried Third Time.

A third triel resulted in conviction and another sentence of life imprisonment. Following this Barry appealed to the supreme court and that court directed that the judgment rendered in the second trial be entered against him, and that he serve ten years.

About a year ago, with an allowance of two and a half years, Barry's term in the prison expired, but owing to irregularities in the entering of the district court judgment, Barry was, so far as the prison officials knew, serving under the life imprisonment verdict.

The writ of habeas corpus, granted by Judge Winchester, holds that Barry should have been freed nearly a year ago, and he was accordingly given his liberty.

SUBMITTED TO SUPREME COURT

Highest Tribunal Hears Plaints of Minnesota Land Claimants.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 24.—P. B. Gorman, attorney for some 125 homesteaders in Morrison and Todd counties, has returned from Washington, where on Thursday, he made an argument before the supreme court of the United States in the case of Wass against the Northern Pacific.

The land in controversy, as in the other cases, is claimed by the Northern Pacific, while the settlers claim that the government was in error in giving patents to the Northern Pacific, it not properly being a part of the land grant. Mr. Gorman has put in years of hard work on this case.

Second Time Argued.

This is the second time he has argued the case before the supreme court, the first time being last spring, since which time there were several changes in the judges, and no decision was ever rendered. The arguments for the railroads were made by their chief attorney, C. W. Bunn, assisted by Frank M. Kellogg of St. Paul. Mr. Gorman, who has won decisions in the district and state supreme court, is confident of making it three times and out for the railroad.

Mr. Gorman was most favorably impressed with the new members of the supreme court and says they are all able men. The judges took an active interest in the case and asked the attorneys many questions.

ROSEAU DRINKING WATER DECLARED RATHER IMPURE.

Roseau, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An analysis of the water in the local wells, received by Dr. Delmore, the village health officer, from the state board of health, shows the water more or less impure and the wells are practically impure. Wells that are on level depth with the river show the most germs. The school house well shows the most and Arthur Johnson's well, which is only ten feet deep, the least germs. Dr. Delmore fears that typhoid or some other epidemic will break out in the spring and urges every precaution.

BACHELOR FARMER FREEZES TO DEATH.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 24.—Coroner Dr. H. A. Pinault of St. Joe went to Holdingford to investigate the death of the man who was found frozen there Saturday morning. The man was identified as Mike Habez, a farmer living three miles from Holdingford. He was about 35 years of age and unmarried. No evidences of foul play were found and the coroner decided that an inquest was unnecessary. It is probable that Habez was returning home intoxicated when he fell by the road side and succumbed to the cold.

CLOQUET NORTH COUNTRY CLUB MEMBER OF STATE FEDERATION

MRS. CARL E. JOHNSON, President.

SOCIETY WOMEN WASH THEIR OWN HAIR

"Home shampooing among society women is rapidly gaining in popularity," says Mae Martyn, writing for the Pittsburg Dispatch. "This is not a fad or fancy, but rather because splendid results are attained in this manner, through the use of canthrox.

"If you would have luxuriant growth of glossy hair, try this easy way of shampooing: Dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a teacup of hot water, then pour on the scalp and rub vigorously for a few minutes, after which the hair and scalp should be rinsed carefully. When the hair is dry you will be delighted with its fluffy, glossy condition.

"While canthrox is not expensive, you should be careful to get it in an original package."

BIG DULUTHS DEFEATED

Kodahpa Hockey Team Administers First Beating of the Season.

Si Clark's Work Feature of Contest—Winning Team Shows Improvement.

In the best hockey contest of the city league so far the present season, the Big Duluths, last year's champions and a team that has not been defeated the present season, went down before the fast and clever playing of the Kodahpa team last evening. The score was 4 to 2.

Si Clark's playing was one of the features of the contest. He shot all of the goals for his team, on two occasions carrying the puck almost the entire length of the rink. Time and time again he would take the puck up the ice with one of his teammates, and receiving it from a pass would make a try for goal. The very fact that he missed several goals and shot four, shows how hard he worked.

Aside from the strong playing of Clark, the members of the Kodahpas showed the best team work of the present season. The team has been practicing hard the past week or so, and this work was reflected last evening in the improved form shown. The addition of McLaughlin, whose work last night was one of the features of the evening, and Trathern, has also strengthened the team.

Clark shot his first goal within a few minutes after the game opened. His second goal came shortly after this, the puck being carried from the far end of the rink clear through the defense of the Big Duluth's. Ostergren scored the first point for the Big Duluths shortly after the second half opened. The score came from a scrimmage in front of the net. Cark shot his third goal after this, then came Brown's score on a clever pass from Bartlett. Again Clark secured the puck and carried it by individual effort down the ice and scored a net.

The contest was the fastest and best played of the season and was enjoyed by a large crowd. The defensive work of Feetham and MacKenzie counted in the victory for the Kodahpas, as did also the clever passing of Asher Taylor.

The lineup:

Kodahpas.	Position.	Big Duluths.
Feetham	g	A. Wood
MacKenzie	p	E. Wood
McLaughlin	cp	G. Wood
Trathern	c	Bartlett
Clark	r	Polsaant
Taylor	rw	Brown
MacHale	lw	Ostergren

Summary: Referee — Cargill. Goal judges—McGhie, P. Wood, Halves—20 minutes. Reserves — For Kodahpas, Watterworth, Caulkins; for Big Duluths, P. Wood.

Champion Bryant has not been seen in action for some time in this city, though skating a number of races on the range and in Michigan. He is in better shape than he has been at any time the present season and is expected to put up the race of the year.

Schneider comes to Duluth with the reputation of being a very fast speed merchant on the rollers. He has defeated all the flyers on the range and has been after Bryant for some time.

STRONG MAN PREACHES DOCTRINE OF CLEAN LIVING

CHARLES HEROLD.

Charles Herold, the strongest middleweight strong man in the world, is for the time being making his home in this city. Weighing but a trifle over 150 pounds this marvelous man holds some world's record lifts for all classes and in addition has one of the most wonderful physiques ever possessed by any athlete in the world.

Standing but five feet six inches, and weighing out of training but a little over 150 pounds, Herold has a neck measurement of 17 inches, biceps of the same measurement, a chest of 45 normal and 47 expanded and a waist of 31 inches.

He was born in Leipsic, Germany, and when a lad was burned terribly in a fire. His home caught on fire and in the confusion he fell headlong through a plate glass window, splinters of glass penetrating his body and slashing his skin in many places. He was taken to the hospital, and according to the story told to the writer yesterday by Herold, was actually left as dead.

An attendant passing noticed a slight movement of his head and called the attention of the surgeon. Another examination showed that there was a spark of vitality left. An operation followed and a splinter of glass over five inches in length was removed from his body.

When the youth left the hospital at Leipsic, for he was only about 15 years of age, he was so emaciated that his mother carried him home with difficulty. It was when he realized his condition, how wasted he was, how terribly he had been injured and how far reaching would be the ill effects on his future life, that he began his fight for health.

Uses Light Weights.

Unlike most professional strong men, Herold has not practiced much with heavy weights. The five and ten-pound dumbels have been his principal aids in the wonderful recovery of astonishing vigor and beauty of body. He has followed with steadfast purpose the principles of temperance and moderation. Excess he has shunned and his life since the day he resolved to fight for something that should be the heritage of every man, has been a gospel of clean living.

While being able to lift immense weights, and breaking a world's record yesterday, as he claimed, for the benefit of the writer, Herold is more proud of the body than he is of his ability to juggle heavy weights. He believes that every muscle of the body should be developed normally and that no muscle should be stronger than another, that is, in proportion to its size.

Herold believes that many of the American athletes over train, for he has achieved most of his great strength and wonderful health by exercising about fifteen minutes each day. He has eaten the things that his appetite called for and he has not eaten something that was before him, simply because it was there, when his appetite did not want it.

This young man has appeared in some of the famous music halls of Germany, has appeared with Sandow and has an acquaintance with Hackenschmidt and Otto Saxon, who is probably the greatest weight lifter in the world, and who also hails from Leipsic, the former home of Herold.

Herold has absolute control of his muscles and can make them dance over his body at will. In repose his muscles are soft and pliable, which is as nature intended, and shows that he has not over trained or bound his muscular system with heavy weight work.

This remarkable young man will make his home here for some time at least. When he gets ready to take up active work again it is very probable that he will go into vaudeville.

CANADIAN EASY FOR ABE ATTELL

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Abe Attell, featherweight champion of the world, outpointed Billy Allen, featherweight champion of Canada, in a 10-round bout here last night.

With the exception of a few rounds, Allen did most of the leading, but his showing was marred by frequent attempts at "covering." In the fourth round Attell injured his right hand by coming in contact with Allen's elbow.

Attell was not forced to extend himself in any of the rounds. Honors were even in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds. In the last two rounds Attell quickened his pace, though not letting himself out.

CENTRAL HAS FORMED CLASS HOCKEY TEAMS.

Hockey is at last being recognized at Central. The students are in a happy frame of mind over the defeat of Virginia last Saturday.

No other games have been scheduled as yet, but Manager John Kerns is busy and will have a schedule ready within a short time.

The classes are also becoming more enthusiastic over the game and the seniors and juniors will meet Wednesday at the Forty-seventh avenue rink.

SWEDE IS STUMBLING BLOCK TO RUSSIAN LION.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 24.—Hackenschmidt, the Russian wrestler, failed to throw three men in an hour here last night, each bout being limited to twenty minutes, Hjalmar Lundin, the Swedish wrestler staying the allotted time.

Hackenschmidt threw his first opponent, Correlus, the Greek in 4 minutes and 13 seconds, but Lundin stayed the twenty minutes alloted him and kept the Rusisan on the defensive much of the time. The third bout was easy, Auvary going down in 5 minutes and 50 seconds.

THE ORDEMANN-LEHTO CONTEST.

Word was received yesterday that special arrangements had been made with the Western Union Telegraph company whereby that office would send special returns from the Ordemann-Lehto wrestling match to the Finnish newspapers in the Copper country.

No match in which Lehto has engaged the present season has excited the amount of interest that the coming contest is arousing in the minds of his friends.

At the last match at the Lyceum the high school boys created so much fun by their school yells and general interest in everything that went on, that the management has again extended the invitation to the "D" football men and the members of the first basket ball team and also the newly organized hockey seven. These boys will occupy boxes and will be the guests of the management.

GRAND CIRCUIT AND COLUMBUS MAY AGREE.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 24.—As the result of a conference here yesterday between F. W. Swisher, president of the Columbus Driving club, and Harry K. Devereaux, president of the Grand Circuit, the Grand Circuit will not be disrupted by the Columbus association seceding—that is, not for some time at least. The outlook is that a compromise will be effected by which Columbus will be given a better deal in the way of dates.

COLORED FIGHTER WINS BY KNOCKOUT IN THIRD.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 24. — In the third round, Charles Robinson, the colored fighter from Seattle, last night knocked out Walter Stanton of San Francisco in what was to have been a 12-round fight. From the start of the first round, Robinson showed his superiority, which became more apparent in the second round. At the start of the third Stanton apparently lost his nerve and Robinson quickly got a knockout in.

FAVORITES DISAPPOINT CROWD AT MONCRIEF.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 24.—Only one favorite got home in front at Moncrief yesterday and form players did not gather much. Aldrian proved the greatest disappointment when in the third race he was held at 7 to 10 and could not do better than second, County Tax leading from start to finish.

Jockeys Obert and Loftus were suspended indefinitely pending an investigation of their riding of Bendouble and Glucose, respectively, in the fifth race.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

The Management of Carl Morris—"Chuck" Larson Fades and Young Brown Looms Up—Duluth's Hope in Rowing—Duluth Is Harboring Real Strong Man.

(BY BRUCE.)

This is the way it generally goes—this trying to grab a guy when he looks as if he might be good. There is Carl Morris, a man presumably of peaceful nature, and, aye, mayhap, of slumbering, lethargic, disposition, who because of a huge body and maybe a family to support and a desire to see the world, turned prizefighter.

Well Carl is the most prominent of the "hopes." To date he is exhibit A. Since it has been demonstrated that the great and eager public desire to see this Sepula giant in ring action, lo and behold, managers the length and breadth of this big land of ours have been after his services.

"Sign with me, Carl," is the cry, "and you will gather the kale." To date Carl, the unsophisticated, unwised in the ways of men and the world, has refused the seductive offers of the well known managers and has elected to stick close to the sheltering managerial wing of one Stone, a former operator, who is crudely steering his man on the troubled pugilistic waters.

There may be a lot to Morris and again there may not. He is a man perhaps of infinite possibilities. But it is very certain that a shrewd manager and trainer would do much better with the Oklahoma giant. But even at that one must admire the loyalty of this raw product of old Kentuck for they so say that big Carl first saw the light of day in the peaceful blue grass region.

This man Stone quit his job to look after the interests of Morris. It has probably been pointed out to the latest and most prominetn to date of the "hopes" that another and more experienced man could handle his affairs much more to his advantage. He may get to the stage where he will listen to the siren call of some wiley manager. But until he does, most of us will admire the right spirit he has displayed in nestling close to a man who probably was his pal before the glamour of greatness ever spread its white rays over the broad shoulders of the man from Oklahoma.

In this modern life of ours we have seen and read much of men forgetting humble friends of their more obscure days. Often fame and money cause one to forget friends of the lonely path of the past. Thus far Morris has shown that his heart is good. It will be at least interesting to observe the length of time Stone steers the course of the man who may be destined to dispel a certain black cloud on the pugilistic sky.

Not so very long ago "Chuck" Larson, the little Chicago fighter was known throughout a wide district as a second Battling Nelson. He was said to be a man with an iron jaw. His record, too, bore out the reputation the boy has gathered in many fierce pugilistic affrays. Then came the defeat at the hands of Young Brown, a boy who packs a wallop that would make the tough and rough skin of a rhinoceros wrinkled and red. Thus doth fame both fade and grow; fade for the boy who has been shown that it is quite possible for him to know the meaning of that dizzy and dazed feeling, and grow by sudden leaps for the lad who has accomplished the seeming impossible.

"Chuck" Larson Robbed Of His Role.

With the proper handling this Brown youngster should develop into a great fighter. He has the foundation already; the superstructo of finished details has not been built as yet. He needs the right kind of instruction and the proper training, for at the present time he is in the formative stage of pugilism. Many young fighters have been spoiled in the past, so that the future for this boy in his chosen profession may be either filled with real accomplishment or empty of real results.

Brown packs a wallop that will bring home the figurative bacon on many occasions. He is a great little figher and he should be still greater. His development in the past year has been remarkable. If he develops in the coming year as he has in the past, he will sure rest his husky hands somewhere near the championship goal. The man who is handling the affairs of the Brown boy will have much to answer for in this regard.

With the fading with January, dear month when the weather has a perfect right to act in any mean manner, and the coming of February the mind of some of you at least will wander over to the rowing game. will we have a winning crew the coming season?

Is It Yet Too Early To Flirt With Hope.

There will be Louis Thompson, Cy Forgette, Wallace Quimby, Joe Lathrop, "Patience" Sole, and perhaps Hare and Crawford. If these men "come back," either way you take it, with the others who should be on hand, there would seem to be the nucleus for a winning crew. Let us all flirt coyly with the fickle hope thing and pray for victory.

Ten Eyck maye be able to accomplish a lot with this material. There will be some veterans in the boat next year and the cunning hand of this master of rowing should be able to mould the men into something awfully near championship form.

At least there is no use of getting pessimistic before the homely hyena form of pessimism has lbomed over the brow of the hill; and until that time let us make a bosom friend of hope who is awfully entertaining and has some clever conversational powers. Here is one humble suggestion—make the fellows row long enough so that they can say they have at least put in a profitable summer and explored the unknown parts of the bay. That part of the bay between the boathouse and the elevator slips, about directly, is getting plum tiresome. Perhaps Mons. Ten Eyck will have some ideas along this side of the argument that will meet with the fancy of the boys.

Duluth Has a Strong Man of Renown.

Charles Herold, famous in Europe as one of the greatest weight lifters in the world and yet more famous for his wonderful development, has made his home for the time being in this city. This wonderful little man has performed weight lifting feats before a few privileged spectators that compared with some of the feats of the world's greatest muscular marvels, and he does not even breathe deeply or blow hard, the latter referring to conservation, about it.

He is the more wonderful because he has fought the heroic fight for health, something that many men have striven for in vain. Burned frightfully when a youth in his native town in Germany, the first stimulus to gain back health came to him. How well he has succeeded is shown by his beautiful body and wonderful muscles.

Unlike most strong men, this German chap has placed bodily health and symetry above mere muscular development. Hygiene and rational living have guided his athletic course of development. As a result of this his muscles are pliable and soft when not standing out in knotted contraction. More, he is healthy, a normal man and his vitality has not been robbed at the very fountain head of its springs of its existence, as has been the case of many strong men the world over.

Yesterday for the benefit of the writer he broke what he claimed was a world's weight lifting record, and he accomplished the feat without removing all of his clothes. Yet he was more proud of the development of all of his muscles, of the rounding out of his physique than of the fact that he had lifted a dead weight in a position so difficult that few famous strong men in their stage stunts attempt the feat, much less get away with it in private performance.

He has preached the gospel of self-restraint and moderation and he is a living, a clean and wholesome example of his benign influence. Over indulgence is the wreck of health and the rude foe of vitality; this chap learned this early in his battle for health and strength and he has possessed the strength to remain steadfast in his purpose. His gospel of health is a wholesome one, and to the sickly, to those discouraged on their climb along the steep and precipitous path to the mountain top of perfect health, he should prove a hope, an encouragement, for he has convincingly shown what can be done when one has the strength of purpose.

GOTCH WOULD MEET MAHMOUT

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, before departing for Minneapolis took a parting shot at his critics who have been accusing him of attempting to dictate what other wrestlers must do before meeting him for the title.

Gotch says these critics misunderstand the wrestling situation, that is all. They would think differently if they knew his motive in attempting to interfere in the present controversy being waged among his challengers. Gotch says:

"Never in my career as a wrestler have I allowed a man to parade the country challenging me for the wrestling honors as Yussif Mahmout has done without calling him good and plenty. Mahmout has been ready to battle at the drop of a hat for the last three or four months. Hackenschmidt and Zbyszko have utterly ignored him. They are either afraid of his game or there is some other reason they are fighting shy of this Turk. Mahmout is the challenger and we must be honest and admit that he is on the square in wanting to meet somebody.

"I must confess that he is a wrestler to be recokoned with in the disposition of the championship. Since he is the challenger, if there are any matches leading up to the campionship bout, they should be fought out with Mahmout as one of the principals."

This, however, is not the only unanimating part of Gotch's parting shot. The champion wants to have all the matches leading up to the championship fought on their merits, and to insure the public such matches, he thinks either he or Mahmout should be one of the principals in every match.

"Hackenschmidt, Mahmout and I are all under different management without any connection whatever. Furthermore, we have not met in a match this year. There has been talk of fake in the Zbyszko-Mahmout match last year leading up to a match with me for the title. If such an arrangement existed there is only one way to insure the public against a repetition or even talk of a repetition of this alleged fiasco—that is to match men against each other whose managers are ambitious to win the world's title.

"I haven't any special love for the Turk's managers, but that is out of the question. I think the time has arrived for me to be placed in the right light before the sporting fans. I have been strictly on the level with the fans and I think I can truthfully say I have helped elevate the mat game by fighting matches on the square. I am nearing the end of my career as a wrestler, and I want everything to be so above board that there can be no criticism in this last series which will decide the fate of the wrestling championship for 1911.

"I understand Zbyszko has refused to meet Mahmout in the first match leading up to the championship. He probably will accept a match with Hack. This does not look right to me and I don't see how he can stand for anything like this. Let Zbyszko come out like a man and wipe out the stain of a charge of fake by meeting the Turk in the first match. I repeat, I don't care how the wrestlers are matched, just so either Mahmout or I stand as one of the opponents in each bout leading up to the final match for the title. Mahmout is now under a management where he is out to win at all hazards and that is all I care about."

Joe Coffey, matchmaker of the Empire Athletic club, when told of Gotch's announcement said he backed the champion up in everything he had said. Coffey thinks Zbyszko is a much underrated wrestler, but says he can see no objection to Mahmout's meeting Zbyszko in the first match. Herman, Zbyszko's manager, refused absolutely, however, to meet the Turk, although Coffey has been working for a week to induce him to come to time.

Coffey thinks Zbyszko owes it to the Chicago public to meet the Turk and settle the superiority. Gotch said he would fight the attempt to match Hack and Zbyszko as a bout leading up to the championship, and intimated if the other wrestlers did not come to time and agree to give the public a run for its money he might take on the Turk himself.

CENTRAL MEETS Y. M. C. A. TEAM

The Central High school and the Y. M. C. A. basket ball teams will meet tonight in the first of the series of city championship games at the Y. M. C. A. gmynasium.

The high school team and its rooters are confident of victory, but although the odds seem to favor the students, the game promises to be an interesting one.

The Y. M. C. A. players are older and naturally more experienced, but the team work of the high school team will more than balance this advantage and the younger players will undoubtedly win by a comfortable score, it is believed.

The lineup of the Central team will be somewhat shifted at the beginning of tonight's game. Weldon is fully recovered from his injuries and will be shifted from center to forward. Capt. Harris will play the other forward and Osman will take Waldron's place at center. Solheim will take his old position at guard but Johnson will be shifted from forward, where he has been playing all season, to Jeronimus' place at the other guard position.

This change will work out an excellent offense and a defense that will more than hold its own with the Y. M. C. A. team.

An added attraction will be a game between the Blaine and Cooper Alumni teams for the championship of Superior. Because of a difficulty in securing a neutral floor in the town across the bay it was arranged that the game be played as a curtain raiser to the high school and Y. M. C. A. game.

The second teams of the high school and Y. M. C. A. will not play tonight, because of the Superior game.

The Central and Y. M. C. A. teams will line up as follows:

Central.		Y. M. C. A.
Harris, (Capt.)	f	O'Donnell
Waldron	f	Bolner
Osman	c	Ward
Solheim	g	Slack
Johnson	g. (Capt.)	Hamilton

MILWAUKEE AND CHICAGO RIVALS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 24.—Officials of the American Bowling congress are holding the first of their executive sessions here today. The sessions will continue until Friday when officers will be elected and a city decided upon to hold the 1912 tournament.

A large delegation from Milwaukee arrived last night and will make strong efforts to land the tournament, while Columbus also will be represented. Prominent bowlers assert that Chicago will land the tournament as it has been eleven years since the first annual tournament was held in that city.

A heavier contingent of visiting bowlers, including teams from Madison, Wis., and Des Moines, Ia., will compete in the events today.

Sixteen crack five-men teams, the first of the visiting squads to compete in the tournament last night failed to break the tournament record of 2,713 established Sunday by the Duffys of St. Louis.

The Moerleins of Cincinnati finished with high score of last night's play, having a count of 2,709, while the Ben Millers of St. Louis were second with 2,573. The Superbas of Dayton, Ohio, were fourth with 2,544 and Brills' Stars of Chicago sixth with 2,525.

Freshmen Prove Easy.

Last evening the boys' department basket ball team defeated the freshmen class team of the high school by the score of 50 to 22. Though one-sided, the game was exciting and was well played at times.

The lineup:

Boys' Y.	Position.	Freshmen.
K. Harris	f	Armstrong
Huyck	f	Larsen
Beck	g	Goetz
Lee	g	Lawrence
		Whitney
Simmon	c	White

Goals—Freshmen, White, 16; Larsen, 6. Boys' department, Huyck, 22; Harris, 16; Simmon, 4; Lee, 8.

THE FIRESIDE CLARION

EXTRA "Oh wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursel's as others see us."—Burns. EXTRA

EDITOR'S NOTE—Issued every once in a while at The Herald office for the benefit of curlers only.

CAPT. SULLIVAN, G. W. SMITH, BURNS, Three Near Curlers, Who Helped West Duluth Rinks Lose Games.

Capt. Sullivan of Zauft's rink is one of the best leads in the West Duluth rink. He has always maintained that the curling game is not played right and he thinks that each rock should carry an anchor. After delivering his rock you can usually hear him going down the ice yelling, "Throw out the starboard anchor." It has been rumored that he laid a stone on the button in the season of 1900. As this happened in the afternoon when nobody was around, it cannot be confirmed.

G. W. Smith, Macauley's second man, is probably the best second man in the rink. He has Macauley's matchless style of delivery and has made two shots in succession during several games.

Mr. Burns, Macauley's head is considered one of the best curlers in the rink. He usually lays his first stone on the button, but he does not seem to be able to resist the temptation of taking his own rock out with his second shot. He is noted as being one of the best sweepers in the rink and has up to this time worn out four brooms.

Bonspiel Notes.

She was some spiel. Everybody had a good time. Everybody is satisfied whether they reached the jewelry or not. Incidentally, everybody is pretty tired too. Everything went off like clock-work and this is at least partially due to the excellent work by Manager A. W. Withrow. He proved to be some manager and it has been said that even "Jimmie" Blackwood could have done no better.

There is joy in prospect for the skaters. The skaters hate a bonspiel anyway. The eastern end of the rink will be torn up and the regular skating nights with music will be resumed from now on.

Now will come the regular club events. The St. Louis is getting down to a point where it is mighty interesting and the Bagley will soon be begun.

LAST TWO EVENTS IN BIG BONSPIEL ARE COMPLETED

The last games were played and the bonspiel finished yesterday.

Chase of Superior is the winner of the International event and McLeod is the winner of the Western Curling trophy.

The six games played yesterday finished the two events. In the International, Chase of Superior defeated Russell, his fellow townsman, by a score of 11 to 10. In the same event McLennan of Duluth was put out of the running by Russell of Superior. In his game with Harry Hurdon, Russell of Superior swamped the Duluth man by a score of 15 to 4.

In the Western event McLeod and Holland met in the finals, McLeod won, 9 to 8. It was a close contest and the West Duluth man made the winner work hard for his points.

The play yesterday put an end to the greatest bonspiel ever held in the Zenith City. There were far more entries and the competition for the prizes brought forth the keenest rivalry. Everyone seems to be well satisfied. The out of town men seemed to be pleased with their entertainment and the Duluth men are anxious that they come again.

The final results and the corrected tables showing the games of yesterday, follow:

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Fractional Losses in Local Market—Winnipeg Alone Holds Firm.

Flax Advances in Strong Market—No Demand for Coarse Grains.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 24.—Wheat lost ground today, while flax was gaining 2½c in the Duluth market. The loss in wheat here was ½@⅝c and a corresponding loss was reported in other American markets. The Winnipeg market alone held steady, showing a slight increase in price.

The bears have had a little the call on the bulls, of whom there are many, and the bears held the honors today. Reports from the Southwest were that wheat conditions are normal; the winter wheat scare which started to develop last week has blown away, and the bears maintained that the general situation bore them out in their attitude.

On the bull side were reports of disappointing crop conditions in Argentina, a falling off in the European visible supply and undoubted activities on the part of some shorts, who are covering.

The market was rather marking time. Reports are conflicting and careful traders are disposed to be wary of taking any definite attitude on the market. They are waiting to get their own complete estimate of the situation and the fluctuations today were so slight in range as to reflect the unsettled conditions of market opinion.

The market for cash wheat was stronger in both Minneapolis and Duluth than it has been for some time. Millers were in the market for spot in Minneapolis after an absence for some time and the same condition, in a less degree, was noticeable here.

Cash sales of flax were greater in Duluth today and the crushers are getting in the market with more regularity and for greater quantities. The firm demand sent prices up some in the local market today, though the activity was not very great.

There is little doing in the coarser grains in the Duluth market. There is absolutely no market for barley here. "You couldn't give barley away here today," said one trader.

May wheat opened ⅛-¼ up in the Duluth market at $1.07, went to $1.07¼, fell off to $1.06⅞, advanced again to $1.07¼, dropped sharply to $1.06⅛-1.06¼ and closed at $1.06¼ asked. July wheat closed at $1.06⅞, which is ½c under yesterday's closing price.

May flax opened ½c off at $2.65, went up to $2.67, advanced to $2.68½ and fell off at the close to $2.68. Oats, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum was ½c off at 91c for May and cash wheat was 1c under May.

MARKET GOSSIP

A Duluth man, who is in Nebraska, wired B. E. Baker today:

"Wheat in Eastern Nebraska is normal. The only damage is from lack of moisture. Snow covered the fields during the recent cold spell. No heaving of the ground, as last year. Wheat in 50 per cent better shape than last year. Snow has gone and weather is mild. Ground is thawed out. Cold weather did not hurt this wheat. The last moisture was from snow, two weeks ago, and more is needed. Talked with elevator men in twenty-two towns in Eastern and Central Nebraska by telephone and concensus of opinion is that wheat is in normal condition."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market at the opening was under the influence of light offerings and some covering by shorts on the firmer American cables yesterday and prices were ⅝d higher. Following the opening values further advanced ¼d to ⅝d with the principal strength in March, in which shorts covered freely induced by light shipments to the United Kingdom and the firmness of spot. Buying was encouraged by the unfavorable reports from Argentine, lack of pressure to sell Argentine cargoes and parcels and the firmer Australian and Manitoba offers and expectations of a liberal decrease in the European visible. The European crop outlook continues favorable and Russia is offering freely and this checked the advance. At midday the market was firm and ⅝d to 1d higher.

"At the opening corn was steady and unchanged. Later the American grade advanced ¼d on fewer American offers and a better demand for spot."

The European visible supply shows the supply of wheat amounts to 106,440,000 bu against 107,356,000 bu last week, thus showing a decrease of 876,000 bu for the week, or a decrease of 4,032,000 bu in the past two weeks. Last year there was a decrease of 2,003,000, when the total amounted to 80,742,000 bu.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Signs of Liberal Decrease in European Supply Send Wheat Up.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Signs of a liberal decrease in the European visible supply forced the price of wheat upward here today. Shipments to the United Kingdom in particular were notably small. Buying was also encouraged through unfavorable reports from the Argentine and as a result of firmness on the part of holders in Australia and Manitoba. The yield in parts of Southern Buenos Ayres was said to be disappointing in the extreme. Opening figures here were a shade to ¼@⅜c higher. May started at 99⅜c to 99⅝c, covering the full range of the market, and rose to 99¾@⅞c.

A reaction resulted because of large receipts Northwest. Slowness of cash demand increased the selling and led to decided weakness. The close was at 98⅝@98¾c for May, a net loss of ⅝c.

Sentiment in the corn pit leaned to the dull side on account of the country not offering much for sale. May opened ⅛c to ⅛@¼c up at 50⅛c to 50¼@¼c, touched 50c and rallied to 50⅛c.

The fact that Eastern and export call were a trifle improved kept the feeling firm. The close was at 50⅛c for May, a net gain of ⅛c.

A little buying for a leading house sufficed to lift oats. May started unchanged to a shade higher at 34⅝c to 34⅝@¾c, and advanced to 34¾c.

Commission house buying in sympathy with the firmness of the hog market strengthened provisions. First sales were 2½c to 5c dearer with May options at $18.50 for pork, $9.82½ for lard and $9.85 for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 24.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points and soon sold some 6 to 9 points above the closing figures of yesterday on covering of shorts and a little fresh buying inspired by the relatively strong showing of Liverpool, liberal English spot sales, bullish reports from Southern spot centers and a feeling that liquidation by tired longs had been very well absorbed on the break of yesterday. Local sentiment appeared to be against the market and there was considerable selling on bulges but there was no renewal of the liquidating movement during the early trading, and, while somewhat irregular, the market held within a point or two with the best during the middle of the morning.

Spot closed dull, 15 points higher; middling uplands, 14.90; middling gulf, 15.15; no sales. Futures closed very steady. Closing bids: January, 14.66; February, 14.70; March, 14.82; April, 14.92; May and June, 15.02; July, 15.04; August, 14.71; October, 13.39; December, 13.26.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

After Early Setback Prices Advance and the Close Is Firm.

Enormous Dealings in New Issue of New York City Banks.

New York, Jan. 24.—Trading was light at the opening of the stock market today and there were few important changes from last night's closing. The new New York city bonds were the most active feature, a block of 200,000 selling at 101¼. Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred was up a point and 2,500 shares of United States Steel sold at an initial gain of ⅜ but this was soon lost. La Clede Gas gained ½; St. Paul, ⅜; Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific ¼.

After a slight setback the market hardened, Reading and Lehigh Valley gaining nearly a point and other shares smaller fractions. Trading was quiet pending the outcome of the city bond sale.

The market displayed little life in the morning session, traders restricting their operations to a minimum while awaiting returns from the city bond sale later in the day. It was recognized that the course of the market hinged largely on the outcome of the flotation of this issue. The market grew sensibly firmer toward midday and there were some good advances in a few of the minor specialities. Bonds were steady.

The market closed firm. After a further advance in prices, the market wavered and reacted sharply when the bids for the New York city bonds were published. Later the whole list stiffened again. There were enormous dealings in the new bonds at 101¾.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

BURGLARS KILL WISCONSIN MAN

Victor Gustafson Dies of Injuries He Says Intruders Inflicted.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Victor Gustafson of Westboro, died here last night, the victim, as he claimed, of a vicious assault by burglars. He claimed that two masked men entered his house at night, assaulted him with an axe and afterward set fire to the place.

Gustafson regained consciousness sufficiently to crawl out of the burning building and was found sitting in the snow, severely burned and cut. When examined in a local hospital, he was found to have two dozen cuts on his body and head, and two toes cut off.

Bemidji Beats Deer River.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the second game of basket ball for the championship of Northern Minnesota the Bemidji high school boys defeated the quint from Deer River by a score of 23 to 12.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 24.—The Wyoming legislature voting separately in the two houses today elected United States Senator D. C. Clark to succeed himself. The Democrats voted for State Senator John B. Kendrick. The assembly will meet in joint session tomorrow to confirm the election.

SMOKING AND SMOKERS.

The Sorrane Herb: The first man who ate an oyster is proverbial; the inventor of roast pig is immorality enshrined; but the first smoker is unknown. He is robed in no legend and newreathed by no fable. Poets have not sung him, artists have not pictured him, nor have historians traced his rise and conquests, greater than those of Mohammed. Yet there is no practice so curious and universal as that of inhaling the smoke of tobacco. We have no story of the hero who dared the world's first smoke; of his fortitude under the tribulations; of his constancy, and of the rarest joys which fell to him, the first smoker. There was, indeed, no such person.

And to the true smoker's sense of the eternal fitness of things this silence accords well with the divinity of the herb. Nicota had no birth and smoking no beginning they knew not time. With the other herbs of the field tobacco rose from chaos, and smoking had its beginning in the earliest and deepest feelings of man's soul.

The origin of the strange practice of inhaling the fumes of tobacco must not be sought among the pleasures of primitive man. It was as a religious rite that smoking existed; the burning of tobacco was an expression of man's homage to the Great Spirit.

Smoking is as conducive to good government as sound logic. James I transmitted his hatred of tobacco to his descendants. Neither of the Jameses nor of the Charleses knew the wisdom-giving practice of smoking. Under the tobaccoless tyranny England was ill at ease, beheading Charles I and flinging out James II. William III, an honest smoker, was the one who set the country to rights again.

Cromwell, the typical Englishman, knew the virtue of tobacco, especially in the consideration of weighty matters. When he was offered the kingship and dallied and played with the attractive offer he frequently discussed the question for three or four hours. "He commonly," says a contemporary biography, "called for tobacco, pipes and a candle, and would now and then take tobacco himself." If Cromwell had not smoked and had accepted the crown, today we might be ruled by the house of Cromwell.

Swinburne absolutely abhors tobacco. On one ocasion, at the arts club, he could not find a room free from smoke. With poetic fury he burst forth: "James I was a knave, a tyrant, a fool, a liar, a coward; but I love him, I worship him, because he split the throat of that filthy blackguard, Raleigh, who invented this filthy smoking."

There is a story of a clergyman, who, mounting the pulpit for the sermon, refreshed himself with several pinches of snuff before announcing his text. This, aptly enough, was "My soul cleaveth unto the dust."

Huxley's conversion to the use of tobacco, as related by himself to a sectional meeting of the British association, forms an amusing story.

"For forty years tobacco had been a deadly poison to me. (Applause.) As a medical student I tried to smoke, but at every attempt tobacco stretched me upon the floor. On entering the navy I again tried to smoke, and again met with defeat. I hated tobacco. I could have almost lent my support to any institution that had for its object the execution of smokers. (Vociferous applause from anti-smokers.) A few years ago I was in Brittany with some friends. It was a misearable, drenching day and they looked so happy and comfortable with their pipes that I thought I would try a cigar. (Great expectation and anxiety.) I did so. I smoked that cigar; it was delicious. (Groans.) From that moment I was a changed man, and now I feel that smoking in moderation is a comforting and laudable practice, and productive of good. There is no more harm in a pipe than there is in a cup of tea." (Dismay and anger of anti-tobacconists; laughter from smokers.)

Tennyson's passion for a long clay is well known. He smoked Milos and afterward Dublin clays; mild birds'-eye was his favorite tobacco. The story that he never smoked the same pipe twice is absurd, for, like all smokers, he detested new pipes. He entertained the liveliest hatred of Florence, because he could not get any decent tobacco there and on this account promptly returned home. Carlyle, describing Tennyson, said: "Smokes infinite tobacco." His devotion to the herb became so intense that literally he could not exist without it. On one occasion, at a soiree of the Royal society, he declared he must have a pipe. A friend said he should smoke up the chimney of the library or on the roof. Tennyson chose the latter, and, with his body thrust half way through the skylight, puffed away in peace, descending in a quarter of an hour greatly refreshed. Wherever he went he must be allowed to smoke. Accepting an invitation to visit Mr. Gladstone in 1876, he wrote: "As you are good enough to say you will manage anything rather than lose my visit, will you manage that I can have a pipe in my room whenever I like?"

No one has ever disputed the right of Mynbeer Van Klaes, who flourished about forty years ago, to the title of the "King of Smokers." His den was a museum of nicotine relics, containing specimens of every kind of tobacco smoked in the world and every kind of pipe through which the nations draw inspiration. Here he smoked constantly, incessantly—his life consumption was estimated at four tons of tobacco, or ten pounds every week of his sixty smoking years. He died at 81, devoting his whole life to the burning of incense to Nicotia.

His funeral was in harmony with his life. By his express directions his coffin was lined with the wood of old cigar boxes. At his feet were placed a bladder of the finest Dutch golden leaf and a packet of Caporal; by his sides were laid his china-bowled pipe and a box of matches and steel, flint and tinder. In accordance with his will all the smokers of Rotterdam were invited to the funeral and instead of the old-fashioned mourning rings, each was presented with 10 pounds of good tobacco and two pipes bearing Van Krae's arms. All the mourners smoked during the funeral service, and at the words "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust," shook the ashes out of their pipes on the coffin lid.

ITALIAN MARKETS.

In this country we think of market places as being used wholly for the sale of foodstuffs, but in Italy, says a writer in The Housekeeper, it has quite a different meaning, for there you may find not only fish, meats, fruits, vegetables—all the products of land and sea—but the handiwork of all the people.

There you may buy a Neapolitan hat from the signora or the signorita who has gathered and cured the grasses and woven the beautiful soft, pliant hat with her own nimble fingers. The hand woven linens of all sizes may be bought for a mere song—linen, which is in truth the grass bleached, every thread an honest linen thread, and which does verily wear a lifetime and then may be handed on to the younger generation. The beautiful Italian laces, often dirty and crumpled or carefully pressed and wound on shingles or on tiny wooden rolls, according to the individual idea, may be bought for an astonishingly small amount of money. Embroideries of all kinds will be found there. Oftentimes an exquisitely embroidered piece of underwear lace trimmed, from some noble lady's wardrobe may be picked up in the market place from some faithful Marianna when the fortunes of the house in which she serves are ebbing low. Yes, even some of the fine old family laces and linens may be picked up, for the pride of many of the old, old families is being laid low with their ebbing fortunes.

Many cooked things may be bought in the market place, such as the sweets used all over Italy and the various sauces without which most Italian cookery would be very incomplete. The mutton of Italy is not the delicacy which the English and Americans know, for it has a decidedly strong flavor, and the Italian butcher disposes of most of his mutton under the name of veal, aiming to put it on the market on feast days when, as he says, people are far too excited to know just what they do eat.

I wonder what an American housewife would think when she went to the market to find the fowls all cut up—here a pan of breasts, there a pan of wings, and still another pan of legs, and even the giblets variously divided. Cocks may serve what is very common with them, especially in the better homes, a pan of chicken breasts interlaid with bits of ham and sausage or a giblet dish served with the famous tomato sauce. Your choice of cuts would depend largely upon the length of your purse.

Italy is famous for its cheese, particularly the Parmesan cheese which is sold in the market by cheese venders. There is the charcoal man, too, hawking his wares tied up in various sized sacks, and those who buy from him call him none too honest. Then there are the stout, rugged women who come down from the mountains with great heaps of brushwood tied together and carried aloft on their heads.

The art of marketing is one to be acquired only after much travail of soul and many lost coins. With the average Italian, no matter what his wares may be, it is by grace of his patron saint that he charges the English speaking people double what he would his own countrymen, and this too, after much bargaining has been done. It seems that an Italian can rarely resist the temptation of being a "little bit" dishonest with the foreigner. An old Italian proverb is, "Never trust your neighbor; your neighbor does not expect it." There is much haggling too among themselves, but the wideawake bourgeoise is quite able to fight her own battle over the counter, enjoying it the while, and generally comes out triumphant.

A BARREL OF BALZAC LETTERS.

Independent: The French Academy has received from the Comte de Lovenjoul a priceless collection of letters written by Balzac. The story of his acquisition of these letters is as follows: One day he saw a cobbler light his pipe with a twisted letter. The ink on the paper thereof was faded, but the handwriting interested the colletcor. He had recognized the great novelist's script and straightway bought the letter for a napoleon. The cobbler then informed the count that he had bought a barrel of these letters as waste paper, which he used for wrapping shoes when he was not lighting his pipe. And that is the history of the Academy's Balzac letters, fonds Lovenjoul.

FORETASTE OF HARD TASK THAT IS AHEAD OF REAPPORTIONMENT

Senate Votes Against Suspending Rules on Hackney Motion.

Object Was to Limit Committee on Size of Legislature.

Country Members Still Trying to Cut Cities' Representation.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The reapportionment cause this morning had a foretaste of the serious task ahead of it in the senate, when that body voted down, 22 for and 39 against, the motion of Chairman Hackney of the reapportionment committee that the rules be suspended for the passage of his resolution, approved by his committee, fixing the maximum size of the legislature in making up a reapportionment bill at 63 senators and 126 representatives. Being a joint resolution, Lieutenant Governor Gordon ruled, on a point of order raised by Senator Moonan, that it would have to take the same course as a bill.

Senator Hackney said he could see no necessity for that, as the resolution

IS FORMALLY RE-ELECTED

Senator La Follette Will Represent Wisconsin Six Years Longer.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 25. — United States Senator La Follette was today formally re-elected in joint session of the Wisconsin legislature by a big majority.

Chief Clerk Shaffer of the assembly read the record of the vote in both houses of yesterday, which showed La Follette received 24 in the senate and 59 in the assembly out of a grand total of 129 votes.

A resolution was offered in the assembly today calling upon the government to acquire control of the match manufacturing industry.

In the senate a bill was introduced to repeal water power rights hitherto granted by the state to private persons, firms or corporations and that further operations and developments shall be subject to conditions imposed by the state board of public works or some other public agency.

SHOOT MARSHAL THROUGH KNEE

Thieves Blow Safe at Lake Minnetonka and Get Away.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—After blowing the safe in the postoffice at St. Bonifacius, Lake Minnetonka, early today, and robbing it of $250 worth of stamps and $85 in cash, two robbers shot Town Marshal Anton Ladley through the knee and escaped with a horse and cutter stolen from the livery stable. The Minneapolis and St. Paul police were notified and the roads around the Twin City are being watched.

TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM

North Dakota May Adopt Minnesota Bank Supervision Plan.

Bill for Resubmission of Prohibition to Be Introduced.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Complete revision of the bank supervision system in North Dakota, patterned closely after the theory of the Thorpe bill passed by the legislative assembly of Minnesota two years ago, will be proposed in a bill that will soon be presented to the North Dakota legislature.

Extensive changes from the present plan are proposed, supervision of the banks by the public examiner being done away with by the substitution of a bank commissioner who will have complete control of that work. State bank examiners will be created, each

BILL FOR STATE MINES EXPERIMENTAL STATION

HAS BILL THAT MIGHT DELAY REAPPORTIONMENT

SENATOR FRANK MURRAY
Of Bird Island, Minn.

Given Consideration By House Committee on State University.

Capt. McDougall Favors Propagating Fur Animals for Revenue.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on state university and university lands yesterday afternoon took up the Rustad bill providing for a state mines experimental station, to be created in connection with the state university. If the measure passes—apparently it will have the support of the university forces, and it has administration support because it is carrying out the suggestins made by State Auditor Iverson in his annual report—the probabilities are that the experiment station will be located on the Mesaba range, near the actual mining operations, and Hibbing is a lively candidate for its location.

The argument that such an institution would make itself worth while and more than pay for the cost of erecting and maintaining it seemed to appeal to the members of the committee. However, there seemed to be some idea that perhaps it would result in

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT

St. Louis County Delegation Listens to Arguments on Duluth Bill.

No Decision Reached and Another Meeting Will Be Held.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.) — The St. Louis county delegation had a heated session last evening, with municipal ownership, abstract and concrete, on the boards. The bill authorizing Duluth to embark on a city electric lighting business in competition with the present company was up, and City Attorney Fesler and Alderman Moore and Shartel were here to advocate it, while A. W. Hartman of the Duluth-Edison Electric company was here to present the company's corner of the matter. Many strong protests were received from Duluth business men protesting against the bill.

Mr. Hartman said that he hadn't expected to participate in a hearing, but that he was here merely to say that if the proposed enabling act was wanted as a club over the electric lighting company to force a favorable renewal of the present contract with the city, it isn't necessary because the company is ready to enter into negotiations with the city for a new contract. He said that the commercial electric lighting rates in Duluth are much lower than those in almost all other cities, being 8 cents per Kilowatt

Body Hurled Into Snowdrift and Not Found Until Morning.

Fractured Skull and Internal Injuries Will Probably Prove Fatal.

Struck and probably fatally injured by an Iron Range train shortly before midnight last night, Marie Mattson, 17 years of age, lay unconscious seven hours in the snow until 7 o'clock this morning, when she was found by Watchman Michael Moore near the railroad crossing at Forty-fifth avenue east and London road.

She was hurried to the residence of H. J. Williams at 4427 Cambridge street, and thence to St. Luke's hospital, where an examination disclosed a fractured skull and a badly broken thigh. The authorities state that there is no hope of recovery.

Miss Mattson was employed at the Lakeside station of the Duluth Telephone company from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until about 11:30 at night, helping work her way through school. She is in the sophomore class at the high school.

The vote in joint session was forty-seven for Martine out of a total of seventy-nine. There were 79 votes cast. One assemblyman, a Republican, was absent, and a Democrat from Hudson county declined to vote. The complete vote was:

James E. Martine, Democrat, 47; James Smith, Jr., Democrat, 3; Edward C. Stokes, Republican, 21; John W. Griggs, Republican, 5; Mahlon Putney, Republican, 1; John Kearn, Republican, 1; John Franklin Fort, Republican, 1.

BALLINGER WILL SETTLE CLAIMS

To Pass on the Legality of Cunningham Matters in Alaska.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The responsibility of passing upon the legality of the Cunningham claims to Alaskan coal lands, probably will be left with Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and Commissioner Dennett of the general land office, in spite of the bitter controversy that has been waged over this question for more than a year. Expectation of a review of these cases by the court of appeals of the District of Columbia practically has been abandoned. No action has been taken in either case.

Some Democratic representatives who have announced that they would support the minority report, which condemns the secretary and exonerates Mr. Pinchot, made no secret of the fact that they do not want the court to take the Cunningham claims from the interior department.

PLAN TO BROADEN SCOPE OF LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE

Directors Would List All Duluth Bank and Industrial Stocks.

Efforts Said to Have Met With a Favorable Reception.

In order to broaden the scope of the Duluth Stock exchange and make it a general stock exchange instead of a mere copper stock exchange as it is at present, the board of directors has taken steps to obtain the listing of all local bank and industrial stocks.

A committee consisting of L. C. Harris, E. C. Congdon, A. B. Wolvin, J. B. Cotton and A. L. Warner has been appointed to present the matter to those interested in bank and industrial stocks, and the committee has met such a favorable reception that it hopes for speedy results.

In most cases, local bank and industrial stocks have only nominal quotations and a prospective purchaser or seller has difficulty in finding people who deal in these stocks and has further difficulty in obtaining correct prices to govern him in his dealings. The exchange proposes to give all such stocks an officially recognized bid and asked price on the Duluth Stock exchange and thus bring the market prices from obscurity.

It is believed that listing the stocks

NORTH DAKOTA MAN HAS DISAPPEARED

Chicago Police Asked to Look for John C. Keyes of Dickinson.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—John C. Keys, said to be a wealthy resident of Dickinson, N. D., was reported today to the police here as having disappeared in Chicago while on his way to Bristol, Tenn. His wife asked that a search be made for him. She expressed a belief that her husband had met with foul play. A telegram was received today from William Lockwood, Pipestone, Minn., a friend of the family. Mrs. Keys has also engaged an attorney here to assist in the investigation. Her husband was in Chicago early in December, and since then has not been heard from.

WELL KNOWN AUTHOR WHO WAS MURDERED

DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS.

FUNERAL OF DEAD AUTHOR

Will Be Held in "Little Church Around the Corner."

David Graham Phillips Dies From Wounds of Assassin.

New York, Jan. 25.—The body of David Graham Phillips, the slain novelist, probably will be laid to rest in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Caroline Frevert, who stood at her brother's bedside as he breathed his last shortly before midnight, and Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Phillips' close friend, visited the cemetery this morning with the intention of selecting the spot for the grave.

The body was taken from Bellevue hospital to an undertaking establishment on Fourth avenue and will be transferred later to the National Arts club, the writer's former home.

Arranging for Funeral.

George Horace Lorimer and Samuel G. Blythe, associates of Phillips during his lifetime, are assisting Senator Beveridge in arranging for the funeral.

The funeral will be held, according to an announcement this morning, in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, affectionately known to many as the "Little Church Around the Corner." The services will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. George C. Houghton, pastor of the little church, which since its establishment has been dedicated to the use of those who toil in the fields of art and letters. The Final Argument Is Being Made in the Schenk Trial.

Believed That a Verdict Will Be Quickly Reached.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 25.—The last session of the trial of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, charged with poisoning her husband John O. Schenk, opened today and before night it is expected the case will be in the hands of the jury. It is believed a verdict will be reached quickly.

For the first time since Judge Jordan issued his decree barring women from the courtroom while the trial was in progress, he relented this morning and permitted a woman news writer to sit in the room with the other re-

West End Laundry Entered During Night By Unknown Thieves.

Pile Laundry Parcels Around Safe to Deaden the Explosion.

Evidently the Work of Men Used to Handling Nitroglycerin.

Unknown thieves last evening broke into the Home laundry, 17 North Twentieth avenue west, and after burying the safe in a pile of clean clothes, they blew off the door with a charge of nitro-glycerin, taking away between $100 and $125 in cash.

Entrance was gained by taking out a window at the rear of the place. After the burglars had made their "touch," they left through the back door, which was found open this morning, when employes discovered that the place had been burglarized.

The police were notified as soon as the theft was discovered but as yet, no one suspected of the job has been apprehended. The work is thought to be

RURAL CARRIERS TO RECEIVE $1,000

Postoffice Bill Passed By House Gives Them an Increase.

Washintgon, Jan. 25.—The house yesterday passed the postoffice appropriation bill, carrying about $257,000,000 with no votes in the negative.

The postoffice committee of the house, the postmaster general and "others higher up" including by reference the president of the United States, came in for a scoring at the hands of members of the house during consideration of the bill.

The debate reached its height when Representative Sisson of Mississippi declared with vigor:

"The mail service of the United States is in a h— of a fix—to use a strong expression—and this house should fix the responsibility where it belongs. Some say it is the committee, some say it is the department and some say it is the president. The department has declined to spend the money appropriated for additional rural free delivery routes and is going to turn back a surplus of $1,700,000 from this service. Forsooth, upon what hath these Caesars fed, that they can thus defy the mandate of the house and of the United States senate?"

The house passed with enthusiasm an amendment providing that after July 1, 1911, the rural mail carriers should receive a salary not exceeding $1,000 a year.

MUST HAVE THE PROOFS.

French Society Bestows No Homage Until It Is Officially Convinced.

Paris, aJn. 25.—In connection with Explorer Charcot's appeal that France honor Capt. Robert E. Peary, Baron Hulot, secretary of the geographical society, states that the society has paid no official homage to the American because of a rigid rule which compels the presentation of proof before official recognition of a scientific achievement can be made.

The secretary added that a majority of the members of the society personally were convinced that Peary reached the North pole and "if Peary wishes to bring proof the society will receive it with open arms."

JURY IS NOW COMPLETE

Nearly Two Days Spent Selecting Men to Try Johnson.

Melodrowski Will Probably Be Witness for State in Case.

The jury in the case of the state against Algot Johnson, charged by the grand jury with murder in the first degree, is now complete.

Shortly before noon today twelve men had been selected and agreed upon by both the attorney for the defense and the state to decide upon the lad's guilt or innocence.

Before both sides had been satisfied, nearly fifty jurors had been drawn and examined. They were all excused but twelve for one reason or another.

The jurors are: E. J. Millette, Eve-

BIG CATCH OF HERRING

North Shore Has Dozen Firms Operating Where Two Were Before.

Iron Range Road Handles Large Quantities of the Lake Catch.

The fishing industry along the north shore is more active this year than it ever has been before, and the Duluth & Iron Range road is carrying thousands of pounds of fish from the territory tributary to Two Harbors every day, with an occasional full carload.

Last year and previous to that time there were only two fishing concerns operating along the north shore. This year there are a dozen of them, and they all are shipping large quantities of Lake Superior herring and other species. The shipments range from 200 to 250, varying in size, a day. From here they are sent to points all over this state, and to the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois and Michigan.

The shipments are coming from as far up the shore as Grand Marais, from where they are carried to Knife River by the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad, which transfers them to the Iron Range road at that point.

Some of the fishermen are said to be making a "killing" this year. Two men, who started in, in a small way near Two Harbors, are said to be averaging nearly $100 apiece, weekly, in profits.

VERDICT FOR THE SETTLER

Iron Range Railroad Must Pay $587 to Angus Goddard.

One by one the settlers and others living near the Duluth & Iron Range railway are being repaid for damages sustained by fire last summer. A number of the cases have been won and a number are yet on file.

A jury in district court returned a verdict this morning in favor of Angus Goddard and against the Duluth & Iron Range railroad for $587 for the loss of his home by fire which started on the railroad company's property.

Goddard sued for $750. He claimed that at Knox location, during the dry weather of last summer, servants of the company dumped burning coals, which quickly set dry materials on fire. A wind fanned the fire into a blaze which finally made its way to the house which he occupied. The house and all its furnishings were burned.

LEWIS SAID TO HAVE LOST OUT

Friends Admit White Has Been Elected President of Miners.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 25.—The result of the recent referendum vote on officers of the United Mine Workers probably will be announced to the convention today. In an address Vice President Moore of the organization, a Lewis man, acknowledged the election of John P. White of Oskaloosa, Iowa, as president.

Three defeats were the portion of the Lewis adherents yesterday. The first was the unseating of delegates from nine locals of District No. 2 of Central Pennsylvania; the second was the overwhelming vote given for the seating of William Green, delegate from an Ohio local, and president protem of the Ohio senate, the third was the decision of the convention to seat thirty-one contested delegates of the Irwin strike field in Pennsylvania.

The decision to seat the thirty-one delegates from the Irwin field, means that the long strike in that section which is opposed by President Lewis, will be continued and that a general strike may be called.

With this contest out of the way, organization of the convention, which has taken more than a week, has been completed and the convention is ready to proceed with regular business.

Early in order will be the report of the resolutions committee, which will present a resolution calling for a general strike in the Irwin field. Lewis' forces will oppose the strike.

Harry Lewis, assistant general passenger agent of the Soo line, is in the city today. After looking over the amount of business being done by the Soo at this point, Mr. Lewis is impressed with the passenger traffic being done here at a time when passenger business is very dull generally. Duluth is holding up her end very well, according to Mr. Lewis.

George Lovell, Northwestern passenger agent of the Wabash, is in the city today, as is Robert Haase, traveling passenger agent for the Baltimore & Ohio.

Mart Adson, general passenger agent for the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, is in Chicago today on passenger business.

MATUSKI HELD ON CHARGE OF BURGLARY.

John Matuski, who was arrested Monday afternoon on a charge of burglary in the second degree, was bound over to the grand jury after a preliminary hearing in police court this morning.

It was claimed that he broke into the residence of Mrs. Inga Hanson on Garfield avenue Sunday night about 11 o'clock, battering down the door and cruelly beating Mrs. Hanson. The woman had a decidedly bad-looking black eye when she appeared in court this morning to testify against Matuski. It appears that Matuski was angry because Mrs. Hanson had ordered him out of the house the day before.

Frank Kubry, who was arrested this morning on the same charge, was discharged, as it appeared that he had nothing to do with the case, except to accompany Matuski. He apparently did not aid Matuski or know that he was intending to commit any crime.

ARE WEDDED IN CHICAGO

Charles E. Wales of Minneapolis and Miss Sarah Smyth Married.

Groom Well Known Here and Prominent in Coal Trade.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 25. — (Special to The Herald.) — Miss Sarah Smyth, daughter of the late John M. Smyth, a well known Chicago merchant, was united in marriage at high noon today at the Dearborn avenue residence of her mother with Charles E. Wales of Minneapolis, Rt. Rev. Bishop McGolrick of Duluth, officiating, in the presence of the immediate family.

Mr. Wales has long been prominent in the coal trade; for the last few years as vice president and director of the Pittsburgh Coal Company of Pittsburg, with general supervision of the company's business in Chicago and the Northwest. He is a member of the Chicago club and other principal clubs of Chicago, Pittsburg, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, and is widely known. Mr. Wales' resignation as an officer and director of the Pittsburg Coal company was recently tendered the board for early acceptance in furtherance of his desire to devote more time to travel and to various enterprises in which he is interested.

Mr and Mrs. Wales will spend the remainder of the winter in Southern California and in the future expect to spend their winters there, in the South or abroad, and summers at Minneapolis, their country place near the Twin Cities and at Duluth, where Mr. Wales has extensive interests.

Duluth people will be much interested in the above announcement. The bride will not come to Minnesota as a stranger as with her brother, William P. Smyth, and her sister, Miss Jane Smyth, she has on various occasions been the guest of Mr. Wales' sisters and these visits will be remembered by many friends she has made in Duluth.

A firm friend of Mr. Wales said today: "Mr. Wales will be even better known to many Duluth people in his activities attending the Pioneer Fuel company previous to taking up his duties with the Pittsburg Coal company. Under his management the latter company acquired large coal interests at various ports on the western shores of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan, from Port Arthur, Ont., to Chicago. His work has been largely that of reorganizations and construction of new coal docks, such as the 1,000,000-ton coal storage plant now under construction on Rice's Point, this city, said to be the largest in the world.

He is a director in the Wisconsin Central railway, and in his railroad activities will be favorably remembered as having secured the right-of-way into Duluth for the Soo line and obtained for them terminals in this city second not even to the older lines entering the city, and at a time when it was thought by many that the last opportunity to get an entrance had gone by. He has always been a staunch friend and believer in Duluth's great future and evidenced the same by acquiring very large interests here which will always link him on the side of the best interests of this city.

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

Postoffice Now Trying to Induce Citizens to Buy Mail Boxes.

The government is promoting a campaign urging the residents of the city to secure mail boxes or put small slots in the doors of their homes.

It is stated that this would greatly aid the work of the carriers, who have more territory than they can well cover under present conditions. They are obliged to walk upstairs frequently, particularly in flat buildings, and lose much time in this manner. The local department has received 10,000 circulars from Washington setting forth the advantages of the mail boxes or mail slots. They will be distributed in this territory in connection with the efforts which are being made by the officials in this line. The postoffice officials are not allowed to act as agents for mail boxes, but they can be purchased at almost any hardware store.

An effort was made to have congress pass a bill making mail boxes compulsory, but it failed, and the department is now trying a campaign of education.

"TRADE AT HOME" CRY

West Duluth Commercial Club Begins Campaign for Merchants.

Will Also Urge Property Owners to Improve Their Buildings.

Circular letters are being sent out by the West Duluth Commercial club to business men and others interested in the general welfare of West Duluth, extending a special invitation to attend a meeting of the club Friday evening, when a discussion pertaining to the welfare of the local merchants will be entered into.

There is much sentiment among the business men at West Duluth for a "trade at home" spirit, discouraging mail order propositions. This will probably be discussed at the meeting. The merchants say that they are not experiencing any slump in trade, but want to make a good business still better.

Another movement which is favored among the members of the club is to have the property owners who have store buildings leased out, to take a personal pride in seeing that the buildings are kept up. They say that it improves conditions wonderfully to have a neat looking building in which to carry on business.

The circular letter, which the club is sending out is as follows:

"Dear Sir: The West Duluth Commercial club is particularly desirous of extending its support to a movement for the advancing of the interests of the business men of West Duluth.

"You are cordially invited to attend a meeting of the club on Friday evening, Jan. 27, for the purpose of getting together for a discussion of matters pertaining to the welfare of the local merchants.

"The members of the club desire an opportunity to get together with you and your associates that will result in an agitation of educating the people of West Duluth that by patronizing our West Duluth merchants they are advancing their own interests.

"The meeting will be open and a full and free discussion is invited from all those who desire to explain an opinion.

"The hall committee will provide refreshments, and a general good time is assured all who favor us with their presence.

"The club most heartily extends you an invitation and trusts that you will be on hand. Yours respectfully,

Election Board Forced to Vacate Booth By Fire.

Fire broke out about 6 o'clock last evening at the registration booth in the third precinct of the Eighth ward, which is located near the store of Olson & Kauppi, Sixty-third avenue west and Grand avenue. The building was practically destroyed by fire, but as the shack was an old one and small, the loss will not be much. The registry board moved its books and papers to Olson & Kauppi's store. The blaze is supposed to have originated from an overheated stove. The building belonged to A. McCarden.

SUPERIOR

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES MAY KEEP UP BAND.

Following the threatened disruption of the City band organization on account of the lack of funds, the various fraternal organizations of Superior may take up the proposition and assist the musicians. Many of the lodges are planning on big gatherings this summer, and the members fear that if the band disbands, Superior will have no musical organization to entertain its visitors. A number of annual conventions are to be held in Superior this year.

POLICE LOOKING FOR MURDER SUSPECT.

A tramp, answering to the description furnished the Superior police of the murderer of James Elwell at Hayward, Sunday, showed up at the home of Bernard Strong, 1012 John avenue, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock and asked for a "handout."

The matter did not come to the attention of the police until late in the evening, when Strong reported it to headquarters' station. Strong stated that the man had the appearance of having been in a fight recently, as his face was scratched.

The police were unable to locate the man today and it is believed that he has left the city. Andrew Hill, a laborer, was arrested as a suspect this morning, but was later released. Hill admitted that he knew the man accused of the crime, but declared that he did not know where he was.

LABORER ASKS BIG DAMAGES

Peter Rajacish Wants $10,000 From the Oliver Mining Company.

Peter Rajacish, by his guardian Rode Rajacish, asks $10,000 from the Oliver Iron Mining company for injuries alleged to have been sustained during the month of July, last year, while he was in the employ of the company as brakeman.

The trial of the case was begun this morning before Judge Homer B. Dibell of the district court.

The plaintiff in the action claims that while he was in the discharge of his duties, a loaded ore car ran off the track. The engineer attempted to pull it back on the track. He started the engine with a jerk, it is alleged, and the car fell back upon the plaintiff, crushing him, it is claimed.

He claims that the company failed to provide proper tools with which to work and also that the servants of the company were negligent.

He states in his complaint that he is disabled for life.

ICE MOVES OUT INTO THE LAKE

No more skaters will risk their lives on the glassy surface of Lake Superior for some time to come, not because there are not skaters, but because when Duluth awoke this morning it found the sheet of ice which had formed, had broken and gone out into the Lake.

Part of it was stacked up in little chunks along the shore this morning. Some horse racing enthusiasts were also disappointed. At least one red-hot racing fan was out on the ice yesterday to stake out a track. He found that the ice was eight inches thick and had planned to get busy within a week or thereabouts.

Those interested say that it was not due to any wind, as it has not been blowing enough to break up the ice sheet. The movements of the ice in Lake Superior are always more or less uncertain and mysterious, however.

Politicians Do Not Believe Grand Jury Will Do Much at Danville.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 25.—Inability of Sheriff Shepard to serve subpoenas in the grand jury investigation into the alleged traffic in votes in Vermilion county caused a quiet day today as far as grand jury action was concerned.

Deputy sheriffs were given subpoenas to serve today. These summonses bore names given to the grand jury by witnesses who have already appeared.

A typewritten list of questions is being used by the inquisitors in examining all witnesses in the vote scandal. In spite of Foreman Isaac Woodyard's determination few of the politicians who are closely familiar with the situation believe this grand jury will achieve the result it seeks.

New Brown Bread Recipe

Never soggy—Easily made

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Nearly everybody likes Boston brown bread, but so many have experienced trouble with its being soggy, they have become discouraged. Here is a new recipe that cannot fail if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You will be delighted with the results.

K C Brown Bread

One and one-half cup yellow cornmeal; 1¼ cup entire-wheat flour; 1 teaspoon salt; 1⅔ cup sweet milk; ½ cup molasses; 5 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder.

Sift together, three times, meal, flour, salt and baking powder. Mix molasses and sweet milk and stir into dry ingredients to make a smooth batter. Turn into two empty K C Baking Powder boxes, thoroughly buttered, and let steam three hours. This bread is particularly good to serve with salads or raw oysters; also at breakfast, as toast of all kinds.

Raisins or currants may be added, though some prefer it without.

Readers of this paper may obtain The Cook's Book containing this and 89 other delicious recipes free by sending the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. Co., Chicago. Send for The Cook's Book today. 28

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

COMPLETE THEIR WORK

Sons of Hermann Close Convention With Election of Officers.

Grand Lodge Will Hereafter Meet Only Every Second Year.

At the morning session of the Sons of Hermann, routine business held the attention of the delegates for the most part.

One of the resolutions providing that in the future the annual session be made bi-annual, to avoid expense, was passed, so that there will probably be no gathering of the grand lodge next year.

Although the meeting place of the next convention has not been decided upon, St. Cloud, Minn., will probably be chosen as the scene of the next grand gathering of the Sons.

Lobbying in the interests of the various candidates for office, in a mild and friendly sort of way, is going on this morning. The election is due to be held late this afternoon, which will about complete the business of the convention. It is expected that the various delegates will return to their homes this evening.

Old delegates state that they have never had a better time in their lives than they enjoyed at the annual ball held last evening in the Owls' hall, where the convention is holding its sessions.

The ball was attended by many of the prominent Germans of the city and the visiting delegates today are unanimous in the opinion that it was one of the most successful ever held by the Minnesota lodge.

The Hermanns-Sohn, published by F. C. Neumeler of Stillwater, Minn., was again made the official paper of the lodge. Mr. Neumeler is one of the delegates to the present convention, and is also the official reporter of the proceedings.

Those in attendance state that the Germans of Duluth have shown every consideration for their visiting countrymen, and these actions have made them feel kindly toward the city. Many of the delegates had never been to this city before.

Routine business will precede the election of officers this afternoon. Most of the business of the convention has been cleaned up, however, and with the election of the officers and their installation, there will remain little before the delegates for their consideration.

PLAN TO BROADEN SCOPE OF LOCAL STOCK MARKET

on the Duluth Stock exchange will promote trading and investment in local securities, give them a loan value, establish prices for the quick settlement of estates which hold such stocks, and advertise the stocks that may be obtained by people looking for investments in local corporations.

A circular letter has been sent out by the committee to the officers of the different Duluth banks and corporations and the response is said to be a satisfactory one. Bank officials are said to be heartily in favor of the plan, while other business men are also said to look upon it as a good business move.

Since its organization, the Duluth Stock exchange has dealt almost exclusively in copper stocks and has been looked upon as purely a copper stock exchange. By obtaining the listing of bank and industrial stocks, the scope of the exchange would be broadened, the volume of trading increased and the floor of the exchange would be more attractive to brokers than it is at present, with dealing in copper stocks at low ebb.

The committee will probably be able to make a report to the board of directors soon and the report is expected to be a favorable one.

leth; A. S. McDonald, Richard L. Stokes, William J. Ritchie, Edward C. Lamb, A. L. Sturgis, Emil Wagner, J. W. Parker, G. A. Welluer of Hibbing, L. F. Swain of Hibbing, Arthur F. Huntes and P. M. Shaw.

The jury in the Johnson case was one of the hardest to secure in several terms of court. It took nearly two days.

The taking of evidence will begin this afternoon. Dr. Robert Graham will be the first witness to be examined after County Attorney John H. Norton has explained his case to the jury. In all, the state will put but half a dozen witnesses on the stand. It is expected that after once getting started, the trial will take but a short time.

Melodrowski a Witness.

Charles Melodrowski, the boy with whom young Johnson held up the night porter at the McKay hotel, and who later in an attempt to escape arrest, shot and killed Officer Harry Chesmore of the police department, will testify for the state, it is expected. He was tried last week and found guilty of second degree murder, the verdict being brought in just fourteen days after the shooting had taken place. He has not been sentenced as yet. He will soon be brought to trial again on the robbery charge. This is, according to County Attorney Norton, more to make the robbery a matter of record than it is to try him on all the charges. If at any time he petitions for a pardon, the robbery will be a part of the record so that the board can get an idea of the whole affair.

Johnson's mother is with him in court. Attorney E. J. Kenney is defending. As in the Melodrowski trial the public is excluded.

SAFE IS BLOWN AND BURGLARS ESCAPE WITH $125 IN CASH

that of a professional. No clues were left to work on, and the manner in which the safe was blown shows that the men were familiar with the use of nitro-glycerin.

The burglars were evidently familiar with the building as they went into the basement, where the engine room was located and secured an ax, a hammer and some chisels, which were used later. The tools were found lying beside the safe when the place was opened this morning.

In order to muffle the sound of the explosion, the thieves piled clothes around the safe. They did not show any consideration in the matter, says the manager, even taking particular pains to select laundried articles, instead of those which were soiled and had not been washed.

The building is occupied by the laundry only and the burglars had everything their own way, but evidently did not take any chances on arousing the neighborhood. They made a neat job of it, blowing the door of the safe entirely off.

At the laundry this morning, it was stated that the loss could not be exactly determined as yet. The manager stated that the intruders had also taken a book, in which the bank balances were kept and said that he had no way of figuring out the exact amount gone. He said that it would probably be $125.

The cash register at the laundry was not tampered with. It had been left open and the money taken out and put into the safe at closing time last evening.

CONSIDERED A TEST VOTE

some extent a test because it was the first that followed the publication of a statement by Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, advising the Democratic legislators to stand by the action of the party caucus which had given Mr. Sheehan a large majority. Mr. Mack's statement was like that issued by Chairman Huppuch of the state committee on Sunday and apparently no more effective.

No Solution This Week.

After the ballot the impression prevailed that there would be no solution of the deadlock this week, and many members began to search for "pairs," partners to enable them to go home over Friday and Saturday.

After the result of the ballot had been announced, Senator Thomas F. Grady suggested to the members "that some agreement be had by those who are competent to make such an agreement, that upon some certain day we will meet here at 12 o'clock and continue balloting until a choice is made."

The suggestion was greeted with applause, and the senator continued: "If it is demonstrated to us that there is not much chance of making a choice this year, I suggest that we take such steps as may be necessary to have the choice made next year."

No action was taken.

Mr. Sheehan's opponents said they were not surprised by the lack of response to Chairman Mack's appeal.

"The deadlock," said one of them, "has continued too long for any one, excepting possibly Governor Dix, to shake the attitude of the so-called 'insurgents,' and I am not sure that the governor could now."

TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM

being given a certain district. The rough plan so far worked out will provide for about six of such districts, giving such examiner about 100 banks. There are nearly 600 state banks in North Dakota.

Instead of an annual inspection of each bank, as now provided, semi-annual inspection will be required. With the same examiner handling the banks of a district, he will soon be familiar with the workings of each individual bank, that being one of the strong points that the supporters of the measure will advocate. Under the present system the deputy bank examiners have no regular territory to cover, but go from place to place without any pretence of trying to cover the same banks one year that were covered the previous year.

Bankers of the state are very much interested in the proposed legislation, and declare that much better results would be achieved from such inspection as against the present plan.

Resubmission Proposed.

Resubmission will be proposed by Representative Sgutt of Wells county in a bill that he will introduce this week. There have been rumors for some time to the effect that a resubmission bill would be before the assembly, and this week Mr. Sgutt announced his intention of introducing such a measure.

"We would like to gain the present sentiment of the people of the state on the prohibition question by having a vote on the same. If resubmission fails to carry, then we will be satisfied and make no further effort at this time to secure a change from the present plan, but the anti-prohibitionists are sincere in their wishes for an opportunity of casting their vote on the subject."

Under the change in the salaries of the judges of probate court, as proposed by the bill that was introduced by Mr. Fraine of Walsh county, the amount that would be allowed such officers is exactly what it was up to two years ago, when a change was made by reason of the removal of the drug permits from that court to the district court. The increases proposed under the Fraine bill are from $100 to $300 per annum.

Under the terms of the Homness bill, introduced in the house, codification of the probate laws of the state is proposed. An appropriation of $1,500 is asked. This bill is in line with the request made by the County Judges' association of the state.

Would Raise Maintenance Rate.

An increase of $80 a year for taking care of patients at the state institute for feeble-minded at Grafton is provided in another bill fathered by Mr. Fraine. The present maintenance rate is $100 a year, but under the newly proposed measure it would be $15 a month, or $180 a year. The purpose of this bill, which is similar to the one introduced affecting the asylum for the insane, is to place the institution on a basis where maintenance appropriation bills will no longer be necessary.

The Ladd idea in the raising of the educational requirements of applicants for admission to the state as registered pharmicists is included in a bill introduced in the senate. Under its provisions candidates for pharmaceutical honors must pass a much higher educational examination, although sufficient time is allowed for those now studying to get in under the present standard of requirements.

Changes in Tax Laws.

Important changes in the taxation laws of the state were recommended by Secretary of State P. D. Norton in an address delivered before the North Dakota Tax association in this city today. Repeal of the present provision of the Constitution requiring that all property be taxed at its full money value is one of the changes that Mr. Norton recommended.

In the meantime, he suggests that a county assessor be appointed in lieu of the district assessor, more uniform results being achieved in that manner. Under the present laws bonds and mortgages are not brought out for taxation, but under a plan that would allow the taxation of such bonds and mortgages at a fraction of the value, more of that kind of taxation would result. The same holds true of cash on deposit, and in that particular the present system is an absolute failure.

Mr. Norton would also make tax laws in such a manner that unimproved property would be taxed higher than it is at present, thus doing away with the tax penalty that is attached to the making of improvements under the present laws. The gross earning tax for railroads was also approved by the speaker.

H. D. PAULSON.

To Cure Sore Bunions

Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water. Soak the feet in this for fifteen minutes. The soreness will go immediately. The way this treatment works is wonderful, and by repeating it each night for about a week the irritating matter will be entirely drawn out and the bunion reduced to normal. Don't suffer, try this at once. This Calocide is a most remarkable preparation for all foot ailments. By its use corns and callouses can be peeled right off and will stay off. Sore, tender feet and smelly, sweaty feet need but a few treatments—likewise frost bites and chilblains. A twenty-five cent package of Calocide is usually sufficient to put the worst feet in fine condition. Calocide is no longer confined only to doctors' use. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. This will prove a welcome item to persons who have been vainly trying to cure their foot troubles with ineffectual tablets and foot powders.

dividing the state school of mines, or separating part of its operations from the state university, and a sub-committee consisting of Representatives Pfaender, Conley and Harding was appointed to look into this feature of the measure and report at another meeting.

D. D. McEachin is in St. Paul in the interest of the state mining building which Hibbing has asked for, to house the mine inspection forces of the state government, and he is interested in the proposed experiment station, which might be made to work in with the plan for a state mining building at Hibbing.

Forest Fires.

G. A. Marshall of Cass Lake, supervisor of the Cass Lake forest reserve, appeared before the house committee on forestry yesterday afternoon to give the committee the benefit of his experience with practical forestry. He told the committee that in spite of the drouth of last summer and fall, out of the 300,000 acres of the federal reserve in his charge only eighty acres of timber land were burned. About 600 acres beside that were burned over, but it was mostly swamp land.

Mr. Marshall did not agree with the state's practice of fixing by law a definite time for burning cuttings and slashings, incidental to lumber operations. His practice is to see that the refuse from lumbering work is burned, but to have it burned at the most convenient and seasonable time. What that time is he leaves to his rangers, who are on he job and know better than any office man or lawmaking body possibly can which is the most practical period and method of destroying the inflammable refuse from lumbering operations. His plan, he said, has worked out satisfactorily, as his figures on the work of forest fires in his reserve during last summer and fall show.

Asked for his opinion as to what the state of Minnesota ought to do, he said that it ought to make an initial appropriation of at least $200,000 for a survey, for making roads and trails, and for other fundamental work to get the state's timber holdings under proper safeguard. After that the expenditure, of course, would be much less.

Propagating Fur Animals.

The possibility of propagating fur animals for revenue is suggested by a bill which Senator H. W. Cheadle will shortly introduce. The law now prohibits keeping any fur-bearing animals in captivity, and Senator Cheadle's bill will add a proviso that it shall not apply to keeping such animals in captivity for purposes of propagation.

Senator Cheadle will introduce this bill at the suggestion of Capt. Alexander McDougall of Duluth, who has written him as follows:

"The game laws of our state make it unlawful to keep any fur-bearing animal in captivity. With furs at their present high price I think it would be practical and profitable to raise in a semi-domestic way some of the animals most suited to such purposes. This is particularly true of the mink, which can be made nearly as tame as the household cat. If it were permitted by law the settlers in a small way, or others who wanted to do it as a business, might soon establish enterprises of much value—not only without harm to present conditions but to their betterment. I think that an amendment to existing laws permitting this would lead to getting more furs and more dollars for the people of the state than the present law ever will as it now reads."

Fur-bearing animals have their enemies, of course, and they suffer not only from trappers, but from natural enemies. If it were possible to domesticate them and thus lead to safe propagation under protective care, it seems entirely feasible to increase the supply of furs and at the same time to increase the supply of fur-bearing animals. The proposed amendment would offer no harm to the existing supply of fur-bearing animals, and there is little question that Senator Cheadle's bill will pass. If it results in experiments in the raising of fur-bearing animals, these experiments will be watched with keen interest.

It is reported here that Capt. McDougall has in mind the making of such an experiment; hence his interest in the matter.

To Prepare Reapportionment Bill.

Chairman Hackney of the senate committee on reapportionment has appointed the following sub-committee, consisting of himself and one member from each congressional district, which will have charge of the making of a reapportionment bill: Senators Hackney, Anderson, Bedford, Rockne, V. L. Johnson, Fosseen, C. D. Johnson, Lende, Gunn and Hanson.

This is looked upon by the friends of reapportionment as a particularly strong committee, composed of men who will work and vote in good faith for a fair and honest reapportionment bill.

Senator Victor L. Johnson, the Fourth district member of the committee, said yesterday afternoon that he would work and vote for any bill that promises a more equitable distribution of representation; and his expression probably is a fair sample of the feeling of the members of the committee.

Nevertheless, it must not be taken for granted, because the committees that have been appointed are strongly and positively for reapportionment, that the fight is won. It will be the big fight of the session, and the issue will be in doubt until it is settled one way or another.

Chairman C. A. Congdon of the house reapportionment committee will appoint his sub-committee today or tomorrow, and it is safe to say that its members will be as strongly for real reapportionment as the members of the senate committee.

Work on a reapportionment bill is still delayed by the fact that the detailed census figures have not yet arrived. The figures as to Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties are on the way, and are expected every day. The figures by counties are all in hand, but figures are still lacking on which to base the necessary division of the city of St. Cloud, which is in three counties. However, most of the fundamental work is well in hand, based on the reports already received, and it will not take long to complete that part of the work which has been set back by the delay of the detailed census figures.

State Board of Education.

Representative Kunze will introduce in a day of two his bill providing for a state board of education to take charge of all the educational institutions of the state except the university. He has not yet decided what to do with the university. Representative W. T. Stone's bill takes in the university as well, and Mr. Kunze is figuring on the possibility of getting around that point by providing that the members of the state board of education, or a part of them, shall be ex-official members of the university board of regents.

The senate elections committee will take up the Stephens-Saugstad contest at a hearing tonight. Senator Saugstad will be represented by O'Brien, Young & Stone of St. Paul, W. A. Marin of Crookston, and others. Ex-Senator Stephens' attorneys will be E. F. Sanborn of St. Paul and W. E. Rowe of Crookston.

No action has yet been taken by the committee on the Farrington-Froshaug case, though it is giving it much consideration.

Much Interest in Keefe Bill.

Representative J. R. Keefe of North Redwood is receiving many letters, from within the state and outside it, about his bill adding many thousands of acres of land to the productive area of the state by reducing the legal width of roads from four rods to three. One letter from North Dakota, asking for a copy of the bill, states that a similar bill will be introduced there. Mr. Keefe has been looking into conditions in other states, and finds that in very few do the laws call for a 4-rod road. The 4-rod road standard was set in Minnesota many years ago when land was plentiful and cheap; but now that land has become so valuable in the settled portions, much interest is being taken in Mr. Keefe's bill to reduce the size of roads and thereby increase the productive area of the farms along the roads.

Representative Robert C. Dunn of Princeton, who has been kept away from the house most of the session by a severe attack of grip, was back in his seat yesterday.

Pfaender in the Chair.

When the house went into committee of the whole yesterday to consider general orders, Speaker Dunn called Representative Albert Pfaender, the Democratic floor leader, to the chair; and his selection was warmly applauded. On a previous occasion, the first time the house went into committee of the whole, Speaker Dunn showed his courtesy by selecting Representative Burnquist, his late opponent for the speakership, to the chair.

This session is far behind the record-breaking session of two years ago in the number of bills presented to date. Up to yesterday the senate had received 137 bills and the house 162, making 299 in all. On the same day two years ago the senate had received 192 bills and the house 218, making 410 in all. The last session, in point of accomplishment, was about the poorest on record; and it may be that the lessened eagerness to flood the session with proposed new laws will work out to make this session a greater for achievement, if lesser in promise.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Nearly a hundred men, women, young people and children in their mackinaws, knitted caps and moccasins visited the ski grounds last evening and had a hilarious time "sliding down hill."

The Duluth Ski club had an open night and the privileges of the club were given to every one, whether they were members or not. The slides were crowded with people all evening, as toboggan after tobogganfull of breathless people came down and landed the occupants on the opposite hillside.

Skiers, too, were in evidence and quite a number made the jump from the smaller bump with success.

The club has lately started a membership list which is filling rapidly and the enthusiasm over the sport has reached a high pitch. The club has great natural advantages to work on. It is planning to build more slides both for tobogganing and skiing and one of the schemes is the building of an ice rink there. With a creek running through the grounds one could be built with very little trouble and this will probably be done next season.

The big ski tournament will be open to the public as usual and promises to be bigger than ever this year. A number of small parties went up last evening and after sliding, refreshments were served in the clubhouse before a fire in the fireplace.

Using Left-Over Garments

By MRS. GEORGE BRANDT WINTHROP.

The workingman's wife, with the wants of a lively throng of growing cherubs to attend to and satisfy, knows best what a trial her duty amounts to, especially if it is coupled with uncertain spells of spare time, and a slender purse in the face of it. Keeping their garments neat and respectable is in itself too often a difficult matter, but when the latter disadvantage intervenes it cannot be wondered that the mother feels inclined to proclaim her efforts useless.

The thing is, then, to find a method which will completely effectuate the desired change of attire when the proper season arrives, which may be carried out at the lowest possible expense, and further, occupy no more time than is absolutely necessary. The season for bringing about such a change in the wardrobe has at length arrived once more, and with regard to the detail process I will strive to come to the aid of my readers.

A charming little frock may be made thus: The top part is made in the one-piece style from one of last year's dresses, while the plaited flounce is one of another. Here the advantage is obvious. A full out-of-date skirt may easily be converted into the upper garment, especially if it is plaited, when the material may be well pressed and used the reverse way up. A yard and a half of 40-inch material is sufficient for this.

When it is impossible to obtain exactly the same kind, a slightly lighter shade may be used for the flounce, provided they harmonize perfectly; such a mixture may easily be quite artistic, if the colors are dull in tone, but it should be steadfastly avoided if the shadings are at all inclined to be bright, as the smallest slip will create the limit of ugliness and bad taste.

The workmanship comprises altogether only the elements of simplicity. The upper part is made in the usual way, with the seam beneath the arms; and is finished with a fairly deep hem at the bottom and sleeves which may be elaborated with a few rows of machine stitching or a row of simple trimming. The flounce is pleated and stitched first, and is then attached to the top.

Costume coats, which in the general way usually manage to pass out of style before anything else, may also be used very profitably for the children. If these garments happen to be three-quarter length, loose and in good condition, very little altering in cutting and a little care in the reconstructing, will form them into the smartest and most elegant great coats for schoolgirls. Thorough pressing of hems and seams in the making, a well-fitting lining—this may often be taken from any old skirt or coat also—and, when within the limits of the worker, a neat velvet collar will render the most perfect tailor-made effect the amateur can wish for.

Yet another way of using an old coat—and an excellent one, too, at that—is to cut it up and make it into gaiters for school wear for the children. The little ones will especially appreciate this forethought on the part of their well-wishing mothers during the cold, frosty mornings, when poor wee mites, the sharp winds, and even ice, prove rather more than is pleasant for them.

Hints for the Boudoir

By MILDRED WYCKOFF.

Frills Must Be Dainty.

The daintier a boudoir is, the more difficult it is to keep it immaculately neat, and nothing is more offensive to good taste than a rose draped nest and dust thick in the folds of the draperies. The more frills there are, the more pretty ribbons and cushions and ruffled pillows, the more care will be required to keep the rosy nest as dainty as it was the day of its first arrangements, but so it must be kept, else the most austere little hospital-like room would be preferable.

Keeping Young.

One of the great secrets of retaining a youthful appearance, other than by creams and lotions, massage and such like external treatments, is to maintain a cheerful, healthy outlook on life.

Keep up a youthful spirit, and you will keep up youthful looks.

If you feel old, you will look old, no matter what your age may be—even if you are still on the sunny side of 40.

Inaction and lack of interest in outside affairs tend to crystallize a woman's sympathies and make her "old," compared to the woman who keeps her heart young by opening her mind to humanity, thinking little of self, and appreciating the humorous and romantic elements of life—elements that are the saving grace of those with burdens to bear.

Enlarged Pores.

"I am troubled with very large pores all over my face. Can you help me?" asks "Pearl."

This trouble is probably due to neglecting to rinse your face in cold water. Always do this, as the cold water closes the pores. Apply the following lotion with a piece of old, clean linen to the pores twice a day:

Boric acid.....1 drachm
Diluted witch hazel.....4 ounces

A druggist will make this up for you.

THE EVENING STORY

A Christmas Engagement

By William Rankin.

The pretty girl in the gown of forget-me-not blue, with the fair fluffy hair and the face like some rare exquisitely tinted flower, and the young man of the Quidnesque type of features, were standing together at the far end of the ball room, looking highly pleased with each other.

"I wonder for what unremembered deed of mine I am rewarded by meeting you again so soon," he was saying as he appropriated her dance card, uttering an excalamation of dismay to find it already thickly scrawled with initials.

Calmly Sylvia Desmond exchanged it for another, drawn from amongst the shimmering trimmings of her bodice, explaining:

"That is the wrong one. I keep this for my friends."

"You did not juggle with programs at the last dance we met," remarked the young man, writing his name rapidly and often, and the girl replied:

"No, it was not necessary; but, you see, this is different. At this Christmas gathering the old fogey element is apt to predominate more than I like, so I keep a filled card for undesirable partners to see."

"Besides," she added, "I have a special reason for protecting myself tonight."

"Indeed. Tell me who is the luckless wretch who has fallen under the ban of your wrath."

Sylvia drew her white brows into the most distracting of frowns, as she exclaimed:

"Please don't laugh. I assure you it is no laughing matter to me. A man is to be here tonight for the express purpose of asking me to marry him, and all my Christmas Eve fun will be simply ruined by the strain of having to evade him."

"There is an exciting sound about that. May I suggest that you start evading him by dancing with me at once?"

The band was softly beginning the first bars of a waltz, and, slipping his arm around Sylvia's waist, the young man drew her into the revolving maze of couples before she had time to demur.

"I am engaged for this," she murmured.

"To me," came the unabashed reply. "Trust me to deal with the old fogey when I have to cut out afterwards. I want to hear more about the man with the engagement ring in his pocket as a Christmas gift for you. What is his name?"

"Cecil Burgess."

The pretty girl's partner made a pause, abrupt and disconcerting in his rhythmic swing to the lilt of the music, and in surprise she glanced up at him, asking:

"What is the matter?" In all those other waltzes we had together the last time we met—and the first time, for that matter, it was—you did not do anything so foolish."

"I'm awfully sorry," he stammered. "I turned my ankle a little. Let us go in here and rest. Shall we?"

"Isn't it a trifle early for sitting out?" protested Sylvia, nevertheless letting herself be coolly settled amongst the cushions of a wicker chair in the dimly-lighted conservatory, and the young man returned:

"I dare not risk as much as another turn yet. Won't you tell me the details of Cecil Burgess and his engagement ring?"

"They are very simple. He is the nephew of some very rich people who have bought the property adjoining ours, and he has been abroad for some years. Now he is coming home to spend Christmas and remain, and his uncle and aunt have decreed that he shall marry me."

"And what do your folks say to the proposed match?" the young man queried.

"Oh, mother supports it," she said indignantly, "just because we are poor and Cecil Burgess is rich, I am to be flung at his head."

"But suppose he turns out to be good looking, pleasant, and—and all that sort of thing? I take it you have not met him yet?"

"No, we are to meet tonight. Only just now old Mr. Burgess, with the slyest of chuckles, said to me, 'Cecil has arrived, my dear; brown as a berry and as fit as a fiddle. He is certain to be howled over at first sight of you. Just let him propose and you say "Yes" like a good girl. Christmas eve is the very time for a bethrothal. Did you ever hear anything so hateful?"

The young man replied with a counter question.

"Do you remember that fancy dress ball at the hotel in Cairo two months ago when we first met? You were 'Queen of the Night,' and I was in Arab dress, and you were gracious enough to give me every other waltz for the night?"

"Because our steps suited, and you were so insistent."

"Quite so, and I am going to be insistent again. I have thought of a splendid plan by which you can elude Cecil Burgess."

"How?"

"By getting engaged to me."

"To you?"

"But it will be a trifle awkward, won't it?" she objected. "You see, we do not know so much as each other's names. You only arrived at the Cairo hotel on the day of the fancy ball, and you left the following morning. We were not introduced."

"Yet for all that I presumed to fall in love with you. That evening at Cairo, I paid homage to the beauteous 'Queen of the Night,' and my heart has held that homage ever since."

"How do you know what I am called?"

The young man laughed and prevented the tremulous fluttering of her hands by imprisoning them in his own.

"Because I inquired at the hotel, sweetheart," he said.

"I thought you meant me to be engaged to you for fun—to keep off Cecil Burgess," Sylvian whispered, and very softly came the answer:

"I meant you to be engaged to me for always, if you will only consent."

"That evening at Cairo I liked you a—a great deal," she confessed, "but I did not dream that we should meet again and that you cared for me."

"It's alright, dearest," he said, with a laugh. "The band is playing. Let us have it together, sweetheart, our betrothal waltz."

They paused as the last chords died into silence at the far end of the ball room, where he had first sought her, and presently Sylvia exclaimed:

"Here comes old Mr. Burgess. You must save me from his rich nephew."

Before he could reply, old Mr. Burgess was standing in front of them, ruddy and beaming.

"So you two young folks have stolen a march on me, and have made each other's acquaintance already," he cried.

"We did that two months ago in Cairo, uncle," said the young man, unperturbed, whilst Sylvia echoed his last word.

"Uncle! You—you are not—"

"Cecil Burgess," he said, slapping her hand within his arm, and pressing it close to his side.

"Forgive me. My shrewd old uncle here was smitten so with your charms that he has been writing to me of you for weeks."

"And you knew Sylvia all the time?"

"I had already fallen deeply in love with her," said Cecil Burgess, "and I was only too eager to put my fate to the touch. You will have your cherished desire, uncle. Sylvia is going to be your niece long before next Christmas if all goes well."

"To think that all the time I was talking to you of yourself and saying I would not be flung at your head," murmured the girl.

"You proposed under false pretenses, Cecil. I don't think my acceptance holds good now."

"Our first Christmas chimes, dear heart," he whispered, his arm around her, as her pretty head rested contentedly on his shoulder. "I'll propose again if you like, now that the mystery is cleared up. Indeed, I'll do anything you demand of me to ratify this as a Christmas engagement."

Too Many Clothes

By Margaret Watts De Peyster.

A woman who desires to dress well on a small income, and it can be done, must learn first of all never to have too many clothes on hand at once.

Let her buy the things she needs, wear them out, and then buy others. It is better to have one well made tailor suit, keep it until it shows signs of wear, and then replace it, than it is to have several inferior suits.

As to large stocks of underwear, they are only an anxiety. If not looked after frequently they grow yellow or a vagrant mouse makes a nest in them.

Styles, too, alter frequently in underwear as in outer garments; also human figures alter and grow fat sometimes, and the treasure articles won't fit when they are brought out.

As to shoes, it is better for the feet and better for the shoes, to have several changes and wear them in rotation but if shoes are kept too long the leather is apt to rot.

DYSPEPSIA-PROOF

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed By Any Stomach.

Costs You Nothing to Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail. Stuffed Olives.
Boston Clam Chowder.
Strained Gumbo.
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms.
Roast Beef Hash.
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut.
Lobster a la Newburg.
Baked Pork and Beans.
Combination Crab Salad.
Hot Mince Pie.
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look anyhow as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50c a package."

Yes, it is true. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GILBERT HEARS MR. FAGENSTROM

Head of Boys' Department of St. Paul Y. M. C. A. Speaks.

Gilbert, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The students of the McKinley, Sparta and Gilbert schools were delightfully entertained Monday afternoon and evening by Ernest Fagenstrom, head of the boys' work department of the St. Paul Y. M. C. A., in a very interesting and entertaining address to the boys and their parents on the Boy Scout movement.

The talk was illustrated by over

100 views, showing the boys at work as scouts and contrasting this with other phases of boy life when not directed or supported by the parent and school. It is probable that a movement will be started in the three larger schools before spring opens and inter-school contests arranged and scout journeys made. Mr. Fagenstrom was very much surprised at the excellent schools and equipment, and took an especial interest in the high school. The Boys' band furnished the music for the entertainment. They were assisted by Miss Elizabeth Lively who sang a most pleasing soprano solo.

CHISHOLM'S NEW HALL SOON READY

Finnish Building Costing $18,000 Will Soon Be Completed.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Finnish hall, one of the largest buildings here, located near the corner of Maple street on Central avenue, is nearing completion. All the scaffolding on the sides has been taken down, and the hall has had its priming coat of paint.

When the building is completed Chisholm will have as convenient a hall as there is on the Mesaba range for the accommodation of theatrical troupes, big mass meetings, etc.

The building is 120 by 46 feet, having a stone basement ten feet high, which will be fitted up for the purpose of holding public meetings and lodge meetings.

The ground floor will have a stage of regulation size, with an auditorium seating 600 people.

The upper story will be used for a library and rest room, and is to be furnished with tables, seats and parlor games, and it is the purpose of the management to make this floor what its name implies, a public home where workmen and others may pass the evenings in home-like surroundings.

The building is to be lighted by an electric light plant of its own and there are to be between 600 and 700 lights in the building.

Only the front rooms on the main floor and the rooms on the upper floor are to be latned and plastered; the management deciding to sheet the big hall and stage with tin sheeting. All the work is being done by local workmen under the direction of a foreman. When completed the building will cost nearly $18,000.

John Collander is the business manager of the hall.

CHISHOLM'S NEW WATER TANK IS BEING BUILT.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Satisfactory progress is being made in the erection of the new water tank going up at the head of Lake street, near the site of the old tank. The concrete pillars are all laid, as well as all the steel structure work reaching from the top of the pillars to the platform upon which the tank will set.

The new tank will be 100 feet high to the base of the reservoir and will have capacity for 300,000 gallons of water, thus ensuring 100,000 more gallons of water than the present tank. The contract for putting up the tank is held by the American Bridge company of Minneapolis, and A. Bennett is foreman in charge of the crew now at work on the job.

VIRGINIA MILK NOT VERY RICH

Milk Inspector Informs Council That Liquid Is Very Low Grade.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Milk Inspector Guldinger started something at the council meeting last night when he gave the result of tests he has made of the milk served in hotels and other public eating places showing that it is not up to standard. In few instances did he find any reaching the standard of 3½ per cent fat, some running as low as 1 per cent. He will make further tests and unless there is improvement, urge prosecutions. He tested some milk shipped in and found it between 3 and 4 per cent, but later tested the same milk at a hotel and found it had dropped to 2 per cent. He claims that only two cows of eighty inspected were not in condition. The council will await further tests before taking action. The city engineer was urged to hasten drawing plans and specifications for these streets to be paved this year: Spruce, Poplar, Cedar and Hemlock streets from Railroad to Virginia avenues, which are five blocks in length, and Mesaba, Wyoming, Cleveland and Virginia avenues for nine blocks, or from Maple to Larch streets. Both bithulithic and creosote blocks will be used in paving these thoroughfares.

New Saloon Ordinance.

The new liquor ordinance to take the place of the one turned down by the council was read the first time. It carries practically the same provisions as the other, with the exception of section 13, regulating screens in saloons. The other document provided that no obstructions to prevent the view of the entire room where liquor is sold shall be maintained during the closing hours, and this was changed to read "an entire view of the bar." The new ordinance also provides that the license fee shall be raised from $500 per year to $1,000. There are fifty-six saloons here and the proposed raise will mean a considerable increase in the revenue of the city.

The ordinance committee and the city attorney were instructed to draft an ordinance regulating the handling and storage of gasoline, as it is said that a number handling it are storing it in amounts greater than five gallons in their places of business, which is against the law.

Miss Jessie McNeil, clerk of the municipal court, reported fines collected for the week ending Jan. 21 of $204.50.

EVELETH PUPILS WRITING ESSAYS

Seeking Prizes Offered for Compositions on Civic Topics.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prizes offered by Rev. Phillip Schwarz, Jr., chairman of the committee of fifty, for the best essays on law enforcement, public parks and other civic topics by pupils in the high and eighth grade has stirred a lot of embyronic authors and the contest promises to be a success.

The essays must be submitted by next Tuesday, the names of the authors being withheld from the judges to insure fairness. Miss Elizabeth Greeley Marsh of the high school faculty is one of the judges. The other two will be named later. It is planned to award the prizes, which will be $5, first prize; $3, second prize, and $2, third prize, at the first public gathering of the committee on Feb. 13. It is also planned to have the paper winning the first prize read at the gathering.

The committee of fifty is already making plans for a second contest, which will be an oral one.

The first semester of school work closes this week with examinations in all the departments. The examinations started today and will continue until the end of the week.

HIBBING COUNCIL HOLDS A SESSION

Saloon Licenses, Building Permits and Other Matters Brought Up.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village treasurer's report for the month of December showing total gross receipts of $47,865.59 and expenditures, $46,436.93, leaving a balance of $1,428.66 cash in hand, was presented to the council last night and accepted. Miss Rose Silk, clerk of the municipal court, for the week ending Jan. 14, reported receipts of $18, and for the week ending Jan. 23, $80.59. The application for transfer of liquor license from Charles Virginia of 306 Pine street to Scalcucci Bros. was published. Application for renewal of liquor license of Mike Granceaux of 411 Pine street was ordered published. Several requisitions were on the table for consideration and after due consideration were accepted, including one from the municipal court for new journals and cash books for the current year, and additonal supplies of hay and lumber for the fire department and some incidentals, such as rubber coats, etc.

Two quarterly installments for keeping the public library of $1,250 were ordered paid. The Virginia Brewing company asked permission to put an addition of 22 by 26 feet to its property on the north side of the Hibbing hotel, but it was held over that the applicant be requested to read the conditions of the ordinance and state what kind of a building they propose to erect. Paul Morris of 219 Pine street asked to be allowed to build a 12 by 18 foot addition to his saloon to be constructed of corrugated iron and to be fireproof, and was accepted. According to the terms of the settlement arranged on behalf of the village in connection with the personal injury claim of Mrs. Annie Adams for damages received through a defective sidewalk, it was decided to make two orders each for the amount of $250, one to be given to Mrs. Adams and the other held by the village attorney pending the result of the lien by Mrs. Adams' attorneys. The appointment of a park board was mentioned but no definite steps taken.

WATER PRESSURE FOUND TOO HEAVY

Three Hibbing Firemen Have to Hold Nozzle While Manipulating Hose.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The water pressure and the coming change in the voltage of the village lighting system were the chief items brought up at the meeting of the water and light commissioners last night. It was mentioned in connection with the water pressure that at a recent fire the pressure was actually greater than could be handled with comfort by the fire fighters, three men being required to manipulate one nozzle. It is probable that for future fires the pressure will be slightly decreased leaving a reserve in case of real need. The approaching change of the voltage from 1,100 to 2,200 was mentioned and the inevitable shut down of the lights for one or two days while the change is being made, but no definite information was given by the commission as to when this would take place. Efforts are being made to sell the village fixtures for a White Way and the proposal precipitated some discussion on the matter. Capt. Wearne was of the opinion that a White Way would not be as easy to maintain in Hibbing as in other towns on account of the heavy blasting, but no very definite stand was taken either way with regard to the matter. Efforts are being made to have the telephone poles recently vacated by the Mesaba Telephone company but still being used to support guy wires for the village lighting system removed. The matter was brought to the notice of President Angst, and he remarked, "Let them stay till we are ready to move them."

GRAND JURY AT VIRGINIA BUSY

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tuesday forenoon was taken up in district court by the reading of the calendar and marking cases to be tried at this term. Out of the 103 cases on the calendar, 62 were marked for trial at Virginia, 29 at Hibbing, 8 continued, 3 dismissed and 1 case settled, and several cases were moved on the calendar for trial. Cases to be tried by jury will not be called until next week, when the petit jury will assemble. The cases marked for trial next week are: Monday—Town of Buyck vs. the Bankers' Surety company; Oscar Sundquist vs. Andrew Sorenson; Charles Wahlston & Son vs. Uno Huttula. Bradley.

Assistant County Attorney Howard Greene is assisting Assisstant County Attorney Edward L. Boyle in examining witnesses before the grand jury. Sheriff Meining is also in attendance at court here, as are also Deputy Sheriffs Little and Merrill.

LIES DOWN AND DIES.

Frank Zuzza Selects an Odd Method for Shuffling Off.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald)—The body of Frank Zuzza was found in a swamp along the Mountain Iron road near the cemetery yesterday afternoon by some passers-by. Deputy Coroner Dr. J. H. Crowe had it brought to Gillespie's morgue. The last seen of Zuzza alive was Monday night, when he was in company with a number of his friends, who claim that they left him at about 10 o'clock. Why he wandered in the direction where the body was found is not known, nor can any reason be given for his wanting to seek death, if that is what he desired to accomplish by going into the swamp. Dr. Crowe says that he did not commit suicide or freeze to death, but simply laid down and died. Zuzza was about 25 years of age and single. Whether he has any relatives living in this country is not known.

HALL WELL LIGHTED.

Chisholm Public Building Has Its Own Lighting Plant.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village hall now has its own lighting plant and the service is very satisfactory. Each office in the building is brilliantly lighted by the new plant, set up a few days ago in the basement of the building. The new lighting plant is duly appreciated also by the members of the Commecial club, who hold their meetings there.

Rev. Orris Suver, pastor of the M. E. church at Marble, visited Rev. Kerst on Monday and inspected the new church building. It is Mr. Suver's intention to build a new Methodist church in Marble.

MANY FALLS ON ICY SIDEWALKS

Drizzling Rain Makes Avenues Treacherous for Pedestrians.

Today dawned with a drizzle in the air that foredoomed many a man and many a damsel to meet on common ground.

It was just cold enough for the drizzle to form a moist, slippery covering for the sidewalks, and it is surprising that serious accidents did not result from the condition.

Many draft animals suffered greatly from the condition of the streets. Although the avenues afforded safe footing for the pedestrians and they took that advantage in large numbers, the horses had less good fortune. If they happened to be hauling heavy loads, their progress up grade was extremely difficult.

The city authorities this morning sent men out to sand the walks and every effort was made to prevent accidents.

Gives the Best Light at Any Price

When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil light has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unflickering light of the low-priced Rayo.

PRESIDENT INTERESTED

In the Unseating of Senator Lorimer, Says Senator Paynter.

Member From Kentucky Brings Executive Into the Fight.

Washington, Jan. 25.—For the first time since the debate in the senate in the case of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois began, mention today was made of the reported interest of the president in the unseating of that senator because of the charges of bribery in his election. The reference was by Senator Paynter of Kentucky, who was a member of the sub-committee which investigated the charges and of the full committee on privileges and elections which brought in a report exonerating the Illinois senator.

Mr. Paynter upheld the majority report. He declared Senator Lorimer a man of "perfect morals" and opposed his being made "a sacrificial offering to popular demand."

Mr. Paynter made Senators Beveridge and Owen targets of a sarcastic paragraph referring to the attempts to each to be the one to "strike the first blow" against the right of Senator Lorimer to his seat.

Before speaking of the testimony in the case, Mr. Paynter said that he did not appear as "the apologist of bribe-givers or bribe-takers." Declaring the question to be a judicial one, Mr. Paynter said:

"I did not approach the investigation with any feeling or thought that the country demanded a victim to appease its wrath, or that any member of this body, if such a demand was made, subserviently would yield to it. Nor did I suppose it was necessary to do so to give character and standing to the administration."

Brings President In.

Having brought the president into the discussion, the Kentuckian professedly undertook to eliminate him from it. Referring to the frequent assertion that the president is using his personal, if not his official influence against Mr. Lorimer, Mr. Paynter said he desired to resent the imputation against the president.

"I have had," he said, "an exalted opinion of the president's character and have believed that he has chosen wisely in many of his selections for judicial position.

"The president is a great lawyer and knows that one branch of our government should not invade the province of another. The president knows that the senate is made the judge of the election of its members, certainly the president would not attempt to violate the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitution."

Could as Well Advise Court.

Declaring that such a course on the part of the president would be "calamitous and humiliating," he said the president could as well advise the supreme court as to the tenor of its decisions in the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases as undertake to influence the senate's course with reference to its action for or against Mr. Lorimer.

Referring to Senator Beveridge and the minority report he presented, attacking the Lorimer election, Mr. Paynter remarked "If he committed an error in the preparation of the minority report, I think he is entirely excusable. The senator evidently had to prepare it in great haste because he and another distinguished senator, Mr. Owen, from Oklahoma, were in a mad rush, in a frantic effort to strike the first blow in this contest.

"Both, from their point of view, were endeavoring to enlighten an expectant public upon a question affecting the honor and dignity of this body. It prevented a scene, the like of which I have never witnessed before during my brief service here."

Defends Lorimer.

Mr. Paynter defended the character of Senator Lorimer, who he said, was "a man of perfect morals," and also spoke in terms of praise of Speaker Scurtleff of the Illinois house of representatives and Lee O'Neil Browne, the Democratic minority leader, who gave their support to Lorimer.

Taking cognizance of the demand upon him from his own state to oppose Lorimer, Mr. Paynter declared that he could not yield.

"In the consideration of the judicial question that is before us, if I knew that every man, woman and child in Kentucky were of the opinion that I should vote to unseat Mr. Lorimer, I would not do it," he said.

Inquiry Regarding "Third Degree Methods" in Schenk Case.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 25.—A sensational incident developed here today when it became known that the United States senate, through its committee to investigate criminal law administration, had taken a hand in the case of Mrs. Schenk on account of alleged "third degree methods." Attorney J. J. P. O'Brien received a telegram from Louis J. Carmody of the select committee of the senate to investigate the administration of the criminal law, by federal officers, in which he asks whether "there is anything to show third degree methods used by the prosecution to force this alleged statement from your client? Am watching this case carefully and will appreciate anything you may do to help me."

Attorney O'Brien sent the following reply: "Unable to answer telegram until now. Would not advise investigation until after verdict."

IMMIGRATION AND SLAVERY.

Joseph Lee in the Survey: So long as every rise of wages operates merely to suck in unlimited thousands of the surplus population of Europe and Asia, no permanent raising of our own standard can be hoped for. The net result of present immigration is simply to spread the unfortunate conditions which these immigrants represent over our own country, and to leave their home problem as far from solution as it was before. It is the old case of English sparrows over again; there are not permanently fewer of them in England since they came here and drove out our native birds.

A large part of the present movement, especially from the Southern and Eastern Europe, is made possible through assistance of relatives or friends.

To the steamship companies the emigration from Southern and Eastern Europe is peculiarly attractive because so many of the immigrants from these countries go forward and back, so that the company gets a fare both ways.

In short, our present immigration, thus fostered for purely industrial purposes, is largely a cold business proposition. It has behind it, partly the same business motive—the desire for a supply of cheap labor—which formerly brought about the African slave trade (although, of course, the two cases are not closely parallel in other respects), and partly the natural desire of the steamship companies for larger dividends.

A natural consequence of this selection largely by steamship agents is that the types selected are not such as easily to assimilate with our present population. The absence of family life among a large proportion of the immigrants, the overcrowding and congestion in cities, the fact that "the tendency to become naturalized citizens, even among those who have been here five years or more, is not great," are all natural and consistent consequences of the purely commercial motive on the part of the importer and of those imported.

FALLS FROM GREAT HEIGHTS.

New York Sun: Falls from great heights not necessarily fatal in their results are becoming so frequent in these days of aeroplaning that it may prove of interest to describe some famous achievements in this line.

Writing in 1841 of a fall from an immense altitude which did not result in death, a French observer, M. Manzini, declares that he had searched in vain in the annals of science for a similar case.

We can well believe it, says the Lancet. The victim or patient was a tapissier, who had been engaged in putting up decorations on the occasion of the belated obsequies of Napoleon the Great, in the lofty dome of the Church of the Invalides in Paris.

While busy moving a ladder on the top of a high scaffolding he overbalanced himself and in obedience to some instinct jumped clear of the ladder and platform, crying to his fellow workmen, as only a Frenchman would "Tiens, me voila parti!"

With those cheerful words on his lips he fell eighty-two feet, bounding in one place off the roof of a little dome, which caused him to describe a second parabola in the air, and landing finally, feet first, on the slate roof of a small sacristy. Crashing through the slates he landed astride a rafter, where he was found sitting surprised but coherent, for he was able to give his name and address when asked for them.

He had no recollection of this and became unconscious when put to bed shortly afterward under the care of the great Pasquier. His insensibility lasted a very short time, however, and he made an extraordinary rapid recovery, having sustained no apparent injuries either external or internal. At the end of a month Pasquier found him quite well.

Manzino also records the case of his own fall from a great height when a child and describes the feeling of blindness that came upon him, due to the rapidity of his descent, also the anguish of recovering his breath after it. Others, however, describe their sensations during a tremendous fall as being far from disagreeable.

Thus some nine years ago Prof. Heirn, the geologist of Zurich, described "the flood of thought" that traversed his mind during a typical Alpine fall which began on an inclined plane. He saw beautiful scenes and visions of his past life as he fell, and reflected rationally on his death or the chance of escape. He felt no pain on striking the ground, but he heard a thud, which was the impact of his own head on a rock.

Another Alpine faller thought about his insurance and his family. "Of the losing of my breath, of which people talk, there was no suggestion, and only the heavy fall on the snow covered ground caused me to lose suddenly and painlessly all consciousness." Both these Alpinists insisted on the absence o fanxiety from their minds when falling, while one certainly describes sensations similar to those felt by drowning.

Among classic English falls may be mentioned that of a steeplejack who in 1800 fell from the top of the church of St. George in Bolton-le-Moors to the ground, the whole distance traversed being some 120 feet. The man's skull struck some sheet lead upon the earth and left its impact upon it, but though this fall was quite unbroken as in the previous cases by scaffolding, rocks and so forth the man was only slightly injured and resumed work in a few days.

Recently a man with his boots on fell from the top of a cliff at Dover the height of which was afterward found to be 400 feet. He was picked up floating insensible in some five feet of water, but his boots were off, which proves that he must have retained sufficient consciousness on reaching the water to enable him to draw his boots from his feet. Both these cases are well attested.

MANY ATHLETES ARE NOW PROMINENT IN PUBLIC EYE

It's a long leap from athletic greatness to political fame and fortune, but not always for the aggressive, hustling popular idols of the baseball, football, track or sporting world.

Little peeks into the lives of our leading barristers, state and governmental officials, municipal executives and political pilots are most convincing. There's a time-honored query which reads as follows: "Where are the stars of yesterday?" And the answer is, "Squatting in governor's chairs, seeking senatorial berths or other equally desirable offices."

All the celebrities in this particular yarn have bounded into the public eye after first attaining national reputations in some branch of outdoor endeavor. Take the case of John K. Tener, governor of Pennsylvania. Not long ago Cub fans were wont to call him "Jack" and urge him to demonstrate while playing with Anson on the old Chicago team. After breaking away from the national pastime Tener turned his attention to the oil fields, reaped a golden harvest, copped high honors in the fraternal world and last fall ran a perfectly swift Marathon, leading right up to the main entrance of the capitol building at Harrisburg, Pa.

Back in the late '70s, when baseball was taking a strange hold on the American public, one A. G. Spaulding carried the biggest spear of 'em all as regards pitching, "chucking," slinging, or whatever they called that branch of the game before the "spitter," "fadeaway," "roundhouse" or "underhand raise" came into almost daily use. Then following years of hard work, with the pitcher selecting another walk in life. Recently the veteran hero of the diamond vainly sought admission to the United States senate as California's representative.

Princeton's football squad once boasted of a plain, everyday husky responding to the name of Edwards. By and by he grew up, got his full growth, and by a series of hair-raising performances against Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth, et al, earned the sobriquet "Big Bill." Following his release from Old Nassau the gridiron celebrity took a flyer in the political world. Down along Broadway the folks today hail "Big Bill" as street cleaning commissioner, and it was this same college chap who saved Mayor Gaynor from probable death a few months ago during a hand-to-hand encounter with a would-be assassin.

Henry F. Cochems, former moleskin terror in western conference battles and one of the biggest luminaries that ever wore the cardinal of Wisconsin, scored a political knockout when he nominated Senator La Follette for president of the United States. From that day "Hank" stood ace high in national affairs until this big crash attending the recent election when he bowed in defeat to Candidate Victor Berger, Socialist, in the race for congressional honors.

Chicago boasts of many officials who won fame in athletic pursuits long before they ever entered the political stakes. Chief among these are Robert R. McCormick, who took his open-air training as captain of the Onwentsia polo team. Charles M. Walker, re-elected judge of the circuit court, was a ball-player of renown during his days at Yale, while John M. Harlan, once a candidate for mayor of the city, was one of the truly greats on the Princeton nine.

THE RATTLESNAKE INDUSTRY

Louisville Courier-Journal: In Swain county, North Carolina, an enterprising woodsman succeeded in building up a profitable business in shipping rattlesnakes to the East. That section of North Carolina, it appears, produces a superior breed of rattlesnake, and New York scientists and naturalists have been paying willingly $5 apiece for good specimens of rattler.

Manuel Weeks, the wideawake individual who has been supplying the scientific world with live and husky snakes, owns a large body of land in the North Carolina mountains. The most of the land is too poor and too rugged to raise a fuss on, but it abounds in rattlesnakes. A New York professor on a vacation, looking around for specimens of flora and fauna and other things of interest to nature lovers, saw some of the snakes and wanted a few for his collection. Weeks agreed to catch them and ship them, and did so. Subsequently the fame of the North Carolina snakes spread over New York, and other naturalists wanted specimens. Weeks was furnishing them right along, boxing them up and sending them by express from Bryson City.

The business was going merrily and remuneratively, until one day a careless messenger dropped a box of snakes and smashed it on the floor of the express car. The express messenger left the car in haste and the whole train crew was summoned for a general snake killing. It was an exciting time, and it delayed traffic and threw a number of passengers into a condition approaching nervous prostration. Weeks not only failed to realize on that particular consignment, but the express company sent a hurry-up order to the agent at Bryson City to accept no more snakes for shipment. The next time that Weeks appeared with a box of snakes the agent gave him the icy stare and suggested that rattlers were very much persona non grata, and there didn't seem to be any indication of the company warming up to Weeks' peculiar industry.

Weeks has sued the company for $5,000 damages, probably on the ground that it is acting in restraint of trade. In North Carolina snakes are a drug on the market. It looks bad for the snake farm, unless ways and means for shipment of its products may be found. Nevertheless the express company and its employes, the trainmen and the traveling public must be conceded to have some rights in the matter.

A MISUSE OF POKER.

Chicago Post: Without attempting to speak as a professional, we would yet question the advisability of seeking to establish a testator's sanity on the ground that he played a good game of poker. This effort, now being made in a disputed will case in Philadelphia, seems to have been inconclusive, and we must indorse the referee's cautious attitude. For excellence at poker is by no means a trait of commonplace everyday sanity. The ability to tell whether an opponent has four kings or a four-flush is something supernatural. It is eerie, weird, creepy. It does not make its possessor stand out as "of sound mind," but rather as of mind that is beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals. Were evidence being offered as to excellence in the coldly intellectual game of bridge, the court might listen with respect, but as to poker the case is far different. Genius is always too near akin to insanity to figure a test of reason.

ORIGIN OF THE SEMAPHORE.

The Strand: From the earliest times and among savage nations beacon fires and interrupted columns of smoke have been used to give warning of the approach of an enemy, or the news of victory or defeat. Signalling by combinations of flags is another early method and is still used at sea.

However, it was not until 1795, when Lord George Murray introduced his semaphore system, that anything like an efficient means of telegraphic communication was established. The admiralty at the time, seeing the advantages of such a system, caused semaphore stations to be established on all the highest points from London to Dover, Deal and Portsmouth.

So effectual was the system that a message could be in favorable circumstances transmitted from London to Deal, Daver or Portsmouth and a reply received back in London in seven and a half minutes. The operation was performed by three men in each station, two of whom were on the lookout, while the third was employed in working the six shutters, which were placed over the building in two vertical frames in such a way that sixty-three distinct signals could be formed.

WILSON WINS AGAIN.

When the last campaign in New Jersey was in progress the opponents of Woodrow Wilson had much fun at his expense out of the fact that he was a college president instead of a professional politician. They pointed with ridicule to his candidacy for the governorship, and proved conclusively that his entrance into politics would serve to teach "men of his stamp" to stay out of that kind of thing. When the returns were counted it proved that the jokers were slightly mixed. The despised educator had been elected, and the professional politicians were counted out. As the news of Wilson's victory was flashed throughout the country, congratulations began to pour in upon the new New Jersey politician. The nation-wide welcome that greeted Dr. Wilson on his entry into the campaign was cold compared to that which ushered him into office as governor.

With all that in mind, there was general regret when Governor Wilson entered so fiercely into the fight over the senatorship. Foss' experience in Massachusetts did not help matters, although the conditions in New Jersey differed from those in Massachusetts through the operation of the New Jersey primary law. Former Senator Smith put up a hard battle, and there was great doubt of Wilson's man winning before the legislature. But the withdrawal of Smith assured the election of Martine, and the victory once more goes to the Princeton man.

There may be a tendency to forget the primary principle which formed the basis of Governor Wilson's fight for Martine, but to some extent this will be no more than right, for in spite of the fact that Martine was chosen at the primary election, it is not at all likely that he would have won in the legislature had it not been for Wilson's hard fight in his behalf. The country at large will be intensely interested in the outcome, for it shows that Governor Wilson is not the simple theorist his opponents have painted him. He has proved that he is a fighter, and it is the fighter who wins the admiration and confidence of the people, as long as his fight is consistent and clean. In this case the senatorial struggle, which Wilson's friends feared might end disastrously for the new governor, has proved in fact a new victory for him, and such a victory as will assure him wider support and more friends if, as many expect, he should decide to remain in the race for public office.

THE INDETERMINATE SENTENCE.

Among the reforms in legislation suggested by Governor Eberhart at the beginning of the present session of the legislature was the provision for indeterminate sentences for prisoners in the state penitentiary. The plan is one of the best proposed to the Minnesota lawmakers, and it ought to receive hearty support. The object of the indeterminate sentence is not to let prisoners off as easily as possible, but to encourage them to become good citizens, and such encouragement is in line with the best ideas in penal affairs. To lock a man up and keep him there for a stated term prevents his getting into more mischief during the time of his incarceration, but it does not guarantee that he will not have to be locked up again soon after his release. Under the indeterminate sentence he is given an incentive to become a better man. The working out of the plan is well summarized by the Houston Post in discussing the proposal for its adoption in Texas. The Post says:

> The indeterminate sentence has worked well wherever it has been tried. From the moment the sentence is pronounced upon the prisoner by the court it holds out to him the strongest possible incentive to not only good conduct while under duress, but, combined with the parole system, operates to work permanent reformation in the character of the prisoner as the quickest and surest way to regain his liberty—an incentive that, perforce, must appeal to even the grossest natures.

Continuing, the Post points out that the humanitarianism involved in the plan, by working for the making of better citizens out of criminals, is to the advantage of the state itself.

The indeterminate sentence system is gaining ground throughout the county. The best authorities on penal questions favor it, and Minnesota cannot afford to lag behind in this matter of reformation of its methods of dealing with lawbreakers.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

It is glad news that the Canadian and United States governments have reached an agreement for reciprocity. It would be better news to hear that the respective legislative bodies of the two countries had ratified the agreement. In spite of the determined attitudes of the two administrations in the matter, and in spite of the fact that the people of both countries appear to be overwhelmingly in favor of such action, there is a well-founded feeling of pessimism as to the fate of the agreement when it falls to the tender mercies of the lawmakers.

Already reports from Ottawa tell of the plans of the Canadian special interests to defeat the scheme. From Washington there are no such reports, but nobody who knows the conditions that exist there, the sentiment of the senate and the influences under which its members work, can doubt for a minute that there will be a fight against ratification. Reciprocity with Canada would mean too much gain for the people at large in both countries to get past the "conservative" bodies of lawmakers without a struggle.

Meanwhile the express companies have taken a step that may mean many things or may mean nothing. The Canadian and American concerns have announced that a reduction in through rates will be published soon, to affect shipments between the two countries. The new rates will be framed jointly by the companies handling the goods, instead of being made up of the sum of the separate rates. This may mean that the express concerns have a tip that the reciprocity agreement is to be ratified, and that they are preparing to handle bigger business, which they hope to attract by the reduced rates. Or it may mean that the American companies are taking warning from the fact that the Canadian government recently ordered the Canadian express companies to cut their rates, and are preparing the way for some remotely similar voluntary action on their part, to head off a command from Washington. Or it may mean that the Canadians are trying to make up on international business some of what they will lose on domestic carrying. Whatever the motive is, the express companies have seen fit to take the public into their confidence only so far as to say that a cut is to be made, and the public can guess at the rest.

But while the public is guessing it will keep its eye on the doings at Washington and Ottawa, and there is a big chance that the vote on reciprocity may help to determine or terminate the political careers of more than one senator at Washington and more than one member of the Canadian parliament.

WORSE THAN THE LAW'S DELAY.

While the demands of President Taft that the operations of the courts of the nation be altered so that justice may be made more swift have included more than once the phrase from Hamlet—"the law's delay"—there is another feature in the judicial procedure of the country that is incomparably more in need of reformation than that of slowness in the movement of the powers of justice. It is what the Atlanta Constitution calls "the tyranny of technicality," a poison that has entered into the decisions of courts in this land of the free so often that hardly anybody is unfamiliar with it in some form.

Recently two particularly gross instances of this abuse of the courts' power have come before the public. One of them comes from Oregon, in the case of a man who beat his wife to death with a strap. He was tried and convicted before a jury. There was no hint of illegality in the trial, and no criticism of the procedure was made by the defense either during or after the presentation of the case. The jury found the man guilty. But his attorney, with the kind of ingenuity that one hates to classify in respectable company, went before the court of review and satisfied the judges that his client ought to be freed. The indictment, he showed, charged that the crime was committed with a deadly weapon, and a strap is not included in the list of deadly weapons described by the Oregon statutes. The learned judges saw the point and freed the convict.

The other case comes from California, where a man convicted of arson for setting fire to a neighbor's hay was set free because the state law provides only that punishment shall be meted out to the man who dares to burn a haystack, while in this particular case the defendant had only started the fire by igniting a haycock. The dictionary overruled the plain meaning of the statute, in the minds of the judges.

California furnishes yet another case of somewhat similar character. A murderer had been convicted, and part of the state's evidence consisted of a confession he had made to the police. It was not shown that the man was put through the horrors of the third degree in order to make him confess. It was shown only that he had not been informed beforehand that his confession would be used against him in court. As a matter of fact, according to reports, the confession was not needed to establish the fact of the crime. But the supreme court of the state decided that its use even as cumulative evidence instead of as primary, was enough, under the circumstances, to invalidate the trial and conviction, and the prisoner was freed. The case was particularly glaring, since the prisoner murdered his employer for money, and dismembered and hid the body, and when arrested was trying to collect money on certificates of deposit issued in the dead man's name.

Those are a few samples of law as it is administered in some of the higher courts of the land. Those are the kind of things that make up the "tyranny of technicality." And those are the instances that prove that President Taft is right when he declares that our judicial procedure needs a thorough renovation, both to open the courts to the poor man with a real grievance and to make the term "justice" mean something.

MARK TWAIN'S CAVE.

Two Mark Twain bills have been presented to the Missouri legislature. One of them provides for a statue of the philosopher-humorist and the other for the maintenance of the famous "McDougal's Cave" of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" as a memorial. It is hard to see how there is any chance to hesitate between the two. What is a shaft of marble or granite or brass, carved by some disinterested person, and set up in some public place, compared to a great natural memorial that already is famous through the works of the man whose memory is to be honored?

There never yet was a man, woman or child who read the story of the adventure of Tom and Becky in the cave who would not delight in visiting the place. There never was a man, woman or child who read the story of the finding of the hidden treasure in the cave den of Injun Joe who would not revel in a chance to visit the place. What chance can the statue proposition have against that of preserving the natural monument?

According to reports from Hannibal, a stone company is at work on the hill in which the cave is situated, and by its quarrying is threatening the very existence of the hollow in the hill. Let the legislature put a stop to that at once and make sure that the cave is not marred or ruined. It would make a much more appropriate memorial for the author than anything else could make, for it would be almost unique among memorials, even as his work stands alone among that of all American writers, and it is so intimately associated with both the life and writings of the famous and much-loved Missourian that it is entitled to recognition of that character.

Besides, an extra session would interfere so much with the baseball season.

Peary has not yet signified his willingness to accept the North Pole for his own as a reward for finding it.

New Jersey has a drayman who, being unable to tell time, has an alarm clock tied under his wagon. Every morning his wife sets it for noon and every noon she sets it for 6 o'clock. It is horrible to think what might happen if anything should happen to the clock some day after he had left the house.

Rise and Fall of Man.

Walker Pioneer: The Harvard Crimson says it is absurd to ring the college bell at 7 in the morning because many students find no occasion to rise so early. Yes, but how are the others to know when to go to bed?

Just because one has quit going to Harvard is no reason why one should knock the lads who are stationed there now. It may be noticed we didn't say "desisted from" going to Harvard.

Stability of Matrimony.

Stillwater Gazette: That bachelor who draws a weekly stipend by writing about things that he knows not of, says "one reason why so many people stay married is they have to." The other reason, and the chief one, is because they desire to.

Which statement is the kind that appeals to the average man as being accurate—and unctuous.

Love Your Enemies.

St. Cloud Times: The Republican governor of Michigan has appointed his Democratic opponent in the late campaign to be a member of the state railway commission, one of the most important places at his disposal. This is a commendably worthy spirit. It is not often exhibited.

No, it isn't. But the impulse that might have resulted in such "exhibitions," have been frequently blighted by "the gang."

Case of Nerves Only!

Fairmont Sentinel: The Standard Oil octopus is making a desperate fight for its life against the government, which has brought suit to have the trust declared illegal and dissolved. Since the decision of the supreme court upholding the bank guaranty law, the big boys in Wall Street feel themselves slipping away from their moorings and they all feel a little more nervous than usual.

If that is an accurate statement of the situation, the public, it may be concluded, has a great capacity for calm and contentment—far more than it has had in the recent and protracted past.

Gets Next.

Bemidji Pioneer: Bemidji wants it and won't be happy till she gets it—the commission form of government.

Which demonstrates that Bemidji knows what's good for him.

Re Reapportionment.

Northfield News: Southern Minnesota can depend upon its representatives to insist that it be given a square deal in their own interest if for no other reason.

And Northern Minnesota has been insistent for many years that the South should get a square deal.

Bob's Union Gets Coltish.

Princeton Union: Spirit thermometers have again made their appearance out of doors in the Indian country. The groggeries have reopened and this removes the fear that the spirituous indicators of temperature will be sucked dry.

Heavens! Spirit thermometers? There's real weather up here, and it's fine weather, too.

On the Edge of the Nation.

Baudette Region: Baudette is a village in name only. In reality it is a city.

That's one way of saying that the village of Baudette has outgrown its description, but its spirit warrants the prophesy that it will not only be a city, but a big city.

How the Mighty Fall.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Pussyfoot Johnson is to have a job mountain climbing in Kentucky or some other place.

He must be so far up in the air now that he can reach a mountain top without climbing. Send for Newton.

Referred to the Legislature.

Grand Rapids Independent: Those Jefferson township, Ohio, folk who were disfranchised for five years by illegal voting might come to Itasca county to live for those five years.

For infinite sarcasm, this takes the cookie.

DRAINING THE LAKES.

Toledo Blade: The lakes to the gulf deep waterway idea has an alluring sound. It brings up pictures of the argosies of commerce speeding their great cargoes of grain from the big wharves of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan across the state of Illinois, down the Mississippi and thence to the far corners of the world without transshipment. At least two strong-lunged associations of boomers are devoting their energies to wheedling an appropriation out of Uncle Sam for the costs of construction. They ignore two important factors or gloss over them, these being that there is no assurance that commerce will take advantage of such a canal, having paid no attention to such improvement already made at extreme cost to the people, and the fact that vessels capable of navigating the lakes and the salt seas are not adapted to traffic in narrow waterways. Now comes a new set of facts which prove that the lakes to the gulf scheme would represent more than a pure waste of money. It would prove a genuine disaster to the shipping of the great lakes.

A study of the lake levels by government experts shows that the Chicago drainage ditch lowered the surface of Lakes Michigan and Huron nearly six inches. This ditch now takes 7,000 cubic inches a second out of Lake Michigan. The proposed canal would take twice as much. Says Col. C. McD. Townsend:

"Taking out 10,000 feet a second through the drainage canal will gradually lower the level of Lakes Huron-Michigan until the reduction in the discharge of the St. Clair river on account of the reduced cross-section, is equal to 10,000 cubic feet a second. This would require a fall of .521 of a foot in Lake Huron. This would cause .455 of a foot fall in Lake St. Clair and .379 of a foot fall in Lake Erie.

"This indicates a fall of approximately six inches. For 14,000 feet a second taken out of the lake at Chicago, which is what they now ask, the ratio would be the same.

"What the removal of this much water would mean to lake navigation is at once apparent. The big freighters are loaded to the limit now; they sometimes scrape bottom in going over the Limekilns. Taking eight inches of water out of the Detroit river would mean a great loss to the lake carriers."

Chicago is probably so far committed to the deep waterway scheme that it may find it impossible to reverse its position, in spite of the fact that the channel might ruin the port of Chicago and make it out of the question for ore freighters to get into the ports of Indiana Harbor and Gary. But the desires of Chicago should not for one moment be permitted to weigh against the interests of the communities upon Lake Huron, Detroit river and Lake Erie.

Linoleumed.

Louisiana Times: If the Times is a trifle shy this issue, please lay the blame upon Boonie and Cliff Boone, who have been giving our humble quarters a thorough interior decoration of paper and white paint; not that we had the money, but the credit, we have linoleumed our cosy little sanctum and arranged things most conveniently for our daily visitors. If you think we're looking too nice, just drop in and make yourself as much at home as you always have.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

REPLIES TO CAPT. SELLWOOD'S LETTER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A most astonishing bunch of questions appeared in your columns of yesterday over the signature of Joseph Sellwood.

Is it possible that people of his caliber have been here for twenty-five years and still want answers to those questions? If so, here goes.

There hasn't been a city campaign for mayor since 1894, in which all candidates have not declared for city ownership of the electric light plant. A candidate who would have openly declared for private ownership would have been absolutely sure of defeat. Doesn't the captain know that?

A large majority of the voters and users of light in their homes have decided that municipal ownership was necessary and feasible. They so decided many years ago, have never changed their minds on the subject; but have always been delayed and defeated, by one pretext or another, through influences having their center in the benefits flowing from the present private ownership. The occasion is the fact that our residence lights cost us about three times what they should, or would, under an honest and wise municipal ownership.

The city can well afford to do anything which tends to make it easier to live, and do business, here. That city in which the necessities are the best, and the cheapest, has a very great advantage.

What would the captain say as to the effect on the credit of an individual, who finding that he was paying his entire income for the use of necessities owned by others, should buy those necessities, with interest bearing paper to one-third the amount such necessities were capitalized for in the hands of others, and thereby had left two-thirds of his income, and at the same time owned the things for which he gave his paper? Would his credit be injured thereby?

Does not the same rule apply to a collection of individuals, a city for instance?

He admits that the purchase of the gas and water plants by the city was wise and asks wherein there are parallel circumstances in case of the electric light company.

Twenty-five years ago we were paying $2.25 for gas; and now, under city ownership, we got it for 75 cents. The same ratio is true with water. The sworn statement of the electric light company shows it to be capitalized for more than $1,500,000, which is about three times the amount our city engineer says would be required to duplicate their entire plant. This watered capitalization has been developed by the legerdemain of a few reorganizations.

The people of Duluth are paying interest on the whole capital, both real, and water. Who can say that we would be worse off, if we only paid on what the thing was worth? Where are the stocks and bonds of this capitalization and who owns them? It may be that the advocates of continuing the present private ownership know more about this than the mass of the people who would like municipal ownership. Does any one contend that our issue of bonds for the purchase of the gas and water plant, resulting in the great reduction in cost to all the people for their water and gas, has injured the credit of the city? What draws on the credit of a city, or individual for that matter, is the issuance of obligations in exchange for non-productive property.

For instance, bonds issued for parks and high ornamentations of school houses, paying no cash return, but requiring cash to maintain, do draw upon the city's credit.

If we will be very careful about issuing bonds for non-productive property; and equally as careful about letting other fellows issue bonds and yet bonds for property which we must use, do not own, but yet pay for, we need have no fear about the credit of our city. Yours truly,

JOHN H. BRIGHAM.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF FRAMERS.

New York Sun: The country will be interested in the fourteen Democratic representatives selected by the caucus in Washington on Thursday night to frame the tariff bills that will be introduced in the Sixty-second congress. Of the fourteen Democrats who are to form the majority of the ways and means committee in the next congress, four are minority members of the committee in this congress: Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama; Francis Burton Harrison of New York; Choice Boswell Randell of Texas, and William G. Brantley of Georgia. Every one of the fourteen is a lawyer; the oldest is 57, and the youngest is 37, and most of them are under 50; six of them under 40. It is worthy of note that only four came from important manufacturing cities: Mr. Underwood, who will be chairman of the committee, from Birmingham, which has blast furnaces, rolling mills, steel works and railroad machine shops; Mr. Harrison from New York; Andrew James Peters of Massachusetts from Boston; and William Hughes of New Jersey from Paterson, which has locomotive and bridge works and manufactures of cotton, wool, silk, linen and velvets.

Ten of the men who will frame the tariff bills came from small towns or insignificant rural places. For instance, the Hon. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, from Carthage, which in 1900 had a population of 600; the Hon. Ollie James of Kentucky from Marion (1,064); the Hon. Claude Kitchen of North Carolina from Scotland Neck (1,348); the Hon. W. S. Hammond of Minnesota from St. James (2,067); the Hon. Henry T. Rainey of Illinois from Carrollton (2,355); the Hon. Lincoln Dixon of Indiana from North Vernon (2,823); and the Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania from Stroudsburg (3,450). The remaining three are claimed by more populous communities: the Hon. Dorsey W. Shackleford of Missouri by Jefferson City (9,664), which has foundries, shoe and carriage factories, breweries and cigar manufacturies; the Hon. C. B. Randell of Texas by Sherman (10,243), which boasts machine shops, foundries, cotton-seed oil and flour mills; and the Hon. William G. Brantley of Georgia by Brunswick (9,081), which has cotton mills and canning and cotton compress factories and is a phosphate port.

The veteran of the Democratic tariff bill framers is Mr. Underwood, who dates from the Fifty-fourth congress; Mr. Brantley made his bow in the Fifty-fifth; Mr. Shackelford made his first appearance in the Fifty-sixth; Mr. Randell in the Fifty-seventh; Mr. James, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Kitchen and Mr. Rainey in the Fifty-eighth; Mr. Dixon in the Fifty-ninth; Mr. Harrison, Mr. Hammond, Mr. Hull and Mr. Peters in the Sixtieth, and Mr. Palmer in the Sixty-first.

How Opals Got a Bad Name.

New York Press: Opals that are commonly regarded by the superstitious as bringers of bad luck were, on the contrary, considered by the ancients a lucky stone. In the East it is believed that so long as the wearer implicitly trusts its power it will make him beloved by God and man. The superstition against it began through the stonecutters, each of whom would anxiously ask every other if he had had any luck in his cutting, for the opal contains 12 per cent water and is exceedingly brittle, and therefore difficult to cut successfully.

The Spelling of Stepney.

London Chronicle: Those who like variety in their spelling will be interested to know that Stepnew has been spelled in at least six other ways, ranging from Stibenhede to Stevenhethe.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Judge: Tramp — Madam, every breath I draw is a sober one.

Lady — True. It's the outgoing breath that gives you away.

Success Magazine: "Sir, you seem to be troubled."

"I am. For the last three years I have done nothing but pay out money, money, money and get no visible return for it. If this keeps up much longer I'll soon be a pauper."

"Cheer up! I, too, have a son at college."

Baltimore American: "Look how that woman is trying to find out what we are saying to each other. Why does she dog us?"

"Because she's a cat!"

Judge: Teacher—Willie, what is a baker's dozen?

Willie — Pa says nowadays it's eleven.

Catholic Standard: "George," whispered Mrs. Krochett, in the dead of night, "I'm sure there's a burglar down in the dining room."

"Good!" replied her husband, sleepily. "If we keep quiet maybe he'll take away that chafing dish of yours."

Baltimore American: "A fisherman ought to be a successful financier."

"Why a fisherman?"

"Because his cash sales are net gains."

Catholic Standard and Times: "They say that 'ignorance is bliss,'" began the love-lorn chappie.

"I guess that's true," the pert young miss replied, "for you look happy."

Baltimore American: "Are you going to have a tree at your house this year?"

"Certainly. A tropical one, if we can."

"To be in harmony; we have so many olive branches."

Argonaut: On the steeple of an old Universalist church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enterprise recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?"

"Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond, "I can't say that I ever did, but did you ever see one without them?"

Judge: "Have you ever wondered about your husband's past?"

"Dear me, no! I have all I can do in taking care of his present and worrying about the future."

Baltimore American: He — That song has a fine ring to it, hasn't it?

She—Naturally, when you consider it is a bridal song.

New York Press: Benham — The welkin rang.

Mrs. Benham — And d'd anybody answer the ring?

Success Magazine: A little girl who had heard of Roosevelt's invasion of Europe said to her father:

"It was too bad that the king of England died before Mr. Roosevelt got to England, wasn't it, papa? But," she remarked, shaking her head with a mighty sigh, "maybe he wouldn't have shot him, anyhow."

Most of us are willing to believe that our vanity is merely proper pride.

Hints would be taken much more freely if they were other people's property.

Any woman knows how to manage a man, but few men know how to let her.

The most you can count on with the average man is that you can't count on him.

Bismarck's New Year's Eve.

London Globe: Bismarck was not without superstition, and this always was noticeable on the eve of the new year. From 9 o'clock that night until after midnight he would not take water in any circumstances from a glass. It was an ancient tradition in the Chancellor's family that any one who set the legend at defiance would pass through a serious illness. If another tradition is true, the observance of the family legend must have been a sore trouble to the Iron Chancellor, for the Paris contemporary from which we take the foregoing says that Bismarck not only loved water, but beer and wines, especially French wines. He was not averse to punch and grog, but on New Year's eve grog was under the ban, for it contains water.

Washington's Honey Valley.

Portland Oregonian: Two hundred tons of honey from 10,000 colonies of bees is the Yakima valley's annual product.

Burrows' Action Deplored.

Marquette Journal: We cannot love Lorimer more because of Julius Caesar Burrows' rally to his defense, says the Hancock Journal, and it is greatly feared that many will love Uncle Julius less. It seems that Michigan's veteran statesman could have found a more auspicious closing for his long and, at times, brilliant career.

A German Title.

London Chronicle: In the matter of titles the Germans show more courage than we do. On a New Year's card which reached London this week the sender describes herself as Frau ——, Rasiermesserhohlschleibereidirektors-witwe. Would any English woman venture to describe herself as widow-of-the-manager-of-the-razor-blade-grinding-works? When this was shown to a German friend he produced a card on which the sender was entitled "Staats-schuldentilgunsbureauausgeberswitwe," a description which she held to be her due as the widow of an official in the National Debt Office.

A Libel on "White Magic."

London Express: A farmer named Golup has been sentenced to twenty-four hours' imprisonment by a court in Styria for a curious form of libel. When his young daughter died recently he declared to the gossips that a neighbor, Frau Holymann, had caused her death by witchcraft, and stated that she had been seen when she visited the sick child to pierce a candle with a needle and hold it in the fire until it melted, muttering spells the while. Frau Holymann, when bringing the action, swore that she only practised white magic, and that any charms she used were with the object of securing the child's recovery.

The Waning Thirst of Munich.

London Globe: Munich of all places in the world shows a diminution in the consumption of beer. In 1907 returns revealed that each person drank on the average 240 liters, a liter being equal to a pint and three-quarters. The figures for 1909 showed a diminution of sixteen liters each, but it is said that the actual diminution was forty liters. In this connection it may be observed that Munich produces about 25 per cent of the beer consumed in Bavaria. The other important centers of the breweries are Nuremburg with 3 per cent, Augsburg with 7 per cent and Landshut with 5.9 per cent.

Something Else in New Jersey.

Washington Star: New Jersey lived down the satirical tradition that its fame rests chiefly on its mosquitoes.

CAPT. C. H. GREEN, PIONEER AND GLOBE TROTTER, DIES

Came Here in 1871 and Helped Build Ship Canal.

Had Circled Globe Five Times —Veteran of Crimean War.

CAPT. C. H. GREEN.

Capt. C. H. Green, 85 years of age, one of the oldest and best-known pioneers at the Head of the Lakes, as well as one of the greatest globe-trotters in the Northwest, died early this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Fee, 422 Third avenue east.

Capt. Green has had a most interesting and varied career. As a sailor he circled the globe five times, visiting every hemisphere and nearly every country which boasts a flag. He spoke ten different languages fluently, because of which he was frequently called upon to act as an interpreter in the Duluth courts. Of the ten languages of which he had command, he was able to read and write nine of them.

The veteran sailor was born Sept. 22, 1825, at Hamburg, Germany. During the Crimean war he served in the signal corps on board the Cumberland of the British navy, following which he sailed for thirty-one years. In 1857 he married Miss Jane Marr Joff, closely related to the English heroine, Grace Darling. He is survived by a granddaughter named after her, Grace Darling Smith.

Capt. Green came to Duluth in 1871. For thirty-six years he made his home on Park Point. Every boy and girl who knew him called him "grandpa." He was beloved by all and had a warm place in his heart for every one who knew him, particularly the children, with whom he was a great favorite.

He helped build the Duluth ship canal, and was one of the first navigators to go through the famous Suez canal. He visited San Francisco, now the metropolis of the Pacific coast, when it had but three buildings. Since coming to Duluth he sailed some on the Great Lakes, but his experiences on the fresh water were not of great duration.

Capt. Green is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. W. Fee, Mrs. E. S. Smith of Lakeside, Mrs. Frank M. Thomas of East Fourth street and Mrs. James A. Cochran of Buffalo, W. Va., and three sons, Capt. W. J. Green of the United States tug Essayons, Capt. C. H. Green, Jr., of the tug Superior, and Capt. Arthur Green of the Northern Dredge & Dock company. He also leaves an adopted son, Leon P. Green, superintendent of the aerial bridge.

The funeral will take place Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Episcopal church, Lake avenue and Second street. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

CHIEF FORESTER OF ASSOCIATION

Thomas B. Wyman to Look After Protection of Upper Michigan Forests.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Forest Protective association, which was organized several months ago by some of the leading timber owners of the Upper Peninsula, has appointed Thomas B. Wyman, at present chief forester for the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, chief forester for the association.

He will have full charge of the organization and execution of the various projects in mind for the protection of the timber lands of the members of the association, chief among which is protection from forest fires.

Mr. Wyman will sever his connection with the Cleveland Cliffs company early in February, and thereafter will give his whole time to the work of the association. He will retain his office as secretary of the association but in addition will assume the duties of chief forester, and in fact will be the executive head of the association, subject to the board of directors, who, however, expect to give him free rein.

To obtain the funds with which to carry out this forest patrol plan, the directors voted to levy an assessment of one-half cent an acre on the lands in the association, in addition to which each member pays a membership fee of $5. As there are now approximately 2,000,000 acres of land signed up, the amount available for the coming year's use will be about $10,000.

Rabbote is charged with having stolen a solid gold watch and chain and other jewelry from Eugene Valzaina, of Great Falls, some two weeks ago. The prisoner was located in Minot Sunday. He will return without a requisition.

GOOD WORD FOR DULUTH WEATHER

Judge Landis of Standard Oil Fame Hands Out Little Bouquet.

Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago, who fined the Standard Oil company $29,000,000, is in the city, a guest at the Spalding. Judge Landis is holding court in Superior, relieving Judge Sanborn.

Judge Page Morris of this city called on him last evening and the two jurists spent the evening together. In 1895, Judge Landis came to Duluth on his wedding trip and since then he has not been here. He said last evening that he was impressed with the attractiveness of the city then and is confident now that the Head of the Lakes is destined to be a great community. He spoke of the building of the new steel plant as one of the pioneer activities of the new era.

Judge Landis spoke of winter weather in Duluth, protesting against the common habit of ascribing terrors to it. "I never saw finer winter weather in this latitude anywhere," said Judge Landis.

Gertrude Elliott, who has been making a success in Chicago and who finishes her brilliant engagement there at the Grand Opera house this week in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" brings Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play of cheerfulness to this city Friday and Saturday.

She has made the part of Glad, the London waif, a creation of her own. She takes the character to be something less than an angel and not more than a human being with a stubbornly good and prodigously big heart. And not among the least of Miss Elliott's charms is claimed to be her beautiful enunciation. To this she adds the attractiveness of an elusive personality with an uncommon distinctness of grace and manner.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" tells the story of the girl brought up in the London slums, and it is said to be a very accurate picture of life in the great English metropolis. The supporting company under the management of Liebler & Co. is said to be more than ordinarily competent.

Maurice Freeman, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week in the dramatic playlet, "Tony and The Stork," tells a good story at his own expense. When he was appearing in Minneapolis recently, he stepped out of the stage door of the theater, just previous to his act, to smoke a pipe. He was "made up" for the part of Tony, the young Italian laborer, wearing working clothes and his old slouch hat. In the rear of the theater some laborers were digging a trench. Mr. Freeman stood looking on, smoking his pipe.

The boss of the gang came up to him and angrily asked him why he wasn't working.

"Tony," in broken Italian, told him he was tired.

"Well, you're fired, too," said the boss, angrily. "Go get your time."

"I have no wages accruing to me as the result of any manual labor for you, sir," said "Tony" in good United States.

"Who in thunder are you?" asked the amazed boss.

"I work in here," said Mr. Freeman, pointing back over his shoulder to the theater.

The boss admitted it was "one on him" and wanted to liquidate on the spot, but Mr. Freeman said he would save it for a future date. "The compliment to my makeup squares us," he said, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe and went inside.

Good yodelers are a rarity in the present day, but Jere Sanford, who is appearing at the Empress this week, is a yodeler of the old school. A few years ago it was very common to hear yodeling acts but with the present day rag-time and character songs, yodeling has been relegated to the rear. Occasionally one hears an attempt at yodeling but yodelers like Mr. Sanford are few and far between. He appears on the stage made up as a country boy and his act is like his make-up, plain and simple. He sings and yodels the old songs, but from the amount of applause he receives at the conclusion of each song, one would think that rag-time will never come into vogue. He sings "Sleep, Baby, Sleep," with much feeling. His act is one of the simple kind that seem to cause genuine enjoyment.

Sunday and Monday nights, Jan. 29 and 30, at the Lyceum, Franklin Woodruff will be seen in the "Call of the Wild," dramatized from Frederic Remington's famous novel, "John Ermine of the Yellowstone." It is said to be a very powerful drama of modern life, intensely realistic and full of strong situations, and so absorbing that it concentrates the attention of the audience from the rise of the curtain until it falls at the close of the fourth act.

LOGGERS BUSY ON NORTH SHORE

Many Carloads of Pulpwood Brought to This City Daily.

Logging operations on the north shore are more extensive this year than they have been for a number of years past, due in part to the fires of last summer.

The lumbermen must cut the timber now if they are to have it, and many logging jobbers are engaged in the woods in the north.

Anywhere from 50 to 150 carloads of pulpwood are being received daily here, over the Duluth & Iron Range road.

The mills are stocking up for the season's run.

UNCLE SAM TO BUY AUTO

Department Can Get Specially Constructed Car for Only $700.

Will Be Used for Collecting the Mail in Duluth.

It is probable that within a short time all mail collections will be made by automobile in Duluth.

Horses are used now and the length of the city makes the operation of collecting the mail a long and costly one. Postmaster A. P. Cook has been studying the situation since he went into office, with a desire to find some method whereby the existing delays and costliness may be remedied, and it seems that the way has been found.

There was a postoffice inspector here last week and he conferred with the postmaster on this subject. The inspector had detailed information concerning an automobile designed and built with especial consideration for the needs of the postal service. This machine, it is understood, can be bought for $700. It is a durable, serviceable car, without any of the trimmings that make most machines expensive.

"If we can get that car at that price, there is practically no doubt that we will soon have one," said Postmaster Cook today. "Obviously, we need better facilities for the collection of mail than we now have. Under present conditions we must send one horse-drawn wagon far to the west and another way out to the west. The service is necessarily slow, but with an auto the work can be done speedily and efficiently and at a lower cost."

No definite action has been taken.

Sturgeon Bay Man Robbed.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Richard Spaulsberry, of Sturgeon Bay, was robbed while sleeping at the Richards hotel, of $85. An employe of the hotel is said to be missing and the police of Milwaukee and other cities have been notified.

LUMBERJACK AT PREMIUM

Representatives of Big Companies Said to Be Here to Get Men.

Reports that there are idle men in the city unable to get work, are denied by various labor employment agents, who say that representatives of the larger lumber companies are in the city in an endeavor to secure laborers for the woods. One representative of a lumber company is said to have been in Duluth several days, declaring his intention to remain here until he secures the men his company desires.

Wages have been raised for woods work, according to the labor employment agents, because of the lack of men. The increase in wages, it is said, has not served to increase the labor supply. Some of the camps are able to work at only about half their normal capacity, because of the inability to secure men, according to reports received at various Duluth labor offices.

Crack High School Team Has Narrow Escape From Defeat.

Y. M. C. A. Quint Shows Unexpected Strength in Annual Basket Ball Game.

The Duluth Central high school basket ball players again showed the clean heels of victory to their old enemy, the Y. M. C. A. team, winning the city championship last evening by the close score of 22 to 20, in a contest that was featured by fast and hard playing and also by the evenness of the teams at every stage of the game.

Up to the very end of the contest the score remained a tie. In about the last minute of play, Guard Solheim threw a clever basket and another victory over their old rivals was registered by the boys of the hillside institution.

It was generally expected that the Centrals would win by a rather large margin. The association team has been beaten the present season while Central has proved invincible. Therefore, the fact that the boys of the association were able to show just about as much as the high school students, came as a distinct surprise to the rah rah rooters.

As a matter of fact there was little to choose between the two teams. The larger Y. M. C. A. boys had it on their younger opponents in strength and this made it difficult at times for the students to get clear of the subborn association defense. The Central boys showed more clever basket shooting and it was this branch of superiority that gave them the game.

The first half ended 9 to 8, in favor of Central, the playing in this period being very even. In the second half the high school boys ran up the score to 15 points and it looked like a walkaway. The association quint took the running and passed the Central boys, the spurt bringing the score up to 19 to 17, with the Y. M. C. A. boys perched on the long end.

Capt. Harris evened the score by throwing a clever field basket and a minute later Slack placed the association in the lead with a basket from a penalty. Harris came back with another free throw, and with the game tied up and the big crowd figuratively standing on its toes, Solheim caged a basket that proved the salvation for Central and also threw a pail of cold water over the high and burning hopes of the association partisans.

Harris Held Down.

Waldron and Boerner proved the best field throwers of the contest, both players getting four field baskets during the game. Capt. Harris, generally the star of his team in this department, was opposed by Jack Hamilton, one of the strongest of the association stars, and therefore was held to two field baskets. In free throws Harris secured seven baskets, and the fact that he was so successful in locating the precise whereabouts of the basket in the case of the unhurried goal trys, gave victory to his valiant band.

In every detail the contest was a hummer. It was fought hard from the opening whistle until final time was called. It was so even at practically every stage that the interest of the big crowd was kept at high tension. It showed that the association has improved greatly in the past two weeks and must be counted as one of the strongest teams in the state.

In addition to the stellar work of Waldron and Boerner, the defensive work of Hamilton featured, as did also the work of Slack and O'Donnell, while Harris did some very clever work for Central.

As a preliminary to the big game of the evening, the Blaine alumni of Superior defeated the association second team by the score of 30 to 6. Some clever playing featured this contest and it served to key the spectators up to the big attraction of the evening.

The lineups and summary:

OHIO MEN ARE NEW LEADERS

Three Tournament Records Beaten at American Bowling Congress.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 25. — Bowlers from Cincinnati, Dayton and Toledo, Ohio, displaced the leaders of all three divisions yesterday after the most interesting rolling in the American Bowling congress tournament now in progress here. The Tifcos of Toledo established a score of 2,739 in the five-men team competition last night, breaking the tournament record of 2,718 made by the Duffys of St. Louis Sunday. Frank Reihle and Joseph Gardeil, members of the Moerlein team of Cincinnati, went into first place in the two-men event with 1,209 each, striking out from the ninth frame of the last game in the effort to bowl the first 200 average of the 800 two-men teams entered.

But the most surprising upset came in the individuals when Charles Schneider, Jr., of Dayton, hung up 651, beating the best previous tournament mark made by George Quayley of St. Louis by forty-four pins.

GOOD SCORES IN RAIN AT SUNNY SOUTH SHOOT.

Houston, Tex., Jan. 25.—A cold drizzling rain fell here all day, interfering with the work at the traps in the Sunny South handicap. Despite this, however, yesterday's scores showed an increase over the opening day. Edward O'Brien of Florence, Kan., was the high professional, tieing Mark Arie of Thomasboro, Ill., high amateur, for the lead of the field at 192. Among the scores of the day were:

Amateurs: Mark Arie, Thomasboro, Ill., 192; Guy M. Dearing, Chicago, 188; O. N. Ford, Central City, Ia., 187; W. Riddley, Wahatchee, Ia., 181; D. B. Ward, Aberdeen, S. D., 178; J. Frink, Worthington, Minn., 175; Dr. C. W. O'Key, Hudson, S. D., 172; A. J. Anderson, Aberdeen, S. D., 171; H. Dixon, Orongo, Mo., 168; J. S. Doson, St. Paul, 165. Prof. Skoed O'Brien, Florence, Kan., 192; W. S. Heer, Concordia, Kan., 189; Mrs. A. D. Toppenwein, San Antonio, Tex., 183.

SPRING TRAINING EXPENSIVE

Statistician Figures That It Will Cost Baseball Teams $200,000.

New York, Jan. 25.—A baseball statistician here has just figured that the spring training of all the major league teams this year will cost about $200,000. The clubs hope to gather in enough money from exhibition games to pay a part of these expenses. The players draw no salary until April 15, but advance money can be drawn by those who respond to the early call. This privilege is generally used pretty freely, for it is usually the case that ball players have empty pockets after the long winter layoff.

It is figured that nearly 500 players will begin practice at the major league camps this year. Of this number, at least 100 will have to be dropped when the proper time limit arrives. The remainder will draw about $1,000,000 in salaries, averaging $2,500 to a man. A club that manages to get through the season with less than $100,000 expenses will be regarded as a curiosity. This includes salaries, railroad fares, hotel bills, rent, taxes and assessments; also an outlay for new talent.

PRINCIPALS IN THURSDAY NIGHT'S WRESTLING MATCH

KARL LEHTO.

HENRY ORDEMANN.

One of the features of the athletic show of tomorrow evening, which will feature Ordemann and Lehto in a finish match, will be the moving pictures showing the match between Frank A. Gotch, present champion of the world, who may be seen here later in the season, and Stanislaus Zbyszko, the great Polish wrestler.

The pictures show Gotch training for the match, showing the different exercises of the champion and his wonderful development. The next scene shows the coliseum at Chicago where the big match was decided, the vast crowd, the newspaper men following the contestants into the arena and the final preparations before the wrestlers get ready for the word.

Then follows the lightning-like play of Gotch, as eluding the extended hand of Zbyszko, he dives at his legs and pins the foreigner even before the most alert in the audience is aware of what has happened. Zbyszko is shown appealing to the referee, as he claimed that Gotch took unfair advantage of him.

The second fall lasted twenty-seven minutes and some of the most sensational wrestling ever witnessed in this country is shown on the films. Gotch resorts to every trick of the game, and used many holds before he threw the giant Pole.

Ordemann will reach Duluth tomorrow morning, according to the report received from his manager, Mueller. The big Norsk is just back from Detroit, where he wrestled his sensational match against Zbyszko, holding the Pole even for ninety minutes.

ANOTHER WHITE "HOPE."

Baseball Player Is Latest to Loom Up as Pugilistic Possibility.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—President C. W. Murphy of the Cubs was the sponsor for the announcement today that the National league champions have a real, genuine "white man's hope" as a candidate for pugilistic honors.

The new hope on the pugilistic horizon is Fred Toney, signed by the Cubs from the Winchester, Ky., team. He is 20 years old, six feet three inches tall and is big horizontally. As a baseball player he is deemed a "find," and indications point to his being retained as a member of the squad. During the past season he won twenty-three and lost ten games in the Blue Grass league.

Toney is said to be a proficient boxer and a student of ring methods. If he consents to enter the ring Cub players are preparing to back him to the limit and say he will quickly force his way to a match with "Lil' Artha."

AERO CLUB WANTS GAME IN DULUTH.

A letter to the sporting department of The Herald states that the Aero Hockey team of St. Paul desires to play one of the teams of this city.

The manager of the St. Paul seven desires the game in this city, and states that in as much as all of the members of the Aero club are employes of St. Paul railroads, the traveling expenses will be next to nothing.

W. A. Riordan is manager of the Aero team, and in his letter he states that there is no objection in playing the fastest aggregation in Duluth as the St. Paul seven is very strong. The Aeros have played several games the present season and rank with the strongest teams in the Twin Cities.

ENTRIES FOR SKI TOURNEY

Many Star Riders to Compete in National Meet at Chippewa Falls.

Twenty-Eight Cities Represented By Amateur and Professional Riders.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elaborate preparations are under way in this city for the best entertainment ever offered ski sport lovers at a national tournament, in the forthcoming seventh annual ski meet of the National Association of Ski Clubs, which event will be held in this city next Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 28 and 29. The officers and committees of the North Star Ski club who have charge of the arrangements are working out the details of the big affair with an enthusiasm that forecasts a great time for all who are fortunate enough to be on hand.

Fully aware that a national tournament of the wonderful ski sport is only successful when carried out on a big scale, the citizens here have furnished $1,000 worth of muscle to push the affair to a satisfactory issue and to show everybody a good time in true Chippewa style. Entries from all the professional skiing stars over the circuit of twenty-eight cities and villages have been received, so that today Secretary Putnam of the North Star Ski club reports a total of amateur entries 125 in the professional class and 40 in the boys' class.

The big tourney will open Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock with the cross-country over a ten-mile course to the northwest of the city. This Marathon run for the skiers will fully test their endurance and skill, for there are several high hills to encompass and two natural gorges to cross. An added feature of the Saturday morning program will be a boys' tourney by the four local juvenile ski clubs on the Roosevelt hill, for the benefit of a moving picture company, which desires a motion film of a boys' tournament.

Saturday afternoon includes the regular meet of the amateur skiers at the North Star hill, while on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 29, the big professional meet will take place. Here will be seen the best endeavors of the experts in America.

Record Jumps Expected.

The big slide and hill is being put in the best condition possible to enable skiers to go after the records. A standing jump of 145 feet is freely predicted. That distance has been made on the hill repeatedly in practice the past month. Spectators will see some of the longest jumping possible on any ski hill in America, for the Chippewa hill is admittedly one of the best and speediest in the circuit.

Reports from other skiing centers say that skiers have been practicing more consistently than ever before and the local skiers have certainly been doing some hard work to be in tip top condition for the big events. The competition will be strong for first honors. Anders Haugen, the national champion, will try to retain his honors while he will be opposed by Fiering and Evanson of Duluth, Hendricksens of Superior, Ole Mangseth of Coleraine, Tollef Hemmesvedt, Oscar Gunderson, Knute Helland, Lars Haugen and Lund brothers, all of the North Star Ski club, this city, and twenty-five other riders. There is great speculation as to whether Barney Riley of Coleraine, the amateur champion and great Irish skier, can win the amateur championship again this year. The Norsk skiers assert they are out to take the cup away from Barney at this meet. This week will see skiers from all over the Northwest coming here, attracted by the tournaments at Colfax on the 24 and Cameron Jan. 26. They will take advantage of a fine chance to practice on the Chippewa hill for the national meet.

A long list of valuable prizes are up for the winners. The North Star club is spending $750 for prizes, while the total value of all prizes to be given the two days equals $1,000. There are nineteen for professionals, seventeen for amateurs, five for cross country runners and five for boys. The celebration will conclude Sunday night at the Armory with a banquet, when the prizes will be awarded the tournament winners.

An educational feature of the tournament will be photographing the event by a well known motion picture company of Chicago, which has made a contract to take motion pictures of the tournament and to exhibit them throughout the United States and Canada.

WILL TRY NEW PLAN.

Yankee Pitchers Will Take Regular Turns Next Season.

New York, Jan. 25.—"Rotation" is the keynote of a new system of handling the pitching staff which has been adopted by the management of the New York Americans for the coming season. Six pitchers—Ford, Quinn, Vaughn, Fisher, Caldwell and Warhop—are relied on to carry the team through the summer and they are to be worked in turn with clock-like regularity.

Manager Chase believes that Ford's success last year was wholly due to the fact that he did not pitch out of his regular turn. He positively refused to go into the box unless he was absolutely fit and ready, with the result that he was always at his best. Under this method of procedure Ford knew exactly when he was expected to pitch and consequently nerved himself for the task.

Chase maintains that if the other pitchers are worked in a similar manner, they will prove vastly more effective and in this belief he is supported by many close students of the game. It is argued that a pitcher cannot be expected to do himself justice if he is suddenly called upon to enter the box at a time when he is hardly ready for a gruelling work.

ANNUAL BILLIARD PLAY OF KITCHI GAMMI CLUB.

The annual pool and billiard tournament of the Kitchi Gammi club starts today. All members of the club are eligible, and as there are some clever pool and billiard players in the organization, some very good playing is expected.

Brunswick-Balke rules will govern the billiard games. Players will be divided into two classes, the first class playing 75 to 150 and the second class 40 to 65. Each player in each class must play every player in that class.

In the pool play 50-point games will be played, each player to play every other player and the highest percentage of games won to determine the winner of the first prize.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

The Duke Would Be an Umpire—Long Live the Duke—What Ordemann Did to Zbyszko—Packey McFarland's Painless Punch.

(BY BRUCE.)

Rumor has created an impression regarding the wishes of Duke O'Dea, a gentleman with a true brand of humor and for that very reason always welcome around the camp fire of genial spirits. It is said that the Duke craveth permission to hold an indicator during the coming Minny league season. If it is brought to the attention of President Frank E. Force, it may be that the new president will take up the case of O'Dea.

Coming from the kitchen, where frolicsome rumer may run rampant with the hired girl and settling in the serious serenity of the front parlor, we would say that Mons. O'Dea would be about the best little umpire that this Force person could appoint. He has a blue eye that twinkleth forth a radient brand of humor, and Claudine, who could argue and grow red in the jowls from choleric rage with that bland and twinkling eye of Arthur's stroking rage gently down the back?

There are other qualifications about this O'Dea duke. He has command of choice soothing language, and oftentimes the only thing these bush players understand, as instance Col. Nick Carter, is the gentle salve of the man who understands clearly the weakness of the gink with the fancied grouch. There are none around these parts who understand the game Harry Wright showed such a fatherly interest in, as does the delightful Duke. Many years ago he went to the mat with understanding, secured a scissors hold on the old and thoroughly subduced that tricky and agile gentleman. He knows baseball backwards, but more, knows men, and there have been many poor and humble umpires pushed against the bricks of wicked criticism, simply because their tentacles of human understanding failed to reach to the fickle fancies of the players in the game.

Can any of you who know Arthur fancy a player kidding the Duke and getting away with it? He would stand a very much better chance of finding a policeman who wasn't a perfectly good sleeper.

Peace and harmony would prevail if Artha was the man to stand behind. Who wouldn't go out to the game if Artha was to be the boss of the proceedings. It would be worth more than the mere admission to hear him announce the batteries. Oh, you rogue! By all means appoint him, Mister Force.

Talk about your "white hopes," since at the present writing the wrestlers are crowding the fighters off the stage of eager activities, it might be suggested that we cast our glims toward the American hope who is beginning to fill the place that will be vacated by Frank A. Gotch at the close of the present season.

See What Henry Did to Zbyszko.

The reference is made to the great performance of Henry Ordemann in Detroit Monday evening when he almost showed up Zbyszko, the ponderous Pole, in one of the greatest wrestling matches ever seen in the city by the St. Clair flats. Just a short year ago Zbyszko defeated the man with the yarly long mane, securing the two straight falls in something less than an hour and twenty minutes.

To show the improvement made by the big Norsk the present season, he wrestled Zbyszko ninety minutes and during the hour and a half of wrestling the great Polish wrestler was unable to secure a fall on the big man from Minneapolis. The Norsk skiers assert they are out to take the cup away from Barney at this meet. This week will see skiers from all over the Northwest coming here, attracted by the tournaments at Colfax on the 24 and Cameron Jan. 26. They will take advantage of a fine chance to practice on the Chippewa hill for the national meet.

Here in America we are wrestling much more scientifically than the great wrestlers of the Old World, and yet for some reason they turn out those men who possess the strength of young elephants unweakened by South African herb dissipation. They get those giants some way over there, and that is the only reason they have been able to defeat us in the pessimistic past.

Hackenschmidt and Zbyszko and the original Yousouf, drowned in returning to Turkey, defeated Americans in the past because they possessed infinite strength. But the game is getting so good these days that a man must have something in addition to strength to defeat the best men in the game, as the showing at Detroit of Ordeman demonstrates.

Henry Ordemann is rapidly coming into his own, and as Frank Gotch has held the championship for us these past few years, we don't want it to go back across the pond, and we are immensely glad that a young American of Scandinavian parentage is improving at that rate which threatens to make him one of the greatest wrestlers that the world has gazed upon with deep admiration.

Anent this grave and earnest question as to whether Mister Packey McFarland, once an humble citizen of the stockyards, but who happened to go clear down town for meat inspection purposes, packs a punch. Since those days of humble habitation in the stockyards district, Packey has been promoted to a pugilistic position and often inhabits cafes, not pronounced the way it sounds, and other places of lounging lure, so precipitate has been the leap from the Armour area. This is merely a preamble to make you hip to Packey's penchant for getting on.

Packey Patents Painless Punching.

There have been many questions in the past relating to the subject of the heft of the wilting wallop carried in the gloves of the fighter. Does it wilt or doth it merely sting and greatly arouse? That is the question that men with low brows have pondered over until they have to scare brain fever away from the thought dome with ice packs and such simple recreation as ping pong.

But the best answer, James, is that Packey has a long and well-behaved bean, or head, in antiquated language, which is more than can be said for many of the boys who quarrel with him in the ring. He realizes that those who slug with both little hannles may some day have their knuckles pushed up into the beginning of their wrists. When a chap's hands are gone, he can only forlornly watch the other fellows gather the fruit in the vineyard.

Therefore it may be good to surmise that Packey dislikes muchly to contemplate the time when he will be shut off from the money Marathon for lack of massacring maulers, and therefore jabs and stings and blinds, happy in the thought that clear reason and logic has the Battling Nelson style of fierce attack looking like father's laundry that mamma forgot to put away while Fido spent the afternoon at home.

We are getting a class of well-dressed, cafe-conversation style of fighters. This Packey McFarland may be one of these. They do say that he is a fair hitter in the literary league and can answer right away when the name of a prominent book is brought up, and Laura Jean and Bertha M. Clay are barred from the competition. He is smart, has the eye on the main chance, and can drink soup probably without imitating a mouth organ that draws badly.

Yes, maybe Packey's punch is there, hidden and well disciplined by reason. This is an age when many map their life with their eyes doing a gimlet into the distant future. This live today stuff and hold funeral services from the house has been rudely pushed into the great beyond. The boys with manners like unto the gentle wind that lulleth, or like the salve that smootheth, are the boys who count the money when the day is too rainy to permit of merry-making in the open.

Mons. McFarland, studying life from the Armour brand, perhaps, gathered unto his temple of reason the way to win, disregarding public opinion as to the merits of the wallop he carried in his serious system. Abe Attell has employed reason and resource, and perchance Packey McFarland is just another boy who is employing business to a profession whose members in the fading past have employed their analytical faculties in estimating and computing the amount of beers one can get for nothing after having spent large money on champagne and other divers followers of the trail of the grape fluid.

Our next talk on philosophy will be continued next week.

ADAMS AND PARK POINTERS WILL MEET.

The Adams and Park Points will battle this evening in the city league play. The game is expected to be interesting because of the fact that the Park Pointers are trying desperately to develop team work and get into the percentage running. The contest will be played at the rink at Twenty-fifth avenue west and will be called at 8 o'clock.

The probable lineup:

Adams.	Position.	Park Point.
E. Olsen	c	Gillis
R. Alder	r.w	Roberts
Helmer Grenner	l.w	Shearer
A. Grenner	r	Fisher
Billy Olsen	c.p	Gude
Axel Erickson	p	Matthews
Amel Kriz	g	Carbonneau

Duluth Boys Win.

Last evening the boys' department team of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Normal Alumni team of Superior, the score being 63 to 10. The visitors were outclassed at every stage of the game and showed little team work.

The lineup:

Superior.	Position.	Boys' Dept.
Gallaher	f	Huych
Gilbert	f	Whiteside
Currie	c	Simon
Gallaher	g	Lee
Greenfield	g	Smith

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

clothes are always a good bargain; there's no special reason why we should ever sell these clothes at less than the regular prices; they're always worth the money. So now, while spring goods are about to arrive, we're making room for them by cleaning up our fall and winter stocks. We do it by quoting prices that will do it.

THE FIRESIDE CLARION

EXTRA "Oh wad some power the giftie gie us to see ourself's as others see us."—Burns. EXTRA

EDITOR'S NOTE—Issued every once in a while at The Herald office for the benefit of curlers only.

"WILLIE" DINHAM, GEORGE WORTH, "BENNIE" PETZ AND R. J. CHRUDINSKI,
The Real and Only Original Duluth "Kid" Rink.

Here, kind friends, is Master Willie Dinham and his bunch of outlaw curlers. Please receive them with as much favor as possible. We promise never—no, never—to run such an aggregation in the columns of The Clarion again. It is only because we are getting down toward the last and knowing that we had to use them some time, we thought today was as good a time as any to slip them in. We apologize for them, but read on, there is more to be said about this gang.

First of all there is Master Willie. He took to curling as a duck takes to water. Bill would get up in the middle of the night to curl. He was third man for Elmer Whyte in that famous Whyte-Dunbar 3 a. m. game in which Dunbar lost. He is one of the youngest curlers in the Duluth club and he is one of the best. This is a whole lot for The Clarion to say about any one and we had better stop right here before we get enthusiastic and say so many nice things that we might regret them. Anyway, we have to hand it to Bill. He is the blue-eyed boy that can make even the best of them go some.

Next in line is George Worth. George is rather inclined to take a deep and serious view of the grand old game. He leans rather toward the Fireside rink, too. When he is not curling he is up at the gymnasium doing all sorts of stunts on the bars. George, you shouldn't have turned down that offer by Barnum & Bailey last summer. However, it is said that Dinham went the circus outfit one better.

And friends, hush, also the soft pedal, here is little "Bennie" Petz—caught in a perfect pose. That is just as he looked one morning during the bonspiel. Bennie is so generous with himself. Notice how he distributes his weight. Half of it is given to Worth on the left while Chrudinski on the right gets an equal share. It seems that Ben never gets enough sleep. Let "X" equal the unknown quantity. He is a nice boy and we all like him, but he has no right—absolutely no right to try to disguise himself as a curler. If Ben doesn't like the game, he hasn't found it out yet, for he is at the rink every day.

R. J. Chrudinski is one of the curlers—notice we say "curlers"—who helped Elmer Whyte put "Bob" Dunbar out of the running in the St. Paul Jobbers'. He is some curler is Chrudinski and we herewith give him the right to call himself a curler wherever he may be. It will be noticed that he is the first man we have ever called a "curler." We have been careful to state in all other instances that the subject was trying or doing his best to be a curler.

A GLANCE FAR INTO THE FUTURE.

Time: 1940. Evening.
Place: The Whyte home.
Principals: Grandfather and the boys.
Enter, grandfather. Grandfather is entered.

Boys are already there.

The boys jump up and wildly clap their hands. "Tell us again about that game with Bob Dunbar."

So grandfather begins on the 999th time:

"It was in 1911," begins grandfather quite calmly, "that the famous game was played."

"Never mind dates," breaks in one of the lads, "our history teacher says that we need only remember a few of them."

Without heeding the interruption the elder Whyte continues in a tragic tone of voice:

"It was nip and tuck all through the ga——"

"Who was Nip and who was Tuck?" asked George with a winsome look.

"Oh, g'wan!" says Elmer, Jr., and also the older of the two, "grandfather was Nip and Dunbar was Tuck. Grandfather won didn't he?

The older man's eyes were cast into space and he seemed not to hear. He continued melodramatically:

"We were down! Oh, it seemed as though the very fates were against us. It was 3 a. m! It was the finals in the biggest event and largest stakes ever played for! They had us going, going and we were almost gone when I raised my stone for the final draw shot!" (Here Whyte jumps up and takes a child's broom and begins to sweep the stone. He swept it twice across the nursery floor and finally drew it behind the piano directly on the figure which was supposed to be the button.)

"There, that's the way it was done" yelled grandfather "and that is the way the game was won. It was the greatest shot ever seen at the Curling club," and certainly the best one that had ever been made in the nursery for all the guards which had included rocking chairs, bric-a-brac had been cleaned out in the mad progress while the imaginary stone rested serenely on the button.

Whyte stops all out of breath and the boys applaud for they knew that the story is over until the next night.

In fairness to Mr. Whyte, The Clarion editor must state that he has not mentioned the game around the rink, since he won it.

IS CUTTING DOWN FORCE

Railway Postoffice Saving Money By Neglecting to Fill Vacancies.

Policy of Retrenchment Has Affected Duluth Little as Yet.

The policy of retrenchment adopted in all branches of the postoffice service, but most noticeable just now in the railway mail service, has not been put into effect to any great degree among the railway mail clerks running into Duluth. Having one case among them, however, they fear that others will occur, and they are preparing to make a vigorous protest if such should be the case, and also to go out after the backing of public opinion.

The saddling of extra work on railway mail clerks by the department failing to make appointments to fill vacancies caused by men leaving or being laid off, has caused a revolt among the clerks in some sections of the country, notably on the run between Tracey and Aberdeen, and the clerks in other sections are preparing to add their protests to those already sent to the department.

The plan which is said to have been adopted by the department to curtail the expense of the railway mail service is to fail to make an appointment of a substitute or a regular man to fill vacancies caused by men leaving the service or being laid off. The other men on the same run have been required to take over the work of the man who left, and some of the men have been given many extra hours' work and many extra duties. They did not mind the condition at first, but when the number of vacancies grew and with them the number of appointments which were held up, a revolt took place.

The only case in the Duluth district is that of a man who left the service about three months ago. For about a week a substitute was employed, but he disappeared and six or seven regular men who were on the same run were required to take over the extra work. Distributed among that many, it placed few hardships on anyone, and they have not complained thus far. If the condition which has appeared in other districts should also arise in this district, there would be a vigorous protest from the clerks running into Duluth, however. About thirty men making Duluth their headquarters in the railway mail service are on the alert for any attempt on the part of the government to impose on them and they believe they can get the backing of the public in fighting against a policy of retrenchment which they say will work to the impairment of the service.

On account of the force of railway clerks being impaired in the St. Paul and Minneapolis districts, it is said that mail is being held up, as the number of men employed cannot handle it. In spite of that fact, the clerks say that many appointments are being held up by the department with only economy in view and they are arousing the public to protests against the policy, which is not regarded as proper retrenchment.

1,623 Names Are Added With Four Precincts Still Missing.

Seventh Ward Turns Out Well—Total Registration Nearly 4,300.

With four precincts yet to be received the record at the office of the city clerk show that yesterday's registration was 1,623. The registration at the primaries was 2,495, which will will bring the total up to about 4,300 when all the returns are entered.

In some precincts the registration was heavier than in the primaries, particularly in the Seventh ward, where 376 put their names on the rolls as compared with but 287 at the primaries. The voters turned out better in the western part of the city generally than in the central and eastern sections. The western wards show heavier returns generally than any of the others.

COPPERS SELL OFF AT CLOSE

Boston Market Weakens—Keating and Denn Are Local Features.

The Boston market held up well during the morning session, but under pressure of selling toward the close and weakness in the New York market, it declined and all prominent issues closed under the opening price. Amalgamated opened at $64.25 and closed at $63.25; Butte Coalition opened at $19, went to $19.25 and closed at $19; Calumet & Arizona opened at $49, advanced to $49.25 and fell off to $48 at the close; North Butte opened at $28 and closed at $27.62½; Lake opened at $34 and closed at $33.50, and Superior & Pittsburg opened at $14.25 and closed at the same figure.

An advance in Keating from $1.62½ to $2 today and a bid of $2 at the close with no takers was the feature of the local copper stock market. Close behind Keating in point of interest was Denn, which sold at $5.25 to $5.37½ with 1,150 shares changing hands. In Keating, 1,915 shares were sold.

On the floor of the Duluth stock exchange, 4,775 shares changed hands today. Besides Keating and Denn, which were the features, Calumet & Montana sold at 72c, Calumet & Corbin at 30c and 31c, Carman at $1.12½, Cliff at $1.37½, Summitt at 58c and Calumet & Sonora at $7.62½.

The hearing held in Butte yesterday in the injunction proceedings brought by the Amalgamated Copper company against the Butte-Ballaklava company resulted in a temporary injunction being issued against the Butte-Ballaklava company, restraining that company from taking ore from certain veins until the action has been decided on its merits before Judge Clancy.

The action of the court in granting the temporary restraining order had been discounted in the market, as it was expected. The Amalgamated company claims that the Butte-Ballaklava company has been taking ore from veins which apex on the Mountain Chief and Right Bower claims of the Amalgamated company.

WILY BLACK TAILED DEER.

By far the most interesting and sought for creature in the Oregon mountain ranges, the Columbian blacktailed deer is found at his best in the ranges between the summit of the Cascades and the Pacific.

And he is a true mountaineer, says a writer in Recreation. No animal knows better how to take advantage of the hundreds of contrasting but harmonious woodland tints. Only when the firs, pines and hemlocks cast long shadows into the gulches where he lies concealed and the sun nears the horizon, does he slip out, and after cautiously peering about and testing the wind begin picking up his dinner.

The deer has an individuality all his own, which is in keeping with his forest surroundings. The more one hunts him the greater becomes one's respect for him. His natural shyness is so great that he skulks outrageously, and the covers of moss wrapped brush and fellen tree trunks, harmonizing with his own bluish gray coat, afford him a shelter and a safe retreat.

In these recesses many objects resemble a deer at rest and the hunter's eye becomes so accustomed to them that oftentimes when a deer is actually sighted it seems so commonplace to him that he fails to distinguish it until it leaps into cover. This is particularly true when deer are lying ruminating. And one of these blacktails will lie still and make himself look like a stump when any other deer would be climbing trees and jumping off precipices to get out of the way of danger.

Several times I have discovered a deer lying only a few yards off, with neck depressed, head to the ground and ears laid back, for all the world like a fawn or like a rabbit in its form. This is frequently practiced by the blacktail. On one occasion I discovered a young forked horn buck lying close and decided to find out what he would do in such a case, so I moved on hurriedly, designedly kicking the sticks and brush, but he kept still and showed no disposition to move.

Crossing the ridge I swung back so as to double over the same course, and when I got a view of his lair I peered through the bushes and saw him still on the lookout in the direction he had seen me disappear. Further down the canon a large buck was standing looking anxiously in the same direction. Presently the young buck got up and went down into a thicket and the old buck soon joined him there, but in a position affording him a commanding view and beyond my rifle range. (I was watching with a telescope). I made an attempt to get a shot at the big buck, but he sneaked out without my even seeing him go.

BRINGING THE MANGO TO PORTO RICO.

Christian Herald: Missionaries, ministers, Christian workers and their friends who believe in feeding the hungry as well as teaching the ignorant have introduced into Porto Rico a new industry, the growing of the East India grafted mango fruit.

David Fairchild of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., through whose office was introduced into the United States the durum wheat (macaroni wheat) which has been worth millions of dollars to the country, has said that the coming of the grafted mango to Porto Rico, like the introduction of the navel orange into California, may be a matter of the greatest importance.

He thinks it will become one of the leading industries of the island, as it is one of the most delicious of fruits. The agricultural department is supplying young grafted mango trees, which the department has been gathering for the last ten years or more from Ceylon, India, Java, the East coast of Africa, the Philippines and the Pacific islands.

WOMEN AS FNANCIERS.

Tid Bits: There is a common saying to the effect that a woman has no head for business, but whoever makes the remark is either willfully ignorant, for there are a great number of women in the world today who have not only proved that they have a head for business, but they know how to make money in a far quicker and more enterprising manner than thousands of men.

Many an expert on the other side of the Atlantic has confessed his inability to make farming and ranching pay, and yet there are women in Mexico and the states who have built up some of the most prosperous farms in the world.

There is Mrs. Harriet M. King, for instance, the sole owner and actual manager of Santo Gertrudes ranch, near Corpus Christi, Texas. You could ride ninety miles in a straight line and yet remain within the barbed wire fence which incloses this amazing farm. Its pasturage affords grazing for 100,000 cattle, 50,000 sheep and nearly 3,000 horses and more than 2,000 employes are kept busy on the ranch. When a certain cattle syndicate offered Mrs. King over £1,000,000 for her farm she simply laughed at the valuation, and refused to consider the possibility of a sale.

Another remarkable Texas lady farmer is Mrs. Kennedy, who possesses a ranch which, in the opinion of many, has the best stock in that part of the world. The cattle are the finest breed, and her ranch comprises some of the richest land in this state. She takes an active interest in all the doings of the ranch, and is reported to be worth some £1,000,000.

Among the most remarkable business women of America is Mrs. Theodosia Beacham, who has made a fortune out of building railroads. For a number of years it is said that she has made not less than £8,000 to £10,000 a year profit, and on one of her recent contracts she made £14,000 in a few months.

She reminds one of Mrs. Mary S. Halladay, a woman railway president, of St. Louis, who, on the death of her husband, became a member of the board of directors of a small railroad in which he held a large amount of stock of doubtful future value. She soon began to show the men on the board that she was, perhaps, a better railroader than the men themselves, and in two years, through her business aptitude, she had raised the value of the stock formerly held by her husband to close upon £500,000.

Mrs. Rosa Herrmann is another widow who provides a striking illustration of the business aptitude of women. Before his death Mr. Herrmann built up a big lumber business. He left everything absolutely and unconditionally to his wife. She was a society woman, knowing little about business, but she at once stepped into the gap and took hold of the reins. So quickly did she grasp the essentials of the business that, although it is only about a dozen years ago since her husband, died, her rivals admit that what she does not know about the lumber business is scarcely worth knowing.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable fortunes ever made by a woman was that acquired by Mrs. Hood Russel, who, in a little over a dozen years, rose from being a lawyer's stenographer at £5 a week to one of the richest women in Kentucky. While working in an office she acquired a knowledge of oil, and discovering some oil fields in Kentucky, put all her money in them, taking new leases at every opportunity by pledging half interest in them. The first "shot" was successful and her fortune was made, for she held leases on thousands of acres.

THE WOUNDED TIGER.

Badminton Magazine: Perhaps some of the fascination of tiger shooting lies in the mischief that results from bad shooting or methods. This entails a carelessness which invests the sport with a gravity, marking it as apart from other shooting.

For first and foremost stands the safety of one's companions, whether they be beaters, trackers or elephants. "Shoot dead or leave well alone" is a counsel of perfection which should ever be borne in mind, even if not always attainable. With the tiger lying dead or gone away unwounded, the trouble is ended until you wish to start it again. With a wounded beast afoot, the trouble is hardly yet begun save in the matter of getting beaters and such like up trees or out of danger's way elsewhere.

With elephants, especially howdah elephants, pursuit may begin at once or be delayed, according to circumstances. Without them, an hour or two's interval or more on occasion should elapse before starting on what may be a pleasant or an unpleasant duty, according to the sportsman's taste in these matters. But a duty it (nearly) always is. Wounded tigers are not articles to be lightly left littering a place.

The interval before pursuit allows of a chance of three things—and of one other which must be accepted unwillingly. The wounded tiger may die either directly from the wound or from the effects of drinking water on certain wounds. The wound may incapacitate him, from loss of blood or stiffening, for mischief. And his rage may have time to cool down. But he may also get clean away.

The pursuit begins. Its methods must vary under the many circumstances possible. Sometimes a tracker is necessary, and he works covered by rifles under the trunk of an elephant or close to the sportsman if he is on foot. Risk there is, especially in dense country, but with proper caution and precaution it is reduced to a minimum, such as previous reconnaisances by hawk-eyed experts up trees, stone-throwing, the careful noting of the movements and sounds of animals, especially those of the ubiquitous monkey, peafowl or crow.

The treed experts having "made good" a zone, it is traversed and another started on. Sometimes, if the covert is dense and impassable, and if a herd of buffalo or even of goats be procurable, they can be driven into particularly likely places. Although buffalo have a wholesome dislike of tiger, still on occasion they will face him en masse. Sometimes they perform their duties rather too well, and with horn and hoof obliterate him, dead or alive. More usually they cause him to move, and so give a chance of a shot.

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN VINTAGE.

Pall Mall Gazette: This season's vintage at Austria-Hungary is one of the worst on record, the estimated volume of wine produced being less than half the usual average. A cold, early summer, followed by violent hailstones, is largely responsible for this unfortunate condition.

Some of the wine growing districts around Vienna have this year no wine at all. In parts of Southern Hungary the vines are absolutely bare, having neither leaves nor grapes. Hailstones and floods devastated vast areas in Hungary and completely ruined the rice fields in Northern Italy. The Austrian hailstorm insurance companies have been very hard hit, paying out losses amounting to many million crowns.

VALUE OF A GOOD MEMORY.

The trouble with old men usually is that their memories become overloaded with actual and psychic facts, among which they are unable to distinguish those that have a value for the present and those that have become obsolete. Generally speaking, an old man knows a great deal more than a young man, but, says the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, it does not necessarily follow that he is wiser. While, therefore, a strong memory is a great convenience, it is not necessarily an advantage.

Cardinal Mezzofanti, whose memory for words was so retentive that he never forgot one after hearing it once, and which enabled him to acquire more than a hundred languages, was in most resepcts a very ordinary person. Pliny relates that Mithridates, king of Pontus, had so excellent a memory that he was able to speak fluently twenty-two languages native to the provinces of his vast empire. Yet he was a cruel barbarian.

A well known peripatetic elocutionist and reciter still living declares that he can repeat without further preparation about 3,000 selections in prose and poetry. He probably tells the truth, since he has been training his mind in this particular direction for many years.

On the other hand, such men as Sir Walter Scott, Macauley and Gladstone were not only possessors of excellent memories, tey were also men of good judgment.

Among human beings children have the most remarkable memories. Unde favorable circumstances they will lear: three and even four languages, so a to be able to express their thought with equal ease in any one of the by the time they are 6 or 7 years of age.

And they accomplish this remarkable feat without any aid from the memonic devices to which adults are compelled to resort when they undertake a similar task. They learn words and phrases unconsciously, and rarely forget them as long as they live. On the other hand, grown-ups rarely acquire an accurate pronunciation of a foreign language, although they may be able to use it with entire correctness.

It is a common belief that the memory is more tenacious in early life than in later years. That seems to depend almost entirely on the individual.

MONEY AFLOAT AT SEA.

Somewhere between the latitude 49.50 north longitude 22.32 west and a hundred miles or so east of the Ambrose channel there are afloat on the broad Atlantic eight copper globes about the size of footballs any one of which is worth money to the lucky finder.

These globes were set adrift last August by the Wide World magazine in order that information might be obtained regarding ocean currents. Four of the globes have already been recovered—there were originally twelve of them—and the finders have each received $30 for their trouble.

The first globe to be retrieved was No. 1, which was set adrift two miles east of the Fasnet rock on Aug. 14 at noon. It traveled leisurely eastward for twenty miles and at 11:15 a. m. the following day was found in about a foot of water in a cove known locally as Tragiahan, situated on the southern side of Toe Head, County Cork, Ireland, the finder being James Barry, a fisherman living at Toe Head.

On Aug. 20 another globe, which had been set adrift two miles off the South Stack on Aug. 13, was found by Mr. Samuel Hanna about 1,000 yards north of Workington pier, Cumberland, England. Between the time that it was thrown overboard and recovered this globe traveled just over 100 miles in a direct line northeast at an average speed of fifteen miles a day.

On Sept. 5 Globe No. 10 was found by Oliver L. Loper, Montauk, L. I., three miles southwest of Montauk Point. This globe was set adrift at 3 p. m. on Aug. 19 when the Campania was 193 miles east of the Ambrose channel. It appears to have traveled froughly 100 miles as the crow flies in a west-northwesterly direction.

Next No. 9 was found by Walter S. Carroll of 723 Franklin street, Cape May City, N. J., near Cape May City on Sept. 23. This globe was set adrift on Aug. 19 at 9 p. m. ninety-five miles east of Ambrose channel; the globe therefore drifted about 200 miles in a southwesterly direction.

The remaining eight are still undiscovered. Each globe is numbered and the finder will receive at least $30 a globe on following the instructions contained in the cylinder. For No. 7, which was cast overboard by Commander Warr when the Campania was in latitude 47 north and longitude 34.30 west, the reward has been increased to $25, while No. 4, which was thrown by Mme. Melba in latitude 41.54 north and longitude 56.10 west and which bears her name engraved in the copper, the reward at present stands at $60.

STATE CLUBS IN SESSION

Benefits of Bringing Immigrants to Minnesota Discussed at St. Paul.

A. B. Hostetter Will Discuss the Commercial Club and Farmer.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—To secure desirable immigrants from Europe for Minnesota farms, and thereby increase the state's population and its productiveness, is the most important subject of discussion at the meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs, which met here today and continue tomorrow.

The program for today began with an address of welcome by Mayor Keller and the other features this morning were: "The Value of United Effort," by Governor A. O. Eberhart; appointment of committee on credentials; reports of officers; announcements.

Afternoon Program.

2 p. m.—Report of committee on credentials; "Agricultural Education," J. W. Worst, president North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo; "Good Roads," S. G. Iverson; "Government Roads vs. the Improvement of the Mississippi River," W. J. Whipple, secretary board of trade, Winona; "What the Commercial Club Can Do for the Farmer," A. B. Hostetter, Duluth.

Those prominent in the councils of the federation have been given special study to the feature of trans-Atlantic immigration. They have decided to present the question to the convention, and ask such action as will bring the proposition to the immediate attention of the legislature.

Advantages of Immigration.

Two advantages in going across the ocean for immigrants will be indicated. In the first place, the American farmer is said to know little about intensive farming, while the circumstances of his civilization have developed the skill of the European in this direction.

J. C. Vaut Hull, Jr., of St. Paul, who has been acting as secretary of the federation, is expected to bring up this matter in connection with a request for an appropriation from the state of $100,000 for advertising and immigration purposes.

MISSING CHECK HAS BEEN FOUND

Was Stolen From Mail And Conscience Smitten Thief Returns It.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some time last year $15 was mailed to George French, treasurer of Beltrami county, by M. J. Springer of Elgin, Ill., in payment for some taxes on some land in Taylor township. This payment was never received by Mr. French and the matter was never entirely straightened up until yesterday when Mr. French received a letter from Mr. Springer with a letter enclosed from Mr. Springer's bookkeeper, who had issued the check. The letter explains why the county treasurer did not receive the money.

Conscience Interferes.

It follows:

"La Prairie, Minn., Jan. 13, 1911. H. V. Allen, Elgin, Ill. Dear Sir—You won't know who this is from and perhaps never will, but I am enclosing in this letter $16 which I stole last spring, when I was one of a gang who robbed a mail train up near there, but my conscience won't let me do that kind of work any more, wife and babies have a stronger influence over me and as fast as I have been able to I am repaying all that I took at that or any other time. You and I have it marked $16 and I am sure that it was money easily gained once, but is not so easily put back. I trust God always prospers you as he does all who are faithful. A PENITENT."

MORAL REFORM HITS DEADWOOD

Once Wild and Wooly Town of Black Hills Is Getting Good.

Lead, S. D., Jan. 25.—The time of liberty and license, the day when the saloons were never closed day or night, when the rattle of the roulette wheel could be heard through the open doors and windows, when thousands were staked and lost in a single night in open gambling houses in the principal cities of the Black Hills, is passing.

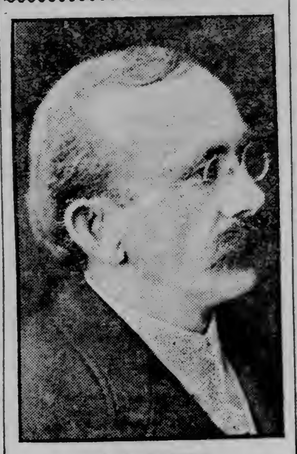

This month Steve Batinovich, a saloon keeper, was given notice by the city council that his occupation as a purveyor of liquor was gone.

In circuit court Judge W. G. Rice imposed a fine of $100 on Mike Donovan, a Deadwood saloon keeper, and revoked his saloon license because he entered his place of business on Sunday.

The open gambling halls have disappeared, but the man who feels a desire to "buck the tiger" may still have the opportunity, but before long the old days in the mining camps will be a thing of the past and even the dance halls which have made Deadwood famous will be wiped out.

The Deadwood Telegraph is making an effort to reform the town and some improvement has already been noticed, although the agitation for a better moral condition promises to cost that publication thousands of dollars.

SPURNS FORTUNE FOR HIS PATENT

M. B. LLOYD.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. B. Lloyd, a local manufacturer, has an automatic welding process, which is declared to be a mechanical wonder. His patents have attracted the attention of manufacturers throughout the world and he has been offered a fortune for his rights in the invention, but Mr. Lloyd has determined to handle his invention locally, and the Automatic Welding company has been organized with a capital of $25,000. J. W. Wells is president, B. Lloyd, vice president, and Edwin Daniell, secretary-treasurer. A factory has been leased and a force of fifty men will be set to work manufacturing steel tubing by Mr. Lloyd's patent process.

Mr. Lloyd, who is the head of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, came to the United States from Canada a penniless boy and got a start with one of the big milling concerns of Minneapolis. While working in a subordinate position he was impressed with the slow process of weighing and invented a patent scale. It proved a success and made money for him. This was the stepping stone to his success. He subsequently undertook the manufacture of go-carts and wire matting and, finally established a plant in Menominee which now employs 300 men and is the largest concern of its kind in the world. His patents cover every branch of this industry, fro mmachines which make a wheel at a stroke, to folding tops and collapsible devices. His rule in life has been to find a way or make it.

This is to Announce that the noted specialist of Chicago, DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT, will send FREE to every reader of The Herald, whether subscriber or not, who is suffering from RHEUMATISM or any of the diseases of the KIDNEYS or BLADDER, a free proof treatment of his wonderful home remedies, together with a full letter of plain medical advice with his opinion of your case and what in his judgment should be done for your cure. There will be no charge whatever for any of this, and furthermore, it is to be sent postpaid.

OFFICE OF

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT

SPECIALIST

URIC ACID DISEASES, RHEUMATISM, KIDNEY AND BLADDER AILMENTS.

OCCIDENTAL BLDG.

CHICAGO, January 25, 1911.

Dear Reader:—It is with the greatest pleasure, indeed, that I am enabled to prove, through the co-operation of The Herald, that it is no longer necessary to suffer from any form of Uric Acid poison such as Rheumatism, Kidney or Bladder trouble, and that I can turn into sunshine and happiness the days and nights which I know you are now wasting in pain and sleeplessness, in misery and despair.

At the outset I want to assure my readers that I neither ask nor expect any money or other gift for these services, and that I will not even accept a postage stamp. I merely do this to prove the wonderful merit of my remedies and that a cure is now at hand for these diseases. For with my wonderful treatment thousands are now being cured, and among every class and on every hand, I am receiving daily letters of compliment and wonder for the marvelous curing powers of my treatment.

No one knows better how terrible the agonies, how awful the pain, than I know them, for I have made these diseases my specialty for over 30 years, and have seen and cured thousands and thousands of the worst cases—cases where the sufferers' legs and arms were more like trunks of big trees, and many crippled out of all semblance to human beings. But is it not refreshing that after all this—that after taking my treatment they could run up and down stairs like children? I have seen human wrecks, with powerless limbs, being wheeled through the streets—pitiful burdens to relatives and friends—seeking vainly for relief, finally write to me, who are now hopping about lively and chipper as you please, free from every vestige of Uric Acid poison, for it is this poison that causes Kidney trouble, Bladder trouble and Rheumatism.

The American nation is skeptical today, but I am sure that if I can win your confidence and trust, as I have thousands of others, I can be of real service to you and bring joy and happiness into every home. It is my ambition to do good to the end of my days, and I can think of no better or surer way than by placing within the reach of all sufferers the means of finding perfect health. I know that many sick people cannot afford to pay the usual fees of specialists, and I am therefore sending my remedies and offering my services absolutely free of cost or expense to any and all who write me. I know that every one cured will be only too glad to tell about it to those whom they know are afflicted.

I am as positively certain that I can cure Rheumatism, Bladder and Kidney troubles as that day will follow the night. You should not allow yourself to come to believe your case incurable. You should not lose time and money with a doctor who tells you he cannot cure you. I will be pleased to give my best opinion free to those who send me a description of their symptoms. You can write me in your own words or you can mark the coupon with a sign opposite the number as I have explained. I posses the remedy that will cure you and am willing that you should have it without a cent of cost to you, but as I have not your address you must supply it. That is all I ask. Simply fill out the certificate provided by this paper and mail it to me today. The first dose or two will give you relief, and in a very short time indeed I know you will be entirely rid of all your pains and once again enjoy the blessings of health.

I know that a good many free offers have been advertised where the public had to send money, but this announcement is not to be classed with those. And I must further state, much as I dislike to, that my promise to send my proof treatment free cannot last forever but is limited to a short time only. I could not very well afford to continue it always, and no one can rightly expect it. Therefore if you are anxious about your health, or you have a sick father or a sick mother, sister or brother, or any relative or friend who is suffering from any of these Uric Acid diseases in which I specialize—I wish it understood that I have no "cure-all"—then I advice you to write me without delay and in that way be sure of getting my best attention, for each request will be handled in the order in which it is received by me. I am, dear friends, Very respectfully yours

Dr. T. Frank Lynott,
4432 Occidental Building, Chicago.

Ladies should not be backward in writing me fully.

IMPORTANT

Write to the doctor TODAY if you are so afflicted and send him no money as nothing is expected or will be taken, and he will send you also his Illustrated Medical Book telling all about Uric Acid diseases, Kidney trouble, Bladder trouble and Rheumatism and what his method of treating them is. The doctor especially wants to send his free treatment to those who have been victims of the so-called "cures" and have tried porous plasters, bath cabinets, electric belts and liniments and have failed to be relieved and to all those apparently hopeless cases where everything has been tried, and who, therefore, need the right kind of help. This is done simply to prove that a genuine and reliable cure for these diseases has been found and that here is an honorable physician, who will bear all the expense himself, offering his treatment and services for whatever good he can do.

If YOU are now enjoying good health so much the better, for health is better than wealth, but you should at once bring this opportunity to the attention of every friend who IS sick and no matter how skeptical he may be now, make him sit right down and write the Doctor TODAY. It is THE message of HOPE to those afflicted with any of these terrible diseases.

Do You Care 2c Worth to be Cured of RHEUMATISM, KIDNEY and BLADDER TROUBLES

Is there any reader of The Herald who doesn't care to get rid of that terrible back-breaking, nerve-racking pain—the awful agonies of continual suffering. Is there any person on earth who would rather bear that daily, nightly, constant, endless torture than enjoy the full bloom of health, wherein alone lies peace and happiness. It is terrible that there should be such suffering in this world and when you know what causes all this trouble, as you will know after you have read Dr. Lynott's treatise which he sends you free merely for the asking, you will wonder and marvel why other doctors have failed to cure you, and why you have allowed yourself to suffer so long and perhaps so terribly, and you will know why this astonishingly simple treatment, which is here offered to you free, WILL cure you, QUICKLY, surely and without fail.

¶ A good many people believe that Education comes only from schools and colleges.

It doesn't.

¶ The most effective, most worth-while Education comes from a knowledge of human nature and a knowledge of life.

And the best way to learn these things that are real, short of years of experience, is in the pages of Mark Twain's books. You have thought of him only as a humorist and philosopher.

¶ He is far more than this—he is first of all a Teacher, and you may benefit by his rich experience—use his powers of observation—learn human nature through his pages.

MARK TWAIN'S WORKS 1/2 PRICE

It had been Mark Twain's ambition to have his books in every American home, and he made a great personal sacrifice to bring about this remarkable opportunity—for the first time in the history of publishing, copyrighted books are sold at the price of non-copyrighted books—the chance will not come again.

Now for the first time you get a complete set of all Mark Twain's writings, at just exactly one-half the price they have ever been sold before. This is a new edition, just as complete as the old one, which still sells, by the way, at $50.00. This new edition is only $25.00—for the 25 volumes. Never before has a copyrighted library set of a standard author's works been issued at such a low figure.

In this new set there are beautiful pictures by Frost, Newell, Smedley, Thulstrup, Clinedinst, Kemble, and Opper. The binding is in rich red rep silk book cloth, with title labels stamped in gold. The books are printed on white antique wove paper, especially made for this edition. Each volume is of generous size and bulk, 5x7½ inches.

WEST END SODALITY AT BANQUET

Young Men of St. Clement's Catholic Church Have "Spread."

Prosperous Year Predicted for Society in Its New Quarters.

That the Young Men's Sodality of St. Clement's Catholic church of the West End will become a potent factor in athletic circles in Duluth the coming year, was predicted by speakers last evening at the first annual banquet of the organization held at the Esmond hotel, Twentieth avenue west. Covers were laid for fifty.

Rev. Raymond Basil, associate pastor of the parish and director of the sodality, was toastmaster, and Rev. Augustine Brockmeyer, parish pastor, was the principal speaker. He spoke of the sodality, its meaning and aims, bringing out in his talk that the sodalists were not banded together for material pursuits only, but also for the higher purpose of making better men.

Ben Owens, the popular captain of last year's indoor baseball team, was called upon for a few remarks. Mr. Owens outlined the past record of the indoor baseball activities of the club and spoke optimistically of the future.

REV. AUGUSTINE BROCKMEYER.

He commended the members of the team for the "pull together spirit that had been shown.

Ray Lavelle, who was captain of last year's basket ball team, talked on the prospects for the future. He expressed regret on account of the church burning last year, that it was necessary to use the hall until the new church is finished. The completion of the new structure and the turning over of the present church to the young men, will mean much to the sodalists, he said, as they will then come into their own.

John Miller, secretary, related a little of the history of the club; William Padden, told of the membership, and John Schiltz, treasurer, spoke of the financial standing of the club. Charles Kremer, chairman of the committee on arrangements, also talked during the evening.

Others who contributed to the program were: Lawrence Drohan prefect of the sodality, who gave a reading on "The Ghost," and James Wade, who besides giving a talk on the dramatic work of the club, rendered several vocal selections. One of the hits of the evening was his song on "Where Was Moses When the Lamps Went Out?"

After the dinner an informal smoker was held. The sodality was organized in November, 1906, and now has about fifty active members. The spread last evening was the first one held under the auspices of the club and much credit is to go to the committee, which consists of Charles Kremer, William Padden and Lawrence Drohan.

The sodality is planning on giving another play this spring. "Among the Breakers," a two-act drama, has been selected and a cast has been chosen. It will be presented March 17. Rev. Father Raymond Basil is supervising the affair. Those who will take part are: Lawrence Drohan, John Garvey, James Wade, John Schiltz, John Miller, James Lamb and the Misses Mary Shesgren, Ella Phillips, Lydia Von Droshek and Louise Emerson.

The Swedish Guild of St. Peter's Episcopal church will be entertained tomorrow afternon at the home of Mrs. A. Lofgren of 2305 West Third street.

Finally Kills Himself.

Millboro, S. D., Jan. 25.—David Raymond, aged 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Raymond, residents of Tripp county, eluding the vigilance of members of the household, secured a gun and committed suicide by shooting himself. Last spring he made a similar attempt, shooting himself with a shotgun. He placed the muzzle under his chin and pulled the trigger, blowing off his lower jaw and nose.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

Slush! This banana belt thing is all right — sometimes. Now yesterday! Ah, 'twas great, grand, sublime, superb, incomparable, delightful — something to be enjoyed and to be thankful for. Who minds a little water under foot when the sun is shining brightly out of a clear sky, the air is balmy and the breezes springlike? But water under foot only adds to discomfort when the sky is a pall of gloom and the air saturated with mist that can be seen and felt and hated. It will likely rain tonight. Better 20 deg. below zero than this! The weather man would have been lynched if he had sent this weather when the curlers were here last week. This January thaw may be short-lived, for the weather man promises lower temperatures tomorrow. Get ready to slide.

A year ago today was cloudy and threatening.

The sun rose this morning at 7:41 and it will set at 5 this evening, giving nine hours and nineteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The British Columbia low pressure remained about stationary during the last twenty-four hours, but the barometer has fallen over the greater portion of the United States except along the Pacific coast. In the meantime snow or rain resulted over the Gulf region and the Far West, and there has been a general increase in temperature, except that the weather has turned colder in Northwestern Montana, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The latter condition is due to a sharp increase in pressure over Alberta and the high barometer further to the northward. Zero temperatures prevail in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Northern Montana and Northern North Dakota. The temperature at the Head of the Lakes will probably continue mild today and tonight."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Unsettled with local snows tonight or Thursday.

Wisconsin and Iowa — Unsettled weather with rain tonight or Thursday; continued warm.

Minnesota—Unsettled weather with snow or rain tonight or Thursday; colder Thursday and in northwest portion tonight; cold wave in northwest portion.

North Dakota—Snow tonight or Thursday; colder; cold wave in west and south portions.

South Dakota—Unsettled weather with probably snow tonight or Thursday; colder; cold wave Thursday.

Montana—Snow tonight or Thursday; colder; cold wave in south portion.

Shippers' forecast—Protect thirty-six hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in North Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota.

SMEAR PLAYERS ARE ARRESTED

Rooming House Raided By Police and Six Men Captured.

The rooming house run by George Starvkitch at 722 West Superior street, was raided about 10 o'clock last night by Patrolmen Olson and Musolf, who arrested the proprietor and five others on a charge of gambling.

It is alleged that they were playing a game of "smear" for money. The officers confiscated the cards and chips which were being used, together with about $3 in money.

At the police station, the alleged gamblers pooled their total wealth, with the result that they managed to raise $35 between them. This they put up as bail for the proprietor, the others saying that his wife needed him at home and that they didn't mind sleeping at the police station. Besides the proprietor those arrested were: Steve Stuff and four brothers, Mat, Peter, John and Anna Stanvic.

They all pleaded not guilty this morning.

SKIN DISEASES
HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

Nature has made ample provision in the moisture and sunshine of the air for the outward protection and healthy condition of the skin. But the more important work of nourishing the cuticle has been left to an inward source—the blood. It is from the circulation that the pores and glands receive their stimulus, and the fibrous tissues are all preserved in a healthful state because of constant nutriment supplied by the blood. It is only when the circulation becomes infected with humors or acids that we are troubled with skin affections. The humors producing these troubles are carried through the circulation direct to the skin, and their irritating or inflammatory effect remains until the blood is cleansed. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases, because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation and REMOVES the acids and humors which are causing the trouble, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and completely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, pimples, rashes, and all eruptions of the skin. When S. S. S. has driven out the humors every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with cooling, healthful blood, natural evaporation is renewed, and the skin becomes soft and smooth. SCHOOL GIRL, HIT BY TRAIN, LIES UNCONSCIOUS IN THE SNOW ALL NIGHT last night and left the telephone office shortly after 11:30 o'clock. It is thought that she stepped in front of the train which runs to Two Harbors, with freight and passengers. There were no eye witnesses, but it is believed that she failed to either hear or see the train as it approached. The nature of her injuries shows that it hit her in the side.

She was hurled into the snowbank in the ditch and almost completely hidden from sight. There is no doubt that she was immediately knocked unconscious. At the hospital this noon she was still unconscious and it is feared that she will not regain her senses before dying.

Saw Her Petticoat.

When Watchman Moore came along the track this morning he saw some foreign object protuding from the snow near the crossing. A nearer examination showed it to be a petticoat and on digging into the snow he found Miss Mattson. With the aid of Harold and Thomas Williams he carried her to the Williams residence. Dr. H. E. Webster was summoned and he immediately ordered Totman's ambulance to convey her to the hospital. Dr. Webster stated after the injuries had been examined that he doesn't think there is any chance of recovery. He stated that in addition to the fractured skull and broken thigh, it is probable that she suffered severe internal injuries.

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy, nor, as far as can be learned, was Miss Matson seen by any of the engine or train crew. The night was foggy, making it difficult to see any great distance ahead.

Miss Mattson had been making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Mattson of 4416 Dodge street. She is the oldest of a family of several children. Her parents did not know of the terrible accident which had befallen their daughter until informed by neighbors this morning. Both were grief-striken when the sad news was broken to them. They hurried to St. Luke's hospital and have been hovering at the bedside of the dying girl since. Many neighbors and friends also went to the institution when they learned of the accident. Miss Mattson is popular in her class at the high school and highly esteemed by all who know her.

There are sleeping quarters in the telephone exchange, and Miss Mattson's failure to return home last evening did not cause anxiety.

porters. From a point of vantage in the clock tower yesterday, it is stated, a number of women took up positions where they could see and hear all that was going on in the room, but Judge Jordan did not notice them.

Attorney S. O. Boyce continued his argument for the defense this morning. He launched into a speech against Dan Phillips, who, he declared, wormed his way into the confidence of Mrs. Schenck only to betray her.

Attorney Boyce closed his argument for the defense at 10:50 a. m. and after a brief recess Prosecutor Handlan opened the final address for the state.

Mr. Boyce, who had assailed the testimony of Eleanor Zoeckler, the detective-nurse Tuesday, again attacked her. He characterized her as a witness who was employed for the sole purpose of squirming her way into the affections of Mrs. Schenck and playing the part of a female Judas Iscariot.

Prosecutor J. B. Handlan began his address for the state at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Schenck had retained her usual calm demeanor during the morning but gradually gave way and, bowing her head, sobbed bitterly.

Draws Vivid Picture.

Chief Counsel O'Brien, in his address yesterday, drew a vivid picture of the lonely incarceration of the prisoner behind the grim walls of the jail on the holiday days of the year—Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. She was not even permitted to send her two children the little presents she had worked and made for them—the work of her own hands, he declared.

"What does a verdict of not guilty mean?" he asked. "Her liberty is all you gentlemen can give her. She has been disgraced throughout the whole world.

"If she goes free, where can she go to find a refuge? She cannot go to the fine home which she left a prisoner, because of the disgrace wrought upon her. She cannot remain in Wheeling. She must go an outcast and a homeless wanderer somewhere she is not recognized. Any place in Wheeling she would be pointed out as 'that Schenk woman.'

"Had John O. Schenk been allowed to come to the courtroom and testify, you know that all of his testimony would be for his wife, erring though she may have been."

arrangements for the burial are all in the hands of Senator Albert J. Beveridge, who was one of the writer's most intimate friends.

The body of Fitzhugh Coyle Goldsborough, the poet-musician who killed Phillips, which was borne to the railway station in Jersey City as the novelist was breathing his last, will be buried in Washington today.

Explanation of Crime.

What is regarded as an explanation of his crime is found in extracts from his diary made public by the district attorney and a statement made today by Goldsborough's uncle, T. H. Powers Farr of this city.

"Fitzhugh was most courtly in his ideas about women, and we are of the opinion he became incensed with Mr. Phillips because of his treatment of some of his women characters in his books. We think he brooded over this until he began to look upon Mr. Phillips as an enemy and decided to kill him. We can explain his mad act in no other way."

That Mr. Phillips' assailant was demented appears to have been demonstrated conclusively, not only by the curious testimony of his diary and notebooks, but also by his appeals to Mayor Gaynor's secretary and other officials for protection from persons who he believed, were hounding him. The entries in the diary showed that he had translated to personal abuse the author's picturesque characterization of a class in his novel on Washington life, "The Adventures of Joshua Craig," and under this misconstruction had conceived a homicidal hatred of which the victim was unaware.

Mr. Phillips was born in Madison, Ind., in 1867, was a Princeton graduate, and unmarried. He was one of the Indiana group of story tellers which includes Booth Tarkington, George Ade, Meredith Nicholson, Charles Major and others. He had written twenty novels, many "best sellers" among them, and numerous magazine articles.

His father was David Graham Phillips, a banker. His mother is now living in Los Angeles, Cal. Besides Mrs. Frevert, the sister with whom he made his home in New York, there is a second sister, Mrs. McLeland, living in Indiana, and a third, Mrs. Oliver Kinsey, living in Georgia.

Succumbs to Wounds.

New York, Jan. 25.—David Graham Phillips died in Bellevue hospital late last night, a victim of Fitzhugh Coyle Goldsborough, an eccentric and emotional musician, who shot the novelist down Monday for a fancied grievance, then killed himself. Phillips fought valiantly to live, but six bullets were too much even for his tenacity. He died at 11:05 o'clock.

He was conscious up to within fifteen minutes of his death, which occurred at just 11:05 o'clock. At the bedside were his sister, Mrs. Carolyn Frovert, his brother, Harrison W. Phillips, his personal physician, Dr. Eugene Fuller and Dr. Donovan of Bellevue. The immediate cause of death was hemorrhage from the right lung which had been pierced by one of the steel-clad bullets from Goldsborough's automatic pistol.

Up to 9 o'clock the novelist was resting quietly and both physicians and relatives were hopeful of the outcome. He had been conscious all day and had received visitors. Senator Beveridge of Indiana and others, including Mr. Phillip's sister and brother, were among the callers.

Change at 9 o'Clock.

About 9 o'clock last night he took a turn for the worse and although the surgeons did everything in their power, the end was inevitable.

Harrison Phillips announced that Senator Beveridge will have charge of the funeral arrangements.

Senator Beveridge returned to Washington yesterday afternoon, but probably will come back to New York this morning. In the meantime, it is thought that Phillip's body will be taken either to the Princeton club or to the National Arts club.

Sank Rapidly.

When it was seen that Phillips was dying, it was decided to infuse into his veins a warm salt water solution, but he sank so rapidly that the suggestion was abandoned.

The coroner issued a permit late last night for the removal of the body without the formality of an autopsy. Senator Beveridge said over the telephone from Washington that he would be in New York early this morning.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Market Nervous Throughout the Session But Closes Firmer.

Reports of Normal Crop Continue to Come From Southwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 25.—Wheat gained just a little in American markets today. In Duluth, the advance was only ⅜c, while in no market did it exceed ½c, which was the extent of the advance in Winnipeg.

The market was nervous all day. During the morning the bears, who show little disposition to back up their bear convictions on the floor, held the advantage, principally because the market was not supported. Toward the latter part of the session, the market seemed to have recovered somewhat from fear of the bears and buying was better, May and July options both recovering losses in all markets, with a little to spare.

The bear sentiment continues to hold sway on the winter wheat situation. Reports from the Southwest are that crop conditions are at least normal and might easily be considered a little better than normal. The bears are taking the reports for what they are worth and then disregarding them, except as to forming opinions.

The cash demand in Minneapolis and Duluth continues better than it has been for some days, outside mills being in the market after a long absence. The cash price holds at 1c under May in Duluth and from ⅞c to 1c under May in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis again reported receipts of 368 cars today, as compared to 427 last year, while Duluth has 69 today against 67 last year, a total for the Northwest of 437 this year against 494 last year. Minneapolis stocks have increased 275,000 bu in the last four days.

May wheat opened unchanged in the Duluth market, at $1.06¼, fell off to $1.06⅛, advanced to $1.06¼, fell off to $1.05⅞-6, touched $1.06, fell away to $1.05¾, advanced to $1.06⅞ and closed at $1.06⅝ bid. Trading was fairly active, especially toward the close of the session.

July wheat was ½c up at $1.07⅝ bid in the Duluth market.

May flax opened 1c off at $2.68, advanced to $2.69 and closed at that figure. Trading was quiet.

Kansas City reported that the demand for cash wheat there had fallen away. Spring rains will bring a big crop of winter wheat, the same report said.

Antwerp flax closed ⅝c lower and the Liverpool close was unchanged.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The wheat market at the opening was steady, although ⅛d to ¼d lower. The easy American cables yesterday were offset by lighter supplies here and the steadiness in Buenos Ayres market at the close. Following the opening there was an advance of ¼d to ⅜d with a large firm here buying March and shorts covering on a better spot demand and lighter Argentine offers. Later and before mid-day realizing developed on a small scale and prices reacted from the high of the morning. European crop advices continue favorable, this being especially so of Russia, where there is plenty of snow and the outlook favorable. Russian, Indian and Australian offers continue liberal and there was a small inquiry for parcels with English provincial markets lower. At mid-day the market was firm, but dull and prices averaged to ⅛d lower than yesterday.

"The corn market on the whole was dull, after opening unchanged the Plata grades advanced ⅛d on the firmness in spot and the scarcity of Argentine offers. The American grade was easier with larger American offers."

In the Duluth market oats were up ⅛c up at 32⅝c, rye was unchanged at 77-79c and barley was unchanged at 76-90c. Durum was ½c up at 91½c for May and cash wheat was 1c under May.

had a tendency to ease off wheat prices today. Conditions in other European countries were also reported as favorable to the bear side. Offers from India and the Argentine continued liberal, and domestic advices likewise appeared to be against the bulls. The principal factors were moderate temperatures, moist skies, cash demand slow, and flour trade poor. Tightness in the March delivery at Liverpool, however, led to a little show of strength here at the outset. The opening was unchanged to ⅛c up. May started at 98⅝c to 98¾@98⅞c, an advance of a shade to ⅛c, but declined to 98½@98⅝c.

Thaws Southwest improved the crop outlook and further weakened the market. Big purchases, however for bull leaders caused a sudden rally. Canadian reciprocity talk aided. The close was steady with May at 98⅞@99c, a net gain of ¼c.

Corn was firmer on the mild weather and because of yesterday's export business. May opened at a sixteenth to ⅛c higher at 50⅛@50¼c and steadied at the upper level.

Smallness of country sales kept the market from declining. The close was firm with May ½c up at 50⅝c, a net gain of ⅛c.

Oats though dull, sympathized with the strength of corn. May started a shade to ⅛c dearer at 34⅝@34¾c to 34⅞c but receded to 34⅝c.

Provisions weakened in consequence of a decline in hog prices. First sales were 2½c to 15c down with May at $18.37½ to $18.45 for pork, $9.77½ for lard and $9.82½ for ribs.

A GENTLE HINT.

Dublin Times: A gentleman living in the North of Ireland, whose tastefully laid out grounds were often visited by the public, had an old gardener who was in the habit of showing parties round the grounds. At such times he would, in a hurried, gabbling voice, explain the names of the flowers to the visitors. When nearing the exit gate he would, however, suddenly pause and draw special attention to a pretty cluster of modest posies, and then, in a very significant tone of voice, explain:

"These, ladies and gentlemen, are 'forget-me-nots.'"

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Alternately Rise and Fall on Narrow Range During Morning.

Turn Weak and Close With Declines From Tuesday's Figures.

New York, Jan. 25.—Gains were general at the opening of the market today. Six thousand shares of United States Steel sold at 78¼ to 78⅜, as against last night's closing price of 78. Western Maryland, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific advanced ⅜ point each and most of the other active issues improved fractionally. Several large blocks of the new New York city bonds sold at 101 to 101⅛, compared with yesterday's closing at 101½. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred was the weak spot, declining 2 points.

The market was unsettled in the early trading, alternately rising and falling on a fractional range. Opening gains were lost, but there was a subsequent rally led by United States Steel, which went to 78¾. American Smelting and American Can preferred improved a point. At 11 o'clock the market was on the down grade again with the leading stocks ruling under yesterday's closing.

The professional element professed disappointment at the failure of the market to make a more favorable response to yesterday's bond offering and sold the active list. Reading was offered by houses with Philadelphia connections and Pittsburg was a seller of Steel shares in the face of yesterday's intimations of a possible advance in the steel products. Harriman issues declined with the revival of the rumor that Southern Pacific is soon to engage in extensive financing abroad. Similar reports were without much effect on New York Central. St. Paul was the strongest of the standard railroad shares on the belief that the regular dividend will be declared tomorrow. Low prices showed overnight losses of 1 to 1½ in Reading, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Lehigh Valley, Norfolk & Western and Colorado Fuel. Sears-Roebuck was up 2 points, Lackawanna 5 and American Express 10. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed weak. Stock weakened further on the announcement that only the regular dividend had been declared on Norfolk & Western. That stock sagged 2 points below yesterday's closing and a number of other representative issues were off a point or more.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

NEW SHOES.

Chicago News: "I was in here yesterday," said the corpulent citizen as he entered the shoe store and laid a package down on the counter, "and I bought a pair of shoes of one of your clerks. He was a cheap-looking skate, with a fishy eye and no chin to speak of. Where is he?"

"That must have been Mr. Jimbex. He's out of town on a business trip."

"Well, he's playing in great luck. I have walked eight blocks for the purpose of standing him on his head and telling him what I think of him. Your Mr. Jimbex sold me a pair of shoes and said that money couldn't buy anything finer. They were all hand sewed and full jeweled and guaranteed to comply with the pure-food laws. He fairly went into ecstasies over that all-fired pair of shoes and I thought when I walked out of this store wearing them on my feet that I was destined to live happy ever after, like the people in a fairy book. I'll simply know no peace until I have had a five minutes' session with your Mr. Jimbex."

"But what's the matter with the shoes? If there's anything wrong we'll make it good."

"Oh, it's mighty easy to stand there saying you'll make it good when a man comes in with his back broken and all his vitals wrenched from their moorings, but I'd like to know how you're going to do it. Those shoes were hooddoed, I tell you. There was nothing human about them. They may have been hand sewed by the old masters and hand painted by Titian or Raphael and hand embroidered by the khan of Tartary, but they were hoodooed just the same.

"I hadn't walked ten feet from your store before I met a young lady for whom I have the greatest admiration, and while I was making my bow, with old-school courtesy, those blamed shoes flew out from under me and I sat down on the sidewalk right in front of her looking like a gibbering orang-outang in a side show. I never felt so silly in my life and that young lady laughed until she had to lean against the building, and it's a mighty lucky thing for your one-horse Mr. Jimbex that he wasn't in sight when I got to my feet."

"But all new shoes are slippery, you know."

"Oh, yes, all new shoes are reasonably slippy, of course, but those shoes had been boiled in goose grease. There isn't a circus actor in this country who could walk a block in them and not break his neck. The young lady had to take a hack, she was so weakened by merriment, and then I navigated along for two or three yards, and was just turning the corner when those shoes flew the coop again and I came down on my shoulder blades, and you can see the mark in the concrete pavement now.

"I was too badly jarred to get up for a couple of minutes, and I just lay there and turned loose a lot of nut-brown language thatI had been saving up for twenty years, and if there had been any Flanders troopers loafing around they'd have arranged for back seats right away. After I had burned up all the words I could think of I opened my eyes to see if the sun was still shining, and who should I see but my Aunt Jemima. She was standing there with both hands in the air, and her face full of stony horror. She had me down in her will for a good slice of money for a long time, and she thought I was too rigidly moral to use words of more than one syllable, and there she stood listening to me swearing rings around Capt. Kidd. She didn't lose half a minute in going to her lawyer's to have a new will made, and now you know where I got off.

"Here are your blamed hoodooed shoes! All I ask of you is to let me have five minutes in the basement with your Mr. Jimbex! I'm going to camp here until he comes in, if it takes five years!"

PRECAUTION.

Chicago News: "Are you the doctor?" asked the timid man who had entered the doctor's office with evident embarrassment. He wiped a cold sweat from his brow as he spoke.

"I am; what can I do for you?" asked the eminent practitioner.

"I don't know whether you can do anything for me or not," said the visitor. "I'm a mighty sick man and I need medicine bad enough, goodness knows, but before I place myself in the hands of any doctor I must have positive assurance that he won't carve me up unless it is absolutely necessary. There's something wrong with my stomach. The old thing's out of kelter after behaving itself for fifty years and it's fairly making life a burden to me. If I eat a doughnut or a fried egg or any harmless thing like that I feel as though I had swallowed a concrete hitching post. Even a drink of cold water causes me such torture that it baffles description, as the novelist says.

"Now, I'm all right every way except for this stomach trouble, and I won't stand for having a leg sawed off or anything like that. I've been informed that you doctors reach for a bucksaw as soon as you get a new patient, no matter what ails him, and you can count me out if you follow that plan. I won't allow any man to saw me into stove lengths while I can raise my voice against it."

"You have been sadly misinformed, my dear sir," replied the doctor. "Doctors of standing do not resort to surgical operations unless it's necessary, and none would think of using a saw in a case of stomach trouble."

"I'm glad to hear that! You don't know what a relief your words are to me, Doc! I'm willing to take the worst medicine you can mix up. Sling together all the noisy drugs in your curriculum, or whatever you call it, and you'll see me pour down the dope without making an ugly face! I was brought up on sulphur and senna tea, and a man who can take such stuff as that without raising a roughhouse won't balk at boiled hens' nests or anything you want to compound but it makes my blood run cold to think of losing a leg or having an arm whacked off.

"I know a good many wooden-legged men and they all say that their real legs were sawed off by doctors without reason or excuse. There's old Josh Bendig, who lives next door to me. He says that his toes were frostbitten one winter morning and he went to a doctor's office for something that would relieve the stinging and the doctor gave him some sort of knock-out drops and sawed him in two before he recovered consciousness."

"Such a story is absurd. You shouldn't believe anything of the kind."

"Well, there's Simeon Trapway, who's hobbled around this town on a basswood leg for thirty years or more. He says the leg that was sawed off him was as good as wheat. There wasn't a thing the matter with it, Simeon says. One day he fell down a flight of stairs and caved in the back of his head, and was carried off to the hospital. They must have mixed some dope with his victuals, for the first thing he knew he was sound asleep and dreaming sixty bushels to the acre, and having all kinds of a time. When he woke up he found that he was too warm and tried to kick off the covers with his right leg, only to find that the leg was gone. He says he never was so flabbergasted in his life.

"Now, I don't know what you think, Doc, but I say it was a lowdown trick to saw off that man's leg when it was the back of his head that needed attention, and I tell you plain as print that I won't stand for any foxy work of that sort. If you can fix up my old stomach by pouring dope into it well and good, but if you try to put me to sleep so you can do a rail-splitting stunt on me with an ax something is going to happen."

"No edged tools will be used," said the doctor. "Now, let me see your tongue."

THE ART OF GESTURE.

Nothing so amuses, and occasionally astounds, foreigners, says Carmen Turia in the Strand, as the phlegmatic manner in which an Englishwoman converses. Of the art of gesture she seems to know and care absolutely nothing. Her talk lacks all the accompaniment of rhythmic appropriate movement, for she talks only with her tongue—that is to say, you cannot if you wish to convey your thoughts effectively; for the tongue, even of an Englishwoman, is only one of the instruments of speech. And that is why the talk of an Englishwoman is so ineffective. That is why her thoughts might just as well be conveyed by a printed book or a phonograph. She tells you that she loves "madly, passionately," in the same tone and with the same manner that she orders a leg of mutton at the butcher's. On meeting you she protests that she is delighted to see you with the same air that she announces that it is likely to rain. A dreadful calamity—someone has been run over; has failed on the stock exchange; her child has broken his leg; her new ball dress has been spattered with ink; her inamorato has just married somebody else—and she communicates the fact with a wealth of gesture that would be adequate if one's soup or coffe were cold or one's coiffure were deranged.

AN AIR OMNIBUS.

The working of the rudder at the back of the flying machine, says Hachet-Souplet in the Strand, is always rather dangerous. It may risk loss of balance, or bring about some breakage of the delicate apparatus. For this reason Dr. Amans, who has made a profound study of the geometry of the organs of flight, asked himself whether it was not possible to employ, in the forward part of the machine, an appendage resembling a bird's wing which might control the angles of the flying plane.

There is now actually being constructed, from the plans of Dr. Amans, an "Aero Express," in the form of an elongated, egg-shaped body, carrying small wings, and of which the principal power of support will be given by the form of the ovoid itself. This aeroplane will be able to carry several passengers, and will be, in fact, a sort of air omnibus. In principle it will resemble certain insects like the stag-beetle, which is also capable of carrying a weight greater than its own. Captured stag-beetles have been trained to fly from one point to another bearing small balloon-cars. As they are fond of honey, they lend themselves easily to this form of training.

Insects of this kind, with their rigid wing-cases in the shape of a rounded cover, keep themselves in the air without wing-beats, the covers providing sustaining planes resembling those of an aeroplane, while the back wings drive the insect forward after the manner of the screw. In the apparatus of Dr. Amans the place of the latter will be taken by beating wings like those of birds. In this consists the originality of the idea.

THE MECCA OF CENTRAL ASIA.

Bokhara—that strange capital at the back of the world, on which every road in Asia is said to have converged—might well be called the Mecca of Central Asia. It is more than that, for, besides being a religious center, it is also a great capital and trade center.

The name of Bokhara is well known, yet is has been visited by but few. Fifty years ago it was as impregnable as Lhasa, and of the few travelers who penetrated to within its walls fewer still ever came out again. Bokhara is completely surrounded by a wall, and I had to enter by one of the eleven gates. If by chance I had been benighted I should have had to stay outside, or, at least, leave my caravan behind and enter by the tiny door beside the main gate, through which a man can, literally, only just squeeze.

When once inside the walls, writes Prof. D. Carruthers, in the Wide World Magazine, the whole pageant of the East burst on me—intense light and shade, brilliant colors, the richness of the great men and the squalid poverty of the beggars, the cleanliness of the mosques and the filth of the streets, the aching glare of the cloudless sky and the cool shade of the deep bazars. Nowhere in the world, I claim, can such a perfect picture of the unspoiled, unregenerated East be seen as in Bokhara. It is as if a chapter of the "Arabian Nights" had been put upon a stage. Here one looks down through a long vista of years and sees the East as it was long before the West existed.

Let us stand a minute beside the "pool." This is the very heart of the city, and is situated in a square surrounded by giant madresas and a motley crowd of booths and shops. Here at midday the people of Bokhara congregate to pray to the mosques near by, and to take a meal on the terraces that surround the pool. Men of every Eastern race assemble here. One can see Afghan and Hindu, Persian, Arab and Mongol, wild-looking Turkoman and slouching Tartar, all enjoying the delights of a bazaar day in Bokhara, "at the back of the world."

The "pool" itself is nothing but a large stone reservoir of filthy water. Under a brilliant sky and shadowed by great trees it makes a fitting foreground to the gay costumes of the men, the dark bazars and the madresas piled up behind. When I saw men on the steps of the tank washing themselves in this water I felt surprised, to say the least. But when farther along I noticed men filling their water-skins from the same supply, I realized that East is really very far from West.

PAINTED WHILE ASLEEP.

Berlin correspondence the Bystander: It is the craze of the pretty ladies of the Tiergartenstrasse's plutocrat society to be painted while asleep. The Austrian Countess Czivek started the bright idea. The well known portraitist who had given her an appointment for the sitting has the vicious habit of making you wait. Tired of turning over French novels in an antechamber, the beautiful countess fell asleep. At last the proscrastinating artist turned up. Entranced by the unexpected vision of the sleeping beauty he threw off a lightning sketch and as the countess awoke held it before her astonished eyes. The drawing was so dainty and seductive that the delighted sitter insisted upon a complete oil potrait painted while she simulated sleep.

A CORNER IN CANDLES.

The Designer: As an example of trusts and monopolies prevalent even in that early day it may be mentioned that in 1750 one Benjamin Crabb obtained the exclusive right to make sperm candles in Massachusetts for fourteen years.

A year later, however, a factory was started in Providence, R. I., and within the decade there were eight factories in New England and one in Philadelphia. Their output greatly reduced the price of candles, which not long before sold for five shillings a pound. In those days $1.25 was worth fully three times as much as it is now.

THURSTON IS MADE BISHOP

Rector of St. Paul's Church of Minneapolis Is Consecrated.

To Be Bishop of the East Diocese of Oklahoma.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bishops of a dozen or more Episcopal dioceses and hundreds of visiting clergymen gathered in St. Paul's Episcopal church today to attend the consecration of Rev. Theodore Payne Thurston, rector of St. Paul's church, as bishop of the East diocese of Oklahoma, formerly known as Indian territory.

The consecrator was Rt. Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, bishop of Missouri and presiding bishop of the church, with Rt. Rev. Francis K. Brooke, missionary bishop of Oklahoma and Rt. Rev. Frank R. Millspaugh, bishop of Kansas as assistants. Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, bishop of Massachusetts, who was at the head of the theological school at Cambridge where Mr. Thurston received his training, preached the sermon.

Bishops L. R. Brewer of Montana and Samuel Cook Edsall presented Mr. Thurston for confirmation.

Besides the bishops who took part in the consecration the following bishops were present:

Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison, D.D., bishop of Duluth; Rt. Rev. Theodore N. Morrison, D.D., bishop of Iowa; Rt. Rev. Frederick F. Johnson, D.D., bishop of South Dakota; Rt. Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas, D.D., bishop of Wyoming; Rt. Rev. W. W. Webb, D.D., bishop of Milwaukee. Rev. Samuel G. Wells, rector of St. John's church of Vinita, Okla., will represent the bishop-elect's future diocese.

The service today was the first consecration of a bishop in Minnesota since the consecration of Bishop Graves as bishop at Kearney, Neb.

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT

against an average of more than 11 cents, while the rates for street lighting are less than $60 in Duluth as against an average of $73.

The advocates of a municipal plant, however, thought the city could do much better than that, and said they believed that a plant could be built with the proposed $700,000 bond issue that would profit the city while charging rates even lower than those now charged. They admitted, in answer to questions from the delegation, that their belief had not been demonstrated by any municipally owned electric light plant.

Fesler's View.

Mr. Fesler thought that most of this was aside from the question, which, as he saw it, was simply a matter of letting the people vote on whether or not they wanted to go into the electric light business.

Asked by Mr. Congdon if he would vote, as a legislator, to submit to the people a proposition which, if carried, would destroy a community, he said he would; that it was the people's own business if they wanted to destroy their community, and the present matter was simply a question of whether or not the delegation was willing to let the people vote on their own affairs.

While there was a lively debate between the advocates of the bill and Mr. Hartman about the private company's bonded debt, rates, etc., the attitude of the delegation was one of inquiry. It wanted to know whether the proposed municipal plant was needed, whether it was a good thing and whether the city was in a position to go ahead with it at this time. Questions that came from the delegation were along this line. Mr. Congdon, speaking for the delegation, wanted to know what assurances the advocate of a city lighting plant had that they could build one for the amount specified in the bill, whether it would be a practical and profitable business proposition, and whether, in view of the high tax rate and the large bonded indebtedness, the city is now in a position to take it up.

Mr. Hartman asked if there was any complaint of the present electric light rates, either for city or private uses, and Mr. Fesler replied that that wasn't a matter that needed to be gone into here, as they would present that to the people when the proposal to issue bonds is submitted.

Tax Rate Now High.

Mr. Congdon said that the tax rate is very high in Duluth, that Duluth's interest charge is one of the largest in the country, and intimated that no business proposition of the sort contemplated by this bill should be entered into, unless it can be shown pretty clearly that it can be done for the amount estimated, that it will be a practical business proposition if it is done, and that it will be for the welfare of the city. He expressed a doubt if it could be done for the amount called for in the bill—$700,000.

After listening to the arguments on both sides, the delegation adjourned without taking action on the question, deciding to hold another meeting next Tuesday night when all who desire to present their views can be heard.

W. J. Stevenson, counsel for the St. Louis county board, was present to explain the county bills. The salary bill was laid over so that Mr. Stevenson can draw a new one, including all of the county officers in one bill and leaving the amounts of the salaries blank to be filled in by the delegation.

FORETASTE OF HARD TASK THAT IS AHEAD OF REAPPORTIONMENT

simply bound the reapportionment committee not to provide for a larger legislature than that. Therefore he moved that the rules be suspended, and his motion, which required 42 votes to pass, got only 22, with 39 against it. While several who voted against it will be for reapportionment, in general, the vote was looked upon as a test, and the opponents of reapportionment were openly jubilant.

Senator Cheadle of Duluth was the only Democrat who voted for the motion. The country members of the senate, most of them against reapportionment, are combining on another constitutional amendment to limit the representation of the cities. They have not worked out their plan, but it will be for the same purpose as Senator Work's bill giving malf a man in the country the same representation as a man in the cities.

Senator Murray offered a constitutional amendment permitting apportionment at any session. This is similar to the one voted down by the people last fall.

The house spent more than an hour wrangling over Dr. Stone's motion to return the Kunze bill, appropriating $646,000 for the university, to general orders. It was advanced from there to the calendar yesterday. Dr. Stone said that the university is selfishly rushing in to get all it can without considering the need sof other state institutions, and especially the common schools, out of which democracy must get its strength.

The state, he said, is neglecting the foundation in favor of the superstructure.

After a long debate, cut short by Bob Dunn who, in his first speech of the session, moved the previous question, Dr. Stone's motion was lost, 35 to 80.

Senator Cheadle introduced a bill making the last day for filing for the primary election thirty days before the election instead of twenty days.

A communication was received in both houses from the Minnesota Lutheran conference, signed by Rev. J. A. Krantz of Duluth as president, urging the repeal of the Sunday baseball law, the prohibition of card playing on Sunday in hotels, and the passage of a county option law.

Senator Sageng offered a bill providing for a commission of five, appointed by the governor, to investigate industrial and vocational education and the co-ordination of the present state educational institutions, and report an educational bill next session.

The house drainage committee, as stated yesterday, will urge a thorough investigation of state drainage and will shortly introduce a resolution providing for it. Yesterday afternoon the committee heard many complaints that contracts are not being enforced and that the state inspection is inadequate.

The house committee on education recommended for passage the J. T. Johnson bill providing for the revocation of teachers' certificates for immorality, incompetency, breaking of contract and for having tuberculosis or other communicable disease.

Representative Knapp offered the following bills: Allowing Duluth to exchange park property for other land to be used for park purposes; fixing the sheriff's compensation for boarding prisoners in St. Louis county at 10 cents a meal; and requiring the St. Louis county treasurer to collect city assessments when he collects taxes.

Representative Farley stole a march on Bob Dunn and the road committee by introducing a bill proposing a constitutional amendment imposing a 1 mill tax for road purposes.

Representative Lydiard of Minneapolis offered a bill making it a gross misdemeanor to put garbage on any road, or street or private property.

Representative Washburn offered a bill giving cities the right to regulate outdoor advertising and to charge a license fee therefor.

Representative Hopkins introduced a bill compelling all cities and villages to provide voting machines for the 1912 elections, and empowering townships to do so.

Representative Kneeland proposes a complete system of state civil service, in a bill offered this morning, affecting all state employes except those elected and one deputy in each office.

Both bodies passed a resolution asking congress to ask the president to enter into negotiations with all civilized nations looking to a permanent court of arbitration and universal peace. The authors were Senator Lende and Representative J. N. Johnson.

The county option bill was delayed another day and will come in this afternoon or tomorrow.

GRAVES AND COLE NAMED

Opposition to E. J. Whalen Caused Governor to Change His Mind.

Opposition from several sources has prevented the appointment of Edward J. Whalen to the office of superintendent of the Duluth branch of the state free employment bureau, which will be relinquished by Capt James Walsh to Capt. Martin Cole.

It has been generally understood that Mr. Whalen would be named for the place, and in fact it was the intention of the governor to appoint him, but opposition of the most strenuous sort developed and the governor has been guided by it. This opposition was based on Mr. Whalen's connection with the liquor business. Capt. Cole is a Duluth tug captain, and prominent in labor circles.

The announcement from St. Paul that C. A. Graves has been appointed deputy oil inspector for the district including St. Louis, Lake, Cook, Itasca and Carlton counties was expected. Mr. Graves has not been very much in evidence as a politician, but he is better fitted for the work of oil inspection than are most appointees, as he is a practicing chemist and assayer.

TANK EXPLODES IN BIG LAUNDRY

One Woman Killed, Score Hurt and Hundreds Thrown Into a Panic.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—In an explosion of an ammonia tank in the Locust laundry here today, one woman was killed, fifteen to twenty girls were slightly injured and 250 other employes, most young women, were thrown into a panic. Fire did not follow the explosion.

The woman killed was Jennie Hall, who was near the tank on the first floor. She was blown through a window into the street and badly mangled.

The force of the explosion shook the building violently and shattered all the windows. Employes were scattered over the six floors of the establishment and they made a wild rush for the stairways and fire escapes. In the crush to get out nearly a score were cut and bruised. Ammonia fumes, which filled the building, added to the terror. Firemen carried a dozen young women out of the building.

NEW COUNTERFEIT BILL DISCOVERED.

Washington, Jan. 25.—A new counterfeit $10 national bank note has been discovered by secret service officers. It is on the Merchants' National bank of Providence, R. I., and bears the check letter "B" on the series of 1902. The note carries treasury number V113529 and the portrait of former President McKinley. Two Italians arrested at Taylor, Pa., were found to have 118 of these notes in their possession.

Bill for New Method of Handling State Lands Being Drawn.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The friends of reapportionment in the house, led by Chairman Chester A. Congdon of the house committee on reapportionment, yesterday afternoon deftly led the opponents of equal representation up to a cheval-de-frise and induced them to impale themselves upon its barbed points.

In other words, the friends of reapportionment subtly backed the enemies of reapportionment up in a corner and persuaded them to commit hari-kari.

The first real clash in the house over reapportionment came into the joint resolution, written by Mr. Congdon and adopted by the reapportionment committee of both houses in joint session, setting forth the constitutional provision that legislative apportionment shall be upon a basis of population, and declaring it to be the sense of the legislature that in the reapportionment bills that are to

WOUNDED BANDIT IS EASILY CAUGHT

Shot While Holding Up Passengers on a Street Car.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Yelling like Indians and firing from pistols in both hands, two masked bandits boarded an in-bound beach suburban car on the outskirts of Santa Monica shortly after 6 o'clock last night. After robbing twenty-two passengers and seriously wounding one of them, the bandits fled before a single shot. This shot wounded one of the robbers. He was captured when he attempted to board a car to come into the city for medical treatment. His wounded cheek betrayed him.

Harry L. Mitchell of Santa Monica was shot in the neck. The bandit who was shot received the bullet in the cheek. Herbert Harlan, the man who shot him, was struck by a bullet which fell harmlessly into his vest pocket.

The car, on which more than fifty persons were coming to the city from the beach was approaching Tokio station when the bandits swung aboard. With a yell they began shooting through the roof and sides of the car. One bandit ordered the motorman to pass his cap through the car, collecting money and valuables.

Harlan drew his revolver under cover of his coat and fired through the doorway.

The smaller of the two bandits reeled and let his weapon fall. He grasped an arm of his companion and both raced through the car to the front and leaped off. When captured, he gave the name of Roy Fox and said he was 19 years old.

UNCONFIRMED RUMOR THAT U. S. S. WHEELING HAS BLOWN UP AT SEA

Report Is Not Generally Credited in the Navy Department.

Wireless Stations Unable to Get in Touch With the Vessel.

Washington, Jan. 26.—In view of the alarming report about an accident in the gunboat Wheeling, the navy department today instructed the wireless stations at Norfolk and Key West to exert every effort to get into communication with the vessel. The rumor that the gunboat had been blown up at sea is discredited in official quarters here. The Wheeling left New York for Guantanamo Jan. 22. She is due there tomorrow.

New York, Jan. 26.—No confirmation of reports current during the early hours that an explosion had occurred on board the U. S. S. Wheeling, en route from New York to Guantanamo, Cuba, could be had from any source this morning.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 26.—The wireless station here was in communication this morning with several vessels out at sea, none of which had been in touch with the United States gunboat Wheeling, reported to have met with an accident.

CREW SAVED AFTER SEVERE HARDSHIPS

Six Men Taken From the Dismantled Hull of Vessel.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 26.—The captain, mate and crew of the schooner Helen Schaffner were brought here last night after four days' starvation and exposure on the dismantled hulk of the schooner. The men were picked up last Friday off the Nova Scotia coast by the fishing schoner Josie and Phoebe.

The rescued men were Capt. Isaac A. Hopkins, Mate William Green, Cook George Harpell and Seamen Stephen Verge, William McGrath and Bruce Austin.

The Schaffner left Port Hastings, N. S., early in January with 190,000 feet of lumber for this city.

After she lost her masts, for four days the men lived on condensed milk and raw meat heated over the blazing can of paint.

Mr. Simpson is serving as chairman of the committee on insurance. He is one of the oldest members of the senate, in point of service, and is no less enthusiastic in his legislative work than he was in the will case.

INVESTIGATION IS DEMANDED

House Would Know Reason of Delay in Ballinger-Pinchot Report.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Rrepresentative Hitchcock of Nebraska sprang a sensation in the house today by demanding an investigation of the "irregular proceedings" which has resulted in a delay of forty-nine days in getting the reports of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee printed and into the hands of members of the house.

An acrimonious debate followed in which Speaker Cannon took an active part, resenting what he termed an implied criticism of the chair. The house after listening to various explanations as to the probable cause of the delay, voted almost unanimously in support of a resolution ordering an investigation by the committee on rules.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Much refreshed after a night of quiet at their hotel, the jury which is deliberating on a verdict in the case of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, entered the courtroom this morning and almost immediately proceeded to the jury room to again consider the evidence. One of the jurors inquired if he might ask a question in open court. He was told to put it in writing.

Mrs. Schenck closely scanned the faces of the jurymen as they slowly filed out of the courtroom and across the corridor to their room. She listened to the discussion going on around her as to the probability of the jury reaching an agreement. If the jury is unable to agree, it will be dis-

BANK REDUCES DISCOUNT RATE

Cuts It to 4 Per Cent in Face of Stringency in Market.

London, Jan. 26.—After a prolonged discussion, the directors of the Bank of England today reduced the bank rate from 4½ to 4 per cent. This action was unexpected in view of the present stringency in the money market, which recently hardened private discounts; but evidently the directors were guided to their decision by the fact that they have absolute control of the money market through tax collections, and will be able to make the 4 per cent rate effective.

When the bank returns are published the reserve probably will show a good increase. Discount rates at foreign centers also are lower than in London, and there is an absence of foreign gold demand. It is believed that the Indian requirements are less pressing, and probably this helped to bring down the minimum rate.

NOTED ENGLISH STATESMAN DEAD

Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke Succumbs to an Attack of Heart Trouble.

London, Jan. 26.—Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke died today. The immediate cause of death was heart trouble, though he had been in an enfeebled condition since the recent election, the strain of the campaign having affected him severely. He went to the south of France to recuperate, returning to London last Saturday. Soon after reaching home he took to his bed.

Sir Charles was born in 1843 and had represented the Forest of Dean division of Gloucester in parliament since 1892. He was recognized as one of the most brilliant minds in politics, particularly in the domain of foreign affairs and but for an old divorce scandal that blighted his career, probably would have held the highest offices in the gift of his country.

His first wife, Katherine, daughter of Capt. Arthur Gore Snell, died in 1874, and in 1885 Sir Charles married Emelia Frances, daughter of Maj. Henry Strong and the widow of Mark Pattison, rector of Lincoln college, Oxford.

It was during their engagement that the scandal resulting in the separation of Donald Crawford and his wife occurred. Mrs. Pattison, who was beautiful and a talented woman, remained loyal to Sir Charles throughout this trouble. She died as the result of a rupture of a blood vessel on Oct. 24, 1904.

RETRACTS STATEMENTS

Melodrowski Admits That Some of His Claims Were Untrue.

Says Johnson Did Not Take Revolver From Pocket in Car.

Charles Melodrowski, the state's most important witness in the case of the state against Algot Johnson, charged with first degree murder, has admitted that some parts of the story first told to Chief of Police Troyer were not true.

When pinned down to facts he said that he stuck to the lies because they were the first things that came into his head when first telling the story, and he did not wish to be made out a liar.

This morning he admitted that the first story as to shooting the guns off on First street to see if they would work was a myth. He admitted also that the story he told as to Johnson telling him when to shoot while in the street car, was untrue. He states now that Johnson simply nudged him and he took that as a signal to shoot Officer Chesmore.

Instead of drawing his gun, Melodrowski says that Johnson had his hand upon it. The gun was in the

DIVORCED BY DEATH INSTEAD OF COURT

Woman Applies for Separation and Husband Dies Suddenly.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 26.—While seeking a legal separation from her husband in court yesterday afternoon, Mrs. James Aldrich was freed by death. Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich, it is said, had been experiencing domestic difficulties and decided that a separation would be the best solution of their troubles.

Accordingly she applied to the judge for the desired writ. Being informed that the court was without jurisdiction, Mrs. Aldrich left her husband in the court room and went out to consult with an attorney.

While she was conferring with counsel, a telephone message was received saying that Mr. Aldrich had died suddenly. It is believed that the excitement of the proceedings brought on an attack of heart trouble from which Mr. Aldrich had been a sufferer.

PASSENGERS SAVED.

The Steamer Queen Returns to San Francisco Still Burning.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 26.—The steamer Queen, on which a fire broke out last evening while she was at sea off Point Reyes, returned to port shortly before 3 o'clock this morning with the fire still burning. Her passengers, ninety-two in number, were immediately taken off by launches, which met her in the stream.

The steamer was taken to the mud flats in order that she might be sunk if the flames could not be extinguished by other means.

The Queen left here yesterday afternoon for Puget sound. When the fire alarm was given the wireless operator sent out an "S. O. S." message, which brought many responses from land and sea and five steamers and tugs went to her assistance.

ROMANCE CROWNED.

Stoughton, Wis., Young Man Finally Wins a Bride.

Stoughton, Wis., Jan. 26.—Adolph Lunde of this city, the young man who recently established a precedent in United States jurisprudence when he got out a writ of habeas corpus to get his sweetheart when she was held in restraint at her country home by her parents, has crowned the romance.

On Sunday he drove to the girl's home and took her sleigh riding. They drove to the village of Oregon, and on Monday, accompanied by two Stoughton witnesses, they went to Rockford, Ill., where Lunde and Miss Veek were married by a justice.

The young couple are now living with the bridegroom's motner, Mrs. O. K. Lunde of this city. In the spring the son will inherit his father's farm, and they will live on that property.

BUTTING IN.

MARIE MATTSON IS STILL ALIVE BUT UNCONSCIOUS

Death of Girl Hit By Train Is Momentarily Expected.

Has Not Been Conscious Since Found on Wednesday Morning.

Marie Mattson, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Mattson of 4416 Dodge street, who lay in a snowbank seven hours after being struck by an Iron Range train shortly before midnight Tuesday, is gradually sinking at St. Luke's hospital. She has not recovered consciousness since she was rushed to the institution Wednesday morning and will probably die without opening her eyes. The physicians state that she cannot cling to the slender thread of life which keeps her breathing, longer than this evening. She sustained a fractured skull, a smashed thigh and internal injuries which will prove fatal.

The girl's parents have been at her bedside almost continually since she was taken to the hospital. They did not learn of the accident until after their daughter had been removed, but they didn't lose a minute in rushing to her side when the news was broken to them by neighbors. The mother has been there constantly since, and the father has returned home only to see to the welfare of other children, who have been staying in their home at Lakeside.

Marie was the oldest of a family of seven children, the youngest of whom is too small to attend school. By working nights at the Lakeside branch of the Duluth Telephone company Marie has been able to attend the high school and bo of so much help to her parents that the others have also had an opportunity to get an education. She started to work at the telephone exchange last July. During the day she attended high school as a member of the sophomore class.

The girl was hit by the train as she was hurrying to her home after leaving her work at about 11:30. The night being foggy, and probably being tired after her long day, she doubtless did not notice or hear the train, which was a mixed passenger and freight running from this city to Two Harbors. The impact hurled her into the snow in the ditch alongside the tracks and she lay there unconscious until 7 o'clock in the morning when she was discovered by Watchman Michael Moore. Only the petticoat was visible on the surface of the snow. The unconscious form was hurried to the residence of H. J. Williams and thence to St. Luke's hospital, where every care was given her.

New Dentistry Law.

Ten changes are made by the bill to regulate the practice of dentistry in the state, introduced in the house by Gen. E. A. Williams of Burleigh county. This bill embraces all of the strongest features of the dental laws of Minnesota, Wisconsin and California, which laws are regarded as being the best in the Union. While there is nothing radical about the proposed legislation it will place the state on a standard with other progressive states in this particular. These changes in the laws have received the approval of the State Dental association. Briefly, the changes proposed are the following:

Three of the five board members to be appointed upon recommendation of the State Dental society; compensation of board examiners increased from $5 to $10 a day; making it lawful for practitioners of other states to give clinics for educational purposes; examination fee of $15 raised to $25 for the first, and $10 for each subsequent examination; raising standard of requirements for examination to conform to requirements of other states; North Dakota will accept for examination graduates of foreign countries that in turn accept the North Dakota licentiate for examination; provides for reciprocity under the Minnesota plan in preference to the Ashville plan; provides for licenses to be revoked or suspended for just causes; requires all certificates to be recorded in the county or counties within thirty days following passage of this law; making it a misdemeanor for a dentist to employ an unlicensed dentist punishable by a fine of $50 to $300 or thirty days in the county jail.

Appropriation Bills.

The bills presented to the legislative assembly for appropriations for the state school of science at Wahpeton are unexpectedly large, carrying an appropriation of $102,700 for the institution. Among the more important items on the bill are those for a boys' dormitory at a cost of $40,000; the construction of a combined assembly hall and gymnasium at $35,000; for repairs to main building, $14,950; for maintainence, $5,000, and for deficit in the cost of the girls' dormitory, chemical building and heating plant, temporarily transferred from the maintainance fund, $4,950. For improvement of the campus and construction of cement sidewalks, $2,500 is requested.

Appropriation bills for the state reform school at Mandan have also been received. Mr. Martin asks that there be an appropriation of $5,000 for the establishment of an agricultural experiment station on the reform school grounds, as created by the legislative assembly of two years ago. No appropriation was made at that time.

For permanent improvement on the reform school buildings, only $10,500 is requested for the coming two years. Of that amount $4,000 is set aside for the furnishing of the girls' building, superintendent's rooms and office. Two thousand dollars is asked for the construction of a green house while a like amount is asked for sidewalks and general repair work. Increased water supply is necessary and $1,000 is asked for that purpose, while $1,500 is asked for the installation of a steam laundry.

JURY IN SCHENK CASE THUS FAR UNABLE TO AGREE UPON VERDICT

charged and the case tried again, likely in the circuit court of Ohio county.

Soon after the jury retired it announced its desire to communicate with the court and it was called back to the box. As it slowly filed into its place the foreman presented a number of questions in writing. They had to deal with the evidence of Florence Coleman, a negro domestic who had testified regarding certain persons in the house on given days.

Locked Up for Night.

At 10 o'clock last night the jury reported it was unable to agree and the members were sent to their hotels by Judge Jordan and locked up for the night. After the jury had been excused for the night, a large crowd packed the street and sidewalk near the courthouse. The crowd swarmed from an adjoining square where it had stood from 7:30 o'clock until 10 o'clock. A squad of police and all the available deputy sheriffs had to be called upon to clear the streets before the jury was taken out of the courthouse.

Hundreds led the way of the jurors to their hotel, while many more flanked the line of deputies at either side of the jurors. Many women were in the crowd.

Mrs. Schenk Collapses Again.

Just five minutes after Prosecutor Handlan finished his argument yesterday and as the jury was retiring, Mrs. Schenk collapsed and was assisted from the courtroom by her attorney, Mr. O'Brien and Deputy Sheriff Thomas Kelly. Her face was swollen and distorted almost beyond recognition by a day of constant sobbing.

Mrs. Schenk gave way before the rain of bitter invective from Prosecutor Handlan. The accused woman fell heavily forward on the table early in his address. Shaken by her sobs she presented a pitiable spectacle.

Mr. Handlan asked the jury to show no mercy to a woman who deliberately had violated her marriage vows and had been plotting to kill by poison the husband who had lavished upon her automobiles, costly clothing and jewels.

"Her heart is flint," he shouted. "Incapable of sympathy, or love or affection; gentlemen, you know this woman is guilty as hell itself, and there is but one place for her.

"One of the most horrible things it has ever been my lot to come in contact with was when this woman offered another $1,000 to do her work for her; when coldly, calmly, fiendishly, she asked the woman of whom she would have made a tool, to place the poisoned medicine beside her husband's bedside that he might reach out in the dim light of the sick room in the night and swallow it himself."

Mr. Handlan was almost overcome after his effort and, at the conclusion of his address, went to his residence.

SUNDAY WORK ABOLISHED

Postoffice Employes Win Partial Victory in Sunday Closing Campaign.

General Delivery Window Will Remain Open for Transients Only.

Employes of the United States postoffice department in Duluth have won in part their fight for a day of rest. As a result of the arguments presented by them, Postmaster A. P. Cook has issued a notification reading as follows:

"Beginning Sunday, Jan. 29, and thereafter, this office will be closed Sundays. There will be no Sunday deliveries of mail. The general delivery window will be open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. for transients only, all other windows being closed. Special delivery mail will be delivered by messengers as usual. The usual dispatches of outgoing mail will be made."

This means that the mail carriers will not work on Sunday. Some of the clerks will need to report for duty on Sunday, but those who will be called upon to work Sunday will be only half the number of those who in the past have been kept busy. Under present conditions, 50 per cent of the force has been used on Sunday; under the latest arrangement not more than 25 per cent will be used.

The maintenance of the open window for transients is cheerfully acquiesced in by the employes. Their sentiments on that feature of the outcome of the recent controversy, as expressed by one of them, are to the effect that Duluth, being a city which has exceptional attractions for the tourist, it is necessary to provide for his needs in the postoffice as well as elsewhere.

Get Their Day of Rest.

The fact that none but the transients' window will be open, gives the carriers the assurance that they will have their Sundays off without any doubt. In the past they have been supposed to enjoy the luxury of an idle Sunday twice a month, but it didn't work out that way. Somebody took sick, or his mother-in-law took sick, and he couldn't be there, so the other fellow had to do the work. The carrier who succeeded in getting two Sundays off in a month was the exception.

Under the new order, none of the carriers will have to work Sundays. They have been in the custom of sorting the mail Sunday mornings so that anyone might come to the postoffice and call for his letters and papers. Relatively few people took advantage of this service, and those who did were responding more to the force of a habit than to a need.

Then there are others in the city who must get their mail. The manufacturers and jobbers send their representatives to the postoffice every Sunday morning for the accumulated mail of the Saturday night trains. This mail must be gone over in preparation for the week's business, and there will be no interruption of this service. The force remaining on Sunday duty will distribute the mail for the boxes and those who rent these receptacles will get their Sunday mail as usual. The hotels will get their Sunday mail, of course.

"It wouldn't do to have a guest at the Spalding go without a letter from his wife or sweetheart on Sunday, if that same letter was knocking around up here," said an expert in the handling of such letters. "It isn't our purpose or desire to deprive the public of any service which it needs, but it is our belief that the service which is not needed should be dispensed with if that will do us any good. It's queer, but it's a fact that the less Sunday service there is in the postoffice, the more Sunday services there will be for us somewhere else."

It is not all the men asked for, but it is quite a satisfactory arrangement from their point of view.

RETRACTS STATEMENTS

pocket of Johnson's coat, he says.

In several points of his story Melodrowski contradicted the one he has told on other occasions. He says that on the way out into the country with Johnson, they discussed the shooting. Johnson asked why he waited until they were in the center of the city to shoot and Melodrowski stated that he thought it was the best time. He expected that they would be taken back to the hotel to be identified and that as they were within a block of the place to leave the car, he took it to be his last chance.

Planned a Holdup.

Melodrowski told how he and Johnson had planned a series of robberies, while in their room at the Merchant's hotel. He said that they had intended holding up a man and that they lay in wait for him for some time, but that the night was so cold that they gave it up.

Melodrowski said that while he was doing the shooting in the street car, Johnson was all ready with his hand on his gun to help him if he saw that Melodrowski needed it.

According to Melodrowski's testimony it was Johnson who suggested going into the car. Johnson later explained that he did this so that there would be more room and a better chance to escape.

Conductor Dobroske was called to the stand and he states that he saw the revolver in Johnson's hand. He says it was the last shot fired that entered Chesmore's body. Charles Mason, a passenger, states that the last shot was the one which entered the officer's head. Neither Ole Johnson or Charles Mason, passengers, could state that they saw the gun in Johnson's hand.

The part of the floor of the street car in which the bullets embedded themselves was introduced this morning in evidence. The blood-stained garments which included a heavy fur coat worn by Officer Chesmore were also brought to the courtroom, but have not as yet been introduced as evidence.

The state will finish its case this afternoon and the defense will be then explained to the jury and Algot Johnson will go on the stand in his own behalf.

It is expected that he will deny a great part of Melodrowski's testimony and add facts regarding the case which have not as yet been disclosed.

The case will be over and in the hands of the jury before Friday evening, it is thought, as the defense has but a few witnesses to put on the stand.

PROGRAM FOR Y. M. C. A. "POP"

Basket Ball Game Between Girls' Teams Will Be Feature.

E. Mapp and A. C. Peters, the program committee for the next Saturday night "pop" at the Y. M. C. A., take much pride in the program they have prepared for the entertainment of Saturday night visitors to the association.

As the Saturday night "pop" has grown in popularity, the programs have become better and, while other programs have been good, next Saturday night is expected to equal, if not excel, on the whole, those that have gone before.

Last Saturday night, the crowd was so great that the accommodations of the association were taxed and it takes a large crowd to comfortably fill the big gymnasium.

One of the features of next Saturday night's program will be a basket ball game between two girls' teams styling themselves Blacks and Whites. An orchestra from Flaaten's conservatory, the Y. M. C. A. glee club and Miss Maud E. Matteson, soloist will provide the musical features of the program. Coleman F. Naughton, The Herald cartoonist, will give a "Chalk Talk," and another feature of the second part of the program will be a comedy sketch, "Two Trained Bears," with Miss Marie Cheska as trainer.

The program, which will begin promptly at 8 p. m., follows:

How to Get Rid of Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and It Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive, home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who, for over thirty-six years has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, salve, cream, or inhaler, but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without that stopped-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the foul discharge, so that you will not be constantly blowing your nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 692 Walton street, Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you by return mail enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all he claims for it as a remady for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds and all catarrhal complications. He will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write him immediately.

WOMAN'S REALM.

"The modern drama expresses souls in revolt against shams, forms and superficialities of convention," said Col. Graham D. Fitch, U. S. A., this morning in a lecture on "Modern Dramatists," given at the club room of the library before a large audience composed of members of the Twentieth Century club and their friends.

"The drama," he said, "attacks the shams of life and is an expression of the highest form of art. The people now are less afraid of individualism in the drama than they were fifty years ago and because of the fact that the age in which we are living is a scientific age we appreciate everything from a scientific point of view and we question and want evidence reaching the truth of matters. The modern drama has a tendency to express the phases of life as it is today."

He spoke of the great progress made during the past fifty years in every line especially from the point of view of invention and discoveries which have brought out the more practical and scientific side of people. He limited his review of dramatists and their work to those living after 1860, to European dramatists excluding American writers, and to people who are now dead.

Upon this basis he began with Ibsen, the great Norwegian dramatist. He said he did not think Ibsen's plays were immoral as a great many critics do. "Ibsen bases his dramas on the fact that we are outgrowing our ideals," he said. "He makes us feel that our ideals are like heathen gods which we worship with great sacrifices. Ibsen creates realistic tragedy and the best examples of this are his 'Ghosts' and 'Pillars and Society.'"

He went on to discuss the Russians Tolstoy and Gorke. He spoke of the works of the latter, the vagabond who wrote such wonderful plays. Among them were the "Submerged Tenth," "Child of the Sun" and "Night Refuge."

Of the French dramatists he spoke of Renan, the historian, whose writings of the origin of Christianity have attracted so much attention, and of his four wonderful plays.

Of Henri Francois Becque, he said: "He was pessimistic in classic form," and spoke of his work "La Parisienne." Macterlinck, he said, wrote with a style remarkable on account of its simplicity, symbolism and ethereal qualities.

Others whom he referred to were the Italian, Gabriele d'Annuzzio, Strindberg, Bjornson, Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde and Davidson.

Col. Fitch concluded his lecture with some French poetry and the statement, "there is nothing in the world so complete, lasting and so truly satisfactory as art."

KITCHEN LORE

Substitute for Eggs.

Instead of always using eggs for binding puddings and cakes, try one tablespoonful of golden syrup with half pint of milk, condensed or other, warming it in order to blend the ingredients of the pudding or cake perfectly. This quantity equals four eggs in binding properties. The sugar used with this liquid should be less than with ordinary eggs and milk. A little stout or compressed yeast takes the place of eggs in rich cakes or puddings, and the addition of scraped raw carrots is another wholesome substitute.

To Cook a Tough Fowl.

Cut the fowl into convenient-sized pieces and fry a golden brown in salad oil or good beef drippings. When nicely browned take it out, brown some flour and bacon, then add tomato sauce, with onions, mushrooms, spices and sufficient stock to just cover the meat. Let it boil for ten minutes and when the sauce is the right consistence, put the fowl and other ingredients in, and let it cook gently for three hours. Take out the white meat and leave the thighs a little longer. To each pound of fowl ¼ lb. mushrooms, 3 ounces bacon, one tablespoonful flour, ten small onions, two tablespoonfuls tomato sauce, a little thyme and parsley.

Chicken Pot Pie.

Cut up a three or four pound chicken; soak in cold water for one-half hour. Drain and wash again; cover with fresh water; add a little grated nutmeg; add parsley and onions to suit; one-half pound salt pork, cut small. Cook 45 minutes, skim occasionally, add potatoes raw to suit and cupful of flour and water to thicken. When potatoes are done remove parsley and transfer whole to a deep baking dish after greasing the edges; cover with a pie crust; brush the top with egg; cut a small hole in the center of crust and bake in hot oven for twenty minutes.

Lemon Cream Pie.

One cup sugar, one level tablespoonful butter, two tablespoonfuls flour, two eggs—separated—the juice and rind of a lemon and one cupful milk. Cream together the butter and sugar. Add the flour, the yolks of the eggs, juice and rind of the lemon and the milk At the last fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup and saves you about $2 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guiaicol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Thoughts on Several Things

By AMANDA MOORE.

The best life has both length and breadth—intense personal devotion to our own line of thought and duty, and a glad recognition of the relations we bear to others. So far from these being incompatible, they form the sympathy of life.

He who is energetic and earnest in the one direction best suited to him, and also alive to the joys, sorrows and experiences of his fellow men, is a living exemplification of the truth that the good of the community and the good of the individual are identical, and that loyalty to both is the surest path to perfection in either.

No lasting good was ever achieved by vicarious means. Of all the reputations in the past given by patronage and not made by merit, nothing now remains but the name, grown over with the mildew of disrespect.

To be a great lady's pet, together with her lapdog and her parrot, may be pleasant enough to those who are eager to enjoy and unwilling to work; and to be presented to the fine world of idlers and ignorants as a second Vandyke, the successor of Garrick, the worthy wearer of the Byronic mantle, may bring grist to the starved mill and luster to the family feasts; but it does not do more than secure the gain of the hour and the brilliancy of the moment, unless, indeed, it is backed by intrinsic merit; and where there is this merit adventitious and is generally despised for the one part, and not offered for the other.

True freedom demands stern self-discipline, and in nothing so much as in finding and keeping our right places and doing our right work. It was once said of an ambitious man who had left a good trade to study divinity that he had spoiled an excellent shoemaker to make a very poor preacher; and this kind of work is constantly going on in various directions.

Youths who might have made their marks as masons, carpenters or machinists, sink into utter significance as petifogging lawyers, incompetent physicians or inferior tradesmen.

The man who had it in him to become a scientific farmer turns himself into a third-rate bookkeeper, and the other, who might easily have worked his way up to the head of a large manufactory, struggles with poverty in an attic, writing what no one cares to read.

THE EVENING STORY

THE OTHER MAN

By Mary Matheson.

"Do you really mean it, Sylvia?"

The pretty head nodded, but the lips did not open.

"That you are in love with someone else?"

Sylvia stifled a sob, smiled and nodded again.

"And you've only just realized your mistake, dear?" The tones were inexpressibly tender, and forced the tears to Sylvia's eyes. Oh, if Maurice would only be angry, would even reproach her, she could bear it better; but the kindness in his eyes cut her to the quick.

"And you'd like me to release you from our engagement?"

The words sounded far away, but her lips formed the word:

"Yes."

She had meant it to sound so final, and it sounded so very feeble. She could not look up into Maurice Stone's face—something would betray her, a quiver of her lip, or the expression of her eye.

"And you are sure, quite sure Sylvia?"

A line of set determination curved the sweet lips now.

"Quite—quite sure, Maurice," she answered, deliberately.

"Then I wish you every happiness, dear," he replied gravely.

"Oh, if he only knew, Sylvia thought, as she watched him go towards the door—if he could only guess that her every heart throb was for him—that without him life would be dread and desolate and a thing of horror.

"Maurice."

He turned and faced her, his deep gray eyes full of sorrow.

Sylvia drew a glittering band from the third finger of her left hand, and he took it in silence.

"It is yours," she murmured indistinctly, as his hand closed over the symbol of their love.

Maurice stared down stupidly at it.

"Won't you keep it, Sylvia? But no, of course, I forgot—he wouldn't like it."

Sylvia winced. There was no "he" in it at all, but she had concocted this miserable story because she knew that it was the only way in which to convince Maurice that he must release her. She loved him too dearly to let him marry a forger's sister, knowledge which had only come to her the day before. Her mind went back to her brother's white-drawn face as he had explained to her the absence which she had thought spent abroad.

So deeply was she in thought that the opening and closing of the door escaped her unheeded. Then she realized that at last she was alone. It was all so stupid, yet so tragic. Maurice had gone, and he would never know her heart was broken or that she could never love any save him.

Then once more her pretty head with its mass of rippling hair—was buried in the cushions, and her tears came afresh. She did not hear the door open softly, nor see the tall haggard form that gazed down on her in a pitiful silence.

Roger Morton, Sylvia's brother, took in the situation in a glance. The slender white hand which had worn the ring was hanging listlessly at her side, and Sylvia's long lashes were fringed with tears as she slept. Why was that little hand so bare?

Sylvia—dear, unselfish little Sylvia—had given her lover up because of him of his disgrace.

He could not ask her—she would not tell him—but he must not let this awful thing be. It was in his power to say that he had been convicted wrongly, that he was no thief.

He crossed the room softly and crept out.

She awoke with a start and remembered. A soft voice said gently:

"Sylvia."

Two arms were outstretched towards her, but she did not move. How she longed to creep into their sheltering clasp, to lay her head upon Maurice's shoulder and tell him all—that what she had said was a miserable falsehood, tell him the real reason and have done with it. She would bring a stain upon his name, and have the world look askance at a man whose wife was the sister of a thief. Oh, if only Roger had had the strength to resist the temptation that had ruined him.

"Sylvia, I love you."

The sound of his voice told her that he knew, that he was aware of her deception.

"Darling, it was no good, I had to come back—to look into your eyes and read the story there. I knew that what you said was not true, that you would not give your love to any other man in the universe."

With an impatient gesture, he gathered the trembling form into his arms, his head bent low over hers, and his cheek resting against her curly hair.

For a moment she strove to get away, then with a little sob of joy she clung to him.

"You did not believe it, Maurice?" So much hung on the answer that her heart thumped nervously, and the color went and came in her soft cheeks.

"At first I thought that it was true. I was in no mood to reason calmly. Then your face rose before me, and I knew that for some reason you had not spoken truly. Oh, Sylvia, why did you torture me so? Was it to reassure yourself of my love?"

Then the temptation came. If she answered yes, all would be well—happiness would be hers once more. She rested in his arms, every senso poignantly alive. Shall she tell him yes? Nothing was real just then, but Maurice—and he was hanging on her answer, trying his best to get a glimpse of the downcast face.

Tenderly he kissed her.

"Tell me, Sylvia."

In that moment her decision was made. She would not go to him with a stain upon her name; she would convince him this time, and they would part irrevocably.

She struggled from his grasp and met his gaze unflinchingly.

"It is true," she panted breathlessly. "I have changed—"

Still she could not frame the words, but Maurice said them for her.

"You love another?"

With a supreme effort she braced herself for the answer, but it never came.

"That is not true, Sylvia," a deep voice sounded behind them, and Maurice turned with a start of surprise. "I am Sylvia's brother, and it is through me that she is trying to convince you that there is something else. I have hunted everywhere for you this afternoon. I came in here after you had left and saw her then I understood."

A crimson flush spread over Sylvia's face and she hung her glorious head.

"Listen." Roger Morton grasped Maurice Stone's arm. "Five years ago I was convicted and sentenced to penal servitude on a charge of forgery. Sylvia never knew—she thought I was abroad—but for some reasons of my own I did not tell her that I was guiltless; and so, she, thinking she had a thief for a brother, schemed to give you up." He broke off wearily, drawing Sylvia towards him. "But," there was a gleam of triumph in his eyes—"there is no need. I will not go into all the details, but I was innocent; and I knew who the thief was. but he married the woman I loved—and so it was best that I should suffer in his place."

With a little cry, Sylvia was in her brother's arms.

"Oh, Roger, and I believed you guilty."

A smile of joy lighted up the man's careworn features.

"I ought never to have told you, Sylvia," he said turning and facing the lovers. "Swear to me," he went on hoarsely, "that you will never let the world know that I am innocent. I am going out of your lives and this time it will be abroad." He smiled bitterly. "So good-bye, Sylvia—good-bye."

Sylvia's eyes were full of tears, and she could find no words as she reached up and kissed him.

"Noble little girl," Roger whispered, putting her from him. "But there was no need to spoil both your lives."

Maurice gripped his hand, but said no word. Then the door closed and Roger had gone.

Sylvia's soft arms were about her lover's neck.

"Oh, Maurice," she could say no other word. Her little heart was full to overflowing.

"Fate could not have been so cruel; your lips spoke words which your heart betrayed."

He slipped the rejected ring from his pocket, and onto her finger once again.

He murmured softly, kissing her again and again, and folding her to a close embrace. "Nothing on earth could part us — not even — the other man."

VISCOUNTESS A SKATING ENTHUSIAST

VISCOUNTESS BENOIST D'AZY.

Viscountess Benoist d'Azy is the wife of the naval attache of the French embassy at Washington. Since her arrival at the embassy, she has awakened Washington society. The countess is devoted to skating—not only ice skating, but roller skating. Paris has an exclusive skating club. The viscountess inspired the organization of a similar club in Washington. But this was not in accord with the democratic spirit of Washington society. So this winter the club is abandoned and the viscountess and her friends skate with tout Washington on the ice of the public rink. The viscountess has three delightful children and her home is one of the most attractive at the capital.

Nursery Ideas

"Playing Card Babies."

The biggest baby farm in the world, known locally as the "home of the playing card babies," is situated in Moscow.

This wonderful foundling asylum was started originally by the Empress Catherine II and is maintained, oddly, by a tax on playing cards. In all, some 14,000 babies pass through the institution every year. The asylum, which under the patronage of the royalty, consists of an institution standing in a hollow square round a garden with lovely trees and lawns, where the children play. A great feature of this asylum is that all the servants there wear the red livery of the royal family, and its accounts are audited and kept by the Russian treasury department.

Children of all sizes from wee babies are tended here, and they have the best attention and good, wholesome food. About fifty babies are received here every day, and after a sojourn of a month nurses take them to their own homes to the villages near by.

REPORT ON INCINERATOR

16,500 Loads of Good Fertilizer Were Wasted Last Year.

Inspector Gives Statistics on Duluth's Efforts to Keep Clean.

Vast quantities of stuff have been burned or unloaded at the city incinerator and dump at Thirteenth avenue west, according to figures which have been compiled by Deputy Morris J. Segal, statistician of the health department.

Thousands of loads have been hauled there in the last twelve months. The incinerator destroyed 3,880 loads of paper, 6,626 loads of refuse, 5,498 loads of garbage, and 284 dead animals. The latter included one bear, 187 dogs, 75 cats and some pigs and calves which had been condemned by the meat inspector.

Over 6,500 loads of ashes were unloaded at the dump, 16,130 loads of manure, 1,165 loads of dirt, 862 loads of paper and 938 loads of refuse. The quantity of manure which could be turned over to the farmers for fertilizing their lands is shown by the fact that nearly 16,500 loads were brought to the dump last year. This would go along way towards enriching lands tributary to Duluth. At the West Duluth dump 10,300 loads were left, a considerable part of them being manure.

The campaign to improve sanitary conditions in the central part of the city is shown by the fact that last year 599 garbage cans, 190 ash receptacles and 112 manure boxes were installed. The city is collecting garbage in the central sections and it is there that most of the garbage and ash cans have been placed. The department served about 5,000 notices to remove garbage, ashes, manure and rubbish and made over 2,000 inspections of barns and stables. Eighty cellars were visited and twenty-two ordered cleaned.

In the contagious department, 909 diphtheria visits were made and 827 rooms fumigated; 2,850 scarlet fever visits were made and 2,957 rooms fumigated; 63 smallpox visits were made and 274 rooms fumigated; 834 rooms were fumigated for tuberculosis; 38 schoolrooms were fumigated, and 680 cultures taken.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a body needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

Green Room Gossip.

The Lyceum will be opened tomorrow evening for the engagement of Miss Gertrude Elliott in "The Dawn of A Tomorrow," which will be followed Sunday and Monday with "The Call of the Wild," a romantic drama depicting life on the plains of Wyoming. "The Call of the Wild" is a dramatization of Frederick Remington's novel.

Miss Elliott's play is by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett.

In private life Miss Elliott is the wife of the distinguished English actor Forbes-Robertson and the sister of Maxine Elliott. But Miss Gertrude Elliott has no need of these pleasant aids for public favor. With a personality all her own she has attained her present recognized position of one of the foremost artists on the English speaking stage. She is particularly well suited in the role of "Glad" in Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play. The story is that of a girl of the slums whose cheerfulness and courage give new life and hope to those less fortunately temperamentally constituted around her.

The public as a rule objects to stage sermons but "The Dawn of A Tomorrow" teaches a lesson far better than that heard in surroundings which might be deemed more appropriate, it is claimed. Its story is one of optimism, of high hope and splendid courage. The scenes in the play are laid in the Whitechapel district, London, and they are picturesque to a degree. The plot is said to be sufficiently dramatic and the comely element unusually good. Liebler & Co., under whose management Miss Elliott is appearing have given her a capital company and have provided the finest of stage settings.

"They are presenting sketches in vaudeville today which they would not have dreamed of presenting a few years ago," said Maurice Freeman, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week in a little drama called 'Tony and the Stork.' Until very recently they thought that comedy, and the rougher the better, was the first and only requisite of a vaudeville sketch, but we are getting more and more serious sketches of a higher and higher standard. Take for an example the Israel Zangwill sketch, 'The Never Never Land,' which will be the feature of your next week's bill. A few years ago a vaudeville manager would have laughed at the idea of presenting such a serious bit of drama, but today it is one of the features of the circuit. This sketch of mine, 'Tony and the Stork,' would not have been considered a few years ago.

"I believe there is a great and growing field for the dramatist in the writing of vaudeville sketches of a high standard. No sketch is too serious or too pretentious to be considered these days, if it is well written. The producing managers are demanding quality, strength, dramatic appeal and intensity and if a playlet has that it will succeed.

"The growth of the short drama has been later than the growth of the short story, but I believe it will be no less marked, and that during the next few years you will see our greatest writers for the stage turning their attention to vaudeville playlets. We have some good ones now, but we will see much better ones. I am going to remain in vaudeville for that reason."

Starting today it lasts a month. Garon Bros.' clearance sale of jewelry. 213 West First street.

RELEASED ON HABEAS CORPUS

William Wieland Claimed He Was Unlawfully Held at County Jail.

On a writ of habeas corpus, William Wieland has secured his release from the St. Louis county jail.

Wieland claimed that he was being restrained without cause by Sheriff John Meining. He claimed that he was unlawfully held at the jail and that the complaint filed was illegal.

After hearing the case Judge Dibell ordered Sheriff Meining to release the prisoner.

Wieland was charged with having held up Frank Orak at Iron Junction some time ago. Orak was relieved of $1.50, he claims.

Under the later developments, it seems, Orak had owed Wieland the $1.50 longer than Wieland cared to have the money outstanding. Meeting Orak on the street Wieland demanded the money. He got it.

Orak claimed Wieland had held him up and Wieland was sent to the Duluth jail by the village magistrate, A. J. Moline.

Interesting Papesr Will Be Read and Discussed By Members.

Saturday evening of the present week the monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club will be held at the Duluth Commercial club rooms.

This will be the first meeting since the annual yearly meeting and ball, and there are some important matters to come before the members.

H. Van Dyken will read a paper on "Car and Engine Equalizers," and there will be an open discussion of the paper read by Thomas Owens at the October meeting of the club.

Preparations are being made for a large number of out-of-town members. The new president, Charles Cotter, will preside at the meeting.

CLOQUET LIBRARY WELL PATRONIZED

Request for More Norwegian Books Will Be Heeded By the Board.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual report of the Cloquet public library has been received by the library board, who are much pleased with the condition of the library. At the annual meeting three members of the Sons of Norway, A. K. Oswald, J. B. Baumann and John Saltvik, representing the Norwegian people of the city, asked that more Norwegian books be placed in the library. The board talked the matter over and there is a general understanding that as soon as funds are forthcoming, not only Norwegian books, but those in other foreign languages will be added to the library. The only books available now in foreign tongues are the traveling libraries, and those in Norwegian are not classical and are written by Danish authors. The circulation of these books exceeds those in English, owing to the large foreign population of the city.

Books Added Last Year.

During the past year 554 books were added to the library, 448 of these to the adult department; 35 of these volumes being gifts. Of the 206 books withdrawn, those which were not too ragged have been sent to a farmhouse near Wrenshall and to the school house in the Indian village. Four hundred and thirty-four new names were added to the register in 1910, making 1,852 names, and it is estimated that one-fifth of the population of the city is making use of the library.

A gain of 2 per cent has been made in the use of adult books. Thirty-four periodicals have been received during the year, and thirteen newspapers, included in these one Finnish, one Swedish and one Norwegian. Fifty-one books and 240 magazines have been bound, including complete files of many of the magazines since the library started about ten years ago. The library has a splendid system of cataloging, a good reference department, and the annual report compares favorably with other reports received from various places, and it is felt that the library is a growing institution.

PROGRAM FOR FREE CONCERT

Miss Jean Wanless Will Be Soloist at the Masonic Temple.

The program for the Masonic free concert at the auditorium of the Masonic temple, Sunday at 3:30 p. m. follows:

Organ—"American Navy March," in honor of the captain and crew of the Gopher.....Cappa
Overture—"Crown Diamonds"...Auber
Vocal—song—"Drifting to Dreamland".....Hawley
Miss Jean Wanless.

(a.) Allegro con brio.....
(b.) Andante con moto.....
(c.) Allegro Scherzo.....
(d.) Allegro Presto.....Custance
Vocal—song—"The King of Love"...
.....Custance
Miss Jean Wanless.
Organ—Solemn March...Tschalkowsky

Miss Jean Wanless will sing at the next Masonic concert some of the dainty selections for which she is noted. The vocal numbers mentioned above have much promise.

For the organ, "The American Navy March" is inserted in honor of its representative in Duluth harbor, the captain and crew of the Gopher. This is followed by Auber's overture to the opera of "Crown Diamonds," a charming and not too heavy composition. The next instrumental piece is Beethoven's celebrated Fifth Symphony, of which Wagner says that the agitated passion of the opening soars up on the gamut of consolation, of exhaltation, to a transport of triumphant joy. It was this symphony that Mendelssohn used to introduce Beethoven to Goethe at Weimar. The second movement is made up of two themes and beautiful variations; towards the close the basses are urged into crescendos and it ends with a crash. The third movement has many phases and is considered one of the most wonderful pieces of music written. The fourth movement follows without any break in the continuity, is very short and is said to represent the acme of happiness.

The closing number of the program is Tschalkowsky's "Solemn March," reminding one in some degree of his Slav March. It is a noble composition and fitly ends a program of first-class, as well as tuneful music.

WHAT CAUSES MANY BAD COMPLEXIONS

Mrs. Mae Martyn, the noted writer on health and beauty for the Baltimore American, recently said:

"Most muddy and spotted complexions are caused by the pores of the skin becoming clogged. Keep the skin clean and avoid the use of face powder, which fills up the pores. If women only would use a good lotion instead of powder they would be better off."

Mrs. Martyn added that a splendid and inexpensive lotion can be made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint of hot water, then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. She says this lotion is better than any powder, as it clears and whitens the skin, besides making it soft, velvety and youthful. It does not rub off easily like powder and has been found excellent as a protection against chapping, cold winds, and for treating cold sores.

Richest Baby in World Heir to Two Fortunes

This is Vinson Walsh McLean, said to be the richest baby in the world. This picture of him was made only a few days ago. Young Vinson is a grandson of the late Thomas F. DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST CITY

John Koivisto Asks $15,000 as Result of Gas Explosion.

John Koivisto is trying to get $15,000 from the city of Duluth for the loss of his home at No. 108 St. Croix avenue, and the death of his daughter, Lillie, an injury to his wife and also to himself, all of which resulted, he claims, from an explosion of a gas main in July.

He claims that the city was negligent in that although the city of Duluth knew of the defective main, no attempt was made to repair it. He claims that his house was wrecked, the contents destroyed, his daughter killed, his wife rendered unfit to attend to her household duties, two small children bruised and hurt about the body and that he suffered injuries to his left leg.

The case was begun this morning before Judge Ensign of the district court. One witness stated that at the point where the explosion had happened he had noticed the odor of gas for three years before it happened.

The exact cause of the explosion has never been determined.

CLAIMS TO HAVE GOOD PROPERTY

"Dick" Cullen Tells of His New $5,000,000 Company.

Richard Cullen, known to every old resident of Duluth, who, according to his own statement took out a claim on the Mesaba range back in 1883, and who further says he has been prospecting and keeping his eye clear for the main chance ever since, has filed for incorporation with the secretary of state articles of a $5,000,000 company of which he is the head, and which Mr. Cullen claims has wonderful future possibilities.

According to the statement made this morning by the new president of the company, it is named the Public Steel company, and the properties are situated on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, some of the property holdings being in the same section as the famous Chandler mine.

"I selected the property for mineral and not for timber," said Mr. Cullen this morning, "and I think that I have made a strike. I am the president and treasurer of the company and Andrew Bergquist is secretary and one of the directors. A large part of the property is near the place where T. J. Walsh got his start, and from the present indications we have just as good a property as Mr. Walsh. No such good selections as we have made, could be made at the present time. As soon as the details of organization are completed we intend to start operations."

Enthusiastic over the prospects, the new president of the company is confident that development will bear out the optimistic views he holds.

EXPLAINS PETTY THEFTS.

Two Young Men Confess to Stealing in Marinette.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Light was thrown on the mysterious robbery of delivery wagons, farmers' sleighs and department stores by the arrest of Fred St. Peter and Maurice Mallow of Menominee, young men who were caught operating in Marinette. One would steal an article and hide it quickly in box, ash barrel or under the sidewalk and the other would come along in the evening and pick it up. When brought before a justice they made a confession and were fined $50 or ninety days in the workhouse.

RAILROADS

TOURISTS AND HOMESEEKERS

Constitute Greater Part of Passenger Travel at Present Time.

C. W. Humphrey, district passenger agent for the Frisco lines and president of the District Passenger Agents' association, is in the city today.

Mr. Humphrey is one of the best known railroad men in this part of the country and during the past year has devoted a great deal of his time to the southern tourist travel, securing a large amount of business from this territory.

Mr. Humphrey has just returned from Texas and Florida, where the southern tourist movement of the Western roads is at its height at the present time. Mr. Humphrey stated that through the Kansas City gateway and also through Chicago there is also a vast immigration and homeseekers' movements to the lands of the Southwest. Texas is receiving many homeseekers, said Mr. Humphrey, who are going to the Southwest in search of cheap land that has been thrown on the market with the cutting up of the large ranches in that section of the country.

As president of the Passenger Agents' association of the West, Mr. Humphrey is widely known throughout railroad circles. He is also well known in this district, through his business trips to Duluth.

Railroad Notes.

C. A. Etchason, traveling passenger agent of the Pere Marquette system and "Dug" Harding, traveling freight agent for the Baltimore & Ohio, are in the city today.

J. I. Thomas, general agent for the Northern Pacific here, is in St. Paul on business today.

SUNDAY WILL BE CARNATION DAY.

Sunday, Jan. 29, is McKinley's birthday, "Carnation Day," and Duluth florists are preparing to supply a large demand for the favorite flower of the martyred president. Every patriotic American is expected to wear a carnation in honor of the memory of the third president to die by the assassin's bullet. "Carnation Day" has not been generally observed in Duluth, but a few people have served to increase popular observance and the observance this year is expected to be more widespread than on any previous "Carnation Day."

TERRORIZED NURSE MAIDS

Prisoner Claimed to Have Frightened Normal School District Residents.

Francis Colucci was arrested this morning by Officer Rothie on a charge of frightening girls and nurse maids in the vicinity of the normal school.

It is alleged that he has made a practice of hiding in the bushes and jumping out upon them as they passed. Several complaints have been made against him at the police station, but he was not caught until this morning. It is claimed that he took particular delight in jumping out upon maids who were wheeling infants in baby carriages.

Colucci is an uncouth-looking person about 40 years old. His face is unshaved and he has a long, ragged mustache, while his clothes are rough and unkempt. Altogether his appearance is anything but pleasant. The district he is said to have been frequenting is covered with undergrowth and it is stated that he has scared several girls so badly that they were on the verge of hysterics. He entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned in police court today and will be tried tomorrow afternoon.

WOMAN OF 92 DIES.

Aged Cloquet Spinster Dies at the Home of Niece.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 26.—Miss Eliza O. Cutler died yesterday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Glen Clark, with whom she had made her home for the past fourteen years. Miss Cutler was 92 years old last Saturday, and the day before she was stricken with a paralytic stroke, and did not regain consciousness before the end came. Mrs. Clark is the only living relative, and with Mr. Clark, accompanied the remains to Stillwater today, where interment will be made. Services were conducted at the Clark home on Carlton avenue by Rev. C. W. Lowrie of the Presbyterian church.

The body of Daniel Ivary, who died here Monday, was shipped yesterday to Strawberry Point, Iowa, for interment. The deceased came here in 1882 to work for the old Nelson Lumber company, which has since become the Northern Lumber company, and had continued in their employ until recently. He was 71 years old and a veteran of the Civil war, having been a member of the Forty-fourth Wisconsin.

ARRESTED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Judge Tries to Induce Prisoner to Give Wife Half His Property.

Anton Bjork, said to be worth $3,000 to $4,000 in cash, was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by his wife charging him with non-support. He entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Judge Windom talked the matter over with both of them. He endeavored to have Bjork turn over half of his wealth to his wife. He stated that the way Bjork has been living recently it is probable that he will soon be "broke." It appears that he went into the saloon business a short time ago and lost $1,000 in a week or two, and has been squandering his bank account. Judge Windom states that Mrs. Bjork is entitled to one-half of what they have, as she helped earn it while they were living together on a farm near St. Paul. It seems that Bjork sold the farm some time ago, getting a good price for it. His wife is unable to learn where he has his money, as he recently drew his account from the bank in which he had it on deposit.

HOTEL MAN RETURNS FROM LONG JOURNEY.

W. A. McKay has returned from a trip that took him to Eastern Canada and to Cuba. He went to Canada to attend the funeral of an uncle, Allister McKay of Chatham, Ont.

Speaking of Cuba, Mr. McKay said the island was capable of the highest development, but before its destiny can be attained it must have a stable and secure government. Local sentiment, as he encountered it, favors United States sovreignity.

Mr. McKay was in Jacksonville, Fla., the day the Hotel McKay was robbed, and it was not until he reached Canada that he heard of the crime.

Beauty Aids

By MADAME MAREE

TO OVERCOME SCRAWNINESS.

It lies within every woman's power to have a beautiful figure, not by fatiguing exercises, dieting or laborious massaging, but through the simple, yet famous Vaucaire treatment, used for many years by French beauties. This is a sane, logical method, as it nourishes the delicate, stunted tissues and once these are healthy and vigorous, the form soon rounds out and assumes beatiful proportions. This treatment is easily prepared at small cost. Dissolve one and a half cups sugar in water to make a pint and stir in one ounce true gallol, which you get at the drug store. Two teaspoonfuls taken before meals soon produces desired results.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Marion: I recommend only tried and tested recipes. For that sallow, lifeless complexion I would suggest a retiring cream made as follows: Get two ounces amarol at the drug store and dissolve in a pint jar of hot water. When cool it is ready. Wash the face, neck and arms and dry well, then apply this retiring cream. This clears and tones the complexion, giving it a rosy blush. Do this and you will have no further use for powder or rouge, nor be bothered with a shiny complexion.

J. T.: You can easily remove the fuzz from your lip by following these simple directions: Buy an ounce of delol at the drug store and mix a little with water to form a paste. Apply to hairy part and after two or three minutes rub off and wash. While delol may be a trifle expensive, it does its work quickly and well.

DULUTH SCOTSMEN PAY THEIR TRIBUTE TO BURNS

500 Members of Clan Stewart at Banquet and Dance.

James Gray Proposes the Toast to Scotland's Favorite Bard.

JAMES GRAY,
Who Proposed the Toast to Robert Burns.

"To him whose song in Nature strong Makes man of prince and peasant."

Duluth Scotsmen to the number of about 500 paid loving tribute at the Spalding last night to the memory of Robert Burns.

It was the 152nd anniversary of the birth of Burns and natives and descendants of natives of the nation of which he was the greatest poet, showed that the light of love for him and his works is burning brightly in Duluth.

Tributes to Burns and his works, praise of the Scotch nature in general, songs of Scotland and Scottish dances made the gathering a memorable and a merry one. The thrill of the bagpipe mingled with the more modern music of the orchestra, and while lauding their adopted country, the Scots turned their hearts back to the land of their birth for one night and reveled in its glory and the glory of its immortal bard.

The principal address of the evening was given by James Gray, former mayor of Minneapolis and candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket at the last election. "Robert Burns," was Mr. Gray's subject and in discussing, it he showed an intimate knowledge of the poet's life and works and displayed his own deep appreciation of them.

Burns' verse is more than the mere outburst of a heart giving vent to meaningless dreams and feelings, Mr. Gray said. It is the outpouring of the true Scotch feeling; the man is a typification of true Scotch nature. "He is Scotland condensed into a personality," said Mr. Gray and he added that the Scotch race loves Burns because of that fact and because he immortalized the race. But his hold is not on Scotchmen alone, but on Americans and the people of other nations, who love his verse, not because of its Scotch character, but because it can be appreciated for its depth of feeling and the spirit embodied in it. "In spirit, Burns was as true an American as ever lived," said Mr. Gray. "He voiced the battle hymn of democracy, the Marseillaise of the new social order, in his "A Man's a Man for a' That."

Mr. Gray said that it is a mistake to consider Burns' weaknesses in considering the heart of the man and the spirit of his verse. The poet's peculiar charm lay in his humanity, the spirit of his verse. The literary judgment of three centuries has ranked Burns highest among poets and his works and memory will live forever in the hearts of those who see them in their true light.

A Toast To Burns.

At Mr. Gray's suggestion, the assemblage rose and drank a toast to "the poet, the patriot, the immortal Robert Burns."

Alex G. McKnight responded to the toast, "Our Adopted Country and the Order of Scottish Clans." Mr. McKnight told what Scotchmen have done for America and what America has done for Scotchmen in offering them opportunities. He said every true Scotchman loves the spirit of freedom which Robert Burns breathed into his verse and they love America and its freedom, while never forgetting their native land.

When Warren E. Greene started in to talk about "The Ladies," he drew hostile glances from the members of the fair sex around the table and laughs from the men.

Suddenly he changed his strain and hostile glances turned from flushes of resentment to pleased blushes. Turning from the humorous to the serious, Mr. Greene brought tears to the eyes of many of his auditors with an eloquent and beautifully worded tribute to daughters and sisters and wives and mothers, and he ended with a vivid word picture of the Scotch mother in her home amidst the heather, praying for her boy across the sea.

Rev. Alexander Milne gave the invocation at the opening of the banquet. Many Scotch songs were sung in the course of the evening and one little girl did the Highlad fling with spirit and grace. The banquet ended with the assembled company standing with clasped hands to sing "Auld Lang Syne." After the banquet, there was music for dancing.

New Burns' Poem.

The following poem by Robert Burns is said to never have been published in his works, and it was read at the banquet. It was discovered by friends of John Williamson, a Chicagoan, and a copy sent him from Scotland. G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, obtained a copy from Mr. Williamson for the banquet of Clan Stewart.

"Lo, Calvin, Knox and Luther cry
I hae the truth and I and I.
Puir sinners, if ye gang agley
The Deil will hae ye
And the Lord will stand abeigh
And will nay say ye.

"But hoolie, hoolie, nae sae fast,
When Gabriel shall blaw his blast
And Heaven and earth awa hae past.
These lang syne saints
Shall find baith Deil and Hell at last
Mere pious feints.

"The upright, honest-hearted man
Who strives to do the best he can
Need never fear the church's ban
Or Hell's damnation.
For God will need nae special plan
For his salvation.

"The anc who feels our deepest needs
Recks little how man counts his deeds,
For righteousness is not in creeds
Or solemn faces.
But rather lies in kindly deeds
And Christian graces.

"Then never fear, Wi' purpose leal,
A head to think, a heart to feel,
For human woe, or human weal,
Nae preaching loon
Your sacred birthright e'er can steal
To Heaven aboon.

"Take tent o'truth and heed thee well,
The man who sins mak's his own hell;
There's nae worse deil than himsel,
But God is strongest,
And when puir human hearts rebel
He hauds out longest."

REAPPORTIONMENT IS VICTOR IN THE HOUSE ON FIRST TEST VOTE

be framed the senate shall not exceed sixty-three members and the house shall not number more than 126. When the resolution was introduced the enemies of reapportionment objected to its immediate consideration, and Mr. Congdon, its author, consented that it take the regular course and be considered as a bill. So it fell out that when the house yesterday afternoon went into committee of the whole, one of the bills on general orders was this resolution.

Mr. Congdon moved that when the committee rose it be recommended for passage, and J. N. Johnson of Canby promptly rose to the bait. He said that he had no objections to the resolution limiting the size of the legislature, and that he would vote for it if the first four lines were stricken out. These lines constituted a preamble, setting forth the provision of the state Constitution that apportionment shall be upon a basis of population.

Recited the Constitution.

Mr. Congdon said that nobody need be afraid of the preamble. It simply recited the constitutional provisions varbatim, and it would not bind the members a bit more than the oaths they took at the opening of the session, when they swore to abide by and support the Constitution.

Nevertheless, Mr. Johnson moved to strike out that part of the resolution which recited the requirements of the Constitution; and thereupon the issue was joined in a very ludicrous and very one-sided battle.

Robert C. Dunn of Princeton showed that his recent illness had not invaded his vitality when he rose to attack the Johnson proposal. He said: "You proposers of this amendment are great sticklers for law and order. You call yourselves 'progressives.' How in God's name you can advocate any other kind of reapportionment than that demanded by the Constitution—for that is what your proposal come to—when you remember the oath you took at the beginning of the session, I cannot see. It amounts, in effect, to perjury."

Representative Lewis C. Spooner of Morris, with his usual clear-headed and vigorous emphasis, joined in the attack.

"Why should this recitation of the requirements of the Constitution be stricken out?" he demanded. "What is the object of the proposal? The fact is that those who don't want to abide by the Constitution don't want to have a reapportionment made on a constitutional basis. I challenge any man to give any other reason for this proposed amendment than that. I shall not, because I swore I would not, vote for any reapportionment that is otherwise than as the Constitution demands."

There was no answer to that challenge, and there could be none.

The motion to amend the resolution was voted down overwhelmingly, and the resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The action of the house was in striking contrast to that of the senate, which, as stated in these dispatches yesterday, voted down a motion to suspend the rules so as to advance the same resolution to immediate consideration by a vote of 22 for and 39 against.

While in a large way the senate vote was a test of strength, it is not to be relied upon as a showing of the strength of reapportionment in the senate. It is true that every opponent of reapportionment voted against the suspension of the rules, and that every opponent of honest reapportionment gloated over the result. Nevertheless, several of those who voted against suspension of the rules are known to favor reapportionment. The effect of yesterday's action in the senate is merely to send the resolution through the regular course, and in a few days it will be reached for consideration in committee of the whole. It may pass, but that won't mean that reapportionment will have easy sledding in the senate.

Will Have Very Hard Sledding.

There is no use in disguising the fact that reapportionment will have very hard sledding in the upper branch. There is a compact organization against it, and the liquor interests of the state are unquestionably fostering, if not financing, the opposition. The senate, presumably, is against county option; and the liquor interests don't want the bother of electing another senate two years hence which might not be against county option.

One member of the senate, who is frankly against reapportionment, said to The Herald that reapportionment stands no show there whatever; that it might be possible to secure concessions by giving a few of the largest districts extra members, but that no general bill would pass. Another said that the most that could be expected would be a reapportionment bill to take effect four years hence. He was frank in saying that the senate would not vote to cut its term of office in two. There is grave doubt whether it is constitutionally feasible to enact a reapportionment law to take effect four years hence, but that will not bother those who oppose reapportionment now. With them it is four years hence or not at all.

The attempt to beat reapportionment probably will concentrate its efforts upon an arraignment of the city against the country on the proposition that city people shouldn't have as much representation in the legislature as people living in the country. Senator S. D. Works of Mankato, who may be set down as an opponent of reapportionment, has a bill proposing a constitutional amendment providing that in cities of more than 100,000 it shall take twice as many people to constitute a senatorial district as it takes in the country. Mr. Works is a Democrat, but there are Republicans who feel as he does. Several of them—with some other Democrats—are working on still another plan to discriminate against the cities in the matter of reapportionment. They have copies of the New York Constitution, which provides against New York city dominating the legislature, and they are working at a plan modelled on the New York provisions. The New York Constitution does not contemplate discrimination in the whole legislature, but contents itself with the senate, as to which its provisions are as follows: "No county shall have more than one-third of all the senators; and no two counties or the territory thereof, as now organized, which are adjoining counties or which are separated only by public waters, shall have more than one-half of all the senators."

Whether merely to confuse and defeat reapportionment and thus to keep intact the four years for which they are elected, or whether they are honest in their belief that people in cities are not entitled to the same representation as country people, this issue will be pressed, and the probabilities are that the enemies of reapportionment will seek to justify themselves to their constituents for their failure to vote for reapportionment by making their fight along this line.

It is a real fight, and the issue will not be decided until the votes are counted.

The Senate Vote.

Nevertheless, yesterday's vote in the senate is not altogether conclusive as to the strength or weakness of each side in the senate. While those who are heart and soul for reapportionment voted in the affirmative on the motion to suspend the rules, motives were mixed, and in three cases votes were cast under a misapprehension. Yet as the vote stands, those who vote "aye" are recorded as for reapportionment, while those who voted "no" have yet to show themselves as such. In order that the public may know who is who at the present moment, it will be well to give the vote:

For suspension of the rules: Bedford, Boyle, Cheadle, Duea, Dunn, Dwinnell, Fosseen, Froshaug, Gunderson, Gunn, Hackney, Hanson, V. L. Johnson, Lende, Marden, Pugh, Rustad, Sageng, Sundberg, Swanson, Wallace, Wilson—22.

Against: Ahmann, Anderson, Benson, Carpenter, Cashman, Clague, Collier, C. F. Cook, L. O. Cooke, Dale, Denegre, Donaldson, Duxberry, Elwell, Glotzbach, Handlan, Haycraft, Klein, L'Herault, McGrath, Moonan, Murray, Nelson, Odell, Olson, Pauly, Peterson, Poehler, Putnam, Rockne, Saugstad, Schaller, Stebbins, G. H. Sullivan, J. D. Sullivan, Theodore Van Hoven, Wels, Works—39.

Absent or not voting: C. D. Johnson, Johnston—2.

In the meantime, the failure of the detailed census reports to arrive from Washington, though they are expected daily, prevents the preparation of a reapportionment bill. The next clash will be in the senate when the resolution fixing the number of senators and representatives is reached on general orders.

Municipal Lighting.

The next meeting of the St. Louis county delegation, which will be held next Tuesday evening in the capitol, will be given up largely to the consideration of the bill authorizing Duluth to plunge into an experiment in municipal electric lighting.

The delegation, which has been noncommittal on the proposition, has fixed upon that evening for a final hearing at which anybody interested in either side of the controversy may present whatever he has to offer. The members of the legislature wish to be advised as to the need of the experiment, as to whether, if it is deemed needful to build a city lighting plant to competa with the city's gas plant, it can be built for the amount called for in the proposed bond issue of $700,000, as to whether the city is in a financial position to take up the matter, and as to any other points that are pertinent—especially as to whether it is the sentiment of the people of Duluth that the bill should be passed.

The members of the delegation are receiving many protests against the bill, and practically no letters in favor of it.

State Land Bill.

Former Attorney General Young has been engaged to draw up a bill carrying into effect the plan of handling state lands approved by the Northern Minnesota Development association at the Brainerd convention, and he will have it ready for introduction soon. So far no bill along that line has been offered except that proposed by Senator S. D. Works of Mankato, which is similar to his bill of two years ago. The Northern Minnesota bill provides for a bureau of conservation and development, to take full charge of the state's natural possessions and to administer them in the interests of the people. The bureau would include five commissioners, one in charge of each of five separate divisions, and all working together to the common end of settling state lands, conserving state resources, and making the most of the vast latent riches owned by the state.

The plan of increasing the board to include two representatives of the state university, proposed some time ago after the Brainerd meeting, has been abandoned as unwise.

The house had its first all-day session yesterday, and turned out work in a way that indicated a businesslike disposition to get legislative business out of the way in as speedy and efficient a manner as possible. Most of the afternoon was spent in committee of the whole, and Speaker Dunn, in honor of "Bobby" Burns' birthday, called to the chair that vigorous Scotsman, Donald Robertson of Argyle, who disposed of the business before the committee with celerity and dispatch.

Payment Twice Monthly.

The house advanced to the calendar yesterday the bill Representatives Campbell and Washburn of Minneapolis, requiring all public service corporations to pay their employes twice monthly the wages earned by them within fifteen days of the date of such payment, and providing that where such corporations refuse to comply the employes may recover their wages with costs amounting to $5 in justice courts and twice that in other courts. There was no opposition to the measure, and the action of the committee was by unanimous vote. This bill has been beaten in the last two sessions, but does not seem this time to have attracted the usual opposition.

The O'Neill bill, putting the responsibility for seeing that locomotives are properly equipped with spark arresters upon the roundhouse employes instead of upon the engineers, was advanced to the calendar in the house. It is claimed that the present law putting this burden upon the engineers is unfair because engineers have nothing to do with preparing their engines for duty.

There was a flood of oratory in the house yesterday afternoon over the Fuchs bill making it lawful for street railways to give passes to firemen and policemen in uniform. J. N. Johnson of Canby moved to indefinitely postpone the bill because he thought it would undermine the anti-pass law, and besides he imagined that street railway companies wouldn't give free transportation unless they had ulterior motives. R. C. Dunn of Princeton, as one of the original anti-pass advocates, opposed the bill because he thought it an entering wedge that might kill the anti-pass bill. The debate became active and heated, largely betewen city members and country members, but Johnson's motion was lost, 39 for and 69 against, and the bill was advanced to the calendar. If it holds the votes it had yesterday, it will pass the house. Senator Pugh of Duluth, who has a similar bill in the senate, was a keenly interested spectator of yesterday's proceedings.

The house advanced to the calendar Representative Andrew Anderson's bill legalizing appropriations heretofore made by cities and counties for the relief of the forest fire sufferers in Northern Minnesota last fall.

Tariff Commission.

After an amendment by Albert Pfaender had been adopted giving it real purpose and meaning, the house yesterday advanced to the calendar Representative Klemer's joint resolution recommending a tariff commission. Mr. Pfaender's amendment proposes that the commission shall have power to summon witnesses and require the production of books and papers, and requires the commission to report directly to congress.

The report of the senate elections committee on the Emmel-Ahmann contest, sustaining Senator Ahmann's tenure of his senate seat, was brought into the senate yesterday and made a special order for next Tuesday afternoon. The senate elections committee had a hearing last evening on the Stephenson-Saugstad case.

The congressional resolution submitting to the states a constitutional amendment providing for a federal income tax was submitted to the legislature yesterday by Governor Eberhart, and was referred to the tax committee, before which is pending a resolution ratifying the amendment.

County Option Bill.

Several days belated, the county option bill reached the house late yesterday afternoon, being introduced, as announced before, by Representative Henry Rines of Mora. The bill is along the lines previously described in these dispatches. It provides that on petition of 25 per cent of the voters in any county—including the counties in which Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis are situated—the question of license or no license shall be submitted to the voters. No matter how the election turns out, there cannot be another for three years; but at the end of that time either side may bring it up again. The bill abolishes local option in dry counties, but preserves it in counties that vote "wet."

The same bill will be introduced in the senate soon by Senator V. L. Johnson of Center City.

The house yesterday afternoon struck a snag in the bill appropriating $28,100 to defray the cost of publishing proposed constitutional amendments in newspapers last October. The law provides for publication in three newspapers in tach county, and somebody found that publication had been made in four and five papers in a county. On motion of W. I. Nolan the bill was taken from the calendar and returned to general orders, and later it was referred to the committee on public accounts and expenditures, which referred it in turn to a sub-committee for investigation. Secretary of State Julius Schmahl appeared before the committee and explained that the apparent discrepancy was due to the fact that in several counties there are not three papers, so he made it up by giving the amendments to more than three papers in other counties, so as to secure the necessary publicity. He admitted the possibility that the law hadn't been strictly complied with, but asserted that the violation, if any, was due to a desire to give the amendments the publicity sought by law.

Money For the University.

The Kunze bill appropriating $646,000 for the state university, to be used to make up a deficit in current expenses and to complete and equip buildings previously authorized, was passed by the house yesterday afternoon, 71 to 44. The feeling that the university is drawing pretty heavily upon the state's resources is strong in the house, and the university's heavy demands for appropriations, amounting to more than $5,000,000 besides that provided in the bill passed yesterday, are due to receive very close inspection and much opposition.

The house passed Donald Robertson's joint resolution calling for the appointment of two senators and three house members to investigate conditions in the district devastated by forest fires last fall. The vote was 85 to 26.

The senate went on general orders for the first time this session yesterday afternoon, and recommended for passage several bills which will form the first senate calendar of the session.

Among these bills was Senator Moonan's joint resolution asking congress to call a convention to provide for direct election of United States senators.

Both houses met at 10 o'clock this morning, for the first time this session. While the work has seemed to get under way slowly, in point of fact, it is well ahead of previous sessions at this period.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

Offered $100,000 for Influence.

Washington, Jan. 26.—That pro-ship subsidy interests have offered to pay the New York Journal of Commerce $100,000 for printing an article in favor of subsidy legislation, was testified to before the house committee on ship subsidy yesterday by Albred W. Dodsworth, business manager of that publication. The offer, like a second one of $40,000 from another source, was refused.

One week ago he left for California and has not since been heard from. He wore a brown suit of clothes, drab raincoat and was five feet six inches high, weighing 175 pounds, light complexion, and 34 years old. His laundry was marked T. H. LONG TIME SUFFERER FINDS RELIEF IN HUMAN BAKE OVENS

MRS. JAMES HENDERSON.

Mrs. James Henderson, living at 2026 West First street, Duluth, has been a constant sufferer from rheumatism and nervousness for six years, and now, at the age of 57 years, is cured through the agency of Loughney & Loughney's Bake Ovens, that curious invention for mankind that has cured hundreds of the severest cases of rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia, catarrh, nervousness, colds, la grippe, bronchitis, stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, heard of in Duluth in years.

Mrs. Henderson did not have much confidence or hope that she could ever be cured, but now that the Bake Oven results have demonstrated that the claims of its owners are correct, she has nothing but praise for it. When one suffers from an ailment for six years and then in her declining years finds relief so quickly there is no wonder that praises will fall from her lips. Her case is only one of several hundred that have had a similar experience. As a result of their cures, many of them almost marvelous, Loughney & Loughney have come to be known as among the most successful specialists in Duluth. They have their offices in the Christie building, located on Fourth avenue west between First and Second streets. Their hours are 8 a. m. to 7 p. m.; Sundays, 9 to 12 only. They give free consultation to all who call at their offices.

ADVERTISING THE STATE TO GET MORE SETTLERS

President Elliott of Northern Pacific Talks to Commercial Clubs.

Changes in State's Land Laws and Proper Advertising Needed.

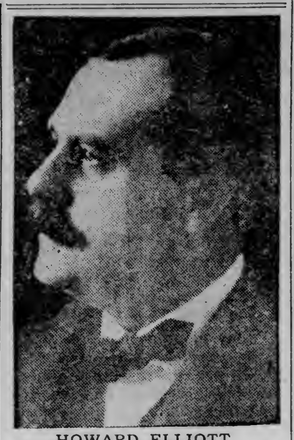

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the principal speakers at today's session of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs was President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific railway, to whom had been assigned the topic, "Minnesota, the Railway and Advertising." After urging the most hearty cooperation among all, in support of the work that the Federation is trying to do, President Elliott said:

"People who live in Minnesota do not realize sufficiently the advantages of this state and the necessity of placing these advantages more clearly before the people of the United States. Minnesotans believe in and love their state, but in the hurry of every day life they do not always post themselves as well as they should, about home affairs. For example, compare Minnesota with New England which has 66,465 square miles and 6,550,000 people; with New York with 49,170 square miles and 9,113,000 people; with Pennsylvania, with 45,215 square miles and 7,665,000 people. Minnesota has 83,365 square miles and 2,075,000 population. All of New England could be put into Minnesota and there would be nearly 17,000 square miles to spare; both New York and Pennsylvania could almost be included within the limits of our state; and yet, Minnesota has more natural resources than New England and New York, and more agricultural possibilities than Pennsylvania. Denmark has 13,592 square miles and has a population of 2,605,000 people. France has 207,000 square miles, with a population of 39,252,000.

Room For More People.

"These figures are given to show that Minnesota has territory sufficient to support a much greater population, and you know she has the resources for the support of that population, if these resources are wisely used.

"Having these great opportunities in Minnesota, the question is asked why new settlers seeking homes have passed through this state in the last ten years, going to points farther West. There are various reasons why there has been a greater drift to the Far West than to the Middle West, and some of them are not within the control of any one. But there is one

HOWARD ELLIOTT,
President of Northern Pacific Railway.

fact that is very marked about some of the Far Western states, which should be taken note of by the commercial clubs and by the state of Minnesota, and that is that some of them have pursued a much more energetic and aggressive policy in advertising and in placing the attractions, resources and opportunities of their states before people in the Mississippi valley basin and east of the Alleghany mountains than Minnesota has. In those parts of the country Minnesota is considered more of a settled state, without so many opportunities for the man seeking a new home as exist in the states farther west. This reputation to a certain extent is a disadvantage, and it must be overcome by a comprehensive effort on the part of all to understand thoroughly what the state has to offer, and then to make the facts known in those parts of the United States from which new settlers can be obtained.

"With improved agricultural methods there should be a large increase in population in the southern portion of the state, and there are very great opportunities in the northern half, and the question is, what can be done to attract people to that section.

Lack of Information.

"One difficulty is that there is not enough accurate information about the location and character of land on which new settlers can locate. There is not enough complete information about the soil. There is an erroneous idea that the climate of Northern Minnesota is too severe for living comfortably.

"The disadvantages of that section are spoken of and the advantages are not placed properly before the public.

"For many years parts of the northern half of the state have been used exclusively in the lumber business, and now there is much cut-over land available for agriculture settlement which belongs to individuals, but in no one place can the man interested in finding a home in Minnesota, go for accurate information about the location and character and price of land that he may wish to buy.

"The state offers the settler 2,500,000 acres of its own land and there are in Minnesota 1,500,000 acres of United States government land, but here again is much the same difficulty as in the case of the land lying idle and owned by private individuals. There is not enough information available as to how much of this 4,000,000 acres is suitable for settlement.

Laws About Land.

"The state has been wise in laws governing the sale of its timber and iron ore lands, and its wisdom means that posterity will have large income from the funds realized from the state's management of this part of its domain. The laws, however, about its other lands are discouraging rather than encouraging to settlers.

"It would seem possible for the state to have a careful examination and classification made of all of its lands and a reasonable price placed upon them. Such reports and price lists could be furnished to the state immigration department, to the railroad companies and to others interested in attracting settlers. The auction feature should be abolished for this class of lands, and bona fide settlers be permitted to buy them at the appraised price, with only a small cash payment and ample time for the balance. There should be an obligation upon the purchaser that would prevent speculation in the lands.

"Some mistakes might be made by selling some lands too cheap, but, considering the value to the state of every new settler, it would seem as if the state could well afford to take the chance of making the price too low occasionally — always provided the proper precautions are taken to insure that actual settlement follows the purchase.

"Northern Minnesota does not have as good roads as some of the prairie states west, but the state has already adopted a progressive policy about good roads and concerning the drainage of the wet lands that will increase the convenience of living and make this great area more available for settlement. The physical conditions are such in Northern Minnesota, that, so far as roads are concerned, in some sections they must be made before the settler comes in, rather than afterwards, and the same thing may be said about drainage. The drainage ditches must be dug before the settler comes.

Lists of Lands.

"It would also seem possible to work out a plan under which the state immigration department, the railroads and others interested could obtain from private owners of cut-over lands descriptions of those lands with price lists, and supplement the efforts of those owners in making sales, and no doubt the majority, if not all of such owners, would be glad to co-operate with any such movement.

"The northern part of this state can be used for grains, grasses, raising of peas and clover, and as a consequence the raising of pigs and dairying can be carried on and there is no reason why Northern Minnesota should not rival Denmark as a dairy region. That section has the advantage of a most healthful climate, with no malaria, plenty of good water, cheap fuel, and absence of high winds, cheap land and reasonable access to large city markets.

"That the farmer in Minnesota has a fair chance if he exercises reasonable judgment and business activity is shown by the fact that farm land in this state has increased in value in ten years from $26 an acre to $46, or 77 per cent, and that the 155,759 farms in this state, averaging 177 acres, are valued at $1,259,510,000, so that the intelligent farmer who does good work is getting not only his living in a healthful occupation, and in most cases laying up something in addition, but he is getting a constant profit through the increase in the value of his land.

Advertising.

"Minnesota has the goods to sell; it must push its business and advertise. The railroads have been the great advertisers of the western country, and an examination of the reports on file with the railroad commissioners of this state shows that for the year ending June 30, 1909, there was spent by the railroads as Minnesota's proportion of the funds they used for advertising and exploitation, $238,992.30. This money was not only for printed advertising matter, but for immigration bureaus, advertising cars, and special work of other character.

"The state of Minnesota, for 1908, appropriated $12,500; in 1909, $22,500; in 1910, $20,000 and for 1911 $20,000; total for four years only $75,000 and there has been some advertising by towns and counties, but nothing like the advertising that is done in behalf of states west of this. Even with the small amount of money spent by the state, there have been received as a result, nearly 200,000 inquiries. With proper organization, and a little more money at the disposal of the officers of the state, such inquiries could be followed up and a considerable proportion of the inquirers converted into actual settlers.

"As a business proposition, the suggestion of the governor to spend $100,000 a year in advertising the resources of Minnesota is wise and such expenditure of the state's money should produce good results. The railroads, because of their agents throughout the United States, can co-operate with the state and arrange to distribute the advertising matter of the state effectively and promptly. There is not the same incentive for the private land owner to advertise liberally in this state as there is in those states where there are irrigation schemes with considerable chance of large profit, but no doubt an aggressive policy by the state could be coordinated with work by the railroads, and large private land holders.

"If the state of Minnesota, for example, should have an office in some Eastern city, like Buffalo, or Pittsburg, or Cincinnati, where exhibits under the supervision of the state were shown, and where one or more active men were getting lists of possible settlers and working with representatives of Western railroads, it would do much to spread a knowledge of the resources of Minnesota in a section of the country where there are people who are looking for new homes. Any plan like this, with suitable advertising, would produce good results. No one land owner, and no one railroad can represent the state in this kind of work, and it is an opportunity that, if used at all, must be taken hold of by the state itself.

Waste and Politics.

"There is much talk lately about waste in railroad management. There is some, because railroads must be manned by people drawn from the average population of the United States, but waste in the railroad business is not nearly so great as in many other forms of business, and particularly in the business of the government. The time is coming, and may be almost here, when the successful politician will not be the man who advocates great expenditures of the people's money, who encourages burdens on all kinds of business by foolish and petty restrictions, who builds up a great army of office holders and bureaucrats, but rather, the man who advocates simplicity and moderation in his own expenditures and in those of the city, county and state, and who exacts the same accurate work for the state's dollar that he exacts in his own business; who instead of passing a lot of new laws at each session of the legislature, will spend more time in repealing and amending some laws that never should have been passed, or that have outlived their usefulness, and who insists upon the enforcement of existing laws in such a manner that there will be respect for them and for the courts.

"The 'efficiency engineer' can find a much wider field in investigating and reviewing governmental methods and costs than he can in commercial and railroad business managed by trained men who are giving the very best that is in them in their search for economy and efficiency.

"If gentlemen like you who represent these commercial clubs would take a little time and patience in creating a more temperate public opinion about the relations between American railroads and those they are trying hard to serve, considerable good would be done in preventing the multiplication of laws and the extension of legislative control over the details of business, that instead of helping, are really hurting the progress of the nation and the state."

Duluth May Get Convention.

The convention will close this afternoon with the election of officers and the selection of the next place of meeting.

No opposition has developed so far to the election of D. M. Neill for president, and the Duluth members expect to land the 1912 convention for that city.

This morning's program, in addition to the speech of President Howard Elliott, included the following:

Address—"How a Country Lawyer Sees It," Hon. E. H. Canfield, Luverne.

Address—"Now the Cities Can Help to Advertise the Rural Communities," Will A. Campbell, manager bureau of publicity, Commercial club, Omaha, Neb.

Open discussion, led by Hon. George Welsh, commissioner of immigration.

The afternoon's program included:

Demonstration of farm results and plans.

Address—"How the University Can Help the Farmer," Prof. Albert F. Woods, dean, Minnesota State Agricultural school, St. Anthony Park.

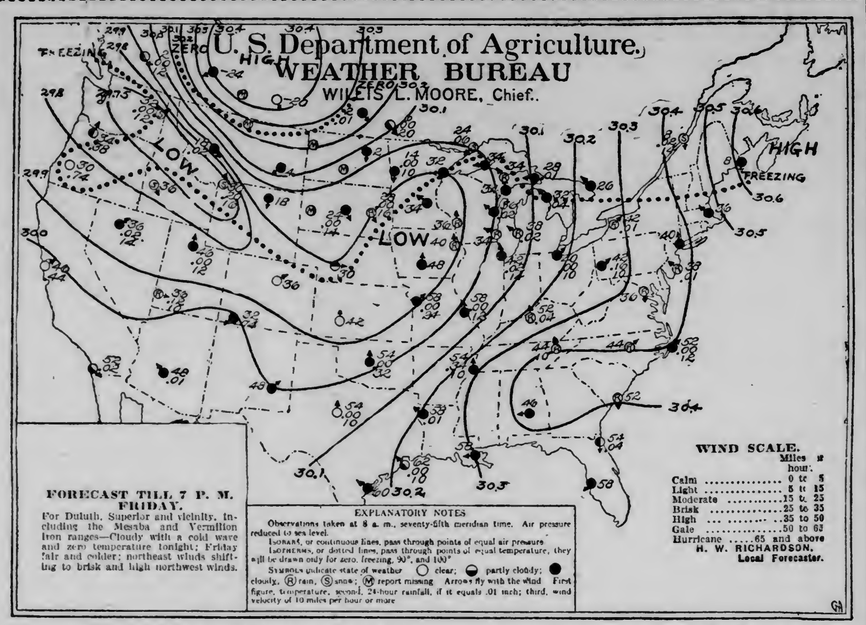

Address and report—"The Results Accomplished by the Demonstration of Farms in 1910," Prof. Thomas Cooper, Minnesota State Agricultural school, expert-in-charge.

Discussion of demonstration farm plans for 1911.

SON DIES IN BRAZIL.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state department at Washington has advised F. L. Jennison of Garrison that his son, Clyde Spencer Jennison, aged 22, and a railway dispatcher, died recently at Portovelho, Brazil. The deceased left home about six months ago. The details received are meager, but state that typhoid pneumonia was the cause of the young man's death.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

Cheer up. The weather man says colder for tonight and, though he missed on his prediction last night and the mercury didn't get below the freezing point, he says he's going to land sure tonight. It seemed as if the clouds had descended on the earth and wrapped it up in a thick, hazy covering when Duluthians emerged from their homes this morning. The sun may be above the clouds, but we know it by faith alone. Ain't it fierce walkin', Liz?

The sun rose (behind the clouds) at 7:40 this morning and it will set (behind the clouds) at 5:01 this evening, giving nine hours and twenty-one minutes of sunlight (behind the clouds).

It was pretty slushy a year ago today also.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The cold wave in connection with the high pressure overlying Alberta has increased in intesity. It will move eastward this afternoon and tonight and will reach the Head of the Lakes by Friday morning, attended by strong northwest winds and a return to zero weather in this locality. During the last twenty-four hours snow or rain fell from the Mississippi river eastward to the Atlantic coast and westward from the Rocky Mountains westward to and including Pacific Coast states. This precipitation occurred largely as a result of barometric depressions central over Idaho and the Mississippi valley.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan—Rain or snow and colder tonight; Friday local snows and colder.

Wisconsin—Rain turning to snow and colder tonight; Friday threatening weather with cold wave.

Minnesota — Threatening weather with cold wave tonight; Friday fair with colder in east portion.

Iowa—Rain turning to snow tonight; Friday cold and cloudy; colder tonight and Friday with cold wave.

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; colder tonight.

South Dakota—Cloudy tonight and Friday; cold wave tonight.

Montana—Snow tonight and Friday; colder tonight.

Shippers' forecast—Protect thirty-six hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and probably the Michigan Copper country.

LA FOLLETTE IS WARMLY GREETED

Re-Elected Senator Given Ovation When He Addresses Wisconsin Assembly.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 26.—Senator R. M. La Follette was given a great ovation when he was escorted into the general assembly chamber yesterday afternoon after he had been re-elected United States senator. The chamber was crowded with spectators.

The senator made an address declaring strongly in favor of the progressive movement. One of his strongest declarations was that the nation had profited by the Wisconsin progressive movement. He said that today America appreciated the economic legislation adopted in Wisconsin.

Senator La Follette spoke on the organization of the National Progressive league recently in Washington and read the declaration of their principles. He declared that if the constitution stood in the way of a government which should be for the people, the constitution would be amended. He said the government would be conserved to the people. Reading the constitution of the new progressive league, he declared the fight would be kept up until the battle had been won for the people.

When he declared that progressive legislation had been taken up in all parts of America and even in parts of New England, the applause and laughter lasted long.

Senator La Follette paid a high tribute to Governor McGovern and declared Wisconsin had a progressive as its governor. He said the message of the governor to the legislature was a notable state document and plainly indicated that he expected the pledges made would be kept.

WOULD RETIRE GEN. ANDREWS

State Forestry Board Wants Trained Forester as Chief.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—Gen. C. C. Andrews, state forestry commissioner, is fighting for his official life. The other members of the state forestry board are in favor of retiring him to a subordinate position and placing the reorganized forestry service in charge of a younger man, trained in the government forestry service. A committee consisting of Judge W. B. Douglas, St. Paul, H. A. Oldenburg, Carlton, and Z. D. Scott, Duluth, is now working on a bill which will provide for a chief forester appointed by the governor on the recommendation of the forestry board.

Gen. Andrews has already submitted a forestry bill, and made a talk for it before the house committee on forestry. It does not recognize the forestry board at all, but provides that the present forestry commissioner shall hereafter be called forester, and "any vacancy in the office shall be filled by the governor by the appointment of a technically trained forester known for executive ability." This would confirm Gen. Andrews in office. It also provides for an advisory board consisting of the auditor, treasurer and attorney general, cutting out the forestry board from any supervision of the commissioner's office.

The fight will be made on these two bills. It is understood that the forestry board offered to keep Gen. Andrews in a subordinate position, as he is a distinguished veteran of the civil war, now 82 years of age, but he refused to be shelved and will fight to keep control of the forestry service, which has been his hobby for many years.

Opposition to Gen. Andrews cropped out in the recent forest fire conference in St. Paul, which adopted resolutions calling for a trained forester with technical knowledge as head of the service.

G. E. Marshall, government supervisor of the Cass Lake forest reserve, has been suggested, but it is not known whether he would enter the state service.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable. 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years, she was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910."

SCHOOL BOARD TO COMPLY WITH LAW

Virginia Body Will Conform With State and City Building Rules.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Richardon Electric Company of Duluth were the lowest bidders for the contract to install a switchboard in the new high school building.

The company's bid was $1,927, and were awarded the contract.

The report of Fire Chief Thayer as to the inadequate fire protection facilities at the several school buildings was referred to the building committee, of which Guy H. Moore is chairman, with the power to make the necessary alterations to comply with the state laws and the ordinances of the city. Mr. Moore says that the recommendations of Chief Thayer will be carried out by the board in so far as it will be possible, and that it is the desire of the board to afford all possible fire protection to the teachers and pupils of the schools. Additional fire protection to the children in the way of fire drills has already been put into effect.

Chief Thayer is investigating as to who was responible for allowing a dance to be held in the auditorium of the Roosevelt building after that room had been condemned on account of its inadequate fire protection. Mr. Thayer is expected to make his report on this matter tomorrow.

HOSPITAL WILL BE ERECTED

Site for New Lutheran Institution Has Not Yet Been Chosen.

That a new Lutheran hospital will be erected in Duluth by the Lake Superior district of the Minnesota conference of Swedish Lutheran churches, seems very probable according to Rev. C. G. Olson, pastor of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church of the West end, who attended the conference of the district at Superior, which closed yesterday.

He stated that the hospital committee reported favorably on the matter and that according to the present plans, a building costing $150,000 would be erected. Only one wing of the building will be put up at first at a cost of about $15,000. No site for the building has yet been chosen. It will be located either in Duluth or Superior, but sentiment seems to favor it being placed on this side of the bay.

The hospital committee was re-elected and one new member, Rev. A. T. Ebblad of Superior was added. Those on the committee are: Rev. J. A. Krantz, West Duluth; Rev. Carl Solomonson, Duluth; Rev. C. G. Olson, Duluth; Rev. J. B. A. Idstrom, Hibbing; R. Iverson, Duluth; Gus Berquist, Duluth; A. T. Lofgren, Andrew Johnson and Rev. Ebblad of Superior.

The pastor was presented with a handsomely framed likeness of the songsters. The event was a well planned one and was an enjoyable affair. The table decorations were pink and white carnations. Covers were laid for the following: Mesdames George Jewell, Mae Bailey, Irma Hutchinson, Leigh Gunther, B. J. Culbertson, Edward Downey; the Misses Ruth Glover and Minnie Milne, organist; and Messrs. West End Youth Arrested and Police Are Searching for Companion.

Charged with furnishing liquor to two 17-year-old girls, Ell Young, 20 years old, was arrested last evening by Patrolman Setterquist.

The girls were also brought to the police station, but were released later upon the appearance of their fathers, well known residents of the West end. It is stated that Young was accompanied by another boy, and it is expected that he will be apprehended some time today. It is claimed by the girls that they met the boys while on their way to the West end business section. They allege that the boys induced them to go along with them until they reached a secluded street, where they were persuaded to drink whisky from a bottle in Young's possession. They were arrested as the four were making their way to the outskirts of the suburb. The performance was seen by a resident who reported the matter to the police. The case will be up in police court today, but Young had not been arraigned up to an early hour this afternoon.

GETTING THE SHELF READY.

It is impossible to separate the choice of Barnes to succeed Prentice as chairman of the New York Republican committee from the thought of the campaign to be fought in 1912. In the light of the relations of ex-President Roosevelt to the committee and to Mr. Barnes in particular there must arise the idea that the "old guard" not only has come back, but is laying its plans to put Theodore Roosevelt on the shelf for good and all.

Of course there was nothing in the announcement of Barnes' election to indicate that the committee had 1912 in mind. There didn't need to be. The prospects of the two great parties in that year are paramount in the mind of every student of American politics today, though there are many who decry the possibility that the fight for the next president can even be rationally looked forward to as early as this.

In the course of the campaign of last fall Col. Roosevelt declared that he had been forced into the state political battle, but that now that he was in it he meant to fight to the finish. Everybody looked on that campaign as being more or less closely linked with 1912, and the action of the state committee in putting Mr. Barnes at its head cannot be taken in any other way than as a preparation for the national struggle. That the "old guard" will continue to be hostile to Roosevelt nobody can doubt. Therefore the conclusion is unavoidable that Barnes' selection is only a step in the development of the early campaign.

Just what the strenuous colonel will be doing or attempting that the "old guard" can oppose in 1912 there is no way of knowing. That he will be mixed up in the campaign of that year in some form or other one can hardly doubt, considering his prominence in the political field and also in view of his lust for battle. Any attempt on his part to try to supplant Taft, whom he virtually placed in the White House himself, must meet with opposition in almost every section of the country. There is no indication of the possibility that Taft will not be a candidate again, therefore it does not seem likely that Roosevelt will be in the field for the presidential nomination, unless some surprising developments come with the next few months.

So this action on the part of Roosevelt's opponents resolves itself into a compliment to him. In picking Barnes for chairman they picked a man of experience and ability, showing that they knew the mettle of the one whom they expect to oppose. They did it daringly, for their choice cannot help but arouse dissatisfaction in many parts of the state. But even with Roosevelt "beaten to a frazzle," according to their own declarations after last November, they recognize him as a man with a following and a personality and fighting spirit that may break out when not expected. They are building the shelf on which they hope to put him, and be sure they will leave no stone unturned to put him there. But they are paying him the compliment of making the shelf good and strong and high.

SUNDAY AT THE POSTOFFICE.

The Herald extends its congratulations to the employes of the local postoffice on the order from the department cutting down Sunday work. There was reasonable certainty from the first that the order would be issued. The movement for Sunday rest for postoffice employes has been taken up in many other cities, and in some of them the plea of the carriers and clerks already had been granted. There was no sound reason why those in Duluth should be held to their labor on Sunday more than in other places.

Probably the change will cause some inconvenience to the public, until they become accustomed to it, but the inconvenience, after all, will be largely that of changing from the old habit, since so large a proportion of Sunday mail can be left idle until Monday without serious consequences. In the matter of important letters an arrangement for special delivery by the senders placing a special delivery stamp on the envelope will not only get the letter delivered on Sunday, but in some cases will insure its receipt earlier than under the former arrangement.

At any rate the plan is entitled to fair trial. The postoffice employes are not to be blamed for wanting a day's rest out of seven, and he must be of a strange nature who would deny it to them when it is possible for them to have it. Once more The Herald congratulates the mail handlers, and hopes they will get full measure of rest and enjoyment out of the day of rest.

ABOLISHING THE ELECTIVE COURSE.

Yale university is taking an important step in the abolition of the elective course and the substitution of straight requirements for candidates for degrees. For some years the elective system has been considered the best arrangement of college work. Its supporters have argued that it gives the student an opportunity to pick out the studies that he knows will help him most in his life work, while only such requirements were made regarding fundamental studies as would cover the needs of any person who might seek the honor of a bachelor's degree. The system was based on the theory that by the time a man is ready to enter college he is capable of choosing what he wants to study.

The argument is as good today as it ever was, but in practical experience it has been found that the system was open to abuse. Students who went to college largely because their parents wanted them to or because it was considered the proper thing to do, developed the habit of picking out the easiest courses in the curriculum and making up from them the number of credits necessary to secure a diploma. This naturally opened the way to admission of men of unusual physical ability that there might be the greater glory for the institution in athletic victories, and from this has grown an indirect commercialization of college sports that has been detrimental alike to the student body and to the standing of the institutions as places of learning.

Probably the return to the limitations of the required courses as qualification for the attainment of given degrees is the best solution of the problems. Certainly it is only fair that all who are granted any particular degree should be required to do the same work to earn it. In the meantime those who do not seek degrees, but who do want instruction along particular lines ought to be given opportunity to receive it. If the opening of elective courses without degrees is taken advantage of by some who ought not to be in the institution at all, there can be limitations put around the work that will effecually bar these and yet work no hardship to the real seeker after education and mental development.

DON'T RUSH THE SLIDES.

If you ever have seen a race between rowing shells in which one of the boats was manned by oarsmen who, lacking experience and rowing craft, lost their heads in the excitement, you must have noticed that at some point in the race, and possibly throughout most of it, their craft moved forward in jerks; that when the oars were in the water and the men were pulling on them, the progress was swift and full of promise, but that when the oars were lifted for the recovery and the men slid forward to the position where they must dip again, the boat lost so much headway that it practically stopped. That is caused by what the rowers call "rushing the slides." Every man sits on a sliding seat, and as he stretches his legs in the pull the seat moves toward the bow of the boat. On the recovery he moves the slide back again, and if this is done rapidly and the halt is made with a jerk, it takes just that much out of the progress of the shell, and the practice may cost the race.

There is a good deal in common between the men in the boat and the Democratic party in the latter's relation to the tariff question—there is danger of rushing the slides. As long as the members of the party in congress pull together and use judgment they will make progress. But if they get too eager, if they lose their heads, they will check the speed of the craft. The man who rushes his slide gives a great appearance of hard work. In fact, he does some of the hardest work of anybody in the boat. But his work not only accomplishes little, but retards progress, though it may look showy to those spectators who are unfamiliar with the game.

Senator Bailey of Texas is one of those who must be watched for this fault, and there is no question but that he will have plenty of company when the next congress is launched. It will need some careful work to get over the tariff course creditably.. There will be places where the water will be "choppy," and there will be waves from the big observation boats whose complements of crews and passengers are too much interested to keep as far off the course as they should. And there will be the ever-present danger of "catching a crab" in the shape of partisan work that will upset the whole shebang.

The people did not elect the Democratic party to power in the house in order to get another partisan revision of the tariff. They elected them because they wanted a non-partisan revision, a tariff law framed on a business basis, and knew from experience that there was no hope of getting such a law from a Republican congress. By that election the course for the Democratic shell has been marked out, and if the men in the boat will keep their heads about them there is no reason why they should not make the trip in safety and prove that they would be competent for the four year course that will be marked out in 1912.

MOVING PICTURE RELIGION.

Can you imagine Samson slaying the Philistines, Gideon conquering the Midianites, Jonah being cast overboard during the storm and being swallowed by the fish, and the fall of Jericho, being shown on the canvas of a moving picture outfit? A few years ago the idea of such a thing would have been unutterably shocking to hundreds and even thousands of people. Perhaps it will be today. But that is what is being advocated before the the Presbyterian city missionary organization of Philadelphia. The promoters of the idea say that the church must be up to date in its methods, and that since the people like moving pictures, the church should give instruction in Bible history through the medium of the film and canvas.

Well, why not? Probably no more pleasing entertainment ever was provided than the productions of the dramatization of the story of Queen Esther a few years ago. Certainly there is nothing improper in the presentation of the story of David as given by Wright Lorimer in "The Shepherd King." And for years the famous "Passionspiel" at Oberammergau has attracted and pleased thousands with its portrayal of the life of Christ. Today the moving picture is firm in its hold on the popular interest, and if the church can make use of that interest while it still is the higher for the novelty of the thing, the church is entitled to do so.

For some reason, possibly because of the unchanging quality of their teachings, religious workers have been prone to feel that their methods must be unchanged, too. They seem to have feared that any departure from those methods would cheapen the character of the message they seek to convey. Is the promise of "Peace on earth, good will to men," any less full of hope and cheer when presented in one way than another? And how can the lessons in the lives of good and brave men and women be presented more forcefully than by ocular demonstration? In Biblical history there are many and many dramatic events that could be so produced with a vividness that would compel attention and remembrance, and if the vile and unlovely things of life can be impresed on people's minds by the moving picture method, so can the good and worthy.

Those Philadelphians seem to have hit on a good idea. At any rate they have found a means of appealing to the children, and if they can secure the pictures for their purpose, and that is only a question of money, they will be able to teach the story of the Scriptures more forcibly than it ever has been taught before.

Would the water wagon stay popular any longer if it began its trips at a time of the year when even water won't freeze?

Champ Clark will be the second speaker of the house to hail from the western side of the Mississippi river. No wonder Missouri is inclined to point with pride.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Safest of Banks.

Cloquet Independent: If you have saved up a few hundred dollars put them into Northern Minnesota soil. It will bring you just as big returns as dried up and frozen up Canada and with less anguish of soul.

Can't get beter advice than this.

In the Transparent Future.

Winona Independent: Cities of the future will be built of glass, a New York architect says. When that time rives hail insurance will become as important a factor as fire insurance is now.

When that time comes, we will make glass that is like Rockefeller—bendable but not breakable.

Roads and Battleships.

Walker Pilot: Too bad the government doesn't look for an attack by land as well as by sea, so that a few millions now going into battleships would go into roads instead.

Possibility if an invasion from Canada would be more likely to result in the building of a replica of the Chinese wall.

What Might Have Been.

Brainerd Dispatch: The state capitol is to be scrubbed on the outside at an expense of $10,000 if the bill to appropriate the sum to defray the expense of washing the white marble of the big building passes. Minnesota granite wouldn't need a $10,000 bath every few years.

Too late to use Minnesota granite in the capitol, even though it is an ideal building stone.

Worrying Ahead of Time.

Ogilvie Sentinel: If the government succeeds in putting all the get-rich-quick concerns out of business, we wonder what the suckers will do with all their money.

Some of them may buy newspaper plants.

Saving the Forests.

Austin Transcript: Will the enormous loss of life and property in forest fires last year lead congress to reconsider its negligent policy and provide for that efficient protection which alone can reduce the danger to a minimum? No more important piece of legislature could be undertaken during the remaining days of the short session.

And that's a problem which the Minnesota legislature will do well to tackle in a spirit of constructive ambition.

Senate and Senators.

Cass Lake Times: Another senator heard from! With the Lorimer and Stephenson bribery cases investigated and disposed of, how much real work will the senate accomplish?

If the senate would do the square thing on those propositions, we could survive its inaction on some others.

Being a "Prom. Ct."

Albert Lea Standard: It is still much nicer to be rich and an important citizen but it comes a good deal easier to stay poor.

Still, most of us would willingly accept the burdens of the former state if opportunity offered.

Friends of Teddy.

Elk River Star-News: Tawney's attack of Former President Roosevelt will not increase the former's popularity in Minnesota by a long shot. The colonel has some very loyal and aggressive friends in Minnesota.

Apparently, at least, one of them lives at Elk River.

Dog Saves 163 Lives.

Sir Edward Morris, prime minister of Newfoundland, tells in the February Wide World Magazine a remarkable story of heroism on the part of a Newfoundland fisherman. The name of this man was George Harvey, and he resided in a low, rocky island, a few miles east of Cape Ray.

In those days the emigrant ships to Canada were crowded with passengers. In the autmun of 1832 the brig Despatch, bound to Quebec with a hundred and sixty-three souls, in a gale of wind struck a rock about three miles from Harvey's home. He heard the signals of distress, and immediately launched his boat, with his boy of 12, his girl of 17, and his dog, and tried to get out to the wreck. On the deck of the doomed ship were crowded the crew and passengers, in imminent peril of their lives. A terrible sea raged between his boat and the wrecked ship, but across that awful waste of wate- the gallant fisherman and his brave children urged their frail skiff. To get close to the stranded ship was to court instant destruction, and the task of saving those on board seemed well-night hopeless, but Harvey's noble Newfoundland dog, deep diver, bold swimmer, with marvelous intelligence, seemed to understand what was required of him, and at a signal from his master sprang out of the boat and swam toward the ship. The seas overwhelmed him and drove him back, but he persevered, and finally came near enough. The sailors threw him a rope, which he gripped with his sharp teeth, and at last he got back to his master and was drawn into the boat almost dead from exhaustion. Communication was now established between the ship and Harvey's skiff, and with the most laborious efforts every soul was saved. King William IV, was so pleased with Harvey's gallant deed that he sent him a present of a hundred pounds, had a large gold medal specially engraved with a description of his exploit, and sent him an autograph letter through the governor.

Facts About Brandeis.

The February American Magazine contains an interesting study of Louis D. Brandeis, the counsel for Glavis in the Ballinger case, written by Ernest Poole. It is a record of unselfish work done in the public interest. The following is quoted in part from the article:

"During the Ballinger investigation, in which he was the driving force, Louis D. Brandeis frequently began his day at 4 o'clock in the morning. His pitiless examination of witnesses and the startling disclosures he made are widely known. But the man himself is little known, for the man is self-effacing.

"He is 54, over medium height, his rugged figure slightly stooped. His face, with its high forehead, prominent cheek bones, deep-set eyes and heavy lines about the broad and sensitive mouth, gives an impression of immense force, of a mind keen, subtle, trained, a mind of large vision, big ideals. And yet it's a likeable face, his manner is kindly and he has many devoted friends. His private practice is one of the largest in New England, but nearly half his time is spent in public legal work. And for this work he takes no fees.

"He was born in 1856 in Louisville, Ky. He is a Jew. For a century back his family was made up of men of means, education, social ideals. His maternal grandfather took active part in Poland's struggle of 1830. His father sympathized deeply with the Bohemian movement of 1848. And in Kentucky before the war, his father and his uncle were both intense abolitionists.

"When the panic of 1873 brought to his father heavy losses in business, he determined to study law. He entered the Harvard law school, working his way; he did his eyes an injury from which they have never fully recovered; and at the end of two years the authorities suspended the rules to let him take his degree at 20. 'Those years,' he said, 'were among the happiest of my life. I worked! For me the world's center was Cambridge.' This enthusiasm he retained, becoming the organizer in 1886 of the Harvard Law School association."

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

PROF. VAN BARNEVELD CORRECTS MISSTATEMENTS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In an interview published in Monday's Herald I am quoted as advocating a Mines experiment station in connection with the Minnesota School of Mines, to be located at some point on the iron ranges. This is incorrect. I tried to make it clear why the school of mines should remain where it is and why the proposed experiment station should be a part of and should be located at the school of mines. The scope of the work such a station might undertake is wide and by no means limited to problems connected with iron mining, large as that field is. The Federal Bureau of Mines has promised to co-operate with us and this will undoubtedly greatly broaden the scope of the work. Minneapolis is centrally located with respect to the territory to be covered. Technical education along mining lines is the primary function of the school of mines and speaking for myself, is my chief concern. Were I not convinced that the proposed experiment station would be just as great a help to the educational side of our work, I would oppose rather than advocate it.

To your questions regarding a building on the range I replied that no doubt the state would eventually—perhaps at once—find it advisable to erect a state building to take care of the rapidly growing work of the state auditor's department in connection with state ore land leases and possibly other state work. I also said that such a building might prove quite an advantage to the school of mines in connection with any work the school might undertake for the state and perhaps in connection with the field work for some of our classes.

The statements credited to me also imply a criticism of the Oliver Iron Mining company, that I must ask you to correct. I pointed to the magnitude of their investigations and experiments in the field of siliceous ore concentration as an indication of the importance of that field. That the company does not make public any results should be charged to the fact that it is unwise to publish partial or incomplete data. I am quite sure that the Oliver Mining company would be ready to give the school of mines the details of any completed and proven work in case the school should be equipped for the work of experimentation and decide to enter that field. The school is indebted to the Oliver Mining company and its officials for many courtesies and many opportunities to study its practical operations.

May I ask you to give this correction as much prominence as was given to the former interview which has created an erroneous impression. Very truly yours.

THE TRUE FACTS OF THE POSTOFFICE "ECONOMY."

To the Editor of The Herald:

At last the overworked railway mail clerks have rebelled and the public is being informed of the true facts in regard to that decrease of $11,600,000 in the postal deficit for the year 1910. The zeal of the administration for public approbation has demoralized the mail service of the country and the public, first deluded by the laudatory dispatches from Washington, is awakening to the real situation.

What was the railway mail service instituted for if not to expedite the delivery of mail to the public? If the trains are undermanned, how can the service accomplish its end? And the trains are undermanned. Mail is being carred by its destination; mail is being dumped on postoffices for distribution to substations and to carriers when it should have been handled on the trains; mail is being held up for hours and sometimes, days, and while the postoffice officials were probably deceiving themselves and certainly deceiving the public, the same public, ever the "goat," was lauding an administration which was showing such virtues of economy.

The railway mail clerk is poorly enough paid and his work without having extra work piled on him. The public foots the bills for the postal service and the public should get the service. If the postoffice department were taken entirely out of politics, were put in charge of competent men who would not be kicked out every time the people took a notion that they wanted the tariff tinkered with in a different manner, it might become a business institution instead of a political toy and might be placed on a business basis, giving service without showing deficits. WATER RATES IN THE CITY OF MADISON.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Twenty-five water users in the city of Madison filed a complaint against the municipal water board alleging unreasonable and discriminatory rates, especially with respect to minimum and medium water consumers.

The scale of rates ranged from 3¾ cents to 9¾ cents for each 100 cubic feet. Nearly all services were metered. All meters were owned and furnished by the department.

The state railroad commission which has supervision of public utilities and is naturally an unbiased and impartial board made a thorough investigation and ordered the following schedule of rates, making a service charge and an output charge, as follows:

First, service charge—

⅝-inch meter, one consumer on meter	$ 1.50
¾-inch meter, one consumer on meter	1.75
1-inch meter, one consumer on meter	2.00
1½-inch meter, one consumer on meter	2.75
2-inch meter, one consumer on meter	3.75
3-inch meter, one consumer on meter	6.00
4-inch meter, one consumer on meter	10.00

For each additional consumer on same meter, $1.

Each dwelling, flat, store, tenant, etc., shall be regarded as one consumer in determining the service charge. The above are payable semi-annually in advance.

Second, output charge—

First. Up to and including 75,000 cubic feet per half year, 6 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Second. For quantities in excess of 75,000 cubic feet per half year 5 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The ⅝-inch meters used by more than nine-tenths of the consumers were charged about 50 cents a half year leaving about $1 for a half year's charge for other individual service than water or about 17 cents each month.

The output charge to large and small users varied less than 1 cent for each 100 cubic feet of water.

In Duluth the charge varies between the large and small users over 14 cents, for water, for each 100 cubic feet.

And we are asked to believe that the department is making a profit on the water furnished at 2½ cents a 100 cubic feet.

If the commissioners will get down their seventh annual report it will tell them what causes stagnant water as at that time they let out 24,000,000 gallons from both reservoirs and tanks to get rid of the animalculae. Yours truly. CHAN SMITH.

IF ATLANTA HAD IT.

Atlanta Constitution: In a communication published elsewhere, Col. Robert J. Lowry, who needs no introduction to any class of Atlantans, strongly urges that the time is now arrived for this city to seriously consider the expediency of a commission form of government.

Col. Lowry is one of the foremost business men of Atlanta. He has studied municipal government, here and in other American cities. He is a cogent reasoner. His views challenge attention.

Assume that the commission form of government had for several years past been effective in Atlanta.

Would not the school teachers of this city long ago have been granted their just request for salary increases, and that without hardship upon the taxpayers?

Assume that any other form of government fitted to the orderly dispatch of so great a business corporation as Atlanta had been effective.

Would not the same result, not to mention other needed improvements, have been long ago attained without waste or friction?

While we are discussing municipal reforms, such as lessening board power, would it not be well to broaden our view and consider, not only Col. Lowry's suggestion, but relief from other sources from the cumbersome, indirect and unsatisfactory method of our present system of city government?

Following are some paragraphs from Col. Lowry's letter:

The commission form of government for municipalities is not an untried experiment. It is now in vogue, and thus far has worked very satisfactorily in a number of the principal cities of our country, and it is now being seriously considered and contemplated by a number of others. The city of Atlanta is one which is always reaching out for the newest and best, and has always been ready to adopt any innovation of practice which means greater progress and substantial upbuilding. Our people should, therefore, give this matter serious and thoughtful consideration, and, while discussing the reduction of the size of our administrative boards, would it not be well to likewise consider the advisability of a governing committee or commission? The more the city grows in area the more urgent will become the necessity of reducing the size of the representative or legislative and administrative boards.

It matters not how patriotic a representative may be, he cannot avoid becoming to some extent at least sectional in his views, and in many instances no doubt this tendency would lure to the prejudice of the natural rights of other sections of the city, in which he was not directly interested. In the case of a commission they would know no boundary lines except the city's limits, and the disbursement of the city's money would be strictly in accordance with the city's needs, just as the directors of a corporation, charged by the stockholders with the duty, would conduct its private affairs.

Undoubtedly under the eyes of the fewer number, to whom would be delegated the responsibility of the city's progress financially, as well as otherwise, expenses would receive more careful scrutiny, and disbursements yield value received. I, of course, do not mean to intimate that the city's funds are not now properly disbursed or that the city is not receiving its money's worth in the matter of its disbursements; but what I mean is that the system of divided responsibility renders such a condition possible, and it is the system, and not the individual, that needs correction.

Now, the proposed system of government by commission is not a departure from our time-honored American principle of popular government. In fact, it brings the government nearer to the people, for they will elect this commission; it will be directly responsible to the people, and the tenure of office can be made to fully accord with the expression of the popular will. If a man makes an undesirable, unfaithful, or corrupt commissioner, the people have it in their hands to remedy such a condition. There will be greater responsibility rolled upon the shoulders of the commissioners, whom the people will choose as their business managers, and necessarily this increased responsibility will bring about increased concentration and keener attention to many details of policy and expenditure now probably not too closely scrutinized.

In a word, a commission form of government will save time and money. In addition, it will produce harmony and unity of effort, and it will bind all the agencies which make for the city's progress, together with an effort toward the common end, the upbuilding of the entire city. It will unite all sections of the city to strive for the good of others, that each and every section may share the credit of the growth and progress of the entire city, without the slightest taint of arrogance or prejudice.

Catalogued.

Short Stories: Two women on a train, seated together, held each a covered basket. From one a faint shuffling noise proceeded, while from the other came, now and then, an indignant purr.

The conductor came by.

"Dogs ain't allowed on this train," said he.

"This is a cat!" protested the owner of the purring basket.

"Makes no difference—dogs ain't allowed," repeated this stolid logician.

"Must I get off, too?" inquired the other woman. "I have a turtle in this basket."

"No, ma'am; turtles is insects, but cats is dogs," he told her.

"None whatever. We always keep a barrel of prime cider in the cellar."

Punch: "I say, Barbara, can you say your prayers in German yet?"

"No, not properly—not without a dictionary."

Washington Star: "What says the voice of the people?" inquired the oracular alarmist.

"My personal observation," replied Senator Sorghum, "is that the voice of the people is, as a rule, too closely occupied in giving three cheers for somebody to articulate anything very distinctly."

The Seal's Marvelous Instinct.

The instinct of the seal is marvelous writes Sir Edward Morris in the February Wide World Magazine. It will leave its young on the ice in the morning, and, going down through a hole, remain away all day swimming in search of food. Returning in the evening it will locate its offspring in the same "patch" amongst hundreds of thousands of other baby seals, notwithstanding that the ice may have wheeled or drifted fifty or sixty miles during the day from wind and tide, and notwithstanding that the patch may extend thirty or forty miles from one end to the other. Whether this instinct is of the class that enables the bird, without any mark or chart, in a forest with millions of trees alike, to find its way back with ease and precision to its nest, I do not know, but it is one of those wonders in Nature before which human knowledge is brought to a full stop.

IS CRUSHED IN GRAVEL PIT

Laborer Seriously Injured While Working at Fond du Lac.

Erick Nelson, a laborer at the gravel pit at Fond du Lac, employed by Edward Swenson, was seriously, though probably not fatally injured while at work this afternoon. A dump car filled with gravel backed off a track, pinning him up against a bank of frozen gravel. The accident happened about 2 o'clock. He was taken to the Duluth hospital on the 3:30 Northern Pacific train.

Nelson was excavating at the time and was working alone. He attempted to start a dump car, but failed and when the car backed up in his direction, he did not get out of the way and was crushed. It is thought that he sustained internal injuries.

Nelson is 40 years old and unmarried. He lives at Fond du Lac.

SUPERIOR

SUPERIOR GIRL TAKES OWN LIFE

Normal School Student, Deranged Over Studies, Drinks Carbolic Acid.

Believed to have been temporarily deranged mentally, Ruth Thomas, aged 19, a Superior normal school student in the June senior class, committed suicide at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in a lot at the rear of the St. Joseph's Catholic church on Grand avenue. The young woman was found in the snow, lying face downward. Beside her was a two-ounce carbolic acid bottle, which had been drained.

The girl was a daughter of Mrs. C. J. Thomas, assistant public librarian, residing at the Broadway apartments. The girl's father, Carey J. Thomas, left Superior five years ago and is thought to have been lost in a Nevada desert. Miss Thomas was a native of Superior and had attended the normal school for the past three years.

Despondency and worry over her studies at school are thought to have been responsible for her act. This is examination week and it is said that the young woman had recently expressed the fear that she would not pass in her studies and it is thought that she had been brooding over the matter.

Yesterday the girl attended school, but was absent at the last period class. The body was found by 8-year-old Eugene Doonday of 1423 Grand avenue. He summoned assistance and the young woman was carried to a nearby drug store. Dr. Hovde was called but pronounced the young woman dead.

Miss Thomas did not mix with the other students and applied herself closely to her studies, say those connected with the school faculty. Besides her mother, she is survived by a younger sister, Florence.

No funeral arrangements have been made. The senior class play, which was to have been given this evening has been indefinitely postponed on account of the death of Miss Thomas.

Charged with stealing a carload of coal, Frank E. Maxfield, living at 1023 Banks avenue, was arrested this afternoon on information furnished by railroad detectives, employed by the Great Northern, and is now held at police headquarters awaiting trial.

Maxfield is an employe of the Great Northern, working in the capacity of fireman. He is accused of having had the car switched on a sidetrack, "spotting" it at his back door. It was a handy matter, the railroad detectives allege for him to convey the coal to a shed in his yard.

He is charged with stealing coal to the value of $105.

MUST CUT WAGES OR CLOSE PLANT

Lake Superior Iron & Chemical Company Announces Wage Reduction.

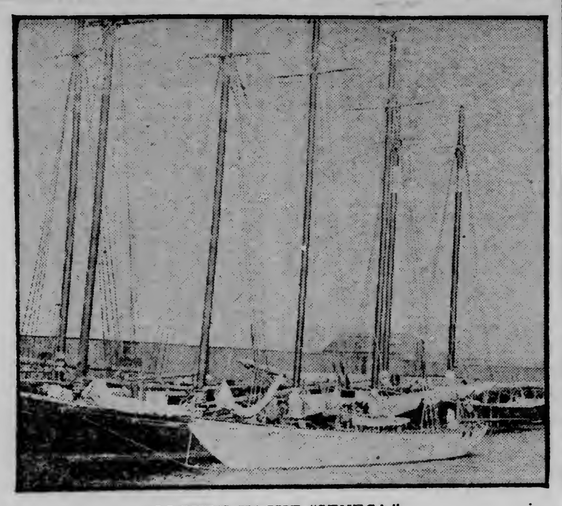

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dullness in the iron market is the reason assigned by Manager Johnson of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company of this city for announcing a cut in wages Feb. 15. He says that unless there is a wage reduction the plant will have to close and in order to keep the men at work he has decided on the wage reduction.

The outlook is so bad that a motion was made before the board of directors at Detroit last week to close all plants owned by the company. The motion passed but was reconsidered as to three plants, the one at Ashland being one of the three. Two of the company's furnaces are now out and one more has been ordered out.

Mr. Johnson has had the entire matter up with the officials of the company and is trying to keep the plant here running as long as any furnace can be run, but he can do nothing if wages are to remain where they are at present. He states that they pay at Ashland 20 per cent higher wages than at any other plant owned by the company.

Mr. Johnson further stated that he dislikes very much to make a cut in wages, but when it comes to less wages or no work at all he feels that he ought to keep the plant running and by so doing keep the force at work. He is assuming personal responsibility for this move in order to keep the plant running and promises that wages will be raised again just as soon as conditions warrant the move.

STARTS ON A MYSTERIOUS TRIP

LLOYD'S YACHT "SENECA."

Demarest Lloyd, a Boston millionaire and a graduate of Harvard, has started on a mysterious voyage to the Carribean sea, accompanied by two friends. They sailed in Lloyd's schooner-yacht "Seneca." Prof. John F. Cole was to have sailed with them, but decided not to go. No reason was given for Cole's refusal to go on the trip. It is reported that the object of the expedition is to recover certain treasures lost when Spanish galloons loaded with gold were sunk in the Carribean sea. A crew of seven men, captained by Capt. Thomas M. Somers, man the "Seneca." Mr. Lloyd, who purchased the "Seneca" for this trip, denies that they are after treasure and says they intend making a cruise to the West Indies to be gone about three months.

QUIET IN THE COPPER MARKET

Little Activity in Stocks But Prices Hold Up Well.

The copper market was quiet and about stationary today. COUNTY HAS TWO SHERIFFS.

Richland County, N. D., Well Provided With Peace Officers.

Wahpeton, N. D., Jan. 26.—Richland county has two sheriffs as a result of the action of the canvassing board in throwing out the votes of two townships thereby giving Frank Heley a majority of forty-two votes of George Moody.

Moody, according to the original returns of the canvassing board, was elected by eight votes. He qualified and was sworn in, but Heley, who was the former sheriff, absolutely refused to turn the office over.

Moody began mandamus proceedings to make Heley relinquish the office, and the case is now pending in court. In the meantime the canvassing board met today as was stated, and by throwing out the vote of the two townships, declared that Heley was elected by a majority of forty votes.

Heley at once qualified and was sworn in, which gives the county two legal sheriffs and makes the tangle over the office even more complicated than it was before.

The alleged offense was committed in the West end. The girls, who are only 17 years old, were brought to the station last night with Young, but were released when their fathers came for them. Their identity was not disclosed. Beers, it is alleged, eluded the police last night, but Young told the officers who his companion was, and the arrest followed today.

CANFIELD URGES DISTANCE TARIFF

Says Cities Should Join Country in Support of Measure.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"How a railroad president sees it?" and "how a country lawyer sees it?" were the two points of view on the railroad question as affecting the development of Minnesota at the morning session of the Commercial clubs' convention. Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, spoke for the railroads, and Senator E. H. Canfield of Luverne, Minn., told how the country towns view the regulation of railroads. The railroad president and the country lawyer took positions diametrically opposite, and both received hearty applause.

It is doubtful whether there will be a resolution indorsing or opposing the distance tariff solution of the perplexing problem of freight regulations. Some of the delegates are opposed to going on record as favoring or opposing a measure which has such an important bearing on local conditions.

Senator Canfield came out flatfooted for some kind of a distance tariff measure with specific qualification, so that inequalities between competitive points could be adjusted. He declared that, instead of opposing the measure, the cities should join with the country and get a correction of what he termed was, one the part of the railroads, "unfair discrimination in freight rates generally between places and sometimes between persons."

HERE'S A SHAMPOO WORTH TRYING

"Much depends on what you use when shampooing," says Mae Martyn in the Washington Post. "Great injury is often done the hair and scalp by employing harmful mixtures for this purpose, while a simple thing like canthrox almost works wonders in cleansing the hair and scalp.

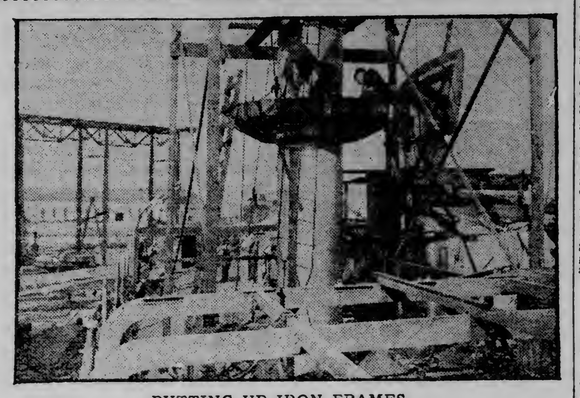

"After a canthrox shampoo the scalp is soft and pliant and the hair will have regained its original lustre and fluffiness and is easier to do up.

Dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a teacup of hot water and shampoo the head well with this, then rinse thoroughly and dry. You will be agreeably surprised at the result.

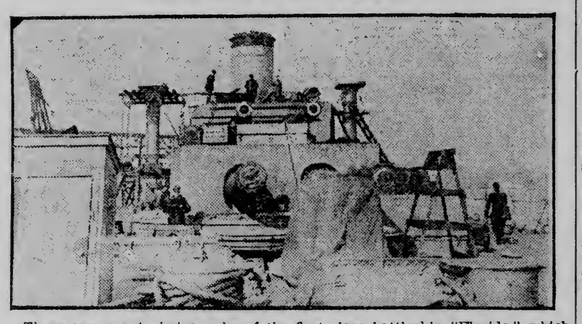

"While canthrox is not expensive you should be careful to get an original package."

WORKING ON THE BATTLESHIP FLORIDA

PUTTING UP IRON FRAMES.

These are recent photographs of the first class battleship "Florida," which is being built at the Brooklyn Navy yard. The "Florida" was $6.67 per cent finished on Jan. 1. She is a sister ship to the "Utah," which is now nearing completion at the New York Shipbuilding company at Camden, N. J. The "Florida" will be the future flagship of the Atlantic fleet when she goes into commission, which will probably be late this spring or early in the summer. The displacement of the "Florida," when ready for service, will be 21,825 tons, which is about 1,500 tons more than the new British dreadnoughts "Neptune," "Colossus" and "Hercules." The "Florida" will be greater in tonnage than any battleship or cruiser now building in Germany. The new Japanese battleships "Kawachi" and "Settsu" are smaller than the "Florida" by about 1,000 tons. France has two battleships under way bigger than the "Florida." Other nations who are building dreadnoughts are Italy, Austria, Argentine Republic and Brazil.

WHERE SHAWLS SURVIVE.

Most of Them Sold to Indians and Women in Mining Towns.

The fact that a prominent jobber's books covering the early '70s show a business in shawls of approximately $600,000 annually and that this same jobber's books today indicate a business of about $10,000 annually is probably the most luminous commentary that could be offered on the evolution or more properly the retrogression of the shawl business in this country.

In fact, so great has been the falling off in the shawl market that many make the mistake of supposing that the shawl business has practically been wiped out. But according to the Textile Manufacturers Journal there is a neat, clean, smooth business transacted in shawls year after year.

There are probably not more than eight mills in the country that make woolen shawls today and it is due to this fact of reduced production that the mills remaining find the business both comfortable and lucrative.

Shawls began to lose the prominent place they occupied about forty years ago. At that time there was scarcely a commission house in the dry goods market that did not carry a shawl department and in many instances it was the most lucrative department in the house.

In their heyday shawls reached an extraordinary height and it wasn't unheard of for fine Indian or broche shawls to bring from $1,000 to $2,000 apiece retail. In fact, one of the most treasured possessions of a woman of means was a camel's hair or cashmere shawl, which was purchased at a fabulous price and worn only on very special occasions.

Originally most of them come from India. They were made of camel's hair and consisted of many small pieces sewed together in different patterns about a white or black centre. At a later date these Oriental shawls were copied in France, where under the style of broche shawls some very clever imitations of the original productions were made.

England took them up and in a short time Paisley in Scotland became famous as a shawl centre and the Paisley shawl assumed a prominent part in the shawl business. In this country the finer types of shawls were exported from and a large number of medium and low priced shawls were offered, of which great quantities were sold.

The fine Indian, broche and Paisley shawls are are absolutely a thing of the past, and there is no market for them whatever. Here and there they may be picked up at what would seem a ridiculous price compared with the price they brought originally, and they are cut up as trimmings for suits and dresses and little trinkets such as bags and belts.

In fact the shawl business in this country has narrowed itself in shade to brown, black and gray, with occasional Scotch plaids and high colors and flaming tartans for the Indian trade. The government purchases about 70,000 shawls a year for the Indian department. Inu addition to this it is said that the Indians buy a good many shawls themselves from independent dealers.

Almost without any modification the statement can be made that the shawl business has gone West and that Chicago is the shawl centre of the country today. In certain sections of the West and among certain classes of people the shawl is still used to a considerable extent. In the East Pennsylvania is regarded as a fair shawl state, due to the mining colonies, but with this exception the amount of business on shawls in the East is trivial.

The more or less even character of the shawl business was summed up by a leading manufacturer of shawls when he said, "The shawl business is a good deal like the banana trade." As a general rule the consumer buys bananas three for 5 cents. In the case of shawls we may go up or down, but there are certain standard prices in the retail market which are subject to very little variation. Different mills producing them place different tickets on their shawls and they come to be known under that name and at a regulation price.

In a history of the shawl business in America there are two developments which have been largely instrumental in doing away with the shawl as an outer garment. The first of these was the advent of the cloak and suit manufacturer. With a rapidity scarcely equaled in other departments of the textile trade the ready-to-wear clothes for women were launched and developed, with the result that today it is estimated that in New York city the cloak and suit business averages from $180,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually.

The second blow to the shawl industry was dealt by the sweater. Here, again, with surprising rapidity a new garment was introduced which had a very direct and appreciable influence on the use of shawls. The sweater as a garment for all occasions and for all uses has spread and has been taken up almost as generally as was the ready-to-wear garment when it was first introduced years ago.

The knit shawl is, of course, a factor in the shawl industry, but it is a business that is rather confined to a few mills, and these are centered in and about Cleveland. The product of these mills is sold direct to the trade.

STAGING A DAY-DREAM.

Strand: "The Darling of the Gods" was a marvel in stage production, yet as a pictorial producer, perhaps greatest, Belasco never came nearer to defeat than when he attempted to stage "The River of Souls," scene in this piece. And yet, in its final accomplishments, this scene was the most artistic thing he ever achieved.

In his own mind the scene was China's play—it seemed so simple; but when it came to the stress and practical details of the last dress-rehearsals in Washington, D. C., which had become the producing place of the Belasco dramas after the success of "Zaza," he realized for the first time the almost insurmountable difficulties of trying to stage a day-dream. This is the scene in which the Princess Yo-San, after serving her thousand year in the Japanese purgatory, goes to her tryst with her lover, Prince Kara, and cries, while groping through the waters of the Japanese Styx, with the bells blazing in the background, "Which is the way to Heaven?"

Thousands of dollars had been spent in devising harnesses and swinging effects for the supernumerarics who were to represent the hundreds of lost souls; but when it came to rehearsing the scene the effect was so conventional that eBlasco threw up his hands in disgust.

"Go on with the final scene!" he shouted. "We will have to cut this out until we get to New York. It's rotten."

Just at that moment a carpenter in search of a hammer happened to step across the stage between two of the gauzes with which the stage was entirely hung. The lights from the rear of the stage suddenly threw shadows of the most ghostly effect, which seemed to multiply the man tenfold. There seemed to be ten carpenters instead of one.

"Walk across the stage again," called out Belasco, and then, as he realized what it meant, he exclaimed: "Good Lord! Here I've spent $6,000 trying to get an effect which ought not to have cost me 6 cents."

The girls were taken out of their harness, and after a few instructions Belasco's day-dream became a living nightmare. This scene—"The River of Souls"—was the "spookiest" ever given! It was the most artistic scenic achievement the stage has ever known.

CLOWN'S LIFE HARD.

New York Herald: "Tired? Well, I should say I am. This is harder than heaving lump coal or spring moving. The old days of much ease and great glory are planted in history never to be resurrected again."

A sad-faced clown in the dressing room of a big circus was wiping off the red lines of joy on his face and making vicious swipes at the stubborn coating of white which seemed to adhere like varnish.

"We work harder than any bunch of men with the show," the clown continued. "I have been in the business a long, long while now and I know whereof I speak. I can remember when the functions of this great institution of clowning were short and sweet and life was one long, rosy dream. That's when your granddaddy was buying the pasteboards in the pay-as-you-enter one-ring circus.

"All the clown had to do was to tumble into the sawdust arena and carry on a few silly antics while the lady bareback rider was doing her stunt. Then when the panting horse was getting a breath, Mr. Clown would step out and pull a joke on the ringmaster and then beat it around the ring as the distinguished ringmaster cracked a long whip after him at every jump. But, mark me here, there was one thing that clown had to be able to do and do well—he had to make himself heard all over the tent. Then when the razorbacks were putting up the apparatus for the springboard tumblers the clown would come out and, mounting a red and white striped pedestal, would sing a lively comic song. Then his work was done. And he got as much money as any man with the troupe.

"But look at things nowadays! Ten times as much is demanded. Look at this very show! We have thirty-three clowns, and every one of them is a hard worker. To make good we must rank in ability with many of the so-called musical comedy comedians along Broadway. Not only must we be up in the art of pantomime, but must possess a pair of leather-lined lungs for the successful operations of our jokes.

"But, above all, we must be original—a talent not demanded of the man cast for a musical comedy role. Their parts are created; their lines are cast; they are drilled by a competent stage manager, and even their costumes are minutely described by the author. But the live clown of today must be a creator and actor as well. Likewise, it must be a creation with the breath of today in it—pertinent, topical, new, and with a broad sense of humor in its freshness. We must consume at least half of the time of the entire performance.

"There are a few things I want to call your attention to in this very show, and, mind you, it is not the exception. For instance, two clowns put up a screamingly funny burlesque of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. One has the white face of a lily, while the other is of an ebony hue. They carry on a fake fight, and when the round is over one of them runs over and rings a cowbell. Instead of pouring water on the head of Johnson it is splashed on his big feet. Other things equally as ridiculous are carried on.

"To be sure, we have a travesty on Rostand's much-talked-of play, 'Chantecler.' One clown, representing the moon, carries things at a high clip, when in stalks the giant rooster Chantecler. A tramp, asleep on a park bench, represents Morning. Chantecler crows and daylight is on. A big policeman arrests the Moon and takes him out. The tramp awakes and, stretching his arms and legs to the accompaniment of a wooden rattler, gapes and yawns in stentorian fashion, and the birds begin to sing. Very broad burlesque, you will say, but carried out with a degree of intelligence and close to the text, in a way. And it's all done in a minute.

"Of course, we give aviation an inning. One clown has a miniature aeroplane on the end of a pole hanging in front of him, the pole being fastened to his head and, blowing a bellows he keeps the aeroplane in motion as he runs wildly around the ring in an imaginary chase after it. Neither have we overlooked the Halley comet. An ingenious chap with our aggregation has arranged a comet on wires that hangs about three feet in front of him and two feet above his head. For a sizzling tail of cyanogen he has an ignited piece of fireworks, like a fuse, which gives the whole a realistic appearance. Then he has a large funnel-shaped telescope made of crude tinplate, and armed with this the clown struts around the arena, comet gazing. It is so brand new that it always gets a good laugh.

"Of course, we have Teddy and his return from the African jungles depicted in humorous fashion, and even the 'high cost of living' comes in for its share of ridicule. But, you see, all of these things call for originality and hard work. The prosperous and successful clown of today must be up and doing, alive to every situation and exceedingly clever in the humorous exposition of popular fads and fancies. And, above everything else, he must be industrious."

THE SCIENTIFIC BURGLAR.

How a Knowledge of Chemicals Helps Him to "Crack Cribs."

Answers: The burglar of forty years ago carried a "james," or crowbar, and a set of "twirls," or skeleton keys. With these he was ready to tackle any safe of the old-fashioned sort.

Safe-making became a science and the "jimmy" useless, so Bill Sikes, of the next generation, provided himself with dynamite cartridges, or small charges of "soup," or liquid nitroglycerine, which he forced into the crack under the safe door and fired by means of a small pocket battery.

The safe-maker took a step in advance and, behold, the cracks were stopped, and no cranny or crevice left into which any form of explosive could possibly be injected.

But chemistry and electricity have both come to his aid. Wherever a burglar can manage to strip electric light wires he has at hand a simple method of producing a degree of heat sufficient to pierce the hardest steel. He uses a carbon pole, safely insulated, and produces an arc powerful enough to melt anything.

On Aug. 31 last an attempt was made on a safe belonging to a firm of Birmingham jewelers, which contained £40,000 worth of diamonds and other valuables. A great hole had been melted through two inches of solid steel, and if the thieves had not been disturbed at their work they would infallibly have secured the "swag." These men used the oxy-hydrogen blowpipe flame, which produces the most intense heat known to man, next to the electric furnace.

All that is necessary is a small cylinder of compressed oxygen, such as doctors use for patients suffering from pneumonia, a length of India-rubber tubing and a blowpipe. The India rubber tube is connected with the nearest gas jet, the oxygen is turned on and mixed with the gas, and the result is a flame with a temperature of over 2,000 degs. Fahrenheit, which will melt the Harveyized steel of a battleship.

Another dodge of the up-to-date safe-blower is the use of a chemical compound known as thermit. This consists of a finely powdered mixture of aluminum and oxide or rust of iron.

At a certain temperature, well known to Bill, the aluminum begins to combine with oxygen, all the latter is taken up from the iron, and the result is oxide of aluminum and metallic iron.

The heat evolved by this chemical action is so terrific that under its impact steel runs like melted sealing-wax.

Fortunately for the public at large, thermit has, from the burglar's point of view, two formidable drawbacks. Magnesium must be employed to light the cartridge, and burning magnesium produces a brilliant glare of light. Again thermit itself, in process of combustion, sends off huge columns of stifling smoke, which is apt to betray the operations of the safe breaker.

Some little time ago a policeman arrested a suspicious looking character leaving a house in Brondesbury at an early hour of the morning.

"It's just as well to tell you I'm a burglar," said the fellow.

This man had in his possession a bottle of methylated spirits, another of some other chemical and brass apparatus with a blowpipe attachment. The use of the latter puzzled the police, but the burglar frankly explained its use.

"You see," he said, "I just smear the glass of the window above the catch with the stuff in this bottle, then I turn the flame of a soldering lamp on it by means of the blowpipe. As soon as the glass melts I put this hooked blade through, pull back the catch, and there you are."

DUTIES OF THE TRAINMEN.

"Practically all the most desirable positions on the railroads today are occupied by men who have risen from the ranks. On my own division of a railroad," a former signalman says in the Youth's Companion, "I have seen the agent at a small station work up into the position of auditor, at $5 or $6 a day.

"The young fellow who used to drag the chain and figure out angles and curves on the track is now the superintendent of a division. The boy who used to play around the cars and twist brakes just for fun in a small yard up country is now a responsible trainmaster.

"I often wondered as I watched him at play what he would one day do with earnestness and enthusiasm. The telegraph operator at $1.25 a day, who worked overtime without a murmur and held to a miserable job with grim determination, is now the general manager of a big system.

"Still more interesting is the story of the water boy who became in time a passenger brakeman. One day he made a mistake and derailed a train. He went right into the office and confessed his negligence. Before long, for his honesty, he was promoted. At the age of 26 he was general ticket agent. Today he probably ranks first in his line of business in the United States.

"All these men work within a few feet of each other in one railroad station. The building swarms with such men, and when you come to look into the matter closely you will be told that in these and all other cases talent and ability have counted, but the main characteristic of these men has been their strict attention to duty and their lifelong devotion and loyalty to the interests of the public and the railroad.

"During the last few years one of the avenues of employment on the railroad that has become particularly attractive is the passenger train service. The ranks of the trainmen are now largely recruited from the high schools.

"To begin with, he has to give an account of himself. The trainmaster takes hold of him. He must answer a number of questions in regard to his nationality, his parents, his age, his height, his weight. Some of these questions are very pertinent and searching:

"'Are your crippled or deformed? Is your eyesight or hearing defective? Are you able to distinguish colors? Are you subject to any sickness or infirmity? Are you temperate in your habits? Do you use intoxicating liquors? Do you ever gamble in any way?'

"If he passes a creditable examination he takes his place on a train perhaps the following day. He works in the middle of the train in the care of an experienced conductor, who immediately takes him in hand and breaks him in. He receives a time table, his book of rules and special notices.

"For his first day's experience he receives about $2.25—not such a bad start for a young man whose earning ability is dependent upon the experience and knowledge acquired in the high school. His progress and environment for the years that are to come are still more interesting as study in social and industrial life.

"Few men in the service are so well informed and so interested in the success and well being of the boys in his department as the trainmaster on my own division who had climbed every step of the ladder steadily and faithfully. When you listen to his description of conditions and prospects in the train service it sounds for all the world like an account of a successful investment not in cash or bonds but in push, character and humanity. A few of his sentences will indicate the nature and importance of the trainmaster's duties.

"'When we start a new man in the train service we keep in close touch with him for a year at least. Success or failure comes in this period. In a week or two I begin to make inquiries. If his work is up to the mark I find a way to let him know it. Encouragement counts in any business. Then I change his run and extend his duties and responsibilities.

"'When his turn comes to take the position of flagman he is subjected to another examination. In our business it would never do to take any chances. It is one thing to answer questions in the office; it is another thing to handle a train or to flag with good judgment. So I take an imaginary train and place it in all sorts of difficult positions. A man has to be thoroughly posted to pass the examination with credit.'

"Another important consideration is this: In his travels the trainman visits strange places, gets into all kinds of company and runs across temptations too numerous to mention. The railroad Young Men's Christian association, the rest houses, the libraries and reading rooms and all sorts of facilities calculated to turn the attention of the trainmen to the importance of self-improvement and the formation of good habits are indications that the officials are mindful of their moral responsibility.

"The first six months of the trainman's career is the probationary period. During this time he receives what is called 'inexperienced rate of pay,' which is 25 cents a day less than the full rate. At the end of six months he is full fledged and competent."

DIET OF CENTENARIANS.

Ask the nonogenarian or centenarian as to his diet. Will he answer in terms of the bill of fares published monthly in some so-called health journals, where we find suggestions for luncheons bringing within the compass of a single meal samples from every class and category of noncarnivorous substances—as if the mere absence of animal meat redeemed and made tolerable every incongruous mixture of food.

"Thus," says the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, 'we find berries with cream; bannana fritters and stuffed dates, roast chestnuts and custard, baked potatoes and peanut cream, vegetable salad, rice-sago pudding and a glass of milk—a combination that would turn the stomach of an ostrich into a reeking yeast pot.

"Or will he suggest line of simple essentials, such as a breakfast on fruits, fresh or cooked with some kind of dry, whole meal cereals; a lunch of two or more fresh vegetables prepared in salad form with perhaps a dish of well cooked rice, corn meal, or coarse dry bread; and an evening meal of a bowl of sweet fresh milk, oatmeal or whole meal zwieback.

"Carnaro, the famous Italian nonogenarian, lived during the last twenty years of his life on a diet largely consisting of a little wine, coarse bread, macaroni and cheese, enjoyed twice a day. Emmanuel Swedenborg, the great Swedish philosopher, scientist and seer, whose writings still continues to illumine minds of ever increasing numbers of devotees, and who died a nonogenarian, subsisted almost exclusively during his last two decades on a mixture of milk and weak coffee, enjoyed together with dried wheaten buns (rusks). Thomas Edison, Dr. Kellogg, Alfred Wallace, while non-vegetarians, eat seldom but once or twice a day, and very simple meals.

"A couple of years ago I met at Long Beach, Cal., an old man who at the age of 95 years was as vigorous as a man of 50 and in full possession of all his faculties and senses. For twenty years his dietary has consisted of baked onions and pumpernickel, with now and then a meal of baked apples or dried beef. However no specific rules other than that of simplicity can be traced in the habits and customs of those who inherit the kingdom of earth.

"They may find their elixir of life on a diet of oatmeal and sweet milk, as in Scotland; on baked potatoes and salt, as in Ireland; on black bread, sauerkraut and small beer, as on the Rhine; sour milk and barley cake, as in Bulgaria; white bread and black wine, as in Southern France; macaroni and cheese, is in Italy; rye bread, salt fish, sour milk, as in Sweden, etc. Every country has its peculiarities of diet according to geographical altitude and staple food of supply. But the one unique feature, characteristic to one and all is their simple, non-mixed natural elements of diet."

AN AIRSHIP STOWAWAY.

London Telegraph: There is now a claimant to the honor of having been the first stowaway on an air ship. Hardly had the Parsifal VI risen from the aerodrome at Johannisthal, near Berlin, yesterday afternoon with her complement of duly authorized passengers than a man wearing a blue apron crept from beneath the tarpaulin which covers the benzine tank, and accosted the captain with these words: "Excuse me, my name is Hase. I hope you don't mind, but you can't chuck me out now."

It appears that the man had been casually employed in the aerodrome and had been overcome by his longing to experience the joys of aerial travel, which he could, of course, only satisfy by a subterfuge.

GIN FOR THE KIDNEYS

Good pure gin is splendid for the kidneys, bladder and other urinary organs when properly prescribed. A leading physician gives the following as the best and most reliable prescription. Six ounces good pure gin, half ounce murax compound, half ounce fluid extract buchu. Mix well and take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. All good druggists have these ingredients. This quickly cures backache, rheumatic pains and other well known symptoms. Don't let weak or sick kidneys go without treatment as serious trouble may develop rapidly.

SUFFRAGETTES RIDING ON FIRE ENGINE

The London suffragettes threaten to break up the coronation of King George unless they get some action from parliament on the subject of votes for women. Their last activity was assaulting the members of the cabinet. For this many of them went to jail. On their release a banquet was given and those who had enjoyed imprisonment were loudly acclaimed. Mrs. Pankhurst who has been in Paris lately, says that the English authorities can look forward to trouble if there is no action by parliament before that time. The suffragettes proclaimed a truce during the funeral of King Edward, but they have not so much respect for a live king as they have for a dead one.

Quick Relief from Lame Back

Pain in the back is quickly relieved by an application of Sloan's Liniment. You don't need to rub — just lay it on — it penetrates.

HERE'S PROOF.

MR. JAMES HENRY WYNN, of Mulberry, Fla., writes: "I have been down with pain which they called lumbago so that I could hardly walk, but after using a few drops of your Liniment I was benefited immediately."

MR. E. CHICHESTER, 401 Barbey Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have used your Liniment for rheumatism and lumbago, and it did me more good than all the doctors I ever had, and I have recommended it to a great many people."

MR. GEORGE STEVENS, of Bridgeport, Conn., writes: "I was sick for three weeks with my back, but Sloan's Liniment cured me at once."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is also a quick and sure remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, cough or cold and croup. At all dealers. 25c., 50c., $1.00.

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, BOSTON, MASS.

DRINK HABIT

Only the Drinker Knows What It Is to Have the Inclination, the Desire, the Craving and Appetite for Drink.

The drinker knows his condition, others guess it. This is why the drinker resents all free advice about his quitting from those who don't know what it is to long for a drink. At the right time he will take the Neal treatment of his own accord.

A PERFECT CURE.

The Neal internal treatment cures the periodical, occasional or moderate drinker, the habitual and excessive drinker, and the nervous man who has to drink to keep from becoming nervous. It takes away all inclination to drink, all desire and craving to drink, by neutralizing the poison of alcohol in the system and ridding the blood of the poison by a rapid system of elimination, leaving the drinker in the condition that he was before tasting liquor, so far as the effect of alcohol may be concerned—all appetite for drink gone—and he a new man.

NO HYPODERMIC INJECTIONS.

Refuse to take any treatment for the drink habit where hypodermic injections are given, for they are so liable to result in blood poison from the use of an infected needle, through the carelessness of others.

PLAIN CONTRACT GIVEN.

Each patient is given a plain contract, agreeing to effect a perfect cure in three days, or return the full fee paid. Call, write, phone or wire for free booklet giving full information, also for a copy of our contract and guarantee bond. Everything confidential, bank reference cheerfully furnished.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JAN. 29. II Chron. xvii: 1-6, 9-13: Jehoshaphat's Good Reign.

THE CONNECTION.

Jehoshaphat was fifth in descent from David, and was really the best of his descendants so far. Remembering that the nation had no long established royalty, and that in order to start a royal line, an ordinary shepherd boy was chosen, with no finer blood in his veins than that of his father's hired hand, we are rather surprised that only one of these five descendants of David was very bad, while one Ahijah was not king long enough to make much of a name. He carried on the work of his superb father and even surpassed him. Up in the northern kingdom it was going from bad to worse.

THE LESSON.

I.

Civic Improvements, 1-6.

"And Jehoshaphat, his son, reigned in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel. And he placed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa, his father, had taken. And Jehovah was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the first ways of his father David, and sought not unto the Baalim, but sought to the God of his father, and walked in his commandments, and not after the doings of Israel. Therefore Jehovah established the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah brought to Jehoshaphat tribute; and he had riches and honor in abundance. And his heart was lifted up in the ways of Jehovah: and furthermore he took away the high places and the Asherim out of Judah."

1. FAULTS.—But all great men have their follies and all good men their faults. Our lesson tells of his good deeds and good character, but the Bible is not silent about his faults and mistakes. Those mistakes grow out of his good nature. At least three blunders are recorded against him and they grew out of a desire to be on good terms with the other part of the Jewish nation. He assisted Ahab against his enemy, the Syrians, in a battle in which Ahab was killed and from which Jehoshaphat returned home to be severely rebuked by a prophet of the Lord for going to the help of God's enemies, as Ahab and Israel had come to be (19:1-3). In his desire for national unity, he arranged a marriage, later in his life, between his son, Jehoram, and Athaliah, daughter of Ahab, and the infamous Jezebel. Great trouble came from this union. Near the close of his reign he formed a commercial league with Ahab's successor to build ships to carry on trade with Tarshish; but God's servants, the winds, scattered the ships, and God's servant, a prophet, told him that his league with corruption in the person of Ahaziel, king of Israel, had brought on him God's displeasure. But his faults and his mistakes were few. He rises a heroic figure on the field of history.

2. FORTIFICATIONS.—He was at the mature age of 35 and saw that the best way to keep at peace with the northern kingdom was to have well fortified frontiers. His father had recovered some territory from them and he did not want to lose it again. Strong cities with good garrisons had a pacific effect. He kept well filled depots and had a muster roll of 1,600,000 soldiers.

3. WORSHIP.—He knew how much it meant to the national life and he finished the work of tearing down the high places which his father began and cut down others that had grown up. He recalled the people to the pure national worship, thereby imitating the example of his father David, in contrast with that of some of his successors, and the example of David's early life in contrast with his later years of self indulgence. This was a courageous thing to do, for Baalism was the fashion, in the surrounding nations, including Israel, and Judah felt the temptation.

4. APPROVAL.—How did God show His approval of the godly king? By being with him always and that presence brought temporal blessings, two especially—a firm grasp of the reins of power so that he swayed the people at his will; the love of his people that prompted them to bring large personal gifts to him in addition to the payment of their taxes, so that wealth and honor were his in abundance.

Educational Improvements, 9.

"And they taught in Judah, having the book of the law of Jehovah with them; and they went about throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught among the people."

His father Asa had been more successful in rooting out idolatry than in carefully establishing the true worship. Jehosaphat was a builder, constructive as well as destructive. There is no way to establish truth so good as regular instruction with a good text book and that is what this wise king did. It was a regular systematic thing and schools were established all over the land of Judah.

Five high court officials, as the Hebrew word denotes, not "princes" as we now use the term in English, were charged with the task of establishing these schools. Their interesting names are given. Associated with them on the staff of instruction are nine Levites and two priests—the sixteen constituting a royal educational commission, assisted no doubt by local instructors in all of the cities. Only two priests would indicate that there were not many of that class suitable for such service, as they were all chosen on grounds of personal fitness rather than because of official position.

The "five princes," however, were most likely exceptions to this principle of selection and were chosen to represent the court and give royal sanction to the enterprise. The text book was "the book of the law of the Lord," which meant the aggregate of all those messages sent by God up to that time and preserved in writing or just that part of the Old Testament which is called the Pentateuch.

Another striking fact is that he reformed the administration of justice by instructing the judges themselves. It was a great advance.

III.

Great Prosperity, 10-11.

"And the fear of Jehovah fell upon the kingdoms of the lands that were round about Judah, so that they made no war against Jehoshaphat. And some of the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat presents, and silver for tribute; the Arabians also brought him flocks, seven thousand and seven hundred rams, and seven thousand and seven hundred he-goats. And Jehoshaphat waxed great exceedingly; and he built in Judah castles and cities of store. And he had many works in the cities of Judah; and men of war, mighty men of valor, in Jerusalem."

The nations around were deeply affected at this destruction of all the other gods by Israel's God, for the news had been borne to them in various ways. The presence of one God so much more powerful than theirs terrified and subdued them. To make war with a people defended by such a God would be futile and destructive—and they keep the peace. To secure His favor, so as to be in a measure protected by Him, as Jehoshaphat was, would be a fine stroke of wisdom—so they send presents to Jehoshaphat, God's special protege. The Philistines send presents of silver and the Arabians send presents of sheep and goats, over fifteen thousand in all. For twenty-five years this good reign goes on, with the exception of the several mistakes, which have already been noted.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

The Oriental never forgets a distinguished ancestor. The new king was a lineal descendant of the great king David, who was therefore called his father—an expression of affinity and nearness; but the foibles of a great man in the East are even more dwelt on than his virtues. An Arab today who is proud of the blue blood of his shaykh will not only give you an account of the celebrated line of ancestors from whom the great man is descended, but he will add picturesque details of his great and bad acts, especially the latter. Of course, the blue blood flows down uncontaminated to himself, while the acts were only incident to their author. There is no sentiment among Orientals in favor of the motto. "Nihil nisi bonum de mortuis," and so, when the inspired writer compares Jehoshaphat's walk to that of his father, he is careful to note that he did not follow David in his faults.—Wright.

I love the Bible. I believe it contains all necessary truth about the way a man should walk here below. My admiration for it comes exactly as does my admiration for the Marconi wireless installation on my little steamer; it brings news to me that I could not get otherwise, and I find by experience that it is always true news.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1.—What is the first qualification in any official?

2.—How may one get good from a good ancestry?

3.—What is the best way for learning one's own faults?

4.—Are fortifications and armaments needed at the present time by any nation?

5.—What is the best protection for any nation against foes without?

6.—Is it an invariable law that, if one pleases God he will have power with men?

CONFINED TO WEST END

This Was Only District Hit By Retrenchment in Postoffice.

Chief Impairment to Service Was in the Railway Branch.

The impairment of service through retrenchment measures, which has brought a storm of disapproval on Postmaster General Hitchcock and his department, did not hit Duluth as heavily during the past year as it did some other cities throughout the country, but it was felt here to some degree.

The West end, which is now regarded as standing a poor chance of getting its branch office on account of that same policy of retrenchment, was the only district in the city to suffer through the economy measures of the department this year. No substitute carriers were allowed for the four carriers in the West end while they were on their vacation, the route of each man while he was on his vacation being divided among the other three, and therefore there was a long and vigorous howl from West end patrons of the office.

In putting into effect its plan of economy, the postoffice department notified all offices throughout the country where a saving could be made from the failure to engage substitutes for carriers on vacation, to do so for a certain number of carriers. In Duluth, the allotment was only four carriers, or the pay of a substitute for sixty days, whereas in some other offices throughout the country a far greater proportion was saved upon. There are sixty-five carriers in Duluth, so that the proportionate saving here was very small.

In the West end, where the routes are light, the route of each man was divided among the other three while he was on vacation. Each man worked his allotted eight hours and no more. Some districts which usually have two deliveries daily, received only one, it is said, while sometimes districts went without any delivery for a day. The people, discovering the fact that no substitute carrier was employed when the regular carrier was off, protested to the postoffice department without avail. They had to put up with the impaired service for two weeks.

Fears are now being expressed that the department will endeavor to extend the plan of saving to other parts of the city next year, and if such a move should be made, there will be a generous protest on the part of Duluth added to the protests which are being made by other cities.

The economy measures did not affect the clerks at all, as it has always been the policy of the department to divide the work of clerks off on vacation. Little hardship is imposed on the clerks in the office by that plan.

The principal detriment to the service through the division of work is said to be developing in the railway mail service, where men have been loaded on certain runs with more mail than they could handle, with the result that mail is carried by its destination and back again and other mail is being held up for days. The clerks are protesting against the extra work being imposed on them, while the public is protesting against the plan on account of the detriment to the mail service.

Following is a copy of the order received by the local railway mail service: "In accordance with the recent order of the department, acting or substitute clerks must not be employed, when possible to provide for emergency service by the employment of regular clerks on lighter lines, off duty, when this order was received."

SENATE ADOPTS STEENERSON BILL

Accepts Measure Creating Commission as Amendment to Indian Bill.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The senate yesterday afternoon adopted the Steenerson Chippewa commission bill and added it as an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill.

Senator Clapp, chairman of the committee, in offering the amendment said that an intolerable condition exists in the White Earth country. In answer to inquiries from Curtis of Kansas and Page of Vermont, Mr. Clapp declared that mixed-blood Indians whose parents for years had been known as half-breeds had been persuaded by government employes to repudiate their known status and declare themselves to be full bloods.

"Something must be done," said Senator Clapp, "to determine and establish a final classification."

Senator Page was rather persistent in contending that such an important amendment should be considered and passed upon by the secretary of the interior or the commissioner of Indian affairs. To this contention Mr. Clapp replied that inasmuch as the commission to be appointed will be composed of two men—an employe of the government and one to be selected by the Indians—there would be no injustice to anybody.

"It is so late now in the session," declared Senator Clapp, "that it will be impossible to get a separate bill through, and it will work much hardship to the people in three counties if they have to wait until the next session of congress."

The amendment was then adopted, record time being made, as Congressman Steenerson introduced his amended bill Monday in the house and secured a favorable report from a subcommittee.

It is regarded as certain that the Steenerson amendment will be saved in conference even though Commissioner Valentine of the Indian office interposes an objection.

Among Minnesota items added to the Indian bill in the senate is an appropriation of $1,000 for completing a bridge across Clearwater river.

Same amount for the annual celebration at White Earth. Transfer of Pipestone Indian reservation to the state of Minnesota for an agricultural and experimental school, to be open for Indian and white pupils after July 1, 1912

Wisconsin items: Increased appropriation for the Indian school at Hayward, in Congressman Lenroot's district, to include 215 pupils, from $36,000 to $90,000. An amendment to authorize manufacturing of dead and down timber on Menominee reservation at the government sawmill.

MORE INDICTMENTS OUT FOR BRIBE TAKERS.

West Union Ohio, Jan. 26.—All past records for the Adams county election probe were smashed yesterday when the grand jury reported 328 new indictments. These were against voters who had voluntarily entered pleas of guilty. This latest batch brought the total of the five weeks' probe up to 2,148, or one-third of the entire electorate. Between 1,800 and 1,900 have been disenfranchised.

The grand jury adjourned last evening subject to call. A quiet investigation will be continued, however, by the court's detectives in every precinct of Adams county.

KILLED NEAR HAWLEY.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 26.—Hans Nelson, a section hand, was run down and killed Tuesday morning while at work on the Northern Pacific track about a mile and a half west of Hawley. Both his legs were cut off and he was otherwise fearfully mangled. He died within a few moments. He was struck by a freight train.

Nelson leaves a wife and two children.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Rheumatism Comes From Bad Kidneys

Once Your Kidney Work Properly, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease and Bladder Trouble Disappear—How to Cure Yourself.

It is no longer necessary to spend months and months undergoing a complicated treatment for rheumatism, kidney or bladder trouble, or spend a good many dollars in doctors' bills.

A new treatment can now be obtained which seems to act more like a marvel than a medicine. This treatment has produced such satisfactory results in a short time that it is now guaranteed from first to last.

There should be no more doubt about the rapid cure of rheumatism, no fears of the fatal termination of treacherous kidney disease or dropsy.

Rheumatism means nothing more nor less than that your kidneys do not work properly. Your blood passes through the kidneys hundreds of times a day to be filtered and purified. When the kidneys are weak, the poisons are not taken out of the blood as they should be. This leads to various diseases, such as rheumatism, terrible Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy and bladder trouble.

The new guaranteed treatment is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. One day's use of them will prove their remarkable effect. M. T. Ridenour of Lima, Ohio, says: "When I feel bad in my back, I just take a couple of Derby's Kidney Pills and get immediate relief."

If you have rheumatism anywhere, back pains, cloudy, foul urine, pains in the bladder, Bright's disease or diabetes, put your whole confidence in Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and you will not be disappointed.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are sold at all drug stores—60 pills—10 days' treatment—25 cents, or we will send them direct from the laboratory of Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich., prepaid if you wish. If you want to try them first, just tell your druggist to give you a free sample package.

HEAVY TONNAGE IS BEING MOVED

Removing Cross Lake Logging Road Involves Some Very Heavy Hauling.

Pine River, Minn., Jan. 26. — (Special to The Herald.)—The removal of the Cross Lake logging road east of here, the steel and equipment of which will have to be hauled across country fourteen miles by team, from Swanburg to this point, and from Cross Lake to Jenkins, assumes tonnage proportions which run into large figures. Figuring with the spurs that there is fifty miles of track, the steel alone at seventy-two pounds to the running yard will amount to 3,168 tons.

The three steam engines weigh seventy-three tons collectively and the 100 logging cars weighing 6,300 pounds each will make 310 tons more, making a total of 3,478 tons. This does not include about twenty dump cars, shop machinery, pumps, wood sawing outfit, switches, etc., nor 66,000 angle bars, which hold the rails together, of which there are four to each sixteen feet of the railroad. These angle bars weigh anyway four pounds each, but at a conservative estimate all this would weigh anyway 170 tons more, making a grand total of 3,648 tons. Twenty-five teams making a trip a day with two tons to a load would require seventy-three days to complete the work. Estimating that each load and team was twenty-six feet long if all the loads were placed in one string it would lack ninety-six feet of being nine miles long.

CROOKSTON WANTS WESTRUMITE BIDS

During Animated Session Council Decides to Invite the Tenders.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following an animated session Tuesday night, the city council decided to advertise for Westrumite paving bids to be in the hands of the city clerk Feb. 14.

The reading of correspondence regarding the value of Westrumite which had been turned over by City Engineer Carroll, resulted in an animated tilt between the city engineer and Mr. Putnam, when the latter asked the city engineer the origin of the correspondence. The correspondence was voluminous and referred to Westrumite laid in many places, and while some of it had proven unsatisfactory, the fault lay with the poor work of contractors or unfavorable weather conditions, and the faults had been remedied. Many of the letters were very high in their praise of Westrumite.

Mr. Putnam intimated that much of the adverse criticism originated with competitive paving concerns and stated that his company had always stood for good work and where there were mistakes made, the work was done over again, and the correspondence showed this.

The offer of Dr. Wilson Randolph to serve as city physician for $15 per month was accepted. Mayor McKinnon's recommendation of the appointment of Eugene Welch as special officer to have charge of the public skating rink, at $45 per month, was confirmed.

Library Board Appointed.

The terms of A. J. McKinnon, George F. Carpenter, and J. E. O'Brien having expired as members of the library board, Mayor McKinnon named J. R. McKinnon, E. R. Hamel and Dr. A. A. Just for three-year terms, and all were confirmed by the council. There are nine members of the board, each serving three years, necessitating the appointment of three each year. The annual report of the libarian was read and placed on file.

A communication was read from Dr. H. M. Bracken of the state board of health, in answer to a letter of inquiry as to plans for a pest house. He said that plans for another detention hospital were being prepared and Crookston would do well to get a copy of them. He said "pest house" was right for Crookston's former place of keeping those with contagious diseases, and that the city was lucky that one patient who died there did not happen to have a relative who knew the circumstances, or the city might have been involved in a nice suit for damages.

DEMOCRAT GOES ON THE BENCH IN NORTH DAKOTA

JUDGE JAMES A. COFFEY.

Courtenay, N. D., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—James A. Coffey of this city, recently appointed by Governor John Burke as judge of the Fifth judicial district to succeed Judge E. T. Burke, has been a resident of the state since 1902. He is a graduate of the law department of the University of Minnesota. Since becoming a resident of this county Judge Coffey has been very successful. He is one of the prominent Democrats of this section, having cast his lot with that party immediately on becoming a resident of the state.

TREASURER OUSTED.

Bayfield County, Wis., Official Is Alleged Short.

Washburn, Wis., Jan. 26.—The Bayfield county board has declared the office of county treasurer vacant following a reported shortage in the office of County Treasurer Henry Lien, made public by Special Accountant H. P. Axelberg.

The alleged shortage amounts to $1,574.41. The office was declared vacant on account of the treasurer being unable to secure the necessary $100,000 bond required by law, the time having expired.

The affair has created somewhat of a stir, but the treasurer maintains that some mistake has been made, and that he will not accept the accountant's figures, but will employ the services of a special expert accountant for the purpose of going over all county receipts since he took office two years ago.

MANY HONOR MR. GORDON.

Funeral of St. Paul Pioneer Is Largely Attended.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Church of St. John, the Evangelist, was crowded yesterday afternoon by those who desired to pay the last tribute to Richards Gordon, the veteran St. Paul pioneer merchant, who died in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Committees of prominent citizens, representing the Commercial club and the Jobbers' and Manufacturers' association, attended the funeral, and there was a large representation from the congregation of St. John's church, of which Mr. Gordon had been long a vestryman and junior warden.

The Gordon & Ferguson store was closed and the members and employes of the firm, of which the deceased was the founder and head, were present to pay their last respects to the man they had been associated with in very close personal bonds, as well as business relations.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

ROADHOUSE KEEPER ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Alma, Wis., Jan. 26.—Al Childs, keeper of a roadhouse near Winona, Minn., was brought here by Sheriff Scharr and placed in jail to await trial on a murder charge.

The coroner's jury, at an inquest at Bluff Siding, Wis., brought in a verdict charging that Henry Dingfelder, a wealthy young farmer, came to his death in Childs' saloon as the result of a gunshot wound inflicted by the discharge of a gun in the hands of Childs. The evidence revolved about the point as to whether Childs deliberately fired or the gun was accidentally discharged. The testimony was conflicting.

REVOLUTION A JOKE

Declares Crookston Man Just Back From Old Mexico.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. M. Walsh has returned from a trip South, having been absent since Jan. 2, when he left with a party of eight from Winnipeg to investigate the land proposition in Mexico, and to whom he sold several tracts near Tampico, Tex.

Mr. Walsh visited New Orleans, San Antonio, Tampico and other points, and states that Will Lowe, who preceded him South several weeks, is at Knox City, and will remain there till Feb. 4, when he will proceed to Tampico.

Asked about the revolution in Mexico, he said that it was all a joke at Tampico, and that the people were not even talking about it, excepting to discuss the newspaper reports. The trouble is all confined to isolated outbreaks of guerilla warfare in some of the Northern provinces way back from the coast, and nearly all the leaders had now been captured, together with the scattering forces of the revolters.

ST. CLOUD JAGS HIGHER.

Owing to Increased License Saloon Men to Raise Drink Prices.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 26.—As a result of the local saloon licenses being increased Feb. 1 from $500 to $1,000 per year, owing to the city getting into the 10,000 population class, the saloon keepers will increase the prices of their drinks.

The saloon keepers claim at the present price of drinks, they would be doing business at a loss and in order to break even are forced to raise the price.

Under the new schedule, beer and whisky will be "straight"; no more six beers for a quarter or three whiskies for the same amount. Beer and whisky will be sold at 5 and 10 cents, but with no discount for large quantities. Mixed drinks will be sold at 15 cents with highballs included in this class. Bottled beer which formerly sold for 10 cents will be increased to 15 cents. Cigars will also be sold "straight" by the saloons.

EVEN BUTTE GETS GOOD.

Mayor Nevin Has Ordered the Red Light District Closed Up.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 26.—Calling the bluff of those who stated that he would find a bomb under him, Mayor Charles P. Nevin summarily ordered the closing up of the red light district, giving the denizens until Feb. 1 to move out under pain of being raided.

The mayor stated that he was sick and tired of the situation of being threatened, and it was up to the opposition now to "bring on their bomb." The "district" is in the heart of Butte, and since the early days has been the most notoriously wide open of any of the restricted districts in the West. It embraces about four city blocks.

Pine River, Minn., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pine River enjoyed the first electric lights in its history Tuesday evening when the power company tested their dynamo and a few lights they had connected about town in some of the business places. It is expected that permanent service will be inaugurated not later than Friday of this week.

AFTER THE NATIONAL

Duluth Club Wants Big Ski Tournament Held Here Annually.

Will Try to Have This City Named as Permanent Site.

At least three officials of the Duluth Ski club will attend the national meet at Chippewa Falls, Wis., Saturday and Sunday with the intention of assuring the attendance at Duluth in February of the best riders present at the national tournament.

It is being planned to make the Duluth meet even bigger than the one which Chippewa Falls is all "het up" about at the present time, and the trip of the Duluth Ski club officials is part of this scheme.

The meet here is scheduled for Feb. 12 and it is expected that a majority of the crack riders competing at the national will be seen in action here. In addition the local officials will make careful note of the special features of the Chippewa Falls tournament, with a view of improving upon them.

Duluth will very likely make a bid for holding the national tournament in this city annually. This is one of the part of Duluth to be chosen as the permanent place for the big national meet, comes after practically all the other clubs in the association have asked that this city be made the official national meeting place.

This city is much more able to take care of the crowds and the riders, according to the admission of practically every officer of the association, and as most of the riders have expressed a preference for this city, it is probable that it will be voted at the official meeting at Chippewa Falls, to hold the annual tournaments in Duluth in the future.

OLE SAMPSON AFTER LEHTO

Big Finn Will Challenge Champion at Conclusion of Ordemann Match.

Ole Sampson, who for the past two years has been slowly but surely wrestling his way to a high position among the grapplers of the Northwest, the same wrestler who met all comers at Winnipeg last season, wrestling some of the best men in the Northwest without once encountering defeat, announced that he would send a challenge to Karl Lehto this evening, at the conclusion of the Lehto-Ordemann battle.

There has been somewhat of a split between the two men, and although the majority of the countrymen of Lehto and Sampson are of the opinion that Lehto can dispose of his blossomin rival, big Sampson is not entirely without backers.

Sampson was a member of the Finnish team in the world's Olympian games which were held in London. In addition to his ability as a wrestler he is also a weight thrower, and threw the hammer in addition to wrestling on the team that Finland sent over to the Olypiad.

Sampson has been after Chris Person for over a year and has failed to receive any definite answer from the husky Dane. The big fellow is anxious to meet and defeat Person and Martin Johnson, thereby adding luster to his record in these parts, so that his challenge to Karl Lehto, generally recognized as the Finnish champion, will carry more weight among his countrymen.

In Duluth it is not believed that Lehto would have a great deal of trouble in defeating Sampson. Though the men have been in this country for some time, they have never met.

McFARLAND HAS BETTER OF ERNE

Stockyards Boy Outclasses Heavier Opponent in Six-Round Bout.

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—Packey McFarland of Chicago had a decided advantage over Young Erne of this city in their six-round bout before the National Athletic club last night. There was not a moment after the first round that the Chicago boy did not show his superiority.

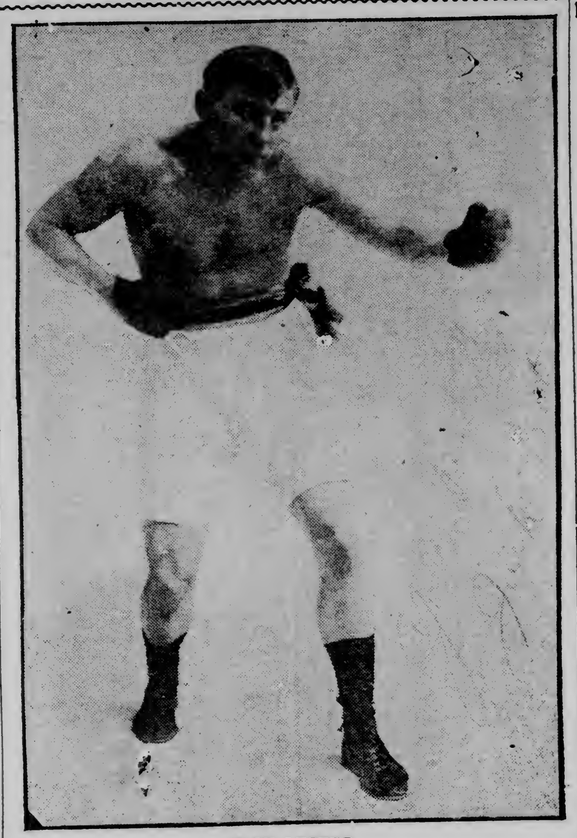

In the opening round Erne broke even, but from that time to the end of the sixth McFarlnnd made him look like a novice. Erne was slow and missed many left and right swings, leaving openings for McFarland. In the fifth McFarland rushed Erne and had the Philadelphian coverings up. Erne weighed at least ten pounds more than his opponent.

Lang Wins Bout.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 26.—Hilliard Lang, the Canadian welterweight champion, last night had the better of a 12-round bout with Kid Brown of Chicago. Lang excelled n clever footwork, while Brown hit wildly.

JACK LESTER.

Another hope of the white race is Jack Lester, a Western heavyweight, who is being brought out by Tommy Burns, the ex-heavyweight champion of the world, who has retired from the ring. Burns thinks that Lester will make a great fighter and he intends to see that he gets a chance.

LEWIS WINS BY KNOCKOUT

American Puts Johnnie Summers Away in Four Rounds in London.

Lewis Forfeits $500 for Being Nearly Three Pounds Over Weight.

London, Jan. 26.—Harry Lewis, the American welterweight, who won the welterweight championship of England a year ago from Young Joseph, last night knocked out Johnnie Summers, the English aspirant for the title, in four rounds.

A big crowd witnessed the go, every seat in the Olympia being filled. It was a savage fight while it lasted.

HARRY LEWIS.

Honors were even for the first two rounds. The men insisted on clinching at every possible chance, and the referee frequently was compelled to step in and separate them by main strength. The third round was the hottest of the go, both men trying desperately for a knockout. It ended in a clinch.

In the fourth Lewis rushed Summers to the ropes and knocked him out with a straight right. After Summer had taken the count, Lewis picked him up and carried him to his corner, amid great cheering.

The men were matched at 144 pounds, but when they weighed in at 3 o'clock this afternoon it was found that the American tipped the scales at 146¾. Summers weighed 140¾. As a result of his overweight Lewis paid a forfeit of $500.

NORSK STAYS WITH GOTCH

World's Champion Fails to Throw Ordemann in Fifteen Minutes.

A special wire from Minneapolis this morning states that Henry Ordemann will reach Duluth early this afternoon, ready for his battle tonight with Karl Lehto. George A. Barton, sporting editor of the Minneapolis Daily News, who will probably referee the bout, will reach Duluth this evening.

Last night in Minneapolis Ordemann met Frank Gotch in a 15-minute handicap bout, the world's champion failing to throw the American champion. The match, according to the dispatch received here, as a great one and Gotch did everything in his power to toss the big Minneapolis Norsk.

Both Lehto and Ordemann are in condition for the bout of tonight. Lehto is in the best shape of his career, having undergone a careful and systematic course of training since his defeat of Person. As far as condition is concerned, Lehto will have a slight edge on Ordemann, as the big Minneapolis Norweglan has met Hackenschmidt, Zbyszko and Gotch within a space of two weeks.

Gunner Gronlund, claiming the Finnish middleweight championship of the world, the same man who Chris Person failed to throw in an hour, last winter in the Copper country, has been assisting Lehto in his training and has brought the big Finn into the best of condition.

The match this evening is the result of over a year of negotiations on the part of the Minneapolis people, and is a contest that has been looked forward to for a long time by followers of the two men. A great deal of interest is being shown in Minneapolis in the outcome of the match.

MINNESOTA ATHLETE WILL TRY FOR OLYMPIC TEAM.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 26.—For the first time in the history of track athletics at Minnesota a member of the track team will try for a place on the Olympic team to represent America. Stanley Hill, captain of the Gopher track squad and star 100-yard man, is eagerly awaiting the trials with the hope of landing one of the coveted places and a trip to Stockholm.

Hill is a natural runner and attracted attention at the university from the start owing to the faultless form. He runs the hundred, the two-twenty and the quarter, but is the strongest in the dash. He is training now for the indoor meet to be held in St. Paul and will be in first-class condition when the spring trials are held.

Hill is a senior mining engineer and for that reason has not so much time to train as the students in some of the other departments. This one feature has been a serious handicap to Hill all through his college career. It was frequently necessary for him to spend weeks preceding a track meet in long tramps over the hills which counted strongly against him. Such was the case in the conference meet last year when he went from the iron ranges to the meet just in time to get into the race. He finished third in the finals.

The best performance to Hill's credit was made last year at Wisconsin, when he went the hundred in 9-4-5 seconds. The track was in good conditon and Hill had rested before the race. In that race he beat Richards of the Badger team, who later beat him at the conference.

Hill is a Minneapolis boy who formerly attended Minneapolis central. While in high school he had things his own way in the track meets and was considered a remarkable runner.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD AT BOWLING CONGRESS.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 26.—While bowling with the Pfenners of Chicago in the five-men team event last night, A. E. Minor established a world's record when he dropped 279 pins in a single game, beating the former mark of 278, made by George Qualey of St. Louis at the Detroit tournament last year.

The Pfenners jumped into the lead in the five-men team division with a score of 2,924. The previous high score of the tournament was made Tuesday night by the Tiffens of Toledo, Ohio, with a score of 2,738. The Budweisers of St. Louis went into second place with a score of 2,750.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

Philly Fight Fans to Suppress Jack O'Brien's Society Bug — Jeffries and Johnson May Meet Without a Ring—Dr. Roller Has Aspirations—Throwing Oranges for Training.

(BY BRUCE.)

Agnes, listen to this.

Thirty-third degree fight fans of Philadelphia have served notice on Philadelphia Jack O'Brien that he will either have to shut some of the society fight fanatics out of the limelight part of the fistic festivities of his new "million-dollar" club, or he will play to that cruel and most unfeeling spectacle, empty benches.

Have you ever heard of "Tony" Biddle? He is from Philadelphia and is interesting mainly because he has millions. He used to think he was a great boxer; maybe he does yet for that little matter. One time he boxed Philadelphia Jack O'Brien right out in the open—yes, in a regular athletic club, and all his society friends came to see the bout. Some plebian low-brow sneaked into the club and nearly broke up the entertainment laughing, aye, guffawing at the efforts of the professional pug to keep from rapping the head off the Biddle boy.

On another occasion this Biddle boy hung around the training quarters of Jack Johnson until that Buffalo was compelled to put on the gloves to get rid of him. So you can see that Biddle has quite a record. Oh, yes—another time Al Kaufmann boxed with him and in a forgetting moment hit "Tony" kind of hard. Society friends rushed in and led Biddie away.

Now the other night at Philadelphia Jack O'Brien opened his new club. He wanted to get society interested in the festivities, so had several of the leaders of the 400 light brigade acting as master of ceremonies. Mister Biddle refereed the bout between Young Loughrey and Ted Nelson. He started to get fresh and one of the lads took a soak at him, honestly, right there in front of his society admirers.

It looked like the police and an explanation for a moment, but the affair was quieted down without Biddle being carried out on a shutter, in a melodramatic imitation of the Spartan youth who was carted home to mamma on a tin shield. The real and true fans, up in the gallery, called Mister Biddle many names not mentioned at his time of baptism. He was hooted and hissed and told to do many things difficult of accomplishment and even dangerous.

Mr. O'Brien kids some of the society youths on their muscular development, and therefore, has won a following of some of the who's who boys in the lethargic village. But when it comes to choosing between real money and society and the softened superciliousness of the haughty boys of Philly, here's piping the tip on the action the O'Brien guy will take. He likes money better than notoriety even, and he likes the latter almost as much as his right eye, and that's his good one.

Skipping over the news wire blithely comes the information of a possible future meeting between Jeffries and Johnson. Not a fight; oh nothing like that, Fred; simply a pacifying pact, whereat perchance Jack pictures himself as consoling with the exploded hero of the days before the battle.

What Will James Say to Jack?

Jeffries loves this Johnson boy like a German bricklayer loves his little pail of beer in the eventide—not. He loves "Lil" Artha rather like little Fido loves to see kitty cat eating the remains of the festive fowl while little brother has a head lock on him to prevent hostilities. We have a mental picture of this proposed meeting under the elms, or stately cypress, and it is so good that it really ought to be framed.

If this Jeff has the natural courage that should go with that bulk of his, he would swing impromptu on the jaw of the black, should the beaming black approach him for a "quiet little talk. Poor old Jeff has had enough trouble since the Reno rumpus. The big fellow ought to go into training and condition himself to get one wallop in, trusting to some guiding star for life and future happiness thereafter.

It is no use rubbing the system of any man when it smarts from the burn of adversity's rough hiding, get that—and that's just what the cunning coon would be doing. The infant international peace society, just naturally aching to stop some war or carnage, should get into practice on the proposed trip of Johnson to the haunts of Jeff.

Give It To "Doc;" He Is Saving 'Em.

To a friend in this city Dr. B. F. Roller has written that in the future he will meet Westergaard and Ordemann. When it comes to genial hopes and genteel ways, you should doff the old black hat to the doctor. But why he should be seeking another match with Ordemann is rather difficult to understand at the present time. Roller was not in the best of condition when he met Ordemann in Minneapolis, as he had been wrestling steadily for something like a month, and the one night stand route is not the best thing in the world for the health of an athlete; and yet the majority of followers of the grappling game are thoroughly convinced that Ordemann is the master of the big Seattle physician.

There was a time when "Doc" probably could flop Henry, but that time has passed, like all things must. The most interesting meeting ahead among the American wrestlers, is the proposed meeting of Ordemann and Westergaard, as the big Des Moines Swede at the present time is recognized as one of the coming men of this country. In the proper kind of shape, Roller is still able to give Ordemann all kinds of a mat jamboree and that is about all.

How the Peerless Leaders Train.

California has long been the home of imaginative story tellers, and the latest ear marks of originality. It has to do with the training of Frank Chance, the leader of the Chicago Nationals.

Judging from the rosy reports from the sunlit land of California, the Chicago boss must be rolling in wealth which in our childhood days we associated with the fairy prince. He throws oranges at trees to keep his arm in shape. Isn't that fine? Imagine training under such delightful conditions! But suppose one had a very bad arm, one that stubbornly refused to yield to treatment—think of the damage to profits.

Those of us at 'ome eating oranges and sighing because the cost of the luscious fruit is so out of keeping with a pocket book affected with flatitis, will imagine this Chance man a most extravagant person. We have heard of gay and gilded youths trying the strength of their arms by throwing champagne bottles at plate glass mirrors—but this building bicep-cunning via the merry throwing of the golden orange is some new.

ADAMS TEAM IN THE LEAD

West Enders Capture Game From Park Pointers in Easy Style.

Victory Gives Them First Place in Hockey League Standing.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Adams	3	1	.750
Big Duluths	2	1	.666
Kodahpas	2	1	.666
Fairmonts	1	2	.333
Park Points	0	3	.000

Easily defeating the Park Point hockey team by the overwhelming score of 11 to 0, the strong Adams aggregation went into the lead in the city league last evening, passing their old-time rivals, the Big Duluths, and vindicating the opinion of those who have from the first of the season picked the Adams as one of the very strongest of the city league teams.

Lack of any semblance of team work was largely responsible for the poor showing of the boys from the sand strip, but it must also be remembered that most of the players on the Park Point team are new to the game and are not as yet familiar with its fine points.

Soft ice made brilliant playing on the part of any player next to impossible. Under the circumstances the Adams showed up well and some of the individual playing was of the best. This team has shown a consistent improvement since the first of the season, and at the present stage of the league race looks like a promising candidate for first honors.

Alder scored four goals; Andy Grenner, three; brother Helmer, two; and Arnold Olsen, two.

The lineup:

Adams.	Position.	Park Point.
A. Olsen	c.	Gillis
R. Alder	r.w.	Roberts
Helmer Grenner	l.w.	Roberts
A. Grenner	r.	Fisher
Billy Olsen	c.p.	Gude

CORNELL WILL MEET MICHIGAN AT FOOTBALL.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 26.—The athletic management of Cornell university announces the conclusion of a two-year football arrangement between Cornell and the University of Michigan. The Michigan game, one with Chicago university and one with the University of Pennsylvania will probably be the full extent of Cornell's participation in big contests next fall.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB TO MEET

Dinner and Discussion of Good Roads at Commercial Club.

The Duluth Automobile club will hold a dinner and business meeting tonight at the Spalding hotel.

The dinner will be at 6:30 and will be followed by reports by the committees appointed by the president after the last meeting, which was held at the Commercial club about two months ago.

The meeting, it is expected, will be the largest ever held by the club. At the last dinner there were 200 present, and at least 250 are expected to be present tonight.

There is much to come up for consideration that will be of interest to every one who uses the roads about Duluth. The question of section work on the roads will be discussed along with many other features, such as the placing of sign boards and other improvements.

Notices have been sent out by the president, Howard T. Abbott, and a great many have notified the committee that they will be on hand.

This is a most important meeting of the club, and all interested in good roads are not only invited but urged to attend.

LAMY AND SHEELER WIN SKATING HONORS.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Edmund Lamy of Saranac Lake and Sheeler of Montreal won the feature races of the opening day of the international amateur skating tournament here yesterday. Lamy won the half-mile and mile events and Wheeler the two-mile race. Fancy skating by Miss Cummings of Minneapolis and Kathleen Pope of New York, were the features between the races.

CHICAGO MAN LEADS IN CHESS TOURNAMENT.

New York, Jan. 26.—Oscar Chajes of Chicago, by defeating Smith of Brooklyn, tallied his fourth straight win yesterday in the national chess masters' tournament, and is now in first place. He won in thirty-six moves. Thirteen players are competing in the tournament.

ST. PAUL HOCKEY TEAM WINS FROM CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 26.—The Phoenix Hockey club of St. Paul defeated the Cleveland team here last evening in a whirlwind contest which teemed with brilliant plays. The score was 3 to 2. Leonard of the Phoenix team was benched during a greater part of the contest because of fouls. He shot two of St. Paul's goals, both from the center of the rink.

THE FIRESIDE CLARION

EXTRA — "Oh wad some power the pittie gie us to see oursel's as others see us."—Burns. — EXTRA

EDITOR'S NOTE—Issued every once in a while at The Herald office for the benefit of curlers only.

When Alex Graham and Dr. Catterson conspire to win a curling game they usually do it even though the other half of the rink falls down most miserably.

The explanation by Catterson is that both he and Graham are both such

ALEXANDER GRAHAM,
The Most Polite Curler in the Club.

good curlers that only four stones are needed in almost any game.

Both the doctor and Graham have conspired to win a great many games this year. Once they conspired against The Herald rink—a rink that started out under the most favorable conditions and with a bright and rosy future within easy sight—but, alas, the four pencil pushers are away in the rear watching the others grab the jewelry. Anyway, it was this rink that pushed the newspaper gang off on their long slide.

But this is away from the subject. We started to talk about Graham. There is nothing crude about Graham's work as either a third man or a skip. He does both equally well. If not the best curler, he is at least, the most polite man in the club.

BONSPIEL STYLE MAKES FEWER GAMES.

It is probable that next year more of the local events at the Duluth Curling club will be played off squad style.

The events are being played off bonspiel style this year and some state that there are not nearly enough games. Last year and the year before, there were so many events that for a time each year it looked as though they would remain unfinished at the end of the season. Then, there was the Manley-McLennan trophy to play down for last year. This year Superior captured it, and that makes one less event at the Duluth club.

Next year it is thought a part of the events will be played bonspiel and part squad style. This will make more games and keep the curlers busier throughout the season. The events are going off with a snap and the only complaint is that they are going off too quickly with not enough chance to play.

Some like the system as it gives them more of a chance to play practice games. The latter is being discussed informally by the members of the club.

It was only because in other years the events came so nearly remaining unfinished, that the committee determined to try the bonspiel style this year.

Central and Normal.

Friday evening the crack Central high school basket ball team will meet the Superior normal school five. The game will be played in the new gymnasium of the school and is expected to be one of the fastest exhibitions of the game played here the present season. The normal team is strong and will give Central a hard contest.

McGinley Gets Decision.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 26.—Steve McGinley of Molino, Ill., won the decision over Freddie Hicks of Milwaukee, after eight rounds of a one-sided bout before the National Athletic club last night.

WILL INVITE PRESIDENT.

Chief Executive Asked to Attend Houghton College Anniversary.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the hopes of President F. W. McNair of the Michigan College of Mines, now in Washington, are realized, President William H. Taft will be the guest of honor at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Michigan College of Mines, which will be celebrated next August.

President McNair left for Washington last week. At that time he would not divulge the nature of his mission. This week he held a conference with Hon. H. O. Young of Ishpeming, and it was decided that an interview between the professor from Houghton and the president would be arranged. When the professor goes to the White House he will be backed by Mr. Young, Senator W. A. Smith and Senator-elect C. W. Townsend, and if necessary will ask the entire Michigan delegation to support him in his request. That the president will accede to the local man's entreaties is thought certain.

If President Taft decides to come to Houghton an elaborate program in his honor will be arranged and the event will be a long remembered one in Houghton and the Copper country.

Notice is hereby given, That there has been filed of record in my office a petition for the vacation of the alley in Block 7, Highland Park Division of Duluth.

The object of the proposed vacation is to allow the property owners to improve the block as one tract.

Said petition will be heard and considered by the Committee of the Common Council on Streets, Alleys and Sidewalks, on Monday, March 6, 1911, in the City Clerk's office in the City Hall in the City of Duluth, at 3:30 o'clock P. M., at which time and place said committee will hear and consider the testimony and evidence on the part of parties interested.

C. S. PALMER,
City Clerk.
D. H., Jan. 26, Feb. 2, 9, 16, 1911. D 364.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED VACATION—
Notice is hereby given, that there has been filed of record in my office a petition for the vacation of the old County Road in the west half of the southeast quarter of Section 12, township 50 north, range 14 west of the Fourth Principal Meridian, according to the United States Government survey thereof, which road is more particularly described as follows:

The center line thereof is a prolongation of the center line of Thirty-sixth Avenue East in the city of Duluth, in the same straight line from a monument at a point at the intersection of said avenue with the southerly side line of London Road in said city to a point upon said tract of land twenty-three hundred nineteen and five-tenths feet distant; thence five hundred feet north thirty-two degrees, thirty-eight minutes west to a point; thence two hundred feet north, four degrees thirty-two minutes west to a point; thence in a straight line north, three degrees, fifty minutes west eight hundred thirty-five feet to a point; thence in a straight line seven hundred forty-five feet north, thirty-four degrees, ten minutes west to a point; thence in a straight line four hundred sixty feet north, three degrees fifteen minutes east to a point.

The tract above mentioned has been platted and the plat has been duly approved, accepted and filed in the office of the Register of Titles, St. Louis County, Minnesota, and upon this plat has been designated a street in lieu of the one sought to be vacated. The street which has been provided is more convenient for the public use in that it conforms better to the topography of the tract of land and the grade of said street so provided is much easier and more convenient for the travel of the public.

Said petition will be heard and considered by the Committee of the Common Council on Streets, Alleys and Sidewalks, on Monday, March 6, 1911, in the City Clerk's office in the City Hall in the City of Duluth, at 3:30 o'clock P. M., at which time and place said committee will hear the testimony and evidence on the part of parties interested.

Whereas, by the provisions of Chapter 253 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year 1903, railroad companies are required to pay to the state 4 per cent of their gross earnings in lieu of all taxes and assessments, and by provision of Article 4 of the constitution of the state any law providing for the repeal or amendment of such law shall be submitted to the vote of the people of the state; and

Whereas, there have been submitted to the present legislature two bills for an increase of such gross earnings from 4 to 5 per cent; and

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

May Option Has Fractional Loss on Bearish Reports.

Heavy Receipts in Minneapolis—Quiet Market in Flax.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 26.—Wheat lost ⅛c in Duluth today, while other American markets showed a loss of about the same, the decline in Chicago being ⅛c on the May option. Heavy receipts in Minneapolis, a weakness in the cables and bear news from the Southwest were responsible for the decline.

The president's message on reciprocity, which was expected before the close of the market today, was awaited with considerable interest in Duluth, but it did not arrive.

Receipts in Minneapolis this week have been exceptionally heavy, 350 cars being reported today as compared to 295 a year ago. Stocks in Minneapolis have increased 400,000 bu in five days. Argentine wheat shipments this week are estimated at 2,800,000 bu, against 1,264,000 bu last week and 952,000 bu a year ago. Corn shipments are estimated at 340,000 bu, against 586,000 bu last week and 358,000 bu a year ago. In Roumania the corn crop for 1910 is officially placed at 108,800,000 bu, against 96,000,000 bu, a preliminary estimate of Oct. 21. Last year the official yield was placed at 72,000,000 bu.

The grain cables today were ⅜c to ⅝c lower on large estimates of Argentine shipments and free selling of March wheat.

Reports from the Southwest continue to come in showing that conditions are favorable for a large crop of winter wheat and the bears are using the reports to back up their arguments.

There was little trading in the local market, the weakness here being largely a reflection of the weakness in other markets. The trades were mostly of the scalping variety and the range of the market was only ½c all day, although the opening was weak, ⅛c under yesterday's close.

Flax was unusually quiet in Duluth today and had no range, the opening and close being the same as yesterday's close.

Cash sales were a little lighter than for the other days this week.

May wheat opened ⅛c off at $1.06¼, fell off to $1.06, advanced to $1.06⅝, fell off again to $1.06⅛, advanced to $1.06½ and dropped off to $1.06¼ at the close. July wheat closed ⅛c off at $1.06⅞. May flax opened unchanged at $2.69 and closed at that figure.

Oats were ⅜c off and rye and barley were unchanged. Durum was ⅜c off and cash wheat held at 1c under May.

Cash Sales Thursday.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market displayed a steady undertone at the opening, stimulated by the firmness in Winnipeg, strength in America and the steadiness in Buenos Ayres at the close, and values here were unchanged to ⅛d lower. Following the opening there was realizing in March, and this month declined ⅝d, with May irregular and generally more steady and ¼d lower. Selling was in the way of profit-taking on the forecast of larger shipments from Argentina and the continued freer Australian and Russian offers, with the heaviness shown in parcels at the opening. The English provincial markets were lower and cargoes were more freely offered, with a demand from the continent. At midday the market was easy and ⅜@⅝d lower than yesterday.

"The corn market opened ⅛d higher and later advanced a further ⅛d for Plata grade on Argentine forecast for the week, these offsetting the weakness in Buenos Ayres at the close. The American grade was firmly held on the lighter American offers."

"Sell this wheat," was the keynote of a message B. E. Baker received today from a Duluth man, who is at Lincoln, Neb. "The head of the Nebraska state agricultural board tells me that wheat is normal on high ground and in southeastern, central and southern portions wheat needs moisture, but can go some time without it. Plenty of moisture in the northern half of the state, which is snow covered. Cold spell did not hurt wheat so far as can be determined, twelve rural members of the state legislature tell me. Government agent said he reported condition of 80 per cent for Central Nebraska as of Jan. 1, compared with 70 per cent a year ago. He thinks this figure is still good. The farmers are not alarmed. Have talked with more than 100 in all parts of the state by telephone. Bankers say the same. It is raining and snowing in the western part of the state."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Argentine Shipments and Liverpool Influence Force Wheat Down.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Big Argentine shipments were influential today in forcing down the price of wheat. Liverpool, too, reported from realizing of profits therein the congested March delivery, and told of liberal Russian offerings. It was also stated that provincial markets in England seemed depressed. The shipments from Argentine were estimated at 2,800,000 bu against 952,000 bu a year ago. Cash demand on the American side of the Atlantic continued slow. Opening figures were ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c off. May started at 98½c to 98¾c, showing the extreme variation of the market as a whole. A descent to 98⅜c followed.

Huge increase of the estimated yield in Roumania weakened corn. May opened a sixteenth lower to ⅛c higher at 50½@50⅝c to 50¾ and fell to 50⅛@50¼c.

The oats market was neglected and though firm at the outset, eased off with other grain. May started unchanged at 34⅜c, touched 34¾@34⅞c and declined to 34⅝c.

Provisions became strong because of a smaller run of hogs. First sales were 2½c to 10c up with May options at $18.37½ to $18.40 for pork, $9.82½ for lard and $9.85 for ribs.

PHILIPPINE FOREST TRAGEDY.

Manila Times: A remarkable natural history group has been presented Governor-General Forbes by Governor Callles of La Laguna. It consists of a doe in the grip of a huge boa constrictor, a buck and a fawn and its history makes a thrilling hunting tale. Some weeks ago Governor Callles went deer hunting in the mountains of La Laguna His beaters and dogs located a doe and began following her through the timber.

Suddenly one of the dogs made a great outcry, and hurrying forward the governor found another hunter. It person of a huge boa constrictor. It had fallen upon the doe and encircling its body had taken a hitch around the trunk of a sturdy tree and was crushing it to death.

The game dog had charged in but the snake pinned it against a log with its tail and would speedily have dispatched it. Callles closed in and with a well directed shot to the neck killed the constrictor.

The doe was dead when the hunters disentangled it from the coils of the huge snake.

The fawn was found hidden in some brush and a little later the buck was located and shot. The constrictor measured twenty-one feet in length and its body is very large. The buck and doe are also large specimens and the group is a striking one.

SARDINE BAIT.

Cosmos: French sardine fishers use as bait the roes and other waste products of the Norwegian cod fisheries. This bait is expensive and its price is continually rising owing to the increasing demand. An artificial bait, which is much cheaper, has recently been employed, but with only partial success, as it sinks too quickly and often lures the sardines downward instead of drawing them up into the nets.

Attempts are now being made to remedy this defect. The success of these attempts would bring joy to the fishermen, but not to the dealers in Norwegian bait, who enjoy a very lucrative monopoly. The question is one of burning interest and has nearly led to open war between fisherman and bait dealers on the French coasts.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Sags Early Under Selling But Tends Higher at Close.

Rise in Bethlehem Steel Owing to Large Orders for Rails.

New York, Jan. 25.—Business was light and price changes were unimportant at the opening of the stock market today. Northern Pacific and Lehigh Valley were strong with an advance of ⅝ each. American Locomotive gained ¾ and Reading, United States Steel and Union Pacific advanced fractionally. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis opened a point off and some heaviness was shown by Peoples' Gas and Virginia-Carolina Chemical.

Selling orders were distributed after the opening and the market sagged. Reading, against which the pressure was heaviest, receded a point. Supporting orders checked the downward movement and prices rallied with the Harriman stocks. Reading, Atchison and United States Steel selling ½ to ⅞ above yesterday's close. Central Leather lost 1.

The stock market made no important response to the reduction of the Bank of England discount rate. Trading was dull throughout the morning at fractional advances following the early decline and the undertone was firm. The Marriman stocks were strong in spite of a revival of the reports of an impending decision affecting those issues. Some significance was attached to the firmness of Southern Pacific and New York Central in view of the belief that both roads are soon to announce important financing. Operations in the second hour were on a diminishing scale with prices ruling a trifle below the earlier high figures. Bonds were steady.

The market closed firm. St. Paul extended its rise to a point after the declaration of the regular semi-annual dividend. Increased activity and a gain of 3 points in Bethlehem Steel were due to satisfaction over the recent orders for rails placed with the company. The rest of the list was featureless but tended higher.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

CRYING NEED.

Chicago News: "What this country needs," remarked the man who smelled of bay rum and talcum powder, "is a machine that will shave a man and cut his hair in the twinkling of an eye. Why do so many men wear unsightly whiskers and tangled locks? It is because a visit to the barber shop requires such an outlay of time and often of money. If a man could drop a nickel into the slot of a back-action haircutting machine and have his head trimmed and his galways pruned at one operation there wouldn't be 5 cents' worth of superfluous hair in this country.

"I have had the same barber for fifteen years and he is an ornament to his profession. He is polite and agreeable and has a soft, soothing voice that puts a man to sleep. When he is done shaving me he always has to pour cold water down my back to waken me, for I am a sound sleeper. His razors always are sharper than a serpent's tooth, and all his implements are in the best of order, and he is, taking him by and large and pro and con, the most satisfactory tonsorial artist I ever saw.

"Yet, in spite of all this, I always have to exercise great self-control to keep from punching his head when I am ready to leave his shop. I have told him a thousand times that I don't want to be powdered and greased and made as fragrant as a corner drug store. If I could only keep awake when I sit in his chair I might prevent him from anointing me with his unguents and things, but he always begins cooing in his soft, sweet voice, as soon as he has the coat of lather applied, and the first thing I know I am sound asleep and dreaming that I'm falling from an airship. Then when I wake it's always the same. He has me greased and powdered and looking like a bughouse bridegroom."

"I wish I had your luck," remarked the man with the luminous nose. "If I could sleep in a barber's chair I wouldn't care a continental what the tonsorial artist did to me. But tired nature's sweet restorer always balks when I need her most, and I am never more wide awake than when my whiskers are being hewed off. I also have a favorite barber. He is a regular Old Dog Tray. He is faithful, he is kind, and I'll never, never find a better barber; but he has an unconquerable weakness for wanting to work off various kinds of dope that I have no use for.

"You see what a head of hair I have? It is thick enough to be used for a doormat. Well, that barber is always trying to interest me in a hair tonic that he keeps on tap. He has told me the history of that hair tonic every other day for seven years. It was invented by the seven Northerland brothers, who are celebrated all over the world for the luxuriance of their whiskers. They used to appear in museums and side shows, exhibiting their spinach. I remember them quite well. The oldest one had chin whiskers about fourteen feet long, and he wound them on a spool that worked in brackets, like a shade roller. My barber seems to think that it should be the chief end of every man to wind up his whiskers on a shade roller, and so he tries to sell me that hair tonic every time I go in. He holds the bottle in front of me and fairly weeps and wrings his hands, he is so anxious.

"Every morning, first thing after I get up, I wash my head thoroughly. It refreshes me and seems to get my faculties in shape for the day's strain. Well, that barber always insists that my head needs washing the worst way. I have told him millions of times that I run my head through a washing machine and wringer every morning, but that fact makes no impression upon him. He smiles scornfully as much as to say that I am given to hallucinations, and begins to tell me how much better and brighter I'd feel if I'd let him go ahead. I agree with you that a nickel-in-the-slot machine of the sort you suggest would be a great convenience."

HER SICK DOG.

Chicago News: "Doctor, I want you to look at my dear precious Skye terrier and see if you can diagnose his sickness," said Mrs. Griggs.

"Do you mean to tell me, Mrs. Griggs," asked the eminent physician, with indignation, "that you summoned me to your house to prescribe for a dog?"

"Why, yes, doctor. There's no harm in that, is there? If it was just an ordinary common dog, of course, it would be different, and I shouldn't blame you for feeling angry, but my dear little dog is a prize winner at I don't know how many bench shows. Perhaps you don't know that he was imported from England and that his relatives are owned by the British nobility. His full brother is owned by the duchess of Dukington and several of his cousins and stepsisters are in the king's palace."

"I don't care whose palace they are in; I'm not a dog doctor," remarked the eminent physician, edging his way toward the door.

"I'll think you're real mean if you go away without looking at my poor dog," said the dog's owner.

"Why don't you call in a horse doctor" demanded the physician.

"Because my dog isn't a horse. You might as well ask me why I don't call in a plumber or a house mover. And only yesterday I was praising you to the skies at the woman's club meeting. Mrs. Beemer was running you down the worst I ever heard, saying that you didn't know a boil from a headache, and she told how you doctored her poor husband for tonsilitis when what he was really suffering from lumbago—"

"Mrs. Beemer said that, did she?" inquired the eminent physician, wiping cold perspiration from his forehead and laying his hat on a chair.

"Yes, she said that and a good deal worse, but that was nothing to what Mrs. Youngblood said. And I stood up for you and took your part as though you were my own brother. I said I wouldn't have any other doctor, even if I had to send a thousand miles for you, and now see how you treat me the first time I send for you! My poor afflicted dog is suffering agonies, and yet you tell me to call in a piano tuner!"

"Tell me what Mrs. Youngblood said," insisted the eminent physician.

"It doesn't make any difference what she said, but I'm inclined to think that every word of it was true. A medical man who will stand and scoff at a sorrowing woman, and tell her to hire a well digger to cure her suffering pet dog is capable of infamy. You don't seem to realize that my dog's relatives are popular with the crowned heads of Europe. My husband has a portrait of Czar Nicholas, in which he is holding Fido's grand-uncle on his knee. And, anyhow, I don't see why a doctor should hesitate to treat a refined and beautiful dog, and especially when it has the papers showing that its ancestors came over in the Mayflower.

"I feel sure his sickness was caused by eating too many canned shrimps. My husband insisted that the dog needed a brain food, and he read something to the effect that shrimps are excellent that way, so he fed Fido a whole can at once, all covered with mayonnaise dressing, and that combination is too rich for any delicate dog's stomach. If you would see him, and feel his pulse, and look at his tongue, I know very well you could prescribe something that would do him good."

"I may look at your dog, although it is against all the ethics of my profession, if you will tell me what Mrs. Youngblood said."

"I'm afraid I've forgotten, doctor, but it was something awful, I remember that. It was something about you wearing a red necktie with a Prince Albert coat and silk hat. Now, come this way and look at Fido. He's lying in his cradle in the next room."

THE MODERN SPORTSWOMAN.

Lady Violet Greville in London Chronicle: The active participation in field sports by women marks a modern development. Fifty years ago no woman would have handled a gun, much less a rifle, or would have dared to beard a lion or a tiger in the field, or have dreamed of a day on the moors all to herself or taken a hunting box with a string of hunters for the winter. Yet women do all these things now. Sport for women is catered for as amply as sport for men; ladies' golf links, championships, rifle clubs and tennis tournaments flourish amazingly.

The number of women in the hunting field increases every year, and many of these Dianas ride as hard as men. Lately they have taken to riding astride and wearing neat breeches and boots, so that it is difficult to distinguish the sexes on horseback, and certainly the thin young girl, looking just like a boy, is a very attractive figure, but she is essentially modern. The girl who walks the moors all day, who climbs hills and brings down her stag with an unerring rifle is rarer, but she exists. Salmon and trout fishing rank next in popular esteem.

Curiously enough, this love, this craze for sport in women synchronizes with the possible extinction of sport, for already it is difficult to keep up hunt subscriptions, barbed wire renders riding unpleasant if not dangerous and breaking up of large estates will soon make game preserving impossible. Sport will be confined to fishing or to grouse shooting over desolate and barren districts, where the heather flourishes and the ptarmigan breed. On these lonely hilltops wild birds will still be found when the rest of England is divided into allotments and building estates.

With the women who care for sport it is a very real and solid enthusiasm. They will follow their husbands in Africa in the pursuit of wild game, they will tramp the stubble and the turnip fields all day, they will flog the water unseasingly, they will crawl, scramble, creep, climb and lie motionless for hours on the chance of getting a stag.

In all sport there is a certain element of good fellowship and camaraderie which is exceedingly pleasant, and the friendships of the hunting field, for instance, are among the most enduring and delightful of memories. Even rivalry is good tempered, respect and admiration are experienced for those who are keen and skillful in the sport they prefer. It is a little strange to say the least of it that so manywomen should be taking up sport, rifle shooting and games at a time when the great mass of men go to look on at contests in which they themselves play no part and of which betting is one of the most objectionable features.

From real sport the element of money getting is entirely absent. Hunting, for instance, is the most democratic of pursuits; the nobleman mounted on his 300 guinea hunter, the doctor, the schoolboy, the farmer and the trainer, all are equal, all interested, all enthusiastic. People may hunt for various reasons, but to the expert majority it is the hounds working and the science of hunting that appeal most keenly. Women probably love the galloping, but it exhilarates and excites them, while their presence has almost entirely obliterated the use of bad language and hard swearing in the hunting field.

It would appear as though the masculine development of women, the sense of rebellion and revolt had driven them to enter the same sports as men, a tendency strongly developed in modern girl schools, where hockey, golf and cricket are more highly appreciated than the ladylike accomplishments and quiet study of our mothers. Needlework is at a discount, but the eye, the ear, the hand and the body are all trained in field sports, and the modern Diana, with her zest, her joie de vivre and her independence has apparently come to stay.

A UNIQUE TREE STATUTE.

New Jersey by her shade tree statute converted the rocky pioneer trail of the tree planter into a graded, progress- fostering roadway. The law provides for a shade tree commission of three freeholders, who shall serve without compensation. The advantages of this arrangement are not only obvious in prospect, but have been demonstrated in Newark and elsewhere. The status of street trees is raised, for they stand forth now before all the people as the special wards of a special municipal department specially created to protect them.

"The commission is not only warden of the older trees but also planter of the new," writes Carl Bannwart in the Survey. "Here in Newark, where the law has been in force six years, 17,000 young trees on 102 miles of streets have been set out. Picture this! One hundred and two miles of new plantings, adorning the streets, gladdening the eye, cooling and purifying the air and enhancing the city's beauty and wealth. There they stand and grow, increasing in stature and fulfilling the promise of their sapling days. Of course this increase in growth and beauty is not the result merely of 'time and elements,' for a tree commission is required to systematically mulch, trim, spray, fertilize and otherwise nurture its young."

COWS PUMPING DRINKING WATER.

Chamber's Journal: In the most outside Wells cathedral there is an arrangement whereby the swans, when hungry, may ring a bell and be supplied with food by the caretaker at the bishop's palace. An inventor in Kansas has hit upon the ingenious scheme of making cattle do their own pumping when they wish a drink of water. The path that leads up to the watering trough terminates in a treadmill, which is connected by suitable gearing to the pump. As the treadmill offers the only means of access to the trough, the animal is obliged to operate the pump while it is taking a drink. One of the advantages of this system is that each animal is assured of having fresh water to drink. A valve is provided which discharges the water automatically when the animal leaves the treadmill.

CONGDON'S RESOLUTION ON REAPPORTIONMENT PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Vote Was Overwhelming, Being 91 for and 19 Against.

Resolution Asking Congress to Oppose Reciprocity With Canada.

House Wrangles Over Employes and Squelching the Cities.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—The house this morning by the overwhelming vote of 91 to 19, passed Representative Congdon's joint resolution, reciting the Constitution's requirement that legislative representation shall be made on a basis of population, and providing that the senate shall not exceed 63 members nor the house 126 members in the reapportionment bills about to be framed.

Those voting against the resolution were: Christie, Clarke, Denser, Farley, Harding, Herzberg, Hoffman, Hurley, Just, Kelly, Lindberg, Moriarity, Nygren, Papke, Peters, Robinson,

STRONGLY OPPOSE STEENERSON BILL

Department of Interior and Bureau of Indian Affairs Against It.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The department of the interior and the bureau of Indian affairs are strongly opposed to the Steenerson bill for a commission to make a new roll of Chippewa Indians. The bill was under consideration today by the full committee, but adjournment was taken until 3 o'clock in order to give Commissioner Valentine a chance to be heard.

CHINK DIED FROM NATURAL CAUSES

Residents Thought He Was Killed By Police and Began Rioting.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The Chinese coolie, whose death was suspected to have been caused by violence and which was the direct cause of the riots at Hankow on Sunday, died from natural causes, according to the finding of the inquest held by the Chinese officials over the body. This fact has been reported to the state department in a cablegram from American Consul-General Mosher at Hankow. Chinese residents suspected the coolie had been killed by the police. This led to the riots which resulted in the death of seven persons and the wounding of thirty.

Cashman Distance Tariff Bill Is Dissected By Its Opponents.

Duluth and Twin City Commercial Interests Present Arguments.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

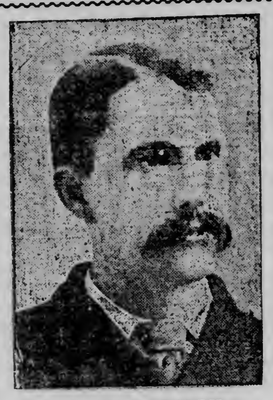

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opposition to the Cashman distance tariff bill had its innings yesterday afternoon before the senate committee on railroads, when representatives of the Duluth and Twin City commercial interests and of the railroads appeared before the committee to show the other side of the proposition, and when it was made to appear that the country, which is supposed to benefit chiefly by the Cashman measure, will present arguments in opposition to it.

Duluth was represented by G. Roy Hall, traffic expert of the Commercial club, and by C. R. Rust of the Rust-Parker-Martin company, C. F. Rowe of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, H. A. Earnshaw of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, and F. O. Davison of the Kelly-How-Thomson company.

The hearing was held in the senate chamber, which was comfortably packed by the members of the committee, by interested members of both houses,

CHARGES TO BE PROBED

Searching Inquiry Into Accusations Against State Drainage Engineers.

Committee of Five to Be Appointed By the House.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of a meeting of the house drainage committee to be held this afternoon, the following resolution will be offered in the house, and it will result in going to the bottom of the rumors and charges affecting the conduct of the state's drainage work:

"Whereas, charges and accusations have been made to the house committee on drainage of misconduct, dishonesty, mismanagement and inefficiency of the state drainage engineer, in relation to his duties appertaining to the construction of state drainage ditches, or ditches constructed for drainage purposes in which the state is either directly or indirectly interested or concerned, involving the laying out, the construction, the certification for acceptances, and divers and various other things necessarily related to the laying out of and the construction of, the certifications relative to the con-

PRISON OR FREEDOM

Supreme Court Takes Up Case of National Labor Leaders.

Under Sentence of District Court to Serve Time in Jail.

Washington, Jan. 27.—One of the most spectacular legal battles ever waged between capital and organized labor reached its final stages today, when the supreme court of the United States took up for oral argument the famous litigation by the Bucks Stove & Range company of St. Louis, Mo., against the American Federation of Labor.

The contending forces started their fight to determine the legality of the "boycott." That was in the supreme court of the District of Columbia. But today, when the contest was renewed before the supreme court of the United States, the main issue had been crowded out of the limelight by an incidental one. Now the burning issue is whether the principal officials of the American Federation of Labor are to go to jail on charges of contempt of court.

Because they failed to obey the injunction issued by the district supreme court in the original case, Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation, is under sentence to serve twelve months in jail; John Mitchell, vice president of the Federation, to serve nine months; and Frank Morrison, its secretary, to serve six months.

Fighting for the American Federation of Labor and its officials are Alton B. Parker, former Democratic presidential candidate; Jackson H. Ralston, Frederick L. Siddons, William E. Richardson and John T. Walker. Opposed to them as the representatives of the Bucks Stove & Range company are Daniel Davenport and J. J. Darlington.

COUNTY JAIL WILL BE CONDEMNED BY STATE INSPECTOR

Tells County Commissioners They Must Act Without Further Delay.

Board Has Until Feb. 7 Only to Decide Upon Plans.

Institution Is Not Fit for a Dog, Says Commissioner.

Unless the county commissioners take action at the next meeting of the board and decide what is to be done regarding the condition of the local jail, L. G. Foley, an employe of the state board of control and inspector of jails, will order the institution closed.

Mr. Foley has been in the city and has inspected the jail with a committee from the board of county commissioners. After looking over the institution from top to bottom, he states that the board not only must take action but that work on a new jail or the remodeling of the old, must begin at once.

He had just come to Duluth from Carlton where he closed the county jail at that place. He stated that the Duluth jail was in as bad shape as any county institution of the kind that he has ever visited. After the investigation he told the committee members that it would be necessary for them to get to work very soon or he would see that the jail was closed.

The next meeting of the board is on Feb. 7. The members have until that time to talk the matter over informally between themselves, and decide as to what will be done. As far as can be learned they are about equally divided between the proposition of building a new jail and making over the old one so that it will do temporarily.

As is well known, the county's hands are badly tied. The county is holding

SPANIARDS ARE MUCH INTERESTED

Closely Watching Investigation on the Wrecked Battleship Maine.

Madrid, Jan. 27.—The newspapers are giving much space to dispatches from the United States describing the investigations incident to the raising of the wrecked battleship Maine in Havana harbor. They appear peculiarly interested in anything in the way of evidence that the warship was lost as the result of an explosion from within. Moderate comments are made on the injustice of the Spanish-American war.

AIMS BLOW AT ENEMIES

Ballinger Says a Good Man Cannot Be Pulled Down.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 27. — Aiming a blow at his enemies and declaring that the endeavor of many earnest advocates of reform and progress of the present day seemed to be to haul everything out by the roots and keep the roots exposed, Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, in a speech before the banquet of the alumni of Williams college here last night emphasized the point that a good man could not be pulled down and that the work of the heads and hands of good men would be steadier because of the shocks of battle.

"I hear I have enemies in Boston," said Secretary Ballinger. "Well, no matter, they, like my other enemies

North Dakota to Create Board for Advertising the State.

Single Board of Control for the Normal School Proposed.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Control of immigration under the direction of a board to be composed of the governor, lieutenant governor and the secretary of state is proposed in a bill that has been introduced in the senate by H. H. Steele of Renville county. The duties of the board are to collect and arrange statistics and other information relative to the lands and general special resources of the state and the advantages of the state as a place of residence and opportunities for persons to engage in agricultural, commercial and manufacturing pursuits and spreading this knowledge throughout the world by correspondence, by messengers and public lectures and by all forms of legitimate advertising and by exhibits at fairs and expositions in and out of the state. A report of the board's activities to the assembly is to be made every two years.

THREE DAYS' TRUCE IN N. Y.

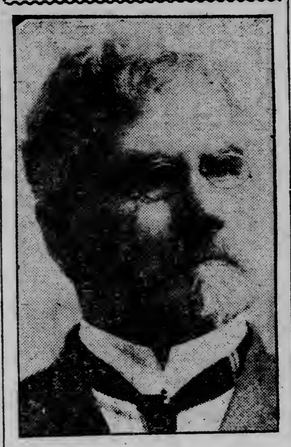

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Another three days' truce has been declared in the battle to elect a United States senator. Leaders of both houses of the legislature said there would be no quorum of the joint assembly today.

Interest in the senatorship contest perceptibly waned here today on account of the general understanding that nothing would be done before next week. Many of the legislators went home last night after arranging the usual pairs—a Republican pairing with a supporter of William F. Sheehan—and others are preparing to go after the ballot at noon today.

If the deadlock lasts another week the members may be relieved of the necessity of casting a formal and useless ballot on Saturday without the presence of the quorum required for elections.

The ninth joint ballot for the United States senatorship today was declared "no choice," owing to the absence of a quorum.

SILENT ON RECIPROCITY

Duluth Jobbers Disinclined to Discuss Treaty With Canada.

Manufacturers Pleased, But the Lumbermen Are Indifferent.

Duluth manufacturers and jobbers are more or less in doubt as to what will be the ultimate effects of the reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States, so far as those effects bear upon the industrial and commercial interests of this part of the country. So far as the lumber industry is concerned, it is held that reciprocity will be without effect on that business. Generally the sentiment is one of satisfaction and gratification, but many big business men are reluctant to discuss the proposition at this time. There is a question in their minds whether reciprocity will work out to the advantage of the farming communities and the smaller centers of population.

JOHNSON ON THE STAND

Murder Case Will Also Go to the Jury Before Night.

Youthful Prisoner Makes a Good Witness and Tells Story Freely.

Before court adjourns tonight the fate of Algot Johnson, the boy bandit, who with Charles Melodrowski, held up the night clerk at the Hotel McKay and escaped from a street car after Officer Chesmore, who had the lads under arrest, had been shot, will be in the hands of the jury.

On the stand in his own behalf, Johnson was bright, quick and alert. He told, seemingly, a straight forward story of the events leading up to the robbery and the shooting.

He told how he had been discharged from the service of the hotel and how Melodrowski had secured his job. He denied ever having talked about going to Wyoming or Texas to lead a Wild West life. He said that one night Melodrowski had been to a moving picture show and on returning home had talked about what a fine thing it would be to lead a wild life in the Wild West. Johnson said that he had talked some about going to Texas, but that he was going there to work on a fruit ranch, owned by a man named Hall, who had promised him a job.

He told how when both of them were out of work he asked Melodrowski what they were going to do about money to live on. Melodrowski then told him that every night the proprietor of the barber shop brought a big box loaded with money up to the hotel clerk for safe keeping. Melodrowski suggested that it would be easy to get it and that the contents would keep them in ease for many months.

Buy Gun for Johnson.

Johnson said that he had no money. Melodrowski had been paid. The

DULUTH TO BE GAINER

Great Increase in Volume of Grain Handled Here Is Expected.

American Farmer Will Not Be Badly Hurt By Canadian Wheat.

Duluth to Be the Gateway of Both Canadian and American Northwest.

WOULD MAKE DULUTH IMPERIAL MISTRESS OF THIRD OF CONTINENT.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative C. B. Miller, when asked today as to his attitude toward the reciprocity trade arrangement between the United States and Canada, said: "A tariff wall preventing free trade relations between different sections of practically the same natural area is uneconomic in theory and has ever been found injurious in practice. Nature designed Canada and the United States to be complements and supplements of each other. Appropriate trade reciprocity with Canada would, I believe, prove of greater advantage to the United States than to our neighbor. Such conditions would prove particularly beneficial to Minnesota, opening up a great area for her products, and our farming industry would in the long run be benefited rather than injured. It would make Duluth the imperial mistress of a third of our continent."

The broadening of the scope of the Duluth grain market, a great increase in the volume of grain passing through the Duluth elevators, the building up of the business of the mills in the Northwest so that their territory may be expanded and a general reduction in the cost of living will be the effects of the proposed free admission of grain under the Canadian reciprocity treaty, if it is ratified by congress, in the opinion of members of the Duluth board of trade.

Officers and members of the Duluth board believe that the treaty should Schenk Trial Too Much for the Judge and Prosecutor.

Jury Said to Have Stood Eleven for Woman's Acquittal.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 27.—Worn with the worry and work of the Schenk trial, Judge Jordan did not reach the court house this morning until late and the prosecutor and counsel for the defense had not yet appeared. The question of bail for Mrs. Schenk was to be taken up. Prosecutor Handlan who says he will fight any reduction of the $10.00 bail, is indisposed at his home.

Mrs. Schenk, however, takes a more hopeful view of the situation. "I received the keys to my house on the island this morning," she said at her cell in the tower. "In spite of all that has been said about divorce, I expect John, the children and myself will be together again."

Eleven For Acquittal.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 27.—After struggling for more than twenty-four hours, with the mass of technical and sensational testimony, the jury in the case of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, charged with poisoning her husband, John O. Schenk, announced late yesterday that they could not reach a verdict. Mrs. Schenk is again in jail.

The final vote stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction.

CLOQUET NEWS NOTES.

Old Resident Will Build Fine Home in Minneapolis.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rivord died quite suddenly Wednesday, and interment was made yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Fornance, for years a resident of this city, has purchased lots in Minneapolis, near Lake Harriet, and will erect thereon a fine modern residence. Mrs. Fornance is very well known both here and in Carlton, and conducted a millinery store in Cloquet in the early days of the town, and for a number of years.

T. H. Bertram has sold his restaurant on Arch street to D. S. Ridlington, the latter to take possession about the first of February. Mr. Ridlington was a sawyer in the mills here for several years, but has recently been working in Virginia, and is well known, his family having resided here for years. Mr. Bertram will move his family to Hill City, where he will go into business.

William Meyers had several toes amputated at the Cloquet hospital, a logging train at one of the camps cutting from Carlton backing onto his foot.

Felix Korpi was brought in from the camps Wednesday with a broken leg, a tree having fallen on him.

SCOTT IN THE FIELD

East End Man Files as Independent Candidate in First.

Saturday Will Be Last Opportunity for Voters to Register.

Z. D. Scott, one of the pioneer residents of the city, filed yesterday as an independent candidate for alderman in the First ward, opposing Frank L. Young, who filed as Republican candidate and was nominated at the primaries.

Mr. Scott is recognized as an able business man and will give Mr. Young a hard battle, despite his lateness in getting into the political arena of the First. He is well acquainted with the residents of the ward as well as its needs and would make a most efficient representative for that end of the city.

Z. D. SCOTT.

He is one of the owners of the Scott-Graff company.

The East enders take the stand that they should have a man in the council to succeed Alderman Watson S. Moore, who refused to be a candidate again. Alderman Wharton is a resident of Lakeside and they feel that one man from that end of the ward is sufficient. They state that Mr. Young resides at Woodland and that if he went to the council their end of the ward would not be represented among the city fathers.

Tomorrow is the last day of registration. Scarcely more than one-third of the voters of Duluth have entered their names on the rolls, the totals after the registration Tuesday being but 4,267. Duluth has about 12,000 voters in round numbers. Friends of the various candidates will make a determined effort to swell this total greatly tomorrow. Those who have not already registered or who fail to do so tomorrow will not be eligible to help elect an alderman from each ward, a city comptroller, a city treasurer and a judge of the municipal court. Several of the wards have interesting contests and it is expected that this will have an enlivening effect upon the registration. Thus far but very little interest has been shown in the coming city election, which will be held Feb. 7.

INCREASE IN TRADE OF UNITED STATES

Washington, Jan. 27.—Details of the trade of the United States for 1910, announced by the department of commerce and labor today show a slight increase in exports to Europe, a marked gain in those to North and South America, an increased total to Asia and Oceanica in combination, and a slight gain in the exports to Africa. On the import side the figures also indicate a gain for each of the grand divisions, except South America.

For the first time the exports to South America crossed the $100,000,000 line and are practically two and a half times those of a decade, being for 1910, $100,303,616 as against $41,248,051 in 1900.

The exports to the United Kingdom of $550,625,404 led the list of countries with which the United States is engaged in foreign trade; Germany was second with $258,307,490 and Canada third with $241,809,238, all of which are increases over 1900 figures.

The United Kingdom likewise led in the import trade to the United States with a total of $270,889,409, with Germany second, and Cuba third. The imports from Europe as a whole during the last decade showed a conspicuous increase, the total in 1900 being $441,610,461 as against $790,154,694.

TWO STEAMERS ASHORE IN FOG

New York, Jan. 27.—Information reached this city early today by wireless that two freight steamers, the Mohegan and the H. M. Whitney, are on the rocks somewhere near Throggs Neck, near the western end of Long Island sound.

The two captains report that they are apparently in no immediate danger and thus far sustained no serious damage. Tugs have been sent from this city to the steamers aid.

Efforts to float the Mohegan were successful and after several hours' detention, the steamer, with the aid of tugs, was pulled into deep water, where she was found to be practically undamaged. It was expected that she would proceed on her voyage as soon as the fog lifted. Neither the Mohegan nor the Whitney carried passengers.

Attempts to float the Whitney, it was hoped, would shortly prove effective.

The task of freeing the H. M. Whitney was somewhat harder than the work of floating the Mohegan but before 10 o'clock the Whitney was hauled safely off the shoal and proceeded for Boston under her own steam. She was apparently none the worse for her experience.

THREE CONVICTS ESCAPE OVER ICE

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 27.—All night search for the three convicts who escaped from Sing Sing prison last night and were believed to have made their way across the ice of the Hudson river, failed to reveal a trace of the fugitives.

Their escape was effected after a rehearsal of the prison orchestra, when Ralph Taylor, Charles McGinn and William Rush, instruments in hand, stole in to the courtyard passageway, beat down two guards with blows over the head with cornets and flutes wielded as weapons, and slipped through an open space in the iron palings by the riverside.

Rush was a life-term prisoner, having been sentenced in 1902 for murder in New York city. Ralph Taylor, known as the "silk hat burglar," was serving a 21-year term for burglary in Westchester county, and McGinn was serving a five-year burglary term.

TWO BROTHERS ARE ASSAULTED

Alleged to Have Been Badly Used By Three Hibbing Men Early Friday.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—An ax, some knives and a pistol were used in a scrimmage at No. 429 Cedar street early this morning that had serious results for Joe Adams and Wallenty Adams, brothers. One of them was removed to a hospital in an unconscious condition, being badly cut and bruised. The other was not quite as seriously injured.

Three men, alleged to have attacked the brothers were arrested. They gave the names of Robert Szweziireski, Peter Adomzrewski and Ignatz Adamzrewski, when arraigned before Judge Brady. They were held to the grand jury on an assault charge. One of them was able to furnish the $200 bail asked, but his companions were not as lucky and a deputy sheriff took them to Duluth this afternoon.

GROSS PROFITS OF $10,000,000

Made By Hamburg-American Steamship Company in 1910.

Hamburg, Jan. 27.—The annual report of the Hamburg-American Steamship company, made public today shows that gross profits for 1910 are $10,000,000. The directors propose a dividend of 8 per cent.

A total of $5,750,000 was written off or carried in the reserve. The liquid assets are $12,375,000.

The gross profits in 1909 were $8,000,000 and a dividend of 6 per cent was declared. About $5,000,000 was written off or carried in reserve and the liquid assets were $8,500,000. In 1908 the company had a profit of $3,950,000 but the dividend was passed.

COMMERCIAL CLUB MEETING IS ENDED

Work of the State Immigration Commission Is Commended.

St. Paul Minn., Jan. 27.—The Federated Commercial clubs of Minnesota yesterday afternooon closed their fourth annual meeting with the election of officers and the adoption of important resolutions. H. V. Eva of Duluth is again a member of the executive committee.

The convention commended the work of the state immigration commission and recommended an appropriation for its use. The unification of various state departments as suggested in the governor's message is also indorsed. The national corn exposition in 1913 is wanted in Minnesota, and the convention approves the united efforts of the commercial clubs of the state to secure it. The consolidated rural school is indorsed and is considered an effective method of making farms highly productive.

The convention was strong for the agricultural upbuilding of the state and recommended an agricultural building at the state fair with provisions for exhibits from the different counties. The clubs want the office of the immigration commissioner located in that building and a permanent exhibit maintained.

Frank T. Wilson of Stillwater, C. P. Craig of Duluth and J. J. Furlong of Austin were appointed as a committee to confer with Dean Woods, Governor Eberhart and legislators on the questions of an appropriation for agricultural extension. In every way the meeting was the biggest, best and most enthusiastic yet held by the clubs.

The meeting place of the next convention will be decided by the executiv committee.

Mr. Peterson, until the first of the year, was assistant attorney general of Minnesota.

DULUTH-SUPERIOR CO. ELECTS

New York, Jan. 27.—At the annual stockholders meeting of the Duluth-Superior Traction company, held in New Haven, Conn., the retiring directors were re-elected. The directors re-elected the same officers, but created another vice presidency and elected A. E. Ames of Toronto, who is largely interested in Twin City Rapid Transit, to the new office. The directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on preferred and 1¼ per cent on common, both payable April 1, to holders of record March 15. The annual report was not ready but will be mailed to stockholders as soon as possible.

President Goodrich says he is not disturbed by the announcement from Minneapolis of the filing of an opinion by City Attorney Fish regarding the right of the city council to impose a regulation upon the Twin City Rapid Transit company relative to the building of extensions in certain streets. Mr. Goodrich is still in New York.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Gertrude Elliott, in "The Dawn of A Tomorrow."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

Green Room Gossip.

One of the best attractions of the season at the Lyceum will be the engagement of Miss Gertrude Elliott in Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," which will open this evening. There will be a matinee and evening performance tomorrow.

Miss Elliott comes here acclaimed by Chicago, where she is playing this week, as one of the notable hits of the year. Her vivid personality greatly assists her.

Following is a criticism from a Chicago paper of last week:

"Her acting is marked by sincerity and eager earnestness and an interest which makes illusion easy. She is elfin in her gaiety and serious in her griefs. She lives the resolute little waif pictured in Mrs. Burnett's story. Her emotional abilities are splendidly displayed and she never overdoes it. Mrs. Burnett's play wears well. Her word painting of life in the London slubs is one of the most picturesque things upon the stage today. She makes life very real and very earnest, and yet to the plot there is just that leaven of comedy to prevent it from becoming a tax upon the emotions. Liebler & Co. have given Miss Elliott an unsually strong company which includes Fuller Mellish, Scott Gatti, Sydney Booth, Suzette Perry, Angela Ogden, Julia Blanc, Maud Nisell and a dozen and a half more of players of acknowledged reputation. The scenic equipment is particularly striking, especially the setting showing Apple Blossom court in the East end of London in the second act. The fog seems the genuine article and is one of the most perfect stage illusions ever perfected."

"It took me two years to teach my dog to write his name," said Mons. J. Helsey, who is at the Orpheum this week, presenting "Dick, the Canine Penman."

The dog, a little white French poodle, has caused no small amount of comment in Duluth this week by his remarkable tricks. He does problems in arithmetic, picking out the numbers which are the correct answers to problems propounded by the audience, and then draws several plain geometrical figures, writes his own name and draws a caricature of his owner.

Mr. Helsey, who is a native of Paris, states that he spent two years training the dog before he gave a performance in public with him.

"He is the most remarkably intelligent animal I have ever seen," said his owner, "and I have been training dogs for years. Dick is really a canine wonder, one dog in a million. I have another dog which I am training now, to take Dick's place in case any accident should happen to him, but I do not believe he will be the equal of Dick. He does not seem to be so alert mentally. There are some dogs which are much more alert mentally than others, just as some races of people are more alert than others. The French poodle, I think is the best dog for a trick dog. The collies are also very intelligent. Very often the thoroughbred dogs are not so easily taught as mongrels, and often you will get some mongrel cur that is better than any thoroughbred you can pick out. The bull dog—he is very stupid."

Mr. Helsey speaks but little English, and he talks of his training methods with reluctance.

The new bills of photoplay for the last half of the week at the Odeum and Lyric theaters are more than usually attractive.

"His Trust Fulfilled" at the Odeum, is a sequel to the pretty story presented last week, called "His Trust." It is a most appealing little story of how an old colored servitor provides for the widow and child of his former master. The other pictures show "The Girl of The West" and "Water Lilies." Miss Maddox is singing the illustrated song "Little Maid of Old Chicago."

At the Lyric the bill is largely comedy. The adventures of "Dusty Rhodes" are told in one very amusing film, entitled "Dusty Rhodes Takes a Flight." It is a fantastic adventure which a tramp has with an aeroplane, and it makes the audience wonder how the pictures are secured, almost as much as it amuses them.

Other films shown are, "The Twin Cinderellas," another comedy photoplay and "The Heart of An Indian Mother," a picture based on real events in an Indian woman's life, showing her gratitude for a white child's kindness.

WOMAN'S REALM.

The members of the Women's council and any other women who are interested in the question of the censorship of plays in Duluth, will meet Monday afternoon with the members of the city council for discussion of the subject.

The Women's council has been pushing this matter and urging that an ordinance be passed which will cover this subject. Much interest has been aroused through the efforts of the members.

A committee of members of the council known as the civic welfare committee, has had the matter under consideration for some time, and the women, together with a committee composed of prominent business men of the city who were interested, have been working to arouse the citizens on the subject and have some action taken. They have visited various places of entertainment including the moving picture theaters and vaudeville houses and have discussed the matter with the managers of these places.

Any women or men interested in the matter may attend the meeting, which will be held Monday afternoon in the council chambers of the city hall, for discussion and argument on the subject. The ordinance will be brought up at the regular meeting of the council on Monday night.

They are planning to make this function a very large one and most of the guests will dress in Colonial costume.

The ball is planned for the benefit of the maintenance of the Sibley house and the proceeds are to go to the Sibley house fund.

The tickets can be obtained from Mrs. A. P. Moss of 553 Selby avenue, St. Paul, Minn.

ARTISTS HONORED.

Receive Highest Praise for Work in St. Paul.

Miss Carlotta Simonds, Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw and Miss Ruth Alta Rogers returned today from the Twin Cities, where they presented a program before the Schubert club of St. Paul and the Thursday club of Minneapolis which was an artistic success and which was received very warmly by the members of the clubs.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press says of Miss Bradshaw's singing: "Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw, a mezzo soprano often heard in St. Paul, was plainly prevented from doing herself justice by a severe cold, but she gave much pleasure, nevertheless, by her finished method, charming diction and warm, smooth tones. Miss Carlotta Simonds accompanied all of the songs in a charming and artistic manner."

Of Miss Rogers' playing the same paper said in part: "A pianist of unusual ability, Miss Ruth Alta Rogers opened the program with the Grieg sonata in E minor. She imparted to the work a rugged force that is possible only to an artist who has her instrument well in hand, and played the minuet movement, especially, with excellent style."

The three artists received high compliments on the program, and the Thursday club of Minneapolis has arranged to give a program here before the members of the Matinee Musicale on Feb. 20. Some of their best artists will present the program, which is to be an exceptionally well chosen one, and a large number of both of the clubs are planning to come up to Duluth at that time to be here for the program.

Miss Hyland accompanied the Duluth musicians on their trip and was present at both recitals. She is still in Minneapolis to attend the Busonni concert there this evening.

The Anderson home was artistically decorated with the national colors and flags and during the afternoon, Mrs. Joseph Lonegren, originator of the plan, gave a little talk to the girls, on the purpose of the society. They elected the following officers: Gladys Anderson, president; Ethel Williams, vice president; Viola Carlson, secretary; Edna Rosson, treasurer, and Oregon Carlson, chairman of the flower fund. An executive committee consisting of Mrs. Lonergren, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. F. B. Rosson and Mrs. Gust Carlson was appointed. After the work of the afternoon the girls joined in a march carrying flags and entered the dining room where a luncheon was served. A birthday cake with twelve candles held the place of honor on the table and a handsome floral piece made of carnations, was also used.

The "socelty will have for its aim, little duties which will help the children to be cared for at the children's pavilion of the anti-tuberculosis hospital. THE EVENING STORY

THE LESSON

By Norton Howard.

"What?" demanded Mr. Tupper incredulously. "Say it again?"

"Always wanting your own way," repeated Miss Barefoot. "You're as selfish as they make 'em."

"Thank you," he said. "Just because I want to go for a walk one way and you want to go another road, I'm selfish."

"First time I've ever asked you to take a walk I like," she mentioned. "I've always gone just where you wanted before."

"I'm a man," he observed, "and naturally expect to have my own way."

"And I'm a girl," she retorted, "and when I want my own way, I naturally get it."

"Not with me you don't," he said hotly.

"Then good night to you," she flashed and turned away.

"Well, I'm blest," he muttered, staring after her. "Just because I won't give in to her. There's selfishness for you, if you like. Going off like that without a word. Can't think what girls are coming to. For all she knows, she might be chucking up her chances of a good marriage. I'm fond of her and all that, but it strikes me I shall have to give her a good lesson."

He bent his thought to the problem of teaching Miss Barefoot a lesson in becoming humility towards eligible young men, and was still ruminating when he encountered his friend, Mr. Tidmarsh.

"Hello, Charles," cried Mr. Tidmarsh. "What's wrong?"

"Girl," said Mr. Tupper, with gloomy terseness.

"Won't she have you, or does she insist on having you?" asked Mr. Tidmarsh with sympathy.

"It ain't exactly that. It's more a question of who's boss—she or I.

Mr. Tidmarsh whistled.

"She's a nice enough girl in her way," grumbled Mr. Tupper; "only she's a bit—well, she don't seem to think enough of me."

"Well, all you've got to do is to give her a lesson," pointed out Mr. Tidmarsh.

"Just what I was thinking. Only drawback is, I don't see how."

Mr. Tidmarsh thought earnestly for a minute.

"I know," he declared. "You must show her she isn't the only packet of sweets in the shop window. You know another girl that's very fond of you; only wants a little encouragement to chuck herself into your arms."

"I don't know any other girl," denied Mr. Tupper.

"Yes, you do," affirmed Mr. Tidmarsh, winking expansively. "Miss—Miss Brown her name is."

"I see," declared Mr. Tupper jubilantly. "Make my girl jealous?"

"That's it," said Mr. Tidmarsh. It's love that makes the world go round, but it's jealousy that makes it spin all ways at once."

Mr. Tupper thanked his friend and pursued his stroll, to elaborate his scheme so thoroughly that at last he himself almost came to believe in the existence of Miss Brown.

Early next evening he called to take Miss Barefoot for a stroll.

"We'll go through the park," he said, as they left the house.

"We always go that way," said Miss Barefoot. "Let's go over the bridge."

"You wanted to go that way last night," he reminded her. "It's my turn to choose tonight."

For a time they wrangled the question in chilly, formal tones, and then Mr. Tupper, watching his opportunity, said quite distinctly:

"Don't forget you're not the only pebble on the beach—I mean you ain't the only packet of sweets in the shop window. There's other girls, you know."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Oh, nothing," he said, and lapsed into silence.

"Penny for your thoughts," said Miss Barefoot presently.

"I was thinking what a nice name Gladys is," observed Mr. Tupper artfully.

"Do you think so?"

"I do," said Mr. Tupper. "Gladys—Gladys Brown," he murmured fondly, and then affected extreme confusion.

"And who's Gladys Brown?" asked Miss Barefoot in steely accents.

"A girl I met once," said Mr. Tupper, off-handedly.

"Never heard you mention her before."

"I didn't hardly like to," he said. "You see, I didn't want to make you jealous."

Miss Barefoot laughed scornfully.

"And what is this—er—Brown person like?" she asked.

"Lovely," asserted Mr. Tupper. "Fine, tall girl with lots of money."

Miss Barefoot shot an alarmed glance at her swain.

"Other way about," he said. "It's her what's struck on me. I've only to say the word, and she'd marry me like a shot."

"Why don't you say it to her, then?"

"Because I'd rather have you any day. I only mentioned her just to show you that if you won't make a fuss of me, there's others that will."

"I don't believe you know any girl called Gladys Brown," she declared. "Where did you meet her?"

"Down at Brighton last month," he answered. "She was coming down the road in her carriage and pair—in her carriage and pair," he repeated stoutly—"when all at once her horse bolted. Quick as lightning, I jumped up and ran after 'em and stopped 'em."

"Then you woke up?" she suggested.

"The lovely girl in the carriage," he continued, ignoring the remark, "got out and fell into my arms, sobbing her gratitude. After that we were great friends. Only I was true to you, and I never took no notice of her tryin' to make love to me. Only six weeks since I saw her, and it seems ages."

"Pity you don't call and see her," said Miss Barefoot.

"P'raps I will," he replied softly. "One of these days I'll just go round to where she lives in—in Park Lane. I'll go in—"

"Servant's entrance," she reminded him.

"And ask to see her. Won't she be glad to see me. I say it's a lovely house. Her people have got tons of money. All covered with diamonds she was that afternoon. As she drove along the front she fairly twinkled."

"Oh, I'm going home—you're being silly."

Once again Miss Barefoot swung off and left her swain.

"By the time that's all soaked in," he mused, "she'll be as nice as nice to me for fear of losing me."

Miss Barefoot arrived home, sat thinking for some time. Then she smiled to herself, and wrote two letters. The first was a long one, and she had to stop and consult her memory several times. The second letter was to Mr. Tupper. In becoming tone of humility, she mentioned that on the morrow she would be alone at tea-time, and suggested that Mr. Tupper might care to call.

That afternoon, accordingly, he called at the Barefoot house. Scarce had they sat down to tea when a knock came at the door. Miss Barefoot went to answer it.

"Yes, he is here," Mr. Tupper heard her say. "Will you come in and see him?"

She returned, accompanied by a young man, who regarded Mr. Tupper sternly, and then produced an official-looking notebook.

"I've got a little business with you," said the newcomer to Mr. Tupper. "Not to beat about the bush, I'm from Scotland Yard. One day last month," he stated, consulting his notebook, "we find that a Miss Gladys Brown—"

Mr. Tupper started. The visitor gazed at him significantly, and then made a note in his book.

"A Miss Gladys Brown," he went on, "was driving along Brighton front in a carriage and pair, when the horses bolted. Miss Brown was wearing a considerable quantity of jewelry at the time—diamonds."

"A young man dashed up," said the newcomer, "and succeeded in bringing the horses to a standstill."

"And to think I didn't believe you," cried Miss Barefoot. "This"—she indicated Mr. Tupper—"is the young man. He only told me about it yesterday."

"Oh, it was you, was it?" said the visitor dryly.

Mr. Tupper breathed hard.

"No—at least—" he faltered.

"It was him," said Miss Barefoot rapturously. "He told me about it. He's a hero. It was you, wasn't it, Charlie?"

"Yes," he said desperately.

The Scotland Yard made another note.

"When the carriage had stopped Miss Brown, overcome by emotion, threw herself into her rescuer's arms. Miss Brown, who lives with her parents in Park Lane," went on the officer, reading from his notebook, "formed a friendship with this young man. It was only after he had left Brighton that she discovered her loss."

"What?" cried Mr. Tupper and Miss Barefoot simultaneously.

"In the excitement of the rescue, she forgot what jewelry she had been wearing. It was only on asking her maid for some articles a few weeks later that she discovered that they were lost on the day of her rescue."

Mr. Tupper gasped.

"Yesterday all the missing jewelry was found at a pawnbroker's shop. The pawnbroker gave a description of the young man who had sold them to him, and Miss Brown at once recognized that it was the same young man who rescued her."

Mr. Tupper could find no word to say.

"And as you admit you were Miss Brown's rescuer—"

"I don't know a Miss Brown—never did!" shouted Mr. Tupper wildly.

"Oh, Charlie," said Miss Barefoot, "you told me you did."

"First you admit and then you deny," said the officer judicially. "Don't attempt to leave the house; every exit is watched, remember."

Then he took his departure.

"Charlie, will they let me see you in prison?" she asked tearfully.

"Look here, Kate," he said, "I'm in a horrible fix. I—I made all that up yesterday to make you jealous. I thought you didn't care for me, and I—I wanted to give you a lesson."

"Yes," she replied calmly, "I saw that, so I thought I'd better give you a lesson, too. That young gentleman doesn't really come from Scotland Yard, you know. I sent him all the details last night. He is my cousin. I'm fond of you, but you can't always have your own way, you know."

"P'raps you're right," he agreed slowly. "Now let's go for a walk and look at some of the furniture shops."

"That will be nice," said Miss Barefoot demurely.

A Good Mincemeat.

Take one pound each of suet, raisins, sugar and currants, two pounds of apples, half a pound of candied peel and citron mixed, the rind and juice of two lemons, a wineglassful of brandy and a little sherry, if liked, and also a little alspice.

Chop the currants, suet, raisins and apples very fine, also the candied peel, lemon peel and citron, then mix all the ingredients well together. Put the result into an airtight jar in which to keep it well.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

They liked Mr. Richardson's cold wave so well in Western Canada and North Dakota that it couldn't resist the kind importunities and remained over another day to enjoy their hospitality. Consequently it did not arrive last night, as per schedule, and Mr. Rirchardson and a large number of other Duluthians who are tired of wallowing in slush were somewhat peeved. Cheer up, boys! "Zero temperature may confidently be expected by Saturday morning," says the sage on the hilltop. 'Twas just like dear ol' Lunnun in little old Duluth last night, with a thick mist in the air and much slush underfoot. The gray, sticky, slushy weather is still in our midst today. There was a very light snow last night.

Mild weather also prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:39 and it will set at 5:03, giving nine hours and twenty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The easterly advance of the Northwestern cold wave has been somewhat retarded. It now covers all of Western Canada and most of North Dakota and should reach the Head of the Lakes tonight. A drop to zero temperature may confidently be expected by Saturday morning. Unusually mild and moist weather prevails over the Upper Mississippi valley and Lake region. On account of resultant wire trouble many reports are missing. The disturbance now central over the Lake region also caused snow or rain over that section and the greater portion of the Northwest during the last twenty-four hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan—Local snows tonight, followed by generally fair Saturday; much colder.

Wisconsin—Cloudy with cold wave tonight; Saturday generally fair with colder in east portion.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; colder in east portion tonight; rising temperature Saturday.

Shippers' forecast: Protect 36-hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

a lot of land so that one day the grouping plan may be completed. It is holding some of it for the city. At least $250,000 would be required for a new building and the county at the present time has no money available. On the other hand, the commissioners dislike to put any great amount of money into the old jail, knowing as they do, that it will be a short time until they will be forced to build an entirely new building. The commissioners will try to find out what the public wants to do on the matter and if it seems to be the general idea that a new jail should be erected, action will be taken along this line.

Opposes New Jail.

Commissioner Joseph Cummings is chairman of the committee appointed at the last meeting of the board to investigate the jail situation. After going over the whole matter thoroughly, Mr. Cummings thinks that at the present time it would be unwise to plunge the county further into debt by erecting a new county jail.

It is his idea that the city should be made to care for its own prisoners. This would take at least fifty steady boarders away from the county institution and with some remodeling and a general cleanup, he thinks that the present jail could be made to do for some time to come.

It is known that Mr. Foley visited the city lockup and found the conditions there very bad. He ordered the officials, it is understood, to make some improvements and they are thinking of adding another room to the one used at the present time for prisoners.

The city has on an average, it is said, of about fifty prisoners at the county jail. The city pays their board, but their lodging is not paid for.

City Workhouse.

Mr. Cummings thinks that Duluth is now large enough for a municipal workhouse. If the city would start an institution of this kind it could use the labor in many lines, such as clearing away the point of rocks, for instance. The stone could be sold back to the city for street improvement. In this way the jail could be cleared and there would be room in plenty to care for the county prisoners. The workhouse has been very successful in other cities, states Mr. Cummings, who has looked into the matter thoroughly.

The county commissioners state that it is the city prisoners who keep the jail in such a filthy condition. They are nearly all "common vags" thrown into jail for being drunk and they make no efforts to keep themselves clean. They are kept on one floor and that one floor smells worse than a barn, claims Mr. Cummings.

It is his idea to throw them back on the city and let the county care only for those prisoners who are awaiting trial and sentence.

If this was done he thinks that for a very nominal sum the jail could be put in good repair and the conditions much improved.

On the second floor at the jail are kept the county prisoners. They are those awaiting trial on charges brought by the grand jury and are not of the class that are used to spending a greater part of their lives in jail, a few days at a time, on a charge of drunkenness. This floor is in the best of shape, says Mr. Cummings. The first floor and the basement are absolutely filthy and unfit for even a dog, he states further.

Mr. Cummings says that in the basement room, where there is no ventilation, there are but two small windows. The room is damp and there are a great number of men kept there.

The bed clothing is more than dirty. It is filthy. He says that he has seen mattresses thrown out in the back alleys that were beds for princes alongside of the ones at the county jail.

Reeks With Filth.

The place fairly reeks with filth, and is unfit for any sort of an animal, asserts Mr. Cummings.

The men, if not dirty when they go in, can not help but be when they come out. He says the conditions cannot be exaggerated.

That something has to be done about the whole matter and done quickly is realized by the members of the board. At the next meeting Commissioner Cummings will offer a resolution to the effect that the city be made to care for its own prisoners and that the jail be cleaned thoroughly from top to bottom with some few additions and improvements made so that the county prisoners can be cared for comfortably.

latter suggested that as Johnson had no gun they had better go out and purchase one. They selected it together and Melodrowski paid for it.

When asked what they intended doing with the guns, Johnson said they were to be used to frighten the night clerk with.

Johnson stated that he had never handled a revolver and that he suggested to his partner that they go some where that he might practice. Together they went out to Lakeside, where they fired off the guns several times.

The young man admitted that he was as much to blame and implicated just as deeply in the hotel robbery as was Melodrowski.

Shooting Not Planned.

He told of the affair in the street car when they escaped arrest for a time by shooting the officer. He said that he was as much surprised as anyone when Melodrowski opened fire. He denied that the affair had been planned by them. He denied that he told Melodrowski that it was time to shoot or that he nudged him. He claims that Melodrowski nudged him just as he fired the first shot.

He states that three shots were all that he heard but admitted that he might be mistaken on this point. Others say five shots were fired and he says that this might be right. He states he was in no frame of mind to remember as to that.

When he saw what Melodrowski was doing he thought he had as good a chance to get away as did his partner and he proceeded to run with him.

Johnson seemed to enjoy giving his testimony. He listened to every question and went fully into detail explaining many minor details of the whole affair that were not brought out in the trial of the other boy.

Other witnesses testified as to the general good character of the boy.

CONGDON'S RESOLUTION ON REAPPORTIONMENT PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Schuler, Schwartz and Untiedt. Of the nineteen, thirteen are Democrats and six Republicans from Southern Minnesota. The announcement of the vote was heartily applauded. The resolution now goes to the senate where it will be substituted for the Hackney resolution, now on general orders.

Senator Putnam offered a joint resolution asking congress to prevent the ratification of the pending reciprocity treaty with Canada, on the ground that it will let in free foodstuffs that will compete with Minnesota products.

The house spent most of the morning wrangling over the subjects of house employes and squelching the cities. Representative W. T. Stone of Park Rapids had a resolution providing for a committee to consist entirely of country members, provided with a clerk and stenographer at $15 a day, to offset the tri-county committee which handles city matters.

The rules committee reported adversely on the resolution. Dr. Stone made a fight for it, incidentally rapping the house for having, as he thought, too many employes.

Representative Washburn of Minneapolis deprecated this attempt to create dissension between city and country. Representative Spencer said he could not see what bills possibly could be referred to such a committee, and he asked Dr. Stone about that, but got no lucid reply.

Representative Wisniewski of Foley said he did not believe in arraying the city against the country and he opposed the resolution on that ground. It was lost, 20 to 73.

The house, by a vote of 69 to 26, voted to employ a lawyer at $10 a day to help the members with their bills, and then, when Representative Minette and others made a fight against a resolution calling for an extra page to be assigned to the telephone booths they succeeded in beating it, 60 for and 77 against. A. G. Rutledge of Bemidji was appointed bookkeeper to the chief clerk of the house.

Representative C. E. Johnson offered a bill designed to make it more difficult for folks in dry communities to drink. He proposes that in towns or villages that have voted dry, nobody can ship in any liquor for his own use, unless he goes to the town clerk's office, files a statement of what kind of booze he is buying and how much, and gets a permit. Without this permit railroads and express companies are required to refuse to deliver wet goods to anybody not provided with this permit.

Senator Rockne introduced in the senate this morning his famous bill regulating the issuance of railroad stocks and bonds in this state, which he fought for in the last two sessions as a house member. He also offered a bill requiring railroads to provide safe and sufficient clearance between their tracks and adjoining buildings.

Senator Clague introduced a bill providing for a 10 per cent referendum, but omitting the initiative.

Senator L'Herault introduced a bill taxing mineral rights held separate from the land, just as real estate is taxed.

Senator Stebbins proposed, in a bill offered today, that there shall be party conventions before the primary elections, at which candidates for the primary shall be selected in the good old way that preceded the primary system.

Representative Nash offered a bill providing that when an automobile runs down anybody, the driver or owner must stop and give his victim the number of the machine and the name and address of driver or owner.

• • •

Mr. Nash also offered bills allowing judges to suspend sentences running as high as twenty years, prohibiting minors from entering saloons, and requiring a firo test on illuminating oils.

Representative Knapp introduced a bill increasing the salary of the state treasurer from $3,500 to $5,000.

A state inspector of railroad safety appliances and railroad equipment, to be appointed by the railroad and warehouse commission, is proposed in a bill by Representative Mattson, offered this morning.

Other bills were as follows:

J. F. Lee—Giving $750 to each high school providing industrial, agricultural and domestic training.

Perry and Conley—Requiring state board of health to supervise all water plants and sewerage systems in commission except in cities of the first class.

Representative Bouck — Authorizing counties to spend public money to advertise their resources and to seek settlers, the tax for that purpose being limited to two mills.

Representative Conley — Requiring safety devices on corn shredders.

The house adjourned to Monday afternoon; the senate to Tuesday morning.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION.

Mexican Charged With Crime Does Not Want to Go Back.

Washington, Jan. 27.—On the docket of the district court today appeared the case of Juan Sanchez Azcona, a former member of the Mexican congress and related to several of Mexico's most prominent diplomatic representatives who is fighting against extradition sought by the Mexican government on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Azcona has been in the custody of a United States marshal since Dec. 6, when his provisional arrest was ordered on telegraphic information furnished the state department by the Mexican government. The papers outlining the charges against Azcona arrived last week and the hearing arranged for today has attracted unusual interest among diplomats of the Latin American republics.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Charles B. Symonds of Menominee county has introduced a bill in the Michigan legislature providing for a commissioner of agriculture and immigration, who shall be paid a salary of $2,500 per year, and devote his whole time to the business of developing the farming interests of the state and securing the best class of immigrants.

DYSPEPSIA-PROOF

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed By Any Stomach.

Costs You Nothing to Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail. Stuffed Olives.
Boston Clam Chowder.
Strained Gumbo.
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms.
Roast Beef Hash.
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut.
Lobster a la Newburg.
Baked Pork and Beans.
Combination Crab Salad.
Hot Mince Pie.
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look anyhow as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50c a package."

Yes, it is true. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

JOURNALISM IN LONDON

The Morning Leader Has Surprising Story of McKay Holdup.

"Half the Town of Duluth Hunts Two Young Desperadoes."

There's an old saying to the effect that one must go away from home to get the news and that there is something to this ancient jest is demonstrated by the Morning Leader, published in London.

In its issue of Jan. 7, one day after the Hotel McKay hold-up and subsequent murder of Policeman Chesmore startled and shocked Duluth, the Morning Leader printed a very lively account of that event. It carried a sufficiently startling heading on the front page in black-faced type, reading:

"LADS' DARING RAID."

"Half the Town of Duluth Hunts Two Young Desperados."

With perhaps pardonable pride, the Morning Leader prefaces its account of the crime with this phrase:

"From Our Own Correspondent."

The account itself, as it appeared in the London paper, reads as follows:

New, York, Friday.

At dawn today two lads named Muzzary and Johnson shot the night clerk at the Hotel McKay, Duluth, Minnesota. They helped themselves to $50, the contents of the cash register.

A policeman chased and captured both and placed them in a tramcar.

Upon returning to the city they drew a revolver from an unsuspected pocket, fired, and killed the astonished constable.

Elated with their success, the boys covered thirteen passengers in the car, the motorman, and the conductor with their pistols and induced three men to surrender their watches. They ordered the motorman to go at full speed, leaped to the ground near the Northern Pacific railway bridge, and disappeared. As soon as the car and the news of the incident reached the city, a score of police and 500 citizens started to hunt them down with motor-cars and motor-cycles. Half Duluth were on wheels and joined the expedition. Armed constables were stationed on the ice of St. Louis bay to shoot the lads if they attempted to escape into Wisconsin. The recapture of the lads has not been reported.

Perhaps it was out of its kindly consideration for its London contemporaries that the Morning Leader insisted its account of the crime came from its own correspondent.

Duluthians will no doubt be surprised to learn these details of the regrettable incident. There are phases and angles revealed in this story that did not come to light in the trial of Melodrowski, and have not yet come to the attention of the jurors in the trial of Johnson.

Perhaps it is just as well, however.

WEST END STILL TALKING "WHITE WAY"

West End Club Will Renew Agitation for Ornamental Lights.

Agitation for a "white way" on West Superior street between Eighteenth and Twenty-second avenues west, which has been resting during the past few months, will again be taken up by the business men and the West End Commercial club.

At the next meeting of the club, Feb. 3, the matter will be brought up for further discussion. Some progress was made last summer, and some of the merchants went so far as to install standards in front of their places of business.

A committee of the club has been working on the proposition for some time and has secured data relating to the cost of installation and maintenance. These figures have been submitted to the property owners. Some of them have not been heard from as yet.

Most of the property owners, it is stated, are in favor of the new lighting system, but the committee has met some opposition from outside property holders, who assume an air of indifference in the matter of making local improvements.

The scheme generally favored provides for ten standards to the block, five on each side of the street. The standards will cost about $85 apiece, or $3,500 from Eighteenth to Twenty-first avenues west. The merchants point out that it makes the business district much more attractive for shoppers, who would otherwise go uptown to spend their money.

CHURCH WILL BE REDEDICATED

Combined West End Parishes Will Occupy Remodeled Building.

St. Peter's Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, remodeled and redecorated throughout, will be rededicated with appropriate ceremonies next week, Wednesday and Thursday.

Bishop J. D. Morrison of the local diocese will be the principal speaker at the affair and on Wednesday evening, Feb. 1, will preach the dedicatory sermon.

Rev. J. V. Alfegren, general missionary among the Swedish people of the Minnesota diocese and a resident of Minneapolis, will give the address on the following evening. He will speak in English, this service concluding the series.

Among the other speakers at the affair will be Archdeacon H. F. Parshall of the Duluth diocese, superintendent of the Indian work, Dr. A. W. Ryan, Dean Wurtele, and Rev. Frank C. Coolbaugh of Cloquet.

Mr. Alfegren will remain over until after Friday evening, when he will address the Swedish members of the congregation in Swedish.

St. Peter's church now embraces the congregations of the old St. Luke's parish and St. Peter's Swedish church, which was remodeled to accommodate the consolidated parishes. Rev. W. E. Harmann is rector.

Over $3,000 was spent in making improvements on the old edifice. A basement, providing for Sunday school rooms, quarters for the choir and a heating plant were installed and the interior was enlarged and redecorated. The united congregations include about 140 communicants or about eighty families.

Arrangements have been made for Swedish services Sunday mornings and English services in the evenings. The arrangement is reversed every second month.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MARTHA BAHR.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Bahr, aged 58, who died at the home of her son, Fred C. Bahr of 2127 West First street, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence and at 3 o'clock from the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street. Rev. J. W. BIG LAND BOOM IS ON IN TEXAS.

J. B. Middlecoff, former judge of probate, has returned from Texas, where he has been for several weeks and where he is interested in lands. He says there is a big land boom on in the Lone Star state and that the recent cold wave there did no injury to the orange trees.

"I traveled over the territory between Houston and Brownsville, along the gulf coast, and the extent of railroad construction and town building was a revelation to me," said Mr. Middlecoff. "I expect to return to Texas again Feb. 7.

"Harris county, in which Houston is located, has voted $1,250,000 with the expectation that the government will appropriate a like amount to improve the channel for ocean shipping to Houston. The city of Houston has appropriated $250,000 for bridges and $500,000 to pave the roads within twenty-five miles of the city with shells.

"I visited the Taft ranch near Corpus Christi. It embraces 165,000 acres. I had expected to visit the Bryan ranch, near Brownsville, but did not get over to it.

"Houston is located with reference to the gulf much the same as Fond du Lac, Minn., is located with reference to Lake Superior."

SECOND LECTURE IN FARM SERIES.

The second of the series of agricultural lectures given at the Y. M. C. A. this season will be heard tonight. It will be a double bill, C. E. Roe telling about small fruits for St. Louis county and how to grow them, and Arthur Crassweller giving information about how to beautify home grounds. Both of the speakers are well qualified to talk on the subjects assigned them and it is expected that the attendance at the lecture will be large. The first lecture was delivered Jan. 13 by Dr. John H. Gray, professor of economics at the University of Minnesota, who discussed industrial education, with special reference to agriculture and interested a big crowd of Duluthians. The next lecture will be by Prof. F. L. Washburn, state entomologist, who will be here Feb. 10.

INJURIES ARE FATAL

Marie Mattson Dies at Hospital Without Recovering Consciousness.

Lakeside Girl Struck By Iron Range Train Passes Away.

Marie Mattson, the 17-year-old school girl, who was struck by an Iron Range train late Tuesday night, died at 5:15 yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's hospital, without regaining consciousness.

Miss Mattson was working half a night shift at the Lakeside exchange of the Duluth Telephone company in order to work her way through school and help her parents support their family of seven children, of whom she was the oldest. She put in her time at the switchboard as usual Tuesday night and started for home shortly after 11:30 o'clock. She was hit by the mixed train which runs to Two Harbors, as she was crossing the tracks at Forty-fifth avenue east.

She was hurled into the snow bank alongside the tracks and lay there until 7 o'clock in the morning, when she was discovered by Watchman Michael Moore. He summoned assistance and she was hurried to the hospital, where an examination disclosed a fractured skull, a smashed thigh and internal injuries. There wasn't the slightest hope of her recovery.

The body was removed to Crawford's undertaking parlors. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

are probably too incorrigible to warrant my embittering my temper over the wrongs they have done me, and it is in delicate form for me to exhibit my scars to you on a festive occasion.

"I am old fashioned enough to believe in the institutions of our fathers and that they will be preserved notwithstanding new fangled ideas of government or the flaming fanaticism of the crusader.

"One would suppose, with our opportunities of culture and general education, that stability in all things would be the order of the day, but the contrary is most evident—to haul everything out by the roots and keep the roots exposed seems to be the idea of many advocates of progress. But most men, I am sure, enjoy the distinction of being upbuilders rather than uplifters. It is much easier to pull things up by the roots than to await the slow process of nature in producing fruit.

"You can't pull a good man down," the secretary said "and you can't prevent the onward progress of a good cause or a righteous principle. The good men," he continued, "will go on with their work and the steadier will be their head and hand because of the shocks of battle, that great principles must endure and control human activities.

"I trust that it may be long before the narrow and sordid view of life shall possess our people of the great West," continued the secretary. "A pioneer people is always one with the courage and patience to endure hardships and to conquer the wilderness. Your ancestors did it in New England and what they did in the early centuries of American settlement is now being better done beyond the Western ranges."

is appointed and he is to act in all matters at the direction of the board. All appropriations for exhibits and advertising work are to be expended by the commissioner under the direction of the board and the board is also given the power to employ such additional assistance as may be required.

Under the terms of a bill that has been introduced by Col. J. H. Fraine the six militia companies of the state that are now without armories will be provided with such buildings within the next two years. Col. Fraine, in his bill amending the present law, proposes to advance the appropriations that would not become available for three years that all the companies may have their appropriations during the coming two years. The companies that are without armories at the present time are Minot, Mandan, Williston, Devils Lake, Grafton and Fargo, and should the Fraine bill be passed all of these cities would be in position to have armories within the next two years.

Juvenile Courts.

With an active lobby in the city supporting the Duis bill by which it is proposed to create a county juvenile court through the placing of such duties on the shoulders of the county judge, new interest has been awakened in that feature of proposed legislation. The county judges have decided that they will ask for an annual additional salary of $500 in counties where the provisions of the law may be adopted.

Educational committees of both houses are at work on the bill that has been introduced covering the school laws of the state.

The senate committee of which F. S. Talcott is chairman, held a long session this week at which a number of amendments were agreed to. Among these is one that will replace the district treasurer. The bill originally proposed that the county treasurer should be made the treasurer of the school districts, thus doing away with the school district treasurer entirely.

Normal School Board.

Control of the three normal schools of the state under the direction of a single board of control is proposed in a bill that has been formulated by a sub-joint committee of the senate and house committees on education, and which goes into the senate as a committee bill. A board of seven members is created, three to represent each institution, and three to be from the state at large, with the state superintendent of public instruction as ex-officio president of the board. No two members of the board shall be from the same county. The board shall begin its existence the first Tuesday in April of this year and appointments shall be made by the governor with the consent of the senate. Four-year terms for members are provided.

struction of, and the acceptances of the construction of drainage ditches, and also relating to employes of or those working under said state drainage engineer, supported by such apparently creditable testimony of citizens of the state who has appeared before the said drainage committee of the house, and so forcible and so effective that your committee does not feel justified in disregarding the same; and,

"Whereas, such charges and accusations are of such a grave character as in the judgment of your committee renders it of paramount importance to the best interests and best welfare of the state that a thorough investigation thereof be forthwith ordered by the house of represenatives;

"Therefore, Be It Resolved, by the house of representatives that a committee of five members of the house of representatives be appointed by the speaker thereof and expressly charged with the duty forthwith to make due inquiry and full investigation into the truth of the said charges and accusations, and that such committee be and hereby is authorized and empowered for the purpose to administer oaths, summon witnesses and compel their attendance and the giving of their testimony in the premises and to send for and secure the necessary books, papers, documents or correspondence and compel their production, cause the payment of all necessary and lawful witness fees and office fees and other legitimate and necessary expenses, in the matter of securing witnesses and testimony to establish the truth or falsity of the charges and accusations made against the said state drainage engineer or his misconduct in the performance of his duties or of dishonesty in relation thereto or of his mismanagement or inefficiency in the performance thereof, including the necessary cost of securing the services of a competent stenographer for the purpose of taking the said testimony."

All of which indicates that the investigation of state drainage work is to be thorough and searching.

WOULD END COMPETITION

and by the representatives of commercial and railroad interests opposed to the bill.

The gist of the argument against the measure was that while it might seem theoretically plausible and possible, in point of fact it would not accomplish the good results its friends hoped for it, and would accomplish evils that its friends apparently do not suspect.

According to the opponents of the bill, it would not only injure the country by destroying the rich markets provided by the large cities, but it would directly hurt small communities by increased freight rates. It calls for an equalization of rates, and the equalization would surely be upward, and not downward.

Would Destroy Competition.

It was argued that the hard and fast rule of rates based on distance, provided by the bill, would absolutely destroy competition.

For instance, where there are two competing lines, one shorter than the other, at present the shorter line fixes the rates and the longer line must meet them. Under the Cashman bill the longer line might still meet them, but if it did the rates so established would prevail throughout its other lines, so of course it could not meet the rates established by the shorter line. Business, therefore, would be forced away from the long line to the short line, and communities established along the longer line would be practically destroyed, since rates established by the distance tariff plan would prohibit their competing with communities along the shorter line.

Thus these communities would lose the benefits now given them by competition created by the long and short haul clause of the present railroad laws.

J. H. Beek of St. Paul, representing the jobbers of that city, made the principal address against the bill. He said that when the author of the bill told of the advantages the measure had brought to Iowa, he had thought of investigating conditions there, and he found that the distance tariff plan had hurt that state and was hurting it now. Senator Cashman had dilated upon the benefits worked by the system to the smaller communities, but he found that there are as many small communities in Iowa that have lost population in the last ten years as there are in Minnesota.

More important still, he found that the distance tariff plan had practically destroyed domestic commerce in Iowa, because interstate railroad rates are so much more favorable than intrastate rates under the mileage basis system that manufacturers in Iowa could deal best with customers outside the state, while Iowa consumers could, for the same reason, do better with dealers outside the state than with dealers within the state. He offered as an instance a cement plant in Iowa, said to be the largest in the country, which does only 5 per cent of its business in Iowa; while Iowa consumers of cement buy most of their goods outside the state, the reason being that interstate rates are more favorable to business than intrastate rates under the distance tariff plan.

Under the present system in Minnesota, he said, railroads can foster industries by giving them helping rates; but under the distance tariff plan they could not. The paper mill industry of Northern Minnesota, for instance, had been successful because the railroads have been able to make rates that enabled the Northern Minnesota paper mills to compete throughout the state with the Fox River mills in Wisconsin.

Duluth's Peculiar Position.

G. Roy Hall, traffic expert of the Duluth Commercial club, said that Duluth's position was somewhat peculiar, in that practically all of the traffic out of Duluth is interstate because it goes through Wisconsin, so that Duluth could escape any evil results from the distance tariff in Minnesota because it could get the advantage of the better interstate rates. In this way it would have an advantage over the interior jobbing points in Northern Minnesota, such as Brainerd, Crookston and Bemidji, because the adoption of the distance tariff law would increase rates to these points, while leaving Duluth free from the effect of the law because its business is interstate. Nevertheless, he did not support the law, but opposed it, because it would injure the state, and therefore, indirectly, would hurt Duluth. It would hurt Northern Minnesota, upon whose prosperity Duluth depends, in other ways. For instance, the lumber industry of Northern Minnesota is enabled to compete with low interstate rates from Wisconsin because of the commodity rates established for the purpose of giving it a fair chance in the lumber markets of the state.

The hearing continued during the afternoon and evening, and another will be held before the bill is acted upon by the committee. The chances are that the bill will be reported favorably by the committee, and it will take hard campaigning to beat it in the senate.

Keefe's Road Bill Killed.

The house committee on roads yesterday afternoon voted to recommend for indefinite postponement Representative Keefe's bill reducing the legal width of roads in this state from four rods to three. In spite of the admitted fact that three rods make a wide enough road, that no roads in the state take up the full legal width, and that the reduction would add many thousands of acres to the productive area of the state, the bill was killed because of the arguments that the rural telephones are located along the roads, that a reduction in the width of roads would put the poles on private lands, and that in some cases the traveled roads are on one side of the legal roads instead of in the middle, which would complicate the problem of dividing the regained area among the owners of abutting farms.

The committee also killed Representative Davis' bill reimbursing counties that anticipated the late lamented "pork barrel" bill by spending the money before they got it, only to have the supreme court declare the bill unconstitutional.

Robert C. Dunn of Princeton stated that he wanted his 1-mill tax bill for road purposes to be introduced as a committee bill instead of as his own. He explained his second good roads bill, providing for an annual appropriation of $15,000 to be used in giving the state highway commission power to supervise all road work in the state, and to help county boards in their local road problems. The committee will meet again this afternoon to consider these two bills. The 1-mill tax bill, of course, requires a constitutional amendment.

The committee recommended for passage Representative Ole Peterson's bill providing that road taxes shall be paid in cash instead of being worked out.

The house committee on elections yesterday afternoon referred to subcommittees the Washburn bill allowing voters to vote any place in the state when they are away from home on election day, and the several bills providing for the direct election of United States senators. The former was referred to a committee consisting of Representatives Knapp, Palmer and Hatften, and the latter to a committee consisting of Chairman L. D. Brown, and Representatives Westcott and Frankson. Nothing was done with the many bills of the initiative, referendum and recall.

State Fair Reorganization.

The committees on state fair from both houses met yesterday afternoon to consider plans for the reorganization of the state fair. A committee of two senators and three representatives, to be appointed later by the respective chairmen, was authorized to draft a bill along lines suggested by Representative L. C. Spooner, the object being to cut out supernumerary members of the state agricultural society and put the fair on a business basis. The plan is to give each recognized county agricultural society three votes and each county without such a society one vote, and to retain the present life members, but not to increase their number.

The members of the state fair board who were present, including C. P. Craig of Duluth, offered no opposition to the reorganization plan.

F. W. Murphy of Wheaton, a member of the board, said that not enough attention had been given to the agricultural side of the fair in the past, and intimated that the board would like the legislature's approval of a new and suitable agricultural building.

The senate committee on public accounts and expenditures yesterday afternoon unanimously approved Senator Boyle's bill increasing the salary of the state treasurer from $3,500 to $5,000. It was shown that the state treasurer's office is one of the lowest paid of state offices, that several appointive officers are paid more, and that three large counties each pay their treasurer more than the state allows. Little opposition is expected to the measure in either house.

Representative Knapp yesterday afternoon made a wining fight in the house elections committee against the Diessner bill providing for non-partisan primary elections in townships and villages. He showed that the plan offered nothing of real value, and that it would simply be a useless expense to the smaller communities to carry it out.

C. F. Scheers, editor of the Akeley Herald-Tribune, and Bert Rodman of Akeley, are here in the interests of the bill of Representative L. H. Rice of Park Rapids providing for a branch school of agriculture at Akeley.

DULUTH MEN RETURN FROM FIGHTING CASHMAN BILL

Claim Distance Tariff Law Would Ruin Small Northern Towns.

Say Duluth Is Waging an Unselfish Fight Against Measure.

C. R. Rust, G. Roy Hall, C. F. Rowe, F. O. Davison and H. A. Earnshaw of the Duluth traffic commission, returned this morning from St. Paul, where they attended yesterday's hearing before the railroad committee of the senate on the so-called Cashman distance tariff bill.

They report a very noticeable change of sentiment among the members of the railroad committee regarding the bill, as the members begin to realize how it would actually operate if made into a law, and there is a disposition on the part of the committee to give the measure the most careful analysis and conscientious study before recommending it for passage.

Mr. Earnshaw, in speaking of the work of the Duluth men, said:

"We were very much encouraged, at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday, to observe the changed attitude of many of the members of the railroad committee, as compared with their attitude of last week. Two years ago, when this measure was proposed, we went through practically the same process and presented elaborate figures to the committee, showing that the bill would not remedy the discriminations that Southern Minnesota complains of, and that on the contrary, the Iowa distance tariff, as applied to this state, would be disastrous. Notwithstanding this, however, the railroad committee of that state reported favorably on the bill.

"Last Thursday, at the first hearing of this session, the committee seemed to have again made up its mind to take favorable action on the bill, in spite of all opposition, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that we persuaded them to take an adjournment until yesterday, so that we could prepare fair and impartial figures showing what the effect would be upon the interests of the state at large.

"Yesterday we made such a good showing, and, I think, so impressed the committee with our sincerity that the suggestion for a further hearing came from the committee itself, and on next Thursday further testimony will be taken.

"J. W. Beek, secretary of the St. Paul Jobbers' association, at yesterday's hearing, presented the principal argument against the bill. He made a splendid presentation of the case, and the most enthusiastic supporters of the measure were impressed with his sincerity and with the impartiality of his figures.

Duluth's Position.

"Mr. Hall followed Mr. Beek, and briefly outlined Duluth's position, emphasizing the fact that although the immediate effect of the bill would undoubtedly be favorable to Duluth, by lessening the competition of the interior jobber and the Twin City jobber, yet Duluth was taking the broad position that the bill would certainly jeopardize the interests of the state at large, and be a blow at the state's prosperity from which there could be no escape.

"Mr. Hall made a very favorable impression upon the committee, and upon every one present at the hearing.

"The hearing was held in the senate, and the widespread interest in the measure is shown by the fact that the senate chamber was crowded almost to its capacity.

"It is probable that other Duluth traffic men will speak before the committee at next Thursday's hearing. As the committee appears to desire the fullest information as to the effect of the bill, the Duluth representatives will endeavor to present an exhaustive case.

"The Cashman bill is a copy of portions of the Iowa distance tariff, which was passed about twenty-three years ago. Commercial conditions in Iowa have practically adjusted themselves around this tariff, and the unanimous opinion of Iowa business men is that the distance tariff has retarded the internal commerce of the state more than any other law which could have been passed. As one Iowa business man expressed it, 'Chicago, Ill., is the largest city in Iowa.' In other words, the outside cities do practically all of the business in Iowa.

"This is because the Iowa law has no jurisdiction over the interstate rates, which are lower than rates within the state.

Kills Home Industry.

"It is said that the largest cement plant in the world is located in an Iowa city, and this factory sells almost none of the cement that is used in the state of Iowa. They have to ship their product outside of the state, and the cement that is used in Iowa is practically all bought from factories in Missouri, Kansas and Illinois. This same situation is true of substantially every manufacturing industry in Iowa, and it would be the inevitable result in Minnesota if the Iowa distance tariff were to be made a law in this state.

"The supporters of the Cashman bill admit that the present adjustment of merchandise rates is fair, and does not work anywhere against the interests of the Minnesota consumer, who, by the way, pays the freight. Railroads make low rates from the natural points of distribution, such as Duluth, and merchants and consumers all over the state are benefited by these low rates.

"Senator Cashman concedes that the certain effect of his bill would be to raise these rates. It is difficult, therefore, to see what possible justification can be advanced for the measure.

"The supporters of the bill appear to derive their animus entirely from a comparison of the rates on bulk commodities in the southern part of the state with the rates on the same commodities for similar distances in the northern part of the state. What we are trying to point out to them is that the conditions in the two sections are as dissimilar as it is possible for them to be.

"Southern Minnesota has a far greater density of population, a greater number of railroad lines, a larger number of good-sized towns, and many other factors which are not found in the northern part of the state.

Some Rates Very Low.

"Mr. Still of the Northern Pacific, in a very fair and able manner, pointed out to the committee that there are many rates in Northern Minnesota on bulk commodities that are absurdly low as compared with rates in the southern part of the state, but that these rates were imperatively necessary in order, in our more sparsely-settled districts, to foster and develop the resources of this northern section. And that even such development as already has taken place would have been absolutely impossible had the railroads not been in a position to make such rates as commercial conditions seemed to warrant for the best interests of the state.

"Further development of Northern Minnesota will be absolutely stopped by the rigid distance tariff as contemplated in the Cashman bill.

"Mr. Still pointed out that if the roads were compelled by law to apply the same low basis on rates all over the state as applies under these special circumstances and conditions in the northern portion, they would face the alternatives of bankruptcy or of cancelling the low rates in the north. There is nothing in the Cashman bill to prevent the cancelling of these rates.

Wipe Out Industries.

"The only possible result, therefore, would be to wipe out practically every industry in the interior of the northern part of Minnesota. The paper mills would be unable to market their product in Minnesota in competition with interstate rates of their competitors, over which the Minnesota law has no jurisdiction.

"The small country flour mills and sawmills in many cases would be absolutely wiped out of business. The lumber which now moves from Cloquet and other Northern mills to the great market at Minneapolis would be forced by the more attractive interstate rates and the water rates, to send their product east and south to other markets.

"The brickmaking industry in this section of the state would be no longer able to successfully compete in Minnesota as they now do, with the products of their competitors from Wisconsin and other nearby states.

"Many rates on sawlogs from the northern part of the state are now made to meet the competition created by drifting logs down the Mississippi. Cashman's bill would force the roads to apply this same basis everywhere in the state, regardless of whether there was water or other competition, or to raise the rates to a point where they could safely allow them to fix the measure of rates for similar distances throughout the state. Which would they do?

Duluth in Unique Position.

"It was pointed out to the committee that Duluth occupies a unique position, in that our rates are interstate. Whatever question there might be as to the Northern Pacific's rates, there obviously could be none as to the Omaha and Great Northern, nor as to the new road which the Soo line is building from the Twin Cities to Duluth, through Wisconsin. If it should develop that the law applied to the Northern Pacific, the result would be that the rates via the Northern Pacific would be automatically raised by this law, and naturally all of the traffic would follow the lower rate and move via the interstate lines, thus depriving the state of the revenue which it now derives by means of the gross earnings tax on the intrastate business of the Northern Pacific.

"From the standpoint of the country at large, one of the most serious effects of the bill would be the complete elimination of all competition between railroads. Where there are now two or more roads making the same rates and affording the same service to a given point, all of the lines except the short line will have to go out of the business to that point. This means that mills, elevators, and industries of all kinds that are now located on the tracks of the longer lines will have to pay higher rates on their freight both inbound and outbound, or pay for cartage or switching to the tracks of the short line.

Passenger Rates Also.

"The bill applies equally to passenger rates, and it will have the same effect, practically, at competitive points. In other words, although it might be more convenient for a traveler to take a passenger train over the line having the longer mileage, than via the shorter line, the passenger who does so would be obliged to pay a higher rate of fare than he does now, because under the present law, competitive points now enjoy passenger train service via two or more lines at rates which, so far as the longer lines are concerned, are less than 2 cents a mile as allowed by law. Under the Cashman bill the rates will automatically go up to a rigid basis of a distance tariff of 2 cents per mile.

"In my opinion this is one of the most vital subjects the state legislature has ever considered, and Duluth should urge upon all of the people throughout the interior to interest themselves in this proposed bill, and to send in immediate protests to their state representatives and senators against any action either affirmaive or negative until each community has had a chance to understand for itself the full effects upon it which this bill will have.

Would Raise Rates.

"Two years ago practically all of the opposition came from the railroads. This time, however, the railroad opposition is of an entirely different nature. For the roads admit that the effect of the bill would be to raise their rates and increase their earnings, and what opposition there is from them is founded upon the broader position that eventually the loss to the roads by the impairment of the prosperity of the state as a whole will more than offset the temporary advantage which they will gain.

"History will repeat itself, and the history of Iowa and the operation of this distance tariff there, ought to convince anybody that any attempt to graft it upon the commerce of this state, after conditions have grown up under an entirely different system of rates—rates made upon the sound business basis of commercial necessity—will be a calamity even more far-reaching than can be definitely figured out now.

"In my opinion, there are some discriminations in intrastate rates. Similar discriminations exist in every state in the Union. They are being weeded out by the thousand every year, as the records of the state commissions and the interstate commerce commission will show. The Cashman bill is an effort to wipe out every species of inequality at one stroke of the pen, and to create a Utopia in Minnesota by means of a distance tariff. If it would only do what its author and supporters hope for it, then it would be worthy of the approval of every community in the state, but it cannot and will not operate advantageously, and will be simply curing our headaches by cutting off our heads."

HARVARD ALUMNI AT BANQUET

Duluth Graduates of Cambridge Institution May Organize Association.

Harvard alumni of Duluth got together last evening at a dinner for the first time, and it is planned to hold such dinners at least annually, and it may be that last night's event will lead to the organization of a local Harvard club.

W. S. Telford, who is a Yale man, was the guest of honor, and the principal speaker was Claude Bard of Minneapolis. E. F. Ver Wiebe presided. Others who spoke were: Messrs. Hanchett, Lewis Gardner, Dr. Cheney and Prof. Kline, all of Duluth, and Messrs. Butler and Stout of Superior. There were three guests from Superior and twenty others.

There are about twenty-five Harvard graduates in Duluth, and the sentiments expressed by the speakers last night give promise of an organization of this group of college men. The alumni of several other universities have organizations, and the Harvard men are inclined to favor the proposal that they should have one.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WILL BUILD ANOTHER ONE

Rogers-Brown Company to Construct Fourth Concrete Shaft Near Ironton.

New York Foundation Company Secures Contract for Cuyuna Range Work.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Rogers-Brown Ore company will soon commence work on its fourth concrete shaft on the Cuyuna range the contract having been awarded to the New York Foundation company. This shaft will be similar in design to the ones previously sunk and will be situated on the Pine Tree Lumber company's land, eighty acres north of the town of Ironton. It will be a five-compartment shaft and will be sunk sixty feet. From this point the shaft will be timbered about 450 feet. The Interstate shaft sunk by the Foundation company of New York is now on the ledge. It is in first-class condition and a most creditable piece of work. R. Jackson, the superintendent, has established a good record for good, prompt and reliable work and his contracts for cement shaft have all been carried out to the letter. Before coming to the Cuyuna range he handled many difficult shaft jobs on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges.

The north range of the Cuyuna iron range is reported to be better than ever and the development and exploration work is making great strides. Chester Tripp, the general manager of the Rogers-Brown Ore company arrived from Chicago recently and in company with Supt. H. J. Kruse inspected the work of the company, the mines and the exploratory work being carried on. He returned later to his home in Chicago. Mr. Tripp has been so well pleased with Deerwood and its vicinity that he has purchased grounds on the shores of Serpent lake, near Crosby, and in the spring will erect a handsome residence overlooking the lake.

FARMERS WANT A BETTER ROAD

Ask Cass Lake Commercial Club to Aid in Securing Highway to Town.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of Hubbard county farmers living within ten miles of Cass Lake attended a meeting at the Cass Lake Commercial club and requested the co-operation of the Cass Lake business men in getting a road laid out which would make it much more convenient for them to reach town to do their trading. The territory southwest of here was opened to homestead entry last summer, and while Hubbard county outside of this territory has good roads, there had been little work done in this new territory towards building roads, on account of the fact that until recently it was part of the forest reserve. Last summer a north and south road was started and cut out, and these Hubbard county farmers wanted an east and west road connecting this new road with their roads.

President Taylor of the Commercial club appointed M. N. Koll, C. E. Jondahl and Nels N. Holstad a committee to meet the farmers and go over the proposed route, and if found feasible, to co-operate with them towards getting it established. After viewing the route, the committee immediately took steps to petition for a judicial road over four miles long, and the necessary signers from both counties were secured in two days. There are thirty-one from each county. County Attorney Funck has charge of the work of presenting the petition to the district judge.

How to Stop Drinking

Give Orrine and Destroy All Desire for Whisky and Beer—Can Be Given Secretly—Try It at Our Expense.

We are in earnest when we ask you to try ORRINE at our expense. We will give your money back, if after a trial you fail to get results from ORRINE. This is a very generous offer. It gives the wives and mothers of those who drink to excess an opportunity to try the ORRINE treatment. It also shows our confidence in the merits of ORRINE. ORRINE is recognized as the best and most successful remedy the world has ever known for Drunkenness or the so-called Liquor Habit. It is a very simple treatment, can be given in the home without publicity or loss of time from business, and at a small price. Read the following letter from Dr. Nolte, Eighth and Race streets, Philadelphia. It will tell you about some of the wonderful results from the ORRINE Treatment:

"I have had a remarkable case of inebriacy under my personal observation. The patient drank heavily for fifteen years and reached a degraded condition, which caused the breaking up of his family and separation from his wife. Every hope was given up of ever saving the man from his strong desire for drink, and only a mother's interest finally persuaded him to voluntarily take treatment for his diseased condition. It was my pleasure to recommend ORRINE, your liquor habit cure, and the treatment was taken faithfully. This was two years ago and the patient is now in a healthy condition and still abstains from the use of stimulants. I have sold ORRINE for a number of years and have always found it to be satisfactory. I believe you have an exceptionally good treatment for this disease."

ORRINE is prepared in two forms. No. 1, secret treatment, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. ORRINE costs only $1.00 a box. Write for Free ORRINE Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope) to ORRINE CO.; 457 Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. ORRINE is recommended and is for sale in this city by W. A. Abbett, 205 West Superior street, 930 East Second street, and 101 West Fourth street.

THE CANADIAN AGREEMENT.

It looks good, does this compact of the governments at Washington and Ottawa. It looks better than most people, probably, expected it to look before the terms were made public. Examination of the provisions shows that the framers exercised the greatest care to see that each country was given the things it most needed, and that proposals that might arouse bitter opposition on either side of the boundary were studiously avoided.

As a document calculated to meet popular demands it is doubtful if this reciprocity agreement ever has been surpassed in the history of the United States in its relation with other countries. Canada's greatest need is freer access to manufactured products from this country, and provision for that is made by the commissioners. On this side the greatest demand is for cheaper foodstuffs, and this is provided for in the compact, as far as prices can be affected by the cheaper entrance of Canadian goods. Both countries are to receive "secondary" food products at reduced rates, a provision which perhaps favors the Canadians more than the Americans on account of the greater necessity for such products in that country. And the United States will profit materially by the free entry of lumber.

While the agreement has been framed with a view to the interests of the entire country, probably no city in the United States would be more directly affected by its adoption than Duluth. As a point of trade with the Dominion, this city would see its commerce grow under the provisions, and aside from that the lumber and grain interests of Duluth would receive fresh impetus from the lowering of rates on imports of that character. The increase in the territory from which Duluth draws its grain shipments cannot help but benefit the elevator and milling business here, and though the effect, according to prominent men in that line of business, would be most noticeable in years when there was a shortage in the American crops, the possibility of securing grain from Canada at the new rate would have a direct influence on shipments, and this in turn would work to the benefit of the trade generally. Taken in connection with the proposed adjustment of international freight rates, the new compact would work materially to the advantage of this city.

Taken as a complete proposition, there seems to be remarkably little for the opponents of the reciprocity agreement to take hold of. That there will be opposition nobody has doubted from the very first, but it is difficult to see where the fight can be made. Certainly any obstacles that are put in the way of favorable action, either at Washington or at Ottawa, must be frankly the work of special interests, and with the people of the two countries in the frame of mind shown by the agricultural convention at the Canadian capital last fall and the American elections last November, it does not seem possible that the members of congress and of parliament will care to commit political suicide by refusing to take the action sought by the respective administrations.

One feature of the pact which is proposed is that either country shall be free to make a change in its policy at will, and this avoidance of an iron-clad restriction removes the charge that might be made if the provisions were made in treaty form instead of that of a commercial agreement or terminable contract. Another advantage of this form is that it makes immediate action possible, and congress, in view of the short space remaining for the present session, should lose no time in taking the action requested by President Taft.

CUTTING CLOSE TO HOME.

Here is an example of the workings of the express system and of the benefits that would spring from a parcels post, that comes right into your own neighborhood. See what you think of it.

One of the Minnesota citizens who was burned out in the big fires in the northern counties last fall has received a bit of money out of insurance, and is trying to make it go as far as possible in replacing the necessities that were lost in the flames. Being reduced by the disaster to that point where the family had nothing left except the clothes they were wearing when they fled from death, there are numberless small articles needed. Last week the mother wrote to one of the large cities to inquire about some shoes for the children. She got resonable prices, but was informed that the goods would have to be shipped by express, as the mails refused to handle more than four pounds in one package. The express rates are so high that she cannot afford to buy the shoes.

Other small articles are needed, among them a curry-comb, which, she was told by the house from which she intended to order, would cost her 21 cents. Inquiry developed the fact that she would have to pay 42 cents to have it delivered to her. And yet, every day the mail carrier goes by her door with a wagon in which there is plenty of room for all the articles she needs.

These are but two examples in a list that this woman has given in a letter to Representative Clarence Miller of this district. But they are enough to show what kind of administration the postoffice is getting under the present system. Why should the government refuse to do as much for its citizens as other governments do for theirs? Why should it say to this woman, "You shall not pay your money to the United States; you must pay it to the express companies," when by a common sense extension of business it could handle the things she wants at a cost that would be within her slender financial resources?

Of course the postoffice department itself is not to blame in this instance. The parcels post can be inaugurated only on the authorization of congress, and congress has not given that authority. Whether it does so will depend on the action of Congressman Miller and other members who with him would constitute a majority. There ought to be a demand from every section of the country that will compel the members to vote for a parcels post.

The United States is a back number in that respect. "Today," says Albert T. Atwood in an article on the express business, published in the American Magazine, "there may be seen in the streets of New York city a delivery wagon labeled 'Parcel Agency of the Imperial German Mail,' doing a work for foreign shippers which our own people are not permitted to employ between the states." And there are examples of the kind to be found all over Europe. Mr. Atwood tells, too, how the six big express companies of the country, started without, as far as can be ascertained, the investment of a single dollar of capital, are earning some $125,000,000 a year on a business that could and should be taken care of by the United States government through the postoffice department, at less cost to the people than it now costs them.

And congress puts its tongue in its cheek and winks the other eye and does all the other time-honored tricks of contempt and stands pat in favor of the private monopoly as against the public interest, while Mr. Hitchcock reduces the working force of the postoffice department and cuts out the fines that should be imposed on railroads for delays to the mails and then, with an impaired service and a wail of discontent from overworked employes, bows to the public and says:

"Behold! We have need of five million dollars to make up what we have lost in giving you part of what you really ought to have. Please shell out."

"GUILTY, BUT INSANE."

If, upon the trial of any person accused of any offense, it appears to the jury upon the evidence that such person did the act charged, but was at the time insane, so as not to be responsible for his actions, the jury shall return a special verdict, "guilty, but insane," and thereupon the court shall sentence such person to confinement in a state asylum for the criminal insane for such term as he would have had to serve in prison but for the finding of insanity; and if, upon the expiration of such term it shall appear to the court that such person is still insane, his confinement in such asylum shall continue during his insanity; and further, when such a verdict of "guilty, but insane," is returned in a case where the penalty for the verdict of guilty against a sane person is death, such sentence for the insane person thus found guilty shall be for life, and in all such cases the governor shall have the power of pardon after such inquiry as he may see fit to institute, upon the question whether it will be safe to the public to allow such person to go at large.

No, that is not from the code of any state. But it may be, for it is the clause proposed for the New York statutes by the special committee of the New York State Bar association, in a report made last week. Ever since the Thaw case withdrew from the leading place in the public prints there have been efforts to provide against a repetition of the affair. It was that end which the Bar association had in view, and apparently the men who framed this provision have found a way to accomplish that end. A man would have to be the victim of a pretty serious brainstorm to commit a crime in the face of the probability that he would have to spend the rest of his days in the madhouse. A life in prison, it would seem, would be preferable. But under this provision the murderer would not have a chance to go to prison. Neither would lawyers have an opportunity to fatten their purses by repeated attempts to get their rich client out of the asylum, for the power to start an investigation that might lead to the freeing of the criminal would lie with the governor alone.

But the Bar association committee's proposal does not apply to murder cases alone. It fits all cases in which the plea of insanity is made. It covers kleptomania in such a way that the convicted person would not be able to escape punishment, but would have to undergo imprisonment the same as if the plea had not been that of insanity. And that imprisonment, too, in a madhouse instead of in a penitentiary.

If New York adopts the lawyers' proposition into its penal code the Thaw case will not have been in vain. And it would not be bad policy for other states to adopt the same provision, and put an end to the judicial farces that have been perpetrated under the insanity plea.

THE LAST DAY.

Tomorrow will be the last day to register for the city election to be held next month. Is your name on the books of your precinct? Better look and see, if you are not sure. Probably nobody will come around to make you an Adams county, Ohio, proposition, but you have a vote just the same, and it is up to you. Of course "it's only a city election," but the city government bears a whole lot closer relation to your personal interest than those of the state and nation. If you haven't registered yet, go and do it tomorrow.

THE PROGRESSIVES' OPPORTUNITY.

When the Republican insurgents, or progressives, organized the National Progressive league they "started something." It is an accepted axiom that the mob can do nothing, but that if the mob is organized even to the smallest degree it may do wonders. The progressive sentiment of the nation is overwhelmingly in the majority, but without leadership and organization it can accomplish nothing. Whether this Progressive league is to be the ultimate expression of progressiveism or whether another organization will carry on the work which its backers are ambitious to perform remains to be determined by the future. It is apparent, however, that the Progressive league of today has an opportunity in congress such as has never before been enjoyed by a factional organization in American politics of our day.

The Irish Nationalists in parliament are in relatively the same postion and force as are the progressives in congress, even to being "agin the government." The Nationalists constitute the balance of power in parliament. The progressives have the numbers, the brains and the talent to be the same in congress.

With the progressives in a position to become the balance of power in congress, there is some hope of bettering conditions generally. If the progressives of both parties unite, as they must eventually, and work for the advancement of the interests of the people, great good can be done by them. If they devote their energies to furthering the interests of an individual, they will blunt their own spears and be nothing more than stage soldiers.

The opportunity is before them. Will they make the most of it by devoting their attention and capabilities to the interests of the people, or will they make the National Progressive league the vehicle of an individual's ambition?

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

That Poor Woman.

Little Falls Transcript: A telegram from Moorhead states that a poor woman of that city who has been operating a truck garden, has fallen heir to $75,000, through the death of a sister. Falling heir to a large sum of money is common now days, but to operate a truck garden in Minnesota for a few years and then be called poor is cause for wonder.

But $75,000 is some truck. Even in Northern Minnesota it is a sum that most truck farmers look up to.

In Pursuit of Pussyfoot.

Cass Lake Times: Pussyfoot's occupation is gone, and with it the blind pigs and bootleggers.

While Pussyfoot was in those diggings the presence of the other concomitants of the situation was less a scandal than it should have been.

A Rose Without Thorns.

Ely Miner: The Steel corporation will add two stories to the Wolvin building in Duluth, the Minnesota office of the corporation. This proves that the officials of this concern have excellent faith in the stability of the ranges.

Also proves the value and desirability of Duluth real estate.

Hoyle for Stenographers.

Belgrade Tribune: A Chicago woman in suing for divorce says that her husband's stenographer looked at him, "longingly, lovingly, sweetly and invitingly," which is no way for a stenographer to behave.

Probably the poor girl merely lived up to the motto: "Strive to please."

Aitkin's Big Problem.

Walker Pilot: The water supply of Aitkin is in serious danger of being exhausted. And Aitkin voted out its saloons last year, too.

There seems to be danger of an Aitkin vold. Ouch!

A. De Lacy Wood, Veteran Editor.

Herman Review: A. De Lacy Wood, who purchased the Herman Herald in 1882 from W. C. Whiteman, and subsequently erected the first newspaper office in this city, is once more able to set up his own editorials after being afflicted the past fifteen years with weak eyes. We heartily congratulate Bro. W. on his recovery of his eyesight and are glad to exchange with the Iron Port Advocate.

The editor of the Benson Times joins with the Herman Review in congratulating the veteran Two Harbors man on his recovery from the illness which afflicted him so many years, as do all the newspaper men of the state, and North Dakota joins in the sentiment. The Ozone, published at Steele in that state, rejoices in Mr. Wood's good fortune, and mentions the fact that he established the first paper in Traill county, in territorial days. Mr. Wood started his first paper in 1872 at Prescott, Wis., and since that time has specialized in starting papers, gaining fame as the man who has started more of them in Minnesota than any other man. He is a native of Minnesota and was born in 1856 at Sauk Rapids. He is a member of the Territorial Pioneers' association and president of the Lake County Old Settlers association. As secretary of the State Editorial association Mr. Woods initiated the custom of making annual excursions. That was thirty-seven years ago and the place visited was Duluth. He then edited the Red River Free Press at Breckenridge. Twenty-five years ago he started the first paper in Two Harbors and was the first judge of probate for Lake and Cook counties.

EXPORTS OF COAL.

According to an announcement of the bureau of statistics, coal and coke exports from the United States in 1910 aggregated $45,000,000 in value, and in addition to this more than $20,000,000 worth was supplied to vessels engaged in the foreign trade, making a total of $65,000,000 worth of coal passing out of the United States in the calendar year 1910. In 1900 the total value of coal and coke exported (aside from that supplied to vessels in the foreign trade) was about $23,000,000; twenty years ago, about $7,000,000; and thirty years ago, $2,000,000.

About one-third of the $45,0000,000 worth of coal exported, or say $15,000,000 worth in round terms, is anthracite; about $27,000,000 worth bituminous coal, and about $3,000,000 worth of coke. Of the anthracite exported in 1910, all but about $250,000 worth went to Canada. Of the bituminous coal about $18,000,000 worth went to Canada, $2,500,000 worth went to Cuba; more than $1,000,000 worth to other West India islands; nearly $2,000,000 worth to other countries.

The list of "Other countries," to which this $3,000,000 worth of coal is sent is a large one, indicating that various and numerous sections of the world are experimenting with American coal. About $333,000 worth went to Italy; nearly $100,000 worth to France; $84,000 worth to Brazil; $75,000 worth to Chile; $84,000 worth to Australia; $52,000 worth to British East Indies; $52,000 worth to Morocco, to say nothing of $300,000 worth sent to the Philippine islands, and nearly $1,000,000 worth to Panama.

While the value of coal exports is rapidly increasing, and now forms an important factor in the foreign trade, the quantity exported still forms a very small proportion of the entire product. Only about 4 per cent of the anthracite coal produced in the United States is exported, and about 3 per cent of the bituminous coal production is sent to foreign countries.

A Vested Interest.

Omaha World-Herald: An illustration of the cumulative effect of advertising, as recognized by the large investors in publicity, is the protest of a Chicago firm to a new system of numbering the street in the downtown district of that city. A member of the firm says:

"Our firm has spent millions of dollars advertising '92 to 98 State street' from Maine to California. I therefore feel that we have an equity in that number."

Of the millions of people who have read the advertisements of that firm only a very few could tell the street number that was mentioned herein. But as they see it again and again, each time they recognize something familiar about that number, and this is the vested interest that has been acquired by that business house in that particular number on State street—merely an acquaintance, almost unconscious, between a large number of people and "92 to 98 State street."

The unscientific advertiser wouldn't understand it. But the people who have spent their millions in establishing just such acquaintances seem to have other millions left, and they recognize a relation of cause and effect between the circumstances. The majority of school children could probably tell off-hand what kind of soap it is that "floats" easier than they could name the capitals of a dozen states of the Union—and a good many millions of good money have been spent to impart that knowledge to them.

A Maine Hide of Liquor.

Kennebec Journal: A search of the premises of Alphonse Pouliot in Biddeford Monday night by Deputy Sheriff Johnson of Sanford and Ed H. Emery, field secretary of the Civic League, revealed a hide under a rug in the bedroom which gave up four pints of whisky, one pint bottle half filled and seventeen empty bottles.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

AN ARGUMENT FOR THE CLOSED SHOP.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Before beginning my few views on some topics of interest, I wish to compliment your paper as one of the best I have ever read. It is always conscientious, liberal and comes as near the truth in all its news as it possibly can.

There has been so much said and done in regard to the slogan of "Do It for Duluth" that I wish to state that by this time it ought to have had great effect. But the writer has noticed one thing and that is that some of the most well-to-do people of Duluth don't do this as they ought to. For instance, in the painting and paper hanging line they send to outside firms for men to come and do their work when Duluth has shops that employ first class mechanics who are just as good as any outsider.

Why don't these citizens patronize home industry? The business men are strong believers in Duluth's slogan and so are the painting contractors. But do you suppose they want a closed union shop here? No, they want open shops with a floating population. That is a detriment to the city, for they take their savings that they make here and spend them some other place. The business men should get a petition started for a closed shop and bring it before the Commercial club and have them bring up the matter to the builders' exchange, and when this is accomplished you will see greater things in Duluth. What if all union men in the city should refuse to patronize home industry? How long would Duluth last? How much more would the union label be recognized with a union town than now? I say to the citizens of Duluth that the quicker you secure closed shops for the unions the quicker you can concentrate everything pertaining to labor to the limits of our city, a better class of people will settle here, a greater advancement will be made. People will quit sending to mail order houses; a more friendly feeling will prevail and success will be written over every deed transacted for the good of Duluth. The painters' union has an arbitration committee already appointed to meet contractors, this year as well as last year, and the quicker these different parties get together and talk business, the quicker their trade will be saved. Hoping, Mr. Editor, that I have not taken too much space for these remarks, I am

The First Americans.

Ellsworth Huntington in Harper's Magazine: In the beginning the Hohokam dwelt in the land. They were the first Americans—before the Pilgrim fathers, before the Spaniards, before the Indians. They were the unknown people who lived in the United States so long ago that their name is utterly lost. But in the Southwest old tribes of Indians like the Zunis and Navajos know nothing of them save by vaguest tradition. The Pimas and Papagos of Southern Arizona, who occupy part of the land that once was theirs, know that another race possessed the country long ago. More they cannot tell. They and their fathers, for hundreds of years, have seen what we see—the scanty remnants of ancient villages. For the inhabitants of the villages they have no name except the Hohokam—that is, the "Unknown." The modern archaeologist describes the implements and pottery of the Hohokam. He cannot do much more, for their houses are laid low. Except in a few places, such as the ruins of Casa Grande near the Gila river, the very walls have vanished. Casa Grande itself may be the work of a people later than the main body of the Hohokam. We can never know the whole story. Yet little by little we may learn its chief facts. Arizona and the adjacent regions are full of ruins unknown to scientists and even to the people who live within a mile of them. They are so nearly obliterated that there seems at first sight little to repay study. Archaeology begins the task of reconstructing the past; geography must finish it. Modern geography enables us to determine the mode of life which must prevail, especially among primitive peoples, under given conditions of physical environment. If we can correctly picture the geographic environment of the Hohokam, we may learn much of the history of our earliest fellow countrymen.

Pulpit at Fault.

Washington Herald: Crudity in church services is responsible for a remarkable decrease in church attendance, according to Dr. William H. P. Faunce, president of Brown university, who was recently in this city.

"Carelessness and incompetence in the pulpit explain in large measure the fact that public worship is growing unpopular along with a rise in social consciousness. When the Scripture," continued Dr. Faunce, "is read as if it were a railroad time table, or, on the other hand, as if it were a textbook in elocution, the result is the reverse of devotional. When prayer ostensibly addressed to God takes the form of a harangue to the audience, the effect is the same as that produced by any other form of hypocrisy. In many churches the performance of the choir is admirable from an esthetic standpoint, but quite irrelevant as an aid to worship.

"In some church the ordinance of baptism is a mere survival of what was at the banks of the Jordan deeply and tenderly significant, but is now repeated amid such irreverence and vulgar curiosity as to make it hardly more than a kind of amateur dramatics. The Lord's Supper is in some places so shabbily administered as to repel the worshipful mind, and a carelessness which we should not for a moment allow in our homes is not infrequently seen at the table of the Lord."

Insuring Against Evil Spirits.

Wide World Magazine: Once every year, during the first fifteen days of the seventh Chinese month, the curious ceremony of Yu-Nan-Whei is celebrated, being, in fact, the paying of homage to the land and sea devils. Seven priests carry out the ceremony by offering up various forms of prayer and making an unearthly noise by beating gongs. Any one wishing to show his respect to the devils can do so by a payment of six hundred cash—about 22 cents—to each of the priests, for which amount they will continue their performance for twelve hours—a truly modest remuneration for gentlemen engaged in the arduous occupation of propitiating evil spirits. For an extra payment of two thousand cash a number of small red paper boats about six inches long, with lights inside, will be sent floating down the river with the current. These lights are for the benefit of the sea devils, in order that they may be able to see their way about on dark nights—a little attention which it is to be hoped these maritime demons appreciate. Having finished this performance, the person on whose behalf it has been carried out goes away happy in the conviction that he will not lose any of his family throughout the year either by sickness or drowning, so that the whole ceremony may be looked upon as an insurance policy. At this time of year many thousands of the small lighted boats may be seen floating down the Yangtzekiang, presenting a most unusual spectacle.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1891.

•••A contract was signed today between George W. Stevens, manager of the Cranberry Lumber company of Ashland, and R. A. Gray of Duluth, whereby the latter agrees to cut at least 10,000,000 feet of lumber for the company during the season of 1890 at his Duluth mill. The company will saw only 7,000,000 feet of its lumber during the coming season at Ashland, and beyond question next year will see all its logging of 30,000,000 feet annually manufactured into lumber at Duluth.

•••It didn't look like hard times at the first sale of St. Louis townsite lots this morning. From the lower side of Superior street at Fourth avenue to the lower side of First street on the same avenue a great, good natured crowd pushed and surged back and forth, while constantly a bombardment of words, laughter and shouts was hurled against the solid walls of the Phoenix building. The company put up only $100,000 worth of property and at noon every bit of this was gone.

•••The Penfield Lock Stave company has elected officers as follows: President, Charles R. Penfield; vice president, W. A. Hagerty, Clearfield, Pa.; secretary and treasurer, A. C. Weiss. The board of directors consists of the above and W. C. Bigles of Clearfield, Pa., and Dr. Fred Barrett.

•••The newly elected board of directors of the board of trade met this afternoon and elected Col. George E. Welles as secretary for another year.

•••Miss Lena Follett, teacher of French of the Yale school, was taken seriously ill yesterday and is at St. Luke' hospital.

•••C. W. Fairfax of Geneva, N. Y., brother of Thomas H. Fairfax, is in the city looking over real estate.

•••Rudolph Blomquist and wife have moved to Chicago, where he has secured a position in a wholesale notion store.

•••John Opdale, manager of the Pioneer Fuel company's business at the West end, who has been ill in Minneapolis for three weeks, has recovered sufficiently to be able to return.

•••Mrs. Ellen O'Brien has sold her Grand avenue store at West Duluth to M. C. Hendricks of Fertile, Minn., and the change will take place March 1.

•••The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Holgate, 1005 East Second street, gave the elderly couple a very pleasant surprise last night on the occasion of their golden wedding anniverary. The party was planned by Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Holgate, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Holgate, Mr. and Mrs W. H. Holgate, Mrs. E. M. Wallace and the Misses M. E. Wallace and Ruth E. Holgate.

•••Henry Dingwall left yesterday on an extended trip to the East.

•••The conferences on the annexation of Duluth's suburbs have ended in complete failure, and the war will be transferred to the legislature at St. Paul. It is now West Duluth against Duluth and the other suburbs.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Most women have a great yearning for blonde hair unless they have it.

People marry so much trouble, it's a wonder they should want to borrow more.

If a man suddenly made a million dollars, he'd just as suddenly make as many friends.

A woman never needs a reason for loving a man, nor does he either, till after they are married.

After all, children deserve a good deal of indulgence for the weird names their parents stick on them.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Many a learned man has succeeded in making a fool of himself in several different languages.

Anyway, the old bachelor has at least one advantage over a married man. Nobody cares if he does stay out till 2 a. m.

Her Husband—What! Is this our wedding anniversary?

His Wife—N-no. Three years ago today you bought me a new hat.

SOME SHARES OF STOCK.

Albert W. Atwood, writing in the February American Magazine, tells the story of a college alumnus who left his fraternity less than a score of years ago, seventy shares of an express company stock, the dividends from which he hoped would support one student per year. Today the revenue from this stock pays the expenses of not one but five students at this university. Mr. Atwood continuing says:

"Who, you will naturally wonder, is paying for the worthy educational object of which I have told you? It may never have occurred to you that you are, and I am, and so are the editors of this magazine, and the people who print it. The smaller we are in the business scale, the more we have been paying. We cannot use freight for every birthday and Christmas gift, and our postoffice, unlike those of other countries, will not take more than four pounds. Every shipper of goods above four pounds—and who of us does not on occasion enter this class — must constantly decide, 'Shall I send this parcel by freight or express?' And as the absurdity of sending a five or six-pound parcel by freight needs no comment, it is plain the express business in its minor aspects comes almost as close to the daily interests of the people as the postoffice.

"It is on this small-package transportation, then, that the express business has waxed so uncomfortably fat that only the most preposterous dividends have served to reduce its swollen condition. And whether we will or no, we are obliged to resort to the services of these express companies, which are common carriers by every principle of the law, common, judge-made and statute. They are public servants by the very nature of the peculiar and remarkable special privileges and monopolies which they enjoy, and yet they have possessed an immunity from interference which, both in itself and in view of the well-known public policy toward railroads, is one of the most extraordinary facts of our political and economic history.

"The companies themselves, furthermore, have never had the sagacity or plain business sense to let the public have even some little share in the great increase in the public's own business. They have exploited and exercised to the furthermost limit the monopoly and the special and peculiar privileges which they have secured."

The Actual Hamlet.

"No Shakespearean student is warranted in assuming that Hamlet is a victim of 'maniacal-depressive insanity' and in need of a straitjacket, or, with all due respect to the ingenious arguments of Dr. Connolly, that Shakespeare intended the character as 'a study in madness,'" writes William Winter, the veteran critic, in the February Century, in the first of his series of articles on "Shakespeare on the Stage," "There is no reason to believe that the poet possessed exceptional scientific, physiological or medical knowledge, or that when he wrote 'Hamlet' he wrote as an alienist. There is some reason to believe that he built 'Hamlet' on the basis of an earlier and bad play on the French 'Hystorie of Hamblet,' contained in Belleforest's 'Historic Tragique,' of which, there was an English translation accessible in his time. It is certain, from the testimony of all his works, that he thoroughly knew human nature. In Hamlet he exhibited a representative image of pathetic experience, common in a greater or less degree to the human race, and the human race has therefore continuously manifested intense interest in it."

LOWER COST OF LIVING

Butter and Egg Prices Are Still on the Toboggan.

Storage Stocks Being Dumped on Market at Loss to Speculators.

Egg and butter prices are still downward bound. The descent has been gradual for the past week or two, but nobody would be surprised if a regular toboggan slide should start and prices of dairy products should touch a low level unknown in Duluth for a long time. What applies to Duluth applies to the entire country, for most of the butter and egg stocks turned loose on the market have been turned in at Chicago, which started the precipitate rush of storage speculators to get rid of their products.

"Unload at any price," is becoming the slogan of those who have butter and eggs in storage. The market is demoralized. The price of storage eggs has dropped about 6c in the last week and the fresh egg market followed, although the decline has not been so great. The decline in creamery butter in the last week has been about 4c, while dairy has dropped about 5c and packing about the same.

Last summer during the dry season speculators in butter and eggs, looking for a light output on account of the dry season, stocked up with as much as they could handle and held on for higher prices. The higher prices arrived, butter selling as high as 38c and eggs going to 42c a dozen at one stage. But instead of the storage stocks being called upon to supply the demand, the people went without eggs and resorted to the cheaper varieties of butter or to butter substitutes. In addition, the output was greater than the speculators expected.

The turn of the year found storage men stocked up to capacity and no market at prevailing prices. Panic struck some of them and they began to cut prices to unload their stocks. Others followed in their wake and now there is a greater supply of dairy products than there is a demand.

At the commission houses today, creamery butter is selling at 26c, dairy at 22c and packing at 15c to 16c. Strictly fresh eggs are 26c to 27c a dozen and storage eggs may be bought for 21c.

The conditions in the storage egg market are reflected to the fresh egg market. With storage eggs tumbling, fresh eggs could not hold up, people declining to use them and stocks accumulating. They have joined in the general decline and the consumer is getting the benefit.

Commission houses have instructed their buyers of fresh eggs in the country to keep 2 or 3 cents under the market here, for they do not want to get into the same position as the storage men. Incidentally, storage men are shying off from counting their losses. Last year, they saw visions of great profits from their foresight in accumulating stocks, but the loss of much money by those who speculated in butter and eggs this season is certain.

Further declines are looked for during the coming week as the speculators are still loaded with stocks and are anxious to unload them. Under those conditions, the decline must continue until stocks are depleted.

There have been no changes in the cheese market during the past week. Fancy full cream, block Swiss and wheel Swiss are still selling at 18c, odorless brick at 14c and primost at 12c. Receipts are good, but the demand is heavy and the market continues strong, through without advances.

Beef is higher this week, advancing about 1c, but mutton and pork loins are lower, losing about 1c. Lamb and lard are unchanged.

Receipts of oranges are liberal and will continue to be so. Oranges coming into the market now are very fine in quality and, though the demand holds up well, prices are not advancing. While the receipts continue heavy, the prices will hold steady, though it is certain receipts will be well cared for by the demand.

The demand for apples in barrels has not been exceeded in Duluth in a long time, commission men say. The apples coming into the market in barrels are the finest of Kansas and Eastern apples, but stocks are very low and the commission men cannot begin to supply the demand. The price has advanced 50 cents in the last week and further advances are expected under present circumstances. Receipts of box apples are heavy and they are also in good demand. Bananas are coming in freely and the price is holding steady. The only grapes in the market are Malagas, which are good in quality and reasonable in price. The popularity of the grapefruit is growing and there is a good demand for them in this market. The supplies are fine in quality and the price is holding firm. Pineapples are also coming in greater number and, although the price is a little high, consumers are taking them up. Lemons are steady. Cranberries are advancing, but much stock has been held over by Duluth commission men and they are placing it on the market at the prices which prevailed before the advance.

New green vegetables are coming into the market from Southern districts and are finding ready sale in Duluth. The days have passed when green vegetables were out of the market during the winter. The demand is so great now that they can be carried from the Southern markets and sold here at a profit at prices which are really but slightly in advance of those which prevail during the summer. Supplies of lettuce, beans, parsley, cauliflower, spinach, celery, squash, tomatoes, pieplant and other vegetables are liberal and there have been few changes in quotations during the past week. Radish, carrots, parsnips, cabbage and onions are holding firm in price and supplies are large and of good quality. The cold weather has held potato prices up. Kiln-dried potatoes are in the market and are meeting a good demand.

NO ROYAL ROAD TO LEARNING

Kansan Who Was Twenty-One Years Getting a Degree.

Lawrence, Kan., Jan. 27.—Most college students believe that four years is a long time to work for a degree. In fact, a large majority leave school without ever being awarded honors for good scholarship. Herbert Thompson, a graduate of the University of Kansas, however, is a notable exception to the rule. It took Thompson twenty-one years from the time he first enrolled at K. U. until he was granted the degree of bachelor of arts.

And, furthermore, Mr. Thompson isn't through yet. He intends to reenter the university soon and study eighteen months more in order to be eligible to his master's degree which he will take in the department of medicine.

When Mr. Thompson first entered K. U. twenty-one years ago he found he was deficient in a number of subjects. He was compelled to enter the preparatory department, which has since been abolished, and make up the entrance credits he lacked. As he was compelled to do outside work to pay his expenses this took him several years. Then, a little later, the Spanish-American war broke out and he enlisted in the United States hospital service. He rose to the rank of steward and saw service both in Cuba and the Philippines. He grew to like the life of a naval officer and it was seven years before he determined to return home.

About this time Lawrence was short of photographers. Now, Thompson happened to possess some merit as an amateur photographer. Besides, he needed more money if he was to reenter the university. Therefore, he opened a studio. The rush of work delayed him a while longer and perhaps he might finally have given up his idea of completing his education if it hadn't been that he was married, and his wife was determined he should continue his studies.

For the last three years, therefore, Mrs. Thompson has conducted their business and earned the living for the family, her husband assisting her in the work when he could find time. In June, 1910, he was graduated from the college of liberal arts and sciences.

"I have a year and a half remaining to finish what I set out to do," said Mr. Thompson today, "and I shall go back next term."

"Indeed, you must," declared Mrs. Thompson. "Twenty-three years is a long time to study to become a doctor, but you can't afford to stop now."

IN HERMETICALLY SEALED VAULT

Body of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy Placed in a Concrete Grave.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 27.—In a concrete grave on the shore of Lake Halcyon, in Mount Auburn cemetery, there was laid yesterday a casket containing the body of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science denomination.

On the casket rested a bronze box enclosing a complete set of the works of Mrs. Eddy, together with all recent Christian Science publications, while the silver plate beneath gave her name and the date of her birth and death.

The bronze plate covering the features of Mrs. Eddy was pushed back and one by one the little company gazed for the last time on her face. The features had changed little in the seven weeks. There was a slight darkening here and there, but signs of dissolution were lacking.

In the construction of the grave, the skill of engineers was invoked to make it impervious to decay.

The coffin rests on four feet of concrete and is encased in steel.

PASSENGER MEN COMPLIMENTED

Called Finest Body of Men Ever Gathered on Any Railroad.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—"This is the finest body of railroad passenger men that I ever saw on any railway," was the opinion of a well-known railroad man who addressed the gathering of passenger agents of the Pennsylvania Lines in Chicago last week.

"I have addressed railway men from many lines and in all sections of the country, but I have never seen a finer body than those employed by the Pennsylvania Lines. The harmony which prevails among them and the excellent co-operative spirit with which they work has never been equaled to my knowledge."

This meeting was in the nature of an innovation for the Pennsylvania Lines. It will be an annual affair hereafter, as Col. Samuel Moody, the passenger traffic manager, feels that such gatherings are great helps to the success of the road. He feels that such meetings increase the harmony and co-operation which prevails in his department. There were eighty-five passenger men, representing all sections of the country from California to Maine, at the meetings. The Pennsylvania Lines cover more territory than any other railroad in the country, and its passenger agents and assistants cover the entire country like a blanket.

During the convention Col. Moody was presented with a gavel with a most interesting history. The gavel was made of oak from a tree on the banks of the Maumee river—just outside the historic walls of Fort Meigs. The tree from which the gavel was made was more than 200 years old, and was used as a lookout by the American soldiers during the early wars on the frontier. At one time the advance of the Indian allies under command of the famous chief, Tecumseh, was discovered by a lookout in this tree. This discovery resulted in the defeat of Tecumseh's braves by American troops under Gen. William Henry Harrison of Tippecanoe fame.

These historic associations gave the gavel a great sentimental value, and it is highly prized by Col. Moody.

AVIATOR RISES FROM THE WATER

Glenn Curtiss Establishes New Feature in Use of Aeroplanes.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 27. — For the first time in the history of aviation an aeroplane rose from the surface of the water yesterday, sailed about and returned to the starting point, where it landed safely on the water.

This feat was achieved by Glenn H. Curtiss in his specially equipped aeroplane on San Diego bay. The machine covered a distance of about two miles. The flight was made after almost two weeks of experimenting to devise special appliances to float the machine and allow it to attain sufficient speed on the surface of the water to get up into the air.

Both the army and the navy were represented at these experiments, the former by Lieut. John C. Walker, Jr., and the latter by Lieut. B. C. Ellison, both detailed to learn aviation.

The aeroplane was equipped with hydroplanes, and a new arrangement of front surfaces. The aeroplane scudded up the bay at a 40-mile clip for a quarter of a mile, then lifted out of the water and rose to a height of fifty feet.

After remaining in the air one minute and twenty-two seconds, flying a half a mile, Curtiss alighted.

He again arose, sailed out over the bay a mile from the starting place, circled and landed lightly on the water near shore.

LASHED BANKER WITH HORSEWHIP

For Aiding Daughter to Elope ---"Papa" Seeks Minister.

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 27.—John M. Ross, wealthy marble quarryman of this city, walked into the Third National bank and asked to speak to J. Frederick Baumann, the bookkeeper.

Mr. Baumann invited Mr. Ross into the directors' room in the rear, and, before he understood his visitor's intention, Mr. Ross had drawn his revolver and placed it at Baumann's heart and then with his free hand swung a horsewhip violently across Baumann's shoulders, meantime berating the young bookkeeper for aiding Miss Margaret Ross, the beautiful 18-year-old daughter, to elope with William J. Cummings.

On finishing the beating Mr. Ross retired to meet almost the entire bank ing force, who had been drawn from their cages by the unusual noise. Then he made them stand back with drawn revolver and he walked from the bank to the Merchants' Bank & Trust company to make inquiry as to the residence of the Rev. Leray G. Henderson, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, saying that he would treat the minister to the same dose, Rev. Henderson having performed the wedding ceremony.

The whipping of young Baumann has caused a profound sensation, and promises more interesting developments, perhaps a tragedy. To friends Baumann declared the end is not yet. The whipping, as indicated, is the sequel to the runaway marriage, on last Friday, of Mise Ross and young Cummings. Young Baumann and Miss Myrtice Culton accompanied the elopers in Baumann's automobile, the property of his brother-in-law, James S. Hall, a prominent merchant. The elopers left the city, and, it is said, fear to return.

Mrs. Ross, mother of the bride, fainted on learning of the marriage, and has been prostrated since. Baumann is the son of Albert B. Baumann of Baumann Brothers, architects, and is on the board of governors of the Colonial club, a fashionable organization. He claims he did nothing toward the elopement other than having the elopers in his machine. His father has returned to the city and the sensation is expected to bring forth immediate developments.

OSTENTATIOUS MILLIONAIRES.

Los Angeles Times: Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck, on her recent visit to Newport, condemned the ostentation of some of the Newport millionaires.

"In my girlhood," said Martin Livington's brilliant daughter, "it was different. But today the American millionaire's environment suggests too strongly the lady who, while giving a dinner, sent for her maid and said:

"'Celeste, I'm cold. Bring me another string of pearls.'"

King of Stomach Remedies Free to Try

It is the opinion of all who have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that it has no equal in the cure of ailments pertaining to the stomach, liver and bowels. We only have room here to print a few letters recently received, but it is a fact that thousands have been received. In complaints like constipation, headache, biliousness, drowsiness after eating, heartburn, gas on the stomach, and similar troubles, whether in infancy or old age, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the one reliable remedy for you to take. Its action is so mild that it can be given to a baby—in fact, thousands of mothers buy it for their children—and yet it is sufficiently strong so that the most robust person will get action. People who use Syrup Pepsin never again take salts or cathartic pills, which often, by their violence, do much to upset the stomach, for Syrup Pepsin is pleasant to take and does its work permanently. Many have been able to do away entirely with the use of medicines after but a brief experience with Dr. Caldwell's wonderful remedy. It is sold in fifty cent and one dollar bottles and any druggist can supply you. But if you prefer to make a trial of it first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward a free sample bottle to your home.

Look for This Picture on Pkg.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

The following are some extracts from letters Dr. Caldwell has received:

"It is with great pleasure that I recommend Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. For years my husband was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion and bilious colic. I gave him everything I could think of, but he grew rapidly worse. I happened to think of the bottle of Syrup Pepsin a friend had left with me, which I would not give him at the time. I gave it to him now and he improved from the first two doses. He is now a well man and we have never been without Syrup Pepsin in the house since."—Mrs. D. M. Davis, Griggsville, Ill.

"I cannot say enough for Syrup Pepsin. It is a god-send to suffering people. My stomach was in a terrible shape. Am glad to say it is all O. K. now and am feeling fine. Both myself and husband are using Syrup Pepsin and will never be without it. I have had three of my neighbors get Syrup Pepsin and they think it is fine."—Mrs. Eva Gaskins, No. 304 Madison St., Topeka, Kas.

"I have had stomach trouble for over two years and always thought I had heart trouble, for I had pains in my left side. My heart and nerves were weak. I have had a good many doctors but none helped me. I got one of your little books, read it, bought one bottle of Syrup Pepsin to try. The very first bottle helped me and I have used three 50c bottles and feel like a new man. I can eat, sleep and work every day."—Rudy Karner, No. 364 8th St., Moline, Ill.

"I am pleased to write and let you know that Syrup Pepsin is the greatest remedy on earth for all stomach troubles. I had bad stomach trouble for more than five or six years and I tried all kinds of medicines without their doing me any good, but now I use only your Syrup Pepsin and I feel like a new man. I eat anything I want and three square meals a day."—P. H. Gavellas, Wagoner, Okla.

BELIEVE ZUZZA KILLED HIMSELF

Man Found Dead Near Virginia Cemetery Alleged to Be Suicide.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Zuzza, whose body was found in the swamp near the cemetery here last Tuesday, committed suicide by shooting himself behind the right ear, according to Deputy Coroner J. H. Crowe and of several of the dead man's friends. The latter claim that Zuzza had been acting queerly for some time previous to his death, and the fact that he had withdrawn all his money, amounting to something like $200 and sent it to his father in Italy on Jan. 21, leads them to believe that he took his own life. Although no revolver was found near his body his friends scoff at the suspicion that he had met with foul play and that he was murdered for his money. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

MISSABE MOUNTAIN ELECTION ATTRACTING.

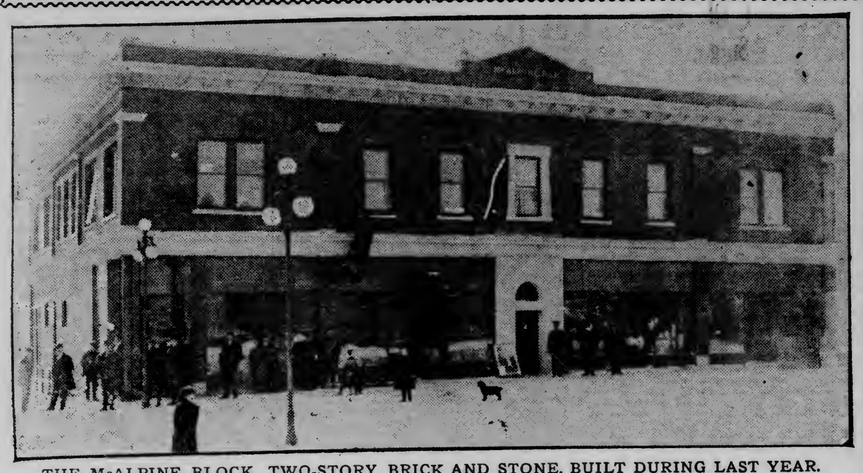

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is evident that there will be no lack of interest in the Missabe Mountain township election the first week in March, although annexation of new territory will deprive Eveleth people of participating in the event.

The overseer of highway contest is expected to be the hottest of all. Overseer of Highways Anton Mustar, Alderman Herman Bodas, Alderman Anton Erchul, John Erjov and Robert Masterson, former mayor of Gilbert, all of Gilbert, are candiadtes for the office, which draws a monthly salary of $80 and is considered the most important of all the township offices.

The supervisors were David M. Mouser and Thomas J. Flannigan of Gilbert, who hold over, and Thomas J. Trengrove and Clerk S. E. Helps, both of this city. Mayor Peter J. Cosgrove is the leading candidate for Trengrove's place, while C. G. Fulton is mentioned as a candidate for the office of clerk.

CHISHOLM WILL VOTE ON BONDS

To Decide About Raising Money for $130,000 New School.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board has rejected all bids for the proposed new school as they were too high.

To complete the school according to the plans and specifications of the architect will require at least $130,000. The board lacks about $25,000 of the required amount.

It was decided to submit the matter of the raising of the needed money to the voters, who, it is expected, will uphold the school board in their request of $25,000 from the state for the needed purpose.

About nine bids were received from as many contractors for the erection of the building. No local contractor put in a bid, but there was one bid from a firm in Hibbing.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury ceased its labors here yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and reported the following indictments:

Frank Petokar, two indictments for assault in the second degree. He is charged with having assaulted John and Agnes Zagar with a knife at Aurora on Nov. 14 last.

Bruno Ruzzitto, assault in the first degree, in having shot and wounded Charles Green at Hibbing on Dec. 26. Ruzzitto sometimes goes under the name of Billie Rich.

Louis Peterson, first degree larceny, in having stolen ten tons of hay from W. G. Close of Hibbing, the value of which has been placed at $160.

George Keegh, assault in the second degree, the charge being that he used a revolver upon George Figgen in Chisholm on Dec. 2 of last year.

Ed Johnson is said to have used a knife on Matt Koskinen at Gilbert on Nov. 19 and was indicted for assault in the second degree.

Two indictments were brought against Albert Di Vizie, who is charged with having cut up Leonard and Frank Aniball in this city on the night of Jan. 21.

George Milasevich is charged with having attempted to kill Joe Milousnich at Chisholm on Dec. 8, and was indicted for assault in the first degree.

August Korach, second degree assault. He is alleged to have inflicted wounds upon the person of Louis Erjovic at Gilbert on Dec. 26, using a knife in the assault. Two other indictments were brought against Korach for having asasulted Louis Sevor and Ignatz Poch at the same time.

Sam Kosich and Pete Radovich fought a prearranged duel at Hibbing on Oct. 28, revolvers being used as weapons of defense. As a result of the duel Radovich received wounds, from which he died later. Kosich was indicted on a charge of murder in the second degree.

Joseph Sloan, indicted for forgery in the second degree. It is alleged that Sloan passed a check signed by Alger, Smith & Co., and made out to Johnson Brunes, on Oscar Bihlaja. Sloan, it is said, forged the name Johnson Brunes to the check and passed it at Hibbing on Oct. 17.

Court adjourned today until next Monday morning, when the petit jury will assemble for the trial of civil actions, four cases being marked for trial next week. The first case for Monday will be that of The Town of Buyck against the Bankers' Surety Company.

EXERCISES ARE WELL ATTENDED

Judge Hughes Gives Diplomas to Graduates With an Appropriate Address.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The semi-annual graduation exercises were given in the auditorium at the high school last evening before a very large number of spectators. The presentation of diplomas was made by Judge Hughes and his speech preceding the presentation, thought short, was well worth going out to hear. The musical and dramatic program was first class, and opened with a mandolin duet by Fred Anderson and Lee Johnson. The dialogue between Brutus and Cassius, given by Melvin Northey and Norman Casswell was first class and well rendered. Another item on the program of first-class merit was the reproduction story of the "Merchant of Venice," by Miss Sara McPhail. "The Hermitage," by James Russell Lowell, rendered by Miss Marie McCauley, and the "Whistle," by Benjamin Franklin, rendered by Miss Vivien Anderson, were both well worthy of praise. Of the musical part of the program both the mandolin duets played by Fred Anderson and Lee Johnson, were first class and the piano solo by Dorothy Cohen was all that could be desired. Thirty-six pupils graduated and the faculty were justly proud of the fine results of their efforts.

GIVES TESTIMONY AGAINST HIMSELF

Aged Indian Testifying for Defense Calmly Announces "I Killed Him."

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial in the district court of Bowstring Joe, an aged Indian, for killing John Caldwell at Sand Lake Oct. 17 last, may be completed today. The charge of murder originally preferred against James Goggle-eye for killing Caldwell was dismissed in a sensational manner Wednesday, when Bowstring, testifying for the defense, calmly said "I killed him," meaning Caldwell.

The unexpected answer of the old Indian created a sensation. The case against Goggle-eye was, of course, ended right there. Judge Stanton directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty against Goggle-eye, which was done by the twelve without their leaving the box. The jury was discharged and a new jury empanelled to try Bowstring. The court overruled the motion of the county attorney to sentence Bowstring on the strength of his admission or confession without the formality of a trial.

Saw Bowstring Stab Him.

During the trial of Goggle-eye, when the then accused was on the stand, he gave his version of the affair throwing the blame on Bowstring. He stated that Caldwell with Bowstring Joe's wife, Susan, were in a canoe followed by himself and Bowstring. The canoe containing Caldwell was lighter than theirs and made better time. Caldwell on crossing the lake landed at a spot around a point and invisible from the place at which he and the other Indian disembarked. When they landed they heard screams and loud talking. Bowstring immediately ran ahead to see what was the matter while the witness remained to secure the canoe. When he reached the scene he stated that he saw Bowstring stab Caldwell. Witness then grabbed the Indian's wrist and prevented him from dealing Caldwell another blow. He picked up the knife with which the stabbing was done and threw it into the lake. He then ran away, frightened at what he had seen and having satisfied himself that Caldwell was dead.

Susan Bowstring testified that Caldwell made improper advances to her and then attacked and beat her so badly that she was unable to see what did happen.

THEATER ORDINANCE INDORSED BY CLUB.

Edmund M. Morgan, the attorney who drafted the so-called Moore ordinance regulating theaters, addressed the Park Point Improvement club at length last evening, taking up the principal features one by one and discussing them.

He stated that it is not directed against any individual or special theater, but is intended to prevent the exhibition of any pictures or performance of an immoral nature. He said that some of the managers of local moving picture houses are entitled to much credit for the character of the films they have been putting on their canvases. He explained that ordinances of this kind are in force in Cleveland, Washington and New York and that one preventing the reproduction of crimes is in force in Kansas City, Mo. At the close of the meeting a resolution was passed indorsing the ordinance and asking the aldermen of the Fourth ward to do all in their power to secure its passage.

YOUTH IS GIVEN A STRAIGHT JAIL SENTENCE.

Ell Young, the 19-year-old youth who was arrested for giving whisky to two 17-year-old girls of the West end, entered a plea of guilty when arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon. Judge Windom gave him thirty days straight in the county jail.

In passing sentence the court stated that such performances cannot be allowed and that the authorities would be severe in dealing with such cases. Edward Beers, who is said to have been with Young at the time, was arraigned at the same time on a warrant charging him with indecent assault. The charge constitutes a felony and he asked for a preliminary examination, which was set for next Monday. Bail was fixed at $500. The girls did not appear in court yesterday. They are said to be the daughters of well known West end residents. They were brought to the police station with Young and released on the appearance of their fathers.

Here's a letter from J. D. West, State Agent for the Monarch Malleable-Range, in regard to "the modern wonder fuel."

"The Best Fuel We Ever Found for a Range"

St. Paul, Minn. Nov. 17, 1910.

Northwestern Fuel Co.,
St. Paul,
Minn.

Gentlemen:

During our recent Monarch Range demonstration at Smith & Bois Furniture Co.'s store we used Stott Briquets as our only fuel for two weeks. We thought perhaps you would be interested in knowing what success we had with them. We wish to say that we think Stott Briquets are about the best fuel we have ever found for a range, and they are certainly everything you claim for them. They are clean, last well, easily handled, give an intense heat when wanted and hold the fire well when under check. There is nothing left but the ash.

We can cheerfully recommend them to any housekeeper who appreciates a nice, clean fuel for her range.

Very respectfully yours,
J. P. West

CRAZY OVER PLEVITSKY

She Is Without Beauty or Grace, But Oh! She Can Sing.

Peasant Girl's Voice Captures Czar and She Becomes Famous.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 27.—Soulful Russia has found some one to console it for Tolstoi, in a little singer, by name Nadezhda Plevitsky. 'Poets write odes to her, artists paint her, and enterprising impresarios fight for her. Even morose, inartistic Czar Nicholas wired to her to travel 2,000 versts and sing him out of his tedium. He paid her compliments, and what's rarer with him—money. And when she sings the mournful songs the peasant women sang at Tolstoi's funeral, every one begins to cry.

Nadezhda Plevitsky has a romance which rivals Maxim Gorky's. She is ugly, graceless, illiterate, the child of grimy peasants; and was quite unknown two years ago. In a single day she burst through the bonds of misery and neglect and became famous. She was born some two decades ago in the tattered village of Vinnokova in the hungry province of Kursk, and she was the daughter of an unlettered peasant, who on the day of her nativity stripped the thatch from her cabin roof to feed his only horse. She was fed—instead of on milk—on wet rye bread strained through a rag; and when she grew a little older she was soundly whacked.

Sent to a Convent.

Nadya's mujik father looked with disfavor on this extra hungry mouth, and when Nadya was 10 years old, he had a brilliant idea. "Our Nadya," he said, "is too ugly to find a husband. Let's put her in a convent while there's time." And he whisked his little girl into the convent of Kursk, where they told her she was ugly enough to be a saint, and set her to washing dishes. And Nadya washed the dishes and whiled away the time by singing "The One-Year Branch" and "The Strip of Field" and many other plaintive, heart-searching melodies, begotten of hunger, of cold, of the overwhelmed snow-veiled heavens and the unremitting parental stick.

Seven years Nadya remained in the convent. A new black dress brought her back to the world. When it was time for her to become poslushnitsa—the first irrevocable stage in conventual life—she needed a dress for the ceremony. As Nadya's father could not pay, the nuns made it. Nadya today confesses that when she first drew on the dress, she felt a thrill of vanity, and even for a second wrongly imagined that she was not ugly. And that night she crept surreptitiously out of the holy institution, and went to a circus. The clown kidnaped her, and introduced her to circus life; and when Nadya's parents found her and took her back, she fled from the thatchless cabin and joined Herr Lipkin's choir.

Joined a Polish Ballet.

After that she was in a Polish ballet, where she found a husband, but seldom found a dinner; and she danced the mazurka with her husband and was guyed because she could not dance. She tried, too, fifty other things, and for some years had dinner twice a week. She did not know that she had a voice. But one fateful day, in despair at finding some way of earning a living, she sounded sadly the utter-most depths of her memory, and remembered the tearful melody, "The Strip of Field." That night she sang it, and the blase audience began to cry, and next morning she was famous.

And everyone began to marvel both at her remarkable mezzo-soprano voice, which had never been trained, and at the miraculous, long-undiscovered songs of the Russian mojik. The tenor Sobinoff took her up, and Schallpin praised her, and the impresario Minkevitch offered her untold sums. People immediately advised her to go to Italy and be trained; and others counseled her on no account to go to Italy, but to remain as she was. And she remained.

"When I sang to the czar and the czarina at Tsarskoe Selo," says Nadezhda, "his majesty told me not to spoil myself by learning academic singing. And I intend to remain a plain peasant woman. I have no pretensions; and if people like the songs I sing that is enough for me."

Crazy Over Her Voice.

Russians do not do things by halves. They had a cult of Maxim Gorky, partly because he is a genius and party because he was a tramp. They are making a cult of Plevitsky for just the same reasons. The musicians are crazy over her voice and the Populists, who worship rags and misery, are delirious over her past. She is called the village Tetrazzini. The artist Melnikoff draws her and tries to make her beautiful and then he remembers that art is truth—and makes her ugly. Radical publicists quote her sad songs in order to make capital against the governemnt. Vulgar people exclaim at the enormous sums she earns. Americans would not think them enormous. They reach some $500 a night. But Russia is a hard-up land and the great Pavlova, before her first European successes, was content at the Mariya theater with $2,000 a year.

But Nadya, though unspoiled by her glory, is very pleased with $500. She is pleased with the flattery of Czar Nicholas and with the change of mind among the nuns of Kursk who now ask her to sing for charity. But what pleases her most is that the muzhik people claim her as theirs and collect with their brick-faced wives beneath her window, shouting in sibilant Russian: "Come out, Nadya, and give us a song! Give us 'The Strip of Field.' Nadiusha, darling, show us your dear, ugly face, Nadezhda, and sing us something that'll make us cry."

The Best Dry Shampoo.

Any one can easily and cheaply make this splendid "dry shampoo." In fact, thousands are using it in preference to any other hair dressing. Water and alcohol tonics, soap shampoos, etc., are often injurious to a fine head of hair. Here is the formula:

Powdered Orris Root .....6 Ozs.
Antiseptic Vilane Powder.....2 Ozs.

Mix thoroughly and keep in a tight jar or box. At night sprinkle a tablespoonful over the hair and work into the scalp with the fingers. The following morning comb and brush until thoroughly removed. This makes the hair healthy, lustrous and beautiful. Get the ingredients of any well-stocked druggist.

Capt. John P. Thorn of Oakmont, Penn., writes: "I have had much trouble with my bowels for over 25 years, (constipation), and have tried all the different kinds of physics on the market, but all of them got old, or ineffective in my case and would soon fail to give any relief and would gripe me so much when compelled to increase the dose that they made my bowels so sore and painful that I was never real well; then I would have to lay off and take a dose of Calomel and follow it with a dose of salts. But your Blackburn's CascaRoyal-Pills are different, and by taking one every night at bedtime, it gives me a free movement of the bowels every morning after breakfast without griping, straining or burning sensation. PREFER THE POORHOUSE

Wise Old English Paupers Want No Old Age Pensions.

Costs $2.50 a Week to Care for Them in Workhouses.

London, Jan. 27.—"How to Live Well on $1.25 a Week," is the title of a book which frugal young husbands are fond of presenting to their newly made wives. It has been suggested that Lloyd George, the chancellor of the exchequer, should invest in a few thousand copies and present them to the inmates of the English workhouses.

For these English paupers are displaying a disgusting lack of thrift, not to say of gratitude. When the old-age pensions act became a law a year ago a howl was raised by the Socialists and labor men because it didn't take in paupers, the term pauper being applied technically to those already in receipt of relief under the poor law. Lloyd George who always has his ear to the ground, lost no time in explaining that the only reason he didn't give it to the paupers as well as to those who had managed during their 70 years of life to keep out of the workhouse was because he hadn't the money. He promised that the pauper disqualification should be removed on Jan. 11, 1911, and he has kept his word, but now, astonishing as it may seem, it appears that the paupers don't want it removed.

The truth is that these destitute old people don't think they can live well on $1.25 a week, which is the amount of the state old-age pension. They prefer to remain in the comfortable workhouses where they are housed, fed and clothed and have servants to wait on them at a cost to the state of something like $2.50 per week a head. They don't see how, if the state has to spend $2.50 at wholesale rates to care for them they can look after themselves at retail for half the sum.

Few Apply for Pensions.

There are in the workhouses in England and Wales about 70,000 old people who are eligible for old-age pensions, and so far only 15 per cent of them have applied for the pensions. In London only 10 per cent of those eligible have applied. Most of the others say frankly that they are quite comfortable as they are, and that they don't intend to undertake the worry and trouble of doing for themselves on so ridiculously small a dole. What is more, the workhouse masters declare that they expect to see half of those who have applied for pensions back again in the workhouses within a month. Some of them are still more optimistic, and expect their guests back at the end of the first day. This attitude is justified by the conversations with the prospective pensions most of whom have only the vaguest ideas of how they are going to manage their new found wealth. One fellow of 80 in a London workhouse told the master that he proposed to live in a lodging house and pay 12 cents a night for his bed. When it was pointed out that he would have only 41 cents a week left for food and clothing, he replied airily that he would do a little peddling to help out. He had no answer when the master reminded him that peddler's license costs $1.25 in London, and that he would need some money to buy stock.

An old woman who was similarly questioned declared that she was going to continue to live in the workhoue. Her idea was that the pension was just so much pocket money allowed her by the state, and she had made great plans for spending it on beer and snuff.

Some More Sensible.

But some of the paupers are more sensible. An old fellow in the city of London workhouse, when he was asked if he didn't want to apply for a pension replied: "Not me. I'd pay $2.50 a week gladly if I had to be kept where I am. Why, I have meat every day and all I want to eat. I have a good bed and plenty of fire and an armchair to sit in and all the papers and books I want to read, and I have lots of people to talk to. And, above all, I have not to do a hand's turn of work unless I want to. If I took my $1.25 I would have to go to live with my daughter, who is a widow with five children and lives in an East end tenement. I would have to share my food with them, and I would have no fire and only a pile of rags to sleep on, and no one to talk to. No thanks, I am going to stay here as long as you will keep me."

Many of the workhouse masters believe that most of the old people who apply for pension will have a day or two's spree with the first $1.25 and then will return to the workhouse penniless.

The whole thing, of course, is a cheap politician's bid for popularity. The cry of pensions for the aged sounds very well, but even in England $1.25 a week is no use to anyone who had not some other source of income. In many cases during the last year coroners have denounced the act as the direct cause of many of the deaths they inquired into.

SISTER TO HER MOTHER

Result of Young Girl Being Adopted By Grandparents.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 27.—Through a strange series of incidents little Barbara Louise Young, who was legally adopted by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Will of Everett road, Dorchester, becomes a sister of her own mother, Mrs. Marie E. A. Young.

This strange case was brought to public attention of divorce proceedings brought by John A. Young, who charges desertion. When the suit was started it is said that Mrs. Young had all intentions of contesting, hoping to obtain the custody of her girl.

The child at that time was living at the home of her grandparents, who had become attached to her. So great had this attachment become that they sought means by which the child might remain in the family without a fight in the courts.

The consent of Mr. Young was obtained, and this, with that of his wife, brought about the required results.

The child, by law, is a sister of her own mother.

HUSBAND SAVED---WIFE OVERJOYED.

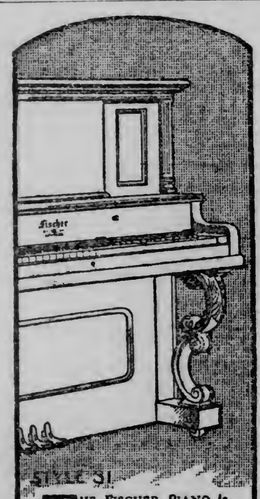

Gratitude Filled Letter Received by Boston Drink Cure Firm.

"Gentlemen:—I feel it my duty to tell you how grateful I am to you for saving my husband from a drunkard's grave. My husband had drank steadily for ten years, and although at times he really seemed to make a determined effort to stop, the craving was stronger than his will-power. I had tried three advertised so-called cures, without the slightest effect; in fact, they only seemed to aggravate his appetite. A friend of mine whose son was cured by your blessed medicine, told me about it, but it was with very little confidence that I started giving him White Ribbon Remedy. He did not realize the damage drink was doing him and his business. He was not sober long enough. Whenever I tried to talk to him about taking a remedy to relieve his appetite for liquor, he would fly into a rage and say: "Haven't you any sense at all? Why, woman, all such things are frauds.' But how little he knew. It has been three weeks since he has touched a drop and our home is now so happy. I gave him all the eight boxes secretly."

The name of the writer of the above letter is, of course, withheld, because all such correspondence is considered absolutely confidential by the White Ribbon Remedy company.

The White Ribbon Remedy is honestly made by honest people, with the sincere desire to help the homes that are being injured and, perhaps, even desolated by alcohol. It is odorless, tasteless, contains absolutely no habit-forming drugs, may be administered secretly if desired, and has proven its efficiency so many times that those who earnestly desire to win the drinker from the alcohol habit may begin treatment with the utmost confidence that splendidly gratifying results will follow.

White Ribbon Remedy costs $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. It may be obtained of all the Hegeman & Co. stores, New York city, or direct from the White Ribbon Remedy Co., Boston, Mass.

FREE TRADE IN FOOD PRODUCTS

Liberal Concessions By United States and Canada in Duties on Manufactured Commodities—Rough Lumber Comes in Free—President Taft Urges Prompt Legislation to Carry Out the Agreement.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Urging the quick passage of a reciprocity arrangement between the United States and Canada, President Taft yesterday sent to congress a special message, accompanied by the agreement looking to such an arrangement reached by representatives of both governments.

Usually such arrangements take the form of a treaty, but in the present instance this was not done with the result that considerable time will be saved in the consummation of the agreement, which can be made effective by a simple majority vote in each of the two legislatures.

The animating purpose of Secretary Knox appeared to have been to secure a reduction of the "high cost of living" by greatly enlarging the free list so far as it relates to foodstuffs coming from Canada.

The intention of the commissioners to remove all duties on printing paper and wood pulp was effected so far as the Dominion government could do it, outside the limitations existing in the laws of the Canadian provincial government imposing export duty on wood cut on crown lands in Canada.

The agreement to become effective must be put in the shape of law amendatory of the existing tariff act in the United States and in Canada and it will require sharp work to accomplish this, so far as congress is concerned, in the brief period of time remaining of the present session.

The President's Message.

"Identity of interests of two peoples linged together by race, language, institutions and proximity," the president gives as the chief reasons for reciprocity.

Liberality in the treaty is recommended by President Taft. "Equivalency should be sought," he said, "in an arrangement of this character but an exact balance is neither imperative nor attainable." He mentions also the long standing controversy over the Atlantic fisheries and to the "equitable arrangement recently reached between our interstate commerce commission and the similar body in Canada in regard to through rates on between the two countries."

A reciprocal trade agreement is the logical sequence, says President Taft.

"The guiding motive is seeking adjustment of trade relations between two countries so situated geographically should be to give play to productive forces, as far as practicable, regardless of political boundaries.

Broad View Demanded.

"We have reached a stage in our own development that calls for a statesmanlike and broad view of our future. We have drawn upon our natural resources in such a way as to invite attention to their necessary limit. This has properly aroused effort to conserve them. We have so increased in population and in consumption of food products and the other necessities of life, either to be supplied largely from our own country, that, unless we materially increase our production, we can see before us a change in our economic position.

"We have on the north of us a country contiguous to ours for 3,000 miles with natural resources of the same character as ours, which have not been drawn upon as ours have been."

President Taft holds that a commercial agreement with Canada "by which we shall have direct access to her great supply of natural products without an obstructing or prohibitory tariff, is not a violation of the protective principle."

The president says that the Canadians "soon must decide whether they are to regard themselves as isolated permanently from our markets by a perpetual wall or whether we are to be commercial friends.

Effect on Cost of Living.

As to the effect the treaty would have on the cost of living in the United States, the president says:

"I do not wish to hold out the prospect that the unrestricted interchange of food products will greatly and at once reduce their cost to the people of this country. But a source of supply as near as Canada would certainly help to prevent speculative fluctuations.

"My purpose in making a reciprocal trade agreement with Canada has been not only to obtain one which would be mutually advantageous to both countries, but one which would also be truly national in its scope as applied to our own country and would be of benefit to all sections. The current of business and the transportation facilities that will be established forward and backward across the border cannot but inure to the benefit of the border states. Some readjustment may be needed. That the broadening of the sources of food supplies, that the opening of the timber resources of the dominion to our needs, that the addition to the supply of raw materials will be limited to no particular section does not require demonstration.

One Difficulty.

"Both countries in their industrial development have to meet the competition of lower priced labor in other parts of the world. This had made it difficult to extend the principle of reciprocal rates to manufactured commodities, but we have succeeded in doing so in various important instances.

"Reciprocity with Canada must necessarily be chiefly confined, in its effects on the cost of living, to food and forest products.

"This trade agreement, if entered into, will cement the friendly relations with the dominion. It will extend the market of the United States among the inhabitants of a neighboring country with an increasing purchasing power. It will deepen and widen the sources of supply in contiguous territory."

President Taft concludes his message by calling Canada "our good neighbor."

Summary of Changes.

The state department gave out a summary of the tariff changes provided for, as follows:

"The basis of the agreement is this: "Reciprocity on leading food products such as wheat and other grains; dairy products, fresh fruits and vegetables, fish of all kinds, eggs and poultry, cattle, sheep and other live animals. Also certain commodities now free in one country are to be made free by the other, such as cottonseed oil by Canada and rough lumber by the United States.

"Tin and terne plates, now dutiable in both countries are made mutually free; barbed wire fencing now exempted from duty by Canada, is also exempted by the United States. Some raw materials such as mica and gypsum, which enter into numerous industries, are to be made free by the United States. Printing paper is to become free on the removal of all restrictions on the exportation of pulpwood.

"Mutually reduced identical rates on secondary food products, such as fresh meats, canned meats, bacon and hams, lard and lard compounds, canned vegetables, flour, cereal preparations, and other foodstuffs partly manufactured.

"Mutually reduced rates on a list of manufactured commodities which includes motor vehicles, cutlery, clocks and watches, sanitary fixtures, satchels and similar leather goods, plate glass, brass band instruments, printing ink, and miscellaneous articles. Agricultural implements, such as plows, harvesters, trashing machines and drills are reduced by Canada to the United States rates.

"A small list of articles is given as special by each country. Canada reduces coal to 45 cents per ton and cement to 11 cents per hundred pounds. The United States reduces iron ore to 10 cents per ton, lowers the rate on aluminum products and on dressed lumber.

Amount of Duties Remitted.

"Total amount of duties to be remitted by the United States, $4,850,000.

"Total amount of duties to be remitted by Canada, $2,560,000.

"Value of articles now dutiable which the United States proposes to make free, $39,811,000, equal to 76.4 per cent.

"Value of dutiable articles on which the United States proposes to reduce duties, $7,521,000, equal to 14.4 per cent.

"Value of articles imported into the United States which are affected by the reciprocal agreement, $47,333,000, equal to 91 per cent.

"Value of articles remaining dutiable at full rates, $4,771,000, equal to 9 per cent.

"Value of articles now dutiable which Canada proposes to make free, $21,-$68,000, equal to 16.5 per cent.

"Value of dutiable articles on which Canada proposes to reduce duties, $25,-$70,000, equal to 19.5 per cent.

"Value of dutiable articles imported into Canada which are affected by the reciprocal agreement, $47,828,000, equal to 36 per cent.

"Value of articles remaining dutiable, $85,198,000, equal to 64 per cent.

"Amount of duty remitted by the United States on leading Canadian articles: Sawed lumber, $1,292,000; fish, $464,000; hay, $386,000; flaxseed and linseed, $352,000; wood pulp, $308,000; live animals, $276,000; vegetables $257,-000; printing paper, $165,000; oats, $142,-000; mica, $110,000; dairy products, $105,000; gypsum, $101,000; railroad ties, telephone poles, etc., $99,000; wheat flour, $97,000.

"Amount of duty remitted by Canada on leading articles from the United States: Coal, bituminous, $455,000; fresh fruits, $262,000; fresh vegetables, $242,000; cotton seed oil, $180,000; live animals, $162,000; paper, $161,000; meal, $147,000; agricultural implements, etc., $140,000; fish of all kinds, $100,000; meat products, $93,000; motor vehicles, $91,000."

Print Paper Provision.

The text of the print paper provision of the agreement is as follows:

"Pulp of wood mechanically ground; pulp of wood, chemically bleached or unbleached; news print paper and other paper and paper board, manufactured from mechanical wood pulp or from chemical wood pulp or of which such pulp is a component material of chief value, colored in the pulp or not colored, and valued at not more than 4 cents per pound, not including printed or decorated wall paper, free.

"Provided, that such paper and board, valued at 4 cents per pound or less, and wood pulp, being the products of Canada, when imported therefrom, directly into the United States, shall be admitted free of duty, on the condition precedent that no part duty, export license fee or other export charges of any kind whatsoever, (whether in the form of additional charge or license fee or otherwise, or any prohibition or restriction in any way of the exportation (whether by law, regulation, contractual relation, or otherwise, directly or indirectly, shall have been imposed upon such paper, board or wood pulp, or the wood used in the manufacture of such paper, board or wood pulp, or the wood pulp used in the manufacture of such paper or board.

"Provided, also that such wood pulp, paper or board, being the products of the United States, shall only be admitted free of duty into Canada from the United States when such wood pulp, paper or board, being the products of Canada, are admitted from all parts of Canada free of duty into the United States."

Changes By Legislation.

The Canadian commissioners made it plain that, in their understanding, both governments would try to make the tariff changes by legislation instead of by treaty. Neither shall be prevented from making any change in tariff policy in the future.

The Canadian commissioners point out that the provisions which the United States proposed to make regarding the importation of paper and pulp must, for the present, remain inoperative. This is because the provincial government's interest cannot be interfered with by the Canadian government. In the meantime the present duties on pulp and paper imported from the United States into Canada will remain.

The Canadian commissioners declared it was agreed that the utmost care should be taken by both governments to see that only such customs regulations are adopted as are reasonably necessary to prevent fraud.

The government of Canada agrees that American fishing vessels shall hereafter be able to fish in Canadian waters at a nominal fee of $1 per annum.

It is stipulated that the legislation on either side may contain a provision that it shall not become effective as to rates until mutual action in that direction is assured.

Secretary Knox in a note of the date of Jan. 21 regrets the inability of the commissioners to adjust their differences on the subject of wood pulp, pulp wood and print paper.

Cattle and Grain on Free List.

Among the articles now dutiable that go on the free list are cattle which are now dutiable at the rate of from $2 each to 27.5 per cent coming into the United States and at 25 per cent going into Canada.

Canadian wheat is taxed 25 cents per bushel entering America, which is more than double the rate American wheat coats imported into Canada. All feed products like oats, barley, buckwheat and the like now pay duty ranging from 15 to 45 cents per bushel coming from Canada and from 10 to 25 cents entering Canada from the United States. Hay pays $4 a ton going to Canada and $2 returning. All these will now be free, if the agreement is ratified.

Canadian flaxseed, which is now taxed 25 cents a bushel, will come into this country free. All kinds of garden seeds will be free; they now pay duties ranging from 4 to 10 cents a pound.

The Canadians can ship codfish into the United States fresh or salted or smoked, where it now pays a duty of ¾ cent per pound. The same is true of halibut, now dutiable at 1 cent, and herring, which pay ¼ cent per pound fresh, and ½ cent pickled or salted. Any kind of mackerel will be free, where they now pay 1 cent a pound coming from or going into Canada.

All other sea fish and salmon, fresh and smoked and prepared in various ways, will be free, where they now pay as much as 30 per cent duty on each side of the line.

Rough Lumber Free.

Canadian timber now dutiable at ½ cent per cubic foot, and all kinds of planks of different wood, now dutiable at 50 cents to $1.50 per 1,000 feet, and telegraph poles, now paying 10 per cent, and pickets at 10 per cent, all go on the free list.

American tin plate and crucible steel wire, which now pays 5 per cent duty, will be admitted into Canada free and the same is true of barbed fencing wire, coming from Canada, which now pays ¾ cent a pound.

Some of the articles that are to be admitted at reduced rates of duty on both sides follow: Mutton and lamb, 1¼ cents pere pound, a reduction of ¼ cent on Canadian mutton and of 1¾ on American mutton. The same rates apply to other fresh meats. Bacon is reduced from 4 cents to 1¼ cents coming from Canada and from 2 cents to the same figure entering Canada. About the same rate of reduction holds good in the case of salt beef, pork, dried and smoked meats and salted meats.

Canned meats, coming from Canada, are reduced 54 cents to 20 cents, and crossing from the United States they will pay 20 per cent instead of 27½ per cent. There is a reduction of ¾ cent a pound on Canadian lard and ¾ cent per pound on American lard. Wheat flour from Canada, instead of 25 per cent, will pay 50 cents per barrel and American flour will pay the same rate to Canada, where it is now 60 cents. Cornmeal from Canada will pay 12½ cents per 100 pounds instead of 40 cents, and the same meal from the United States will go in at 12½ cents per 100 pounds where it now pays 25 cents a barrel.

Agricultural Implements.

There is no reduction in the case of Canadian agricultural implements entering the United States, which will still continue to pay 15 per cent. But the American implements entering Canada will do so at 15 per cent where they now pay from 17½ to 20 per cent. Some special Canadian implements, such as horse powers, portable engines, hay loaders, potato diggers, rollers, windmills and hay toddlers, which now pay 30 to 45 per cent duty, may hereafter come in for 20 per cent, while the Canadians reduce their own duties on the same articles from 25 per cent to 20.

American cutlery, which now pays 30 per cent, entering Canada, will be reduced to 27½ per cent and Canadian cutlery may come in at the same figure, where it now pays rates as high as 40 per cent.

American clocks and watches, now taxed 30 per cent, will go into Canada at 27½ per cent, and Canadian canoes and smal boats, which now pay 35 per cent, may enter at 22½ per cent.

REDUCTION IN THE COST OF LIVING PREDICTED

be ratified and hope that congress will take that action. They believe that in the interests of the consumer no restrictions of any kind should be placed upon foodstuffs, while they hold that the American farmer will not be injured by the free admission of grains nearly as badly as he has feared.

Of one thing they are certain. The volume of grain passing through the port of Duluth will be greaty increased, much export grain that is now passing through Port Arthur and Fort William will be diverted to this port as soon as an adjustment of freight rates is obtained, and Duluth will become the gateway of the whole Northwest, American and Canadian.

"The Duluth grain market will be broadened greatly if the treaty is ratified by congress and there is no doubt but that a greater volume of grain will pass through Duluth," said A. W. Frick, president of the board of trade, this morning. "As soon as rail rates are adjusted, Duluth will be brought into competition with the Canadian markets and I do not believe that Duluth has anything to fear. The primary result of the free admission of wheat and other grains would be a reduction in the cost of living, I believe, and that is something always to be desired. We cannot tell just how the arrangement will work out, but of one thing I am certain. The free admission of grain will be a great commercial asset for Duluth and we are all anxious to build up the city."

No Injury to Farmer.

"The American farmer will not be hurt nearly as badly as he has feared," said Julius H. Barnes, former president of the board. "Exports of wheat from the United States last year were only about 50,000,000 bushels, a great falling off. Each year we are having less grain for export, and the American farmer is finding a market at home for his products. Crops have been less than normal, of course, but when we have normal crops and a surplus for export, American wheat is on a competitive basis with Canadian wheat abroad and we must meet the prices to sell our wheat. Our market here will be broadened and it will be a great thing for Duluth."

"The effect of the free admission of wheat and other grains is a great question and before forming any definite opinons we must wait to see how it works out," said W. J. McCabe, vice president of the board of trade. "I am certain that the volume of grain trade in Duluth will be greatly increased and I am also certain that the cost of living, as it applies to grain products, will be reduced. I do not believe that restrictions should be placed on foodstuffs.

"The spring wheat production of this country for this year is estimated at about 200,000,000 bushels. The Eastern mills take a portion of that production and the demand, between Eastern and Northwestern mills, is such that the price is kept at a high level. Although spring wheat makes a better grade of flour, the spring wheat crop cannot supply the Northwestern mills with wheat in sufficient quantities at such a price that the Northwestern mills can enter the Southwest market in competition with the flour made from winter wheat.

Importing Wheat.

"We have been importing wheat from Canada right along, paying a duty. Even with the duty attached, the mills were able to use that wheat for the better grades of flour. The consumer has paid the price. If Canadian wheat is admitted free, it cannot cut the American farmer off from his market, for there is not enough of it. It may reduce the level of price slightly, but that is for the benefit of the consumer.

"Eastern mills have been importing Canadian oats for some time, paying a duty of 15c a bu. The quality is so much better than that of American oats that it was profitable to import Canadian oats for rolled oats and such food products. The manufacturers will be able to get their oats cheaper and in all reason, the consumer should benefit."

Duluth is most concerned with the effect on this city and grain men are all agreed that the free admission of grain will increase the volume of grain passing through here, that the business of the commission men will be expanded, that greater elevator service will be required and that the mills of the Northwest will have their territory expanded through ability to get a greater supply of grain.

The first step will be adjustment of railroad rates so that grain may be brought into this country under favorable circumstances with the duty removed. With the completion of the Canadian Northern railway, Duluth will have a direct line to the Canadian Northwest. The Canadian Pacific will soon have a line completed, which will bring Duluth into closer touch with the same district. Duluth will be in a position to command the Canadian grain trade and Duluth will take full advantage of it.

"Duluth should logically be the center of the grain trade in the whole Northwest, on both sides of the border," said one grain man today. "If there had been no duty wall ten or fifteen years ago, Winnipeg would not be the grain market it is now nor would nearly the volume of grain passing through Port Arthur and Fort William have gone to those ports. We would have handled it here in Duluth. The American market is broader and, with normal crops, can handle its own crop, as well as a goodly portion of the Canadian crop."

SHOULD REDUCE PRICES.

Print Paper and Wood Pulp Provisions Are Satisfactory.

New York, Jan. 27.—In the matter of the print paper and wood pulp provisions of the reciprocity agreement, John Norris, chairman of the committee on paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, says the clause of the proposed reciprocity arrangement with Canada is entirely satisfactory and will provide for the immediate entry of print paper and wood pulp from Canada when made from wood cut from private lands.

If ratified by congress and the Canadian parliament, the arrangement should reduce print paper prices materially and promptly.

LONDON PAPERS SILENT.

Tariff Reformers Inclined to Look Askance at Agreement.

London, Jan. 27.—The afternoon papers are silent on the subject of the American-Canadian reciprocity agreement apparently waiting to hear from the political leaders.

The tariff reformers are inclined to look askance at the agreement as possibly harmful to imperial preference, but they do not wish to antagonize the Canadian government by criticism. They would have been better suited if the agreement should be postponed until after their imperial conference in May, from which they anticipate considerable grist for their tariff reform mill.

and they say that until the scheme has been worked out practically it will be impossible to gauge its value.

Popularly, the negotiation of this treaty is looked upon in Duluth as a very creditable piece of work, according to the remarks heard on the streets and in cafes and hotel lobbies.

John R. McGiffert, secretary of the Clyde Iron Works, is among those who are greatly pleased with the successful termination of the negotiations between Washington and Ottawa.

"So far as our business in concerned, we would like to have free trade all along the line," he said. "I am not a free trader, in a broad sense; at least not to the extent of wanting the country to make a sudden jump into the free trade column, for that would involve a serious unsettlement of general conditions.

"This reciprocity arrangement will have no such effect and it is unquestionably a good thing, from our point of view. We ship a large quantity of goods to the Canadian markets, and even with free trade we would be in no danger of having serious competition on the other side of the border. If reciprocity results in the cutting of larger quantities of Canadian timber, we will profit by that fact. The more timber Canada cuts, the more business will she do with us."

"So far as the consumer is concerned," said John Comstock, who operates extensively in timber and pulp wood, "reciprocity will not make a bit of difference. If the duty on lumber is increased by the United States, the Canadian vender will tack just so much more on the selling price and lumber will cost the American user just as much as it does now. As we do not yet know the exact shaping up of the new conditions, we cannot tell just what will be the result in the pulp wood business."

Among the jobbers there is a pronounced disposition to withhold judgment until they can see what will be the effect of the agreement on general conditions. The prosperity of all the people is necessary to insure their own continued prosperity and for that reason they desire to wait until more detailed information is available.

SUNDAY WILL BE CARNATION DAY.

Sunday will be Carnation day, and those who treasure the memory of William McKinley, the martyred president, will wear a carnation on that day in his memory.

The day is the anniversary of McKinleys' birth, and as the carnation was his favorite flower the practice sprang up of wearing this flower on his natal day. At Washington the practice is followed almost unanimously, especially in official life, and Buffalo, where McKinley met his death, makes its observance a feature of the year.

Duluth florists always make special preparations for this day and they look for a decided increase in the volume of business this year.

BANQUET OF AUTO CLUB

Members Meet and Discuss Plans for Improving County Roads.

Entertainment Program for the Coming Summer Is Arranged.

About 100 enthusiastic members of the Duluth Automobile club met at the Spalding hotel last night for dinner and a business session. The meeting was most successful from both a social and business standpoint.

The club decided to push the section man scheme for the curing of country roads and to offer cash prizes for the section on each road kept in the best repair.

The reports of the different committees were heard. Each showed that the committee had put in a great deal of time studying the subject to which it had been assigned.

President Howard T. Abbott presided at the business session which followed the dinner. These informal gatherings have thus far been very successful. The dinner is held at the regular dinner hour and the business meetings are always over so that plans for the main part of the evening are not interfered with. A number of these gatherings will be held between now and the first of June.

Report on Roads.

The report of the good roads committee follows:

"We recommend that the united and individual efforts of all of the club members be directed towards getting the county board to place 'section' men in charge of the maintenance, repair and preservation of the main county roads (as has been the practice on the range for years) similar to the practice on all railroads. These section men are to be equipped with shovel, pick, axe, rake and wheelbarrow, and each to be placed in charge of ten miles of road, all to be under one or two foremen or superintendents. Their work is to consist of raking off loose rock, filling up depressions and smoothing out bumps and generally repairing the wearing surface of the road, and strict attention paid to perfecting and maintaining its drainage. We suggest that the club offer suitable, attractive and ample cash prizes to these section men for the best kept piece of section or roadway of each main road during the season, same to be awarded after inspection by a committee of the club.

"By thus keeping the roadways in good shape the automobilists will save an enormous amount annually in tire and repair expense, to say noth'ng of and saving in disposition and time and increase of pleasure. The county and taxpayers would also save many times the cost on the basis of the well-known principle that 'a stitch in time saves nine,' which was never more true than it is in road work.

"We recommend that a special committee be appointed to attend to the sign boards, as our committee would have to slight more important work in order to give the subject any attention.

"We also recommend that efforts be made towards getting the county to employ a competent engineer who shall set the grades and make the specifications for construction, maintenance and repair of roads and who will have the disposition and energy to see that his specifications are lived up to.

"We suggest that the following men be placed in charge of the following county roads:

"Lake Shore road, Stephen Jones; E. Lester river and Tischer, Paddy McDonnell; Jean Duluth road, John Williams; Vermilion road, C. T. Fitzsimmons; Rice Lake road, R. J. McLeod; Pike Lake road, J. Frank Williamson; Maple Grove road, Charles Duncan; Hermantown road, W. H. Cole; Thomson road, George F. Lindsay; Miller Trunk road, Pike Lake to Whiteface, E. J. Pillatrault; Morris Thomas road, some West end man; Cloquet road, some West end man; Fond du Lac road, some West end man.

"We suggest that some member be appointed to get in touch with each of the various auto clubs in Superior, Cloquet, Two Harbors and the range towns so that joint work can be done towards accomplishing a single purpose."

Bond to Port Arthur.

Another part of their report reads as follows:

"Communications have been received from similar organizations of Port Arthur and Two Harbors, the Port Arthur people being desirous of having the road completed between Duluth and Port Arthur, some twenty miles of which is impassable at this time. Said letter communicated the fact that the people of Port Arthur desire the co-operation of our club in the building and completing of the road whereby a splendid scenic drive could be constructed between Duluth and Port Arthur.

"Another communication from the Two Harbors people desires the co-operation of your committee on some five miles of road between Duluth and Two Harbors, the reply of your committee being to the Two Harbors people that that section was beyond our jurisdiction, and had to be left to the Lake county people.

"Relative to state law on good roads, your committee has the best reason to believe that the present delegation from St. Louis county, now in legislative session at St Paul, have under consideration a system, the best and most scientific that we can imagine at this time."

Some Suggestions.

In a communication to the Auto club F. A. Patrick made some of the following suggestions, which were taken under advisement and will probably be acted upon at the next meeting. The letter reads in part:

"I would suggest that individual members be placed in charge of certain strips of road inside the city limits. For example: Let some member take charge of the Woodland road which is now in very bad condition, and another of that part of the Lake Shore road lying inside of the city limits. This particularly needs attention for about a mile east of Lester river. Another member can make it his duty to get new blood of public works to put Eighth street from Woodland avenue, west to Nineteenth, and Nineteenth avenue east from Eighth street up to where it connects with the boulevard, in good condition. Similar other spots in the city could be placed in charge of the different members, who would make it their business to punch up the proper authorities and get work done, making report to the club from time to time.

"It occurs to me that it might strengthen the work of the club a good deal if a club house or two were erected some where on some of the roads leading out of the city. At present there is hardly any place to run to where you can get a meal with the exception of the Park hotel at Lake Lake and the hotel at Cloquet, and perhaps the restaurant at Fond du Lac. There is a beautiful spot for a club house on the banks of the Whiteface river where the Miller trunk road crosses it, and perhaps the range people would join in the establishment of a club house there. Such a place ought to be self-sustaining at least. An excellent location for a club house would be at Island lake, where there are a lot of vacant buildings belonging to the Cloquet Lumber company, or at least the Weyerhauser interests. There is an excellent road all the way to this place now and the use of the buildings could probably be secured at a very nominal charge.

"Another beautiful location would be on the lake shore or near the lake shore at Sucker river. Yours sincerely, (Signed) F. A. PATRICK."

New Ordinance Needed.

The committee on law and ordinances reported in part as follows:

"Your committee has considered the advisability of recommending city ordinances regulating both automobiles and pedestrians in the portion of the city where the traffic is congested. In the opinion of your committee many accidents could be avoided if we had an ordinance requiring pedestrians to use the regular cross-walks, and providing that in case they do not do so they must be on the lookout and must assume the risk of injury. Such ordinances are in force in nearly all the cities of Europe; but your committee is of the opinion that the public here is not yet educated to the point where such an ordinance could be passed; and, therefore, it is deemed inadvisable to seek its adoption."

Program for Summer.

The entertainment committee reported that after much consideration they had framed up a program for the coming summer, which they consider a good one, if all the members of the club will put their shoulders to the wheel and help.

On July 3 they plan to formally open the automobile season in Duluth with a demonstration including a parade and winding up with a banquet. In this parade they want every automobile owner in the city.

On July 23 there will be a hill climbing contest. An expert on contests of this kind will come here from Minneapolis, Milwaukee or Chicago to take charge of the affair. In this contest there will be prizes. The hill has not as yet been picked.

On Aug. 20 there will be a slow race on London road. The driver who can go a mile on high speed in the longest time will receive the prize.

On Sept. 3 and 4 there will be a run to the range towns. This will be for the purpose of meeting the range people and getting the Duluth people all away on a pleasure jaunt. It is hoped to clean Duluth of automobiles on these days, not leaving a single car in the city.

Secret Time Race.

On Aug. 12 there will be a secret time race. The time set for a run back into the country to some distant point and return will be known only to the committee in charge of the race. The pace may not be fast. It may be very slow. The driver who runs slowly will have as much chance to win as the one who makes fast time.

On Sept. 17 there will be a corn roast at Chub lake. The club members will take their own baskets, and it will be a real outing under the auspices of the auto club.

About the last of September there will be an endurance run to Minneapolis. This will be the big event of the year. Already plans are being made for it, and it is hoped to have a great many entries.

In October some time there will be an autumn leaf parade. In this parade the cars will be decorated with leaves gathered from the neighboring forests.

CENTRAL QUINT WILL MEET THE NORMAL TEAM.

Tonight the crack Central high school basket ball quint will meet the Normals of Superior. The teachers have a fairly strong team, according to reports and the high school boys expect a very hard game. The school boys are in good shape for the game of tonight and after the added experience with the Y. M. C. A. team should give a corking exhibition of the game.

Following is the lineup:

Duluth.		Normals.
Osman	center	Daley
Waldron	forward	Underhill
Harris	forward	Conley

NO MATCH FOR ORDEMANN

Lehto Never Had a Chance to Toss the Big Norwegian.

Local Man Puts Up Game and Stubborn Fight on Defensive.

Last night Karl Lehto put up a wonderful defense against the superior efforts of Henry Ordeman, the American champion, and, barring Gotch, the greatest of all American wrestlers, remaining on the mat something like 41 minutes for the first fall, the second and deciding fall going to the big Norwegian in 16 minutes and 45 seconds.

Ordemann secured the first fall with a crotch and half Nelson, while a toe and body hold did the work in the deciding bout. In all fairness to the big man from Minneapolis, who stands today just about where Frank Gotch stood to the American wrestlers before his sensational victory over George Hackenschmidt, it must be said that Lehto never had a chance to toss big Henry. But the remarkable defense the young Finn put up against Ordemann is deserving of a lot of credit, as Henry has justly earned the reputation of being a quick finisher.

From the start Ordemann assumed the aggressive and was the first to go behind. Several times in the first bout the big fellow had Lehto in tight places and it was only the remarkable ability of the Finn to stave off defeat by the remarkable strength of his neck in a bridge and also his cleverness in escaping from tight holds, that saved him from being thrown much quicker than he was.

Ordemann is all that has been said of him. In looks and action this young man, for he is only 26 years of age, looks the coming champion of the world. He has every attribute that goes to make a champion. Strength, speed, knowledge of the game and ensperd, insurance are the assets of the big boy, and it is reasonable to suppose that he will improve in the next four or five years. In the manner he handled Lehto, Ordemann convinced those present that there is no American grappler who has any chance to pin him.

Lehto Was Tired.

In the second bout the struggle of Lehto in staving off defeat for over 40 minutes plainly told, for he lacked the ability to put up so stiff a defense. Not that the young Finn made any game fight against the irresistible attack of the Norsk, going behind big Henry twice. On the offense Lehto could do nothing with Ordemann, who seemed as firm and strong as a mountain of muscle.

It is no disgrace to be beaten by a wrestler of the class of the Ordemann man, and the showing the last night by Lehto is a highly creditable one—one that stamps the young Finn as a coming man in the mat world. It is reasonable to expect that the Finn will get better, and if he does he will develop into one of the best men in the country.

Taking it all in all, the show last night was the best given at the Lyceum this season. A large crowd was on hand and every feature of the athletic entertainment was apparently appreciated by the big gathering of fans.

The pictures of the famous Gotch-Zbyszko match opened the show. Contrary to the opinion that many fans entertained of the Gotch-Zbyszko contest, Gotch did not disgrace himself, for as the films showed last evening, the Pole put up a stubborn and determined battle after the surprise and dismay of the lightning-like first fall had left him.

Martin Johnson, the wrestling fireman of this city, and Chris Person, put up a slashing bout as the windup to the big show. These two men have been rivals for some time, and last night they showed this feeling in the hot mat scrap they put up. Honors were about even, there was no marked advantage on either side, and the fans saw for 20 minutes of the fastest and hardest mat work that any preliminary has furnished the present season.

Compliment to Lehto.

Sitting in his dressing room after the match last evening, perspiring like a man who has just stepped out of the hot room of a turkish bath, big Ordemann paid a neat compliment to the young Finn.

"He is a tough and strong boy," said Ordemann, "and if he keeps improving and puts on some weight he is going to make a wonder. He is a hard man to beat as he is awfully strong in the neck and is as slippery as an eel. He is a tougher man than I gave him credit for."

George A. Barton of Minneapolis, sporting editor of the Minneapolis Daily News, and John Ritchie, sporting editor of the Minneapolis Journal, were two of the outside newspapemen here for the show. Both Barton and Ritchie commended the ability shown by Lehto, and Barton, who has seen them all, stated that outside of the big mat stars Ordemann has met the present season, men like Cutler and Zbyszko, Lehto is the toughest lesser light he has tackled.

According to Barton Ordemann will meet Cutler in Minneapolis next week, the match being wrestled with the toe hold barred. His remaining matches for the season have not been booked as yet.

"Henry stands today as the greatest of all the Americans," said Barton last night. "He stands just where Gotch did before he began to get so awfully good. He is only 26 years of age and it is reasonable to suppose that he will get better. He doesn't even drink coffee, so careful is he of his health, and he is so fond of work that he would be in the gymnasium about four or five hours a day, if he wasn't cautioned."

WISCONSIN MEN ROLL AT TOURNEY

Record Is Not Approached--Milwaukee to Have Next Meet.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 27.—Teams from Milwaukee, Juneau, Port Washington and Watertown, Wis., made the best of "Wisconsin night" in the five-men team competition here last night. Although the highest team fell nearly 300 pins short of the tournament record, some good games were rolled.

The Brunswick-Balke five of Milwaukee, with a total of 2,658 led the field. The Colonnas of Chicago were second with 2,632. Premosta of Port Washington were third and the Langtry-McBrides of Milwaukee fourth with 2,592.

Mild attacks were made on the pins by the individuals and the two-men teams. The highest scores in the doubles were pegged up by a Milwaukee team, Fenske and Gerboth leading with a score of 1,148. In the singles W. Gohl of St. Louis dropped 591 pins for the highest score.

Delegates of the American Bowling congress went into the third session yesterday. The amendment providing for the adoption of the individual plan of membership instead of a team organization, was laid on the table until next year.

The laying aside of the proposed amendment practically means that all of the present officers of the congress will be re-elected. Secretary Langtry reiterated his statement that he would not accept office again.

It is believed that he will reconsider his action, but the plan of raising the salary of the secretary to $3,000 a year, was laid over until the 1912 meeting. Milwaukee practically is assured of the 1912 tournament. Representatives of the Cream City, headed by Frank Cannon of the Milwaukee Business Men's association declared the association would donate $2,500 to land the tournament. Delegates from Chicago, Cincinnati and Columbus decided to withdraw in favor of Milwaukee.

BOXERS HAVE DISTINCTIONS

Chicago Pugilists Have Some Trait That Brings Distinction.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Even if all the Chicago fighters and other stars from this near locality cannot drag down championship titles during the courses of their careers they at least attain prominence as being the best at this or that outside of the ring.

A bunch of the fight fans started up a desultory conversation the other afternoon while watching a big bunch of athletes at their training stunts in a local gymnasium, and before long one of them had out a pad of paper and a pencil and began to enumerate what distinctive mark each of them could claim outside of his mere facial appearance.

From a discussion of the men then under their eyes the fans brought in many others in the business and before the men were through the paper was through with his task he had set down three sheets full of memoranda and some of it was interesting. Here are a few of the conclusions that were reached regarding the boxers:

Johnson's Rock Biggest.

Jack Johnson wears the biggest diamonds.

Al Wolgast is a very good second, pushing the negro hard.

George (Kid Knockout) Brown wears the smallest. They are hard to see with the naked eye.

Con Comiskey, who wants to go to Oklahoma and beat Carl Morris to death, has the biggest hand of any fighter in the world. He wears a glove that would be a No. 12 if they made them that big. He is the tallest fighter in Chicago—6 feet 3½ inches.

Jack O'Brien, Ray Bronson, Jim Corbett and Tony Caponi are about an even break as Beau Brummels. It would be a difficult matter to pick out the most dressy of the quartet.

Charley Cutler is the best all-around athlete in the business.

Kid Rose is the smallest—4 feet 7 inches. He ought to be carried around by Jack Johnson just to clown the act.

John Arthur Johnson is easily the auto king of the business even if he didn't beat Barney Oldfield.

Kid Broad Most Unhandsome.

Kid Broad of New York is the most unhandsome. He stands alone.

Can anybody reach Bob Fitzsimmons in the matter of tiny headwear? He gets along nicely with a 6¼ bonnet.

Johnny Coulon is the best developed of the whole lot, big or little. He has the real Apollo-like figure.

Packey McFarland is the real literary chap. The stockyards boy goes in for books ad can take an honest part in a discussion of the classics.

Score one more for Packey. He is the most managed of them all.

Jim Barry is the most traveled. Jim isn't satisfied and won't take the next fight unless the jump is at least 1,000 miles.

There's another double-header right here. Jim is the only fighter who wants to be a real detective. He is a connoisseur on Nick Carter.

Chuck Larson has the most iron in his system. He is a second Dick Burge, another Battling Nelson, a miniature Joe Grim. Hooks, jabs, swings—he eats 'em alive.

Earl Denning is the most persistent. Never knows when to stop fighting Johnny Coulon.

Next we have the White brothers, Jack and Charley. They are the most unbrotherly. They are in the same class and each says he is the better man.

Billy Papke of Kewanee is the real Oriental spendthrift of the procession. Ask Tom Jones or Billy Welsh.

REGATTA FOR MINNEAPOLIS

Duluth Crews May Be Asked to Compete in July Fete.

A dispatch from Minneapolis to The Herald states that plans are on foot in the Mill City for the holding of a big water fete some time in July, to celebrate the linking of Lake Calhoun with Lake of the Isles, and that crews from Duluth, St. Paul, Winnipeg and other cities will be asked to compete.

The dispatch says further that $1,000 will be donated for the purchasing of medals and trophies, and that if the meet is held, every effort will be made to make it one of the greatest regattas ever held in the Northwest.

If carried out, the Minneapolis regatta would come just before the big regatta that will be held in Duluth during the latter part of next July. The crews of the Duluth Boat club will be in great shape at that time, and a race at Minneapolis would be in line with further improvement.

It is believed that there will be a revival of interest in rowing in Minneapolis, and that in the event of the holding of the proposed regatta a club will be formed there for the purpose of placing a crew in the Northwestern rowing regatta in 1912.

ED ADAMSON LOSES TO YOUNG MILLER.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—Young Miller of St. Paul last night retained the welterweight wrestling championship by defeating Ed Adamson of Chicago, taking two out of three falls. Adamson won the first fall in eighteen minutes and ten seconds. Miller, however, took the second fall in fifty minutes and ten seconds and the third fall in ten minutes and thirty-five seconds.

YOST AFTER CORNHUSKERS

Michigan Coach Admits That Wolverines May Meet Nebraska Team.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—If Michigan and Nebraska meet on the gridiron next fall, another of the Wolverine claims will have been shattered. Coach Fielding H. Yost yesterday admitted that a Michigan-Nebraska contest would mean a schedule of eight games for the Ann Arbor institution, and, as the conference limits each school to seven, it will be another break from the Western rules and regulations for the Wolverines—right in the face of their oft-repeated statements that Michigan lives up to all conference requirements.

Admits Many Things.

Yost admitted several things yesterday. To all outward purport, the famous "Hurry-up" had been in Chicago on purely personal business, but he 'fessed up that he and Athletic Director Bartelme conferred with representatives of the University of Nebraska regarding a 1911 football game yesterday. The result of this conference the coach would not divulge, further than to say that, if played, it would make eight games for Michigan.

The fact that a game with Nebraska would make the eighth brought out the fact that seven games had been arranged among which are supposed to be Dartmouth, Ohio, Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt and Case. An offer of a game was received from West Point, but had not yet been acted upon, according to Yost. Because of Harvard cancelling its annual game the cadets now have a vacancy on their schedule and would like to meet Michigan at home. There is said to be a chance of a game with Princeton, but it is not considered very bright.

Bartelme and one or two students came from Ann Arbor for the conference and one of the students was with the coach the most of the time yesterday. Yost was most optimistic over the schedule for the coming season, but the student had a little kick to register.

No More Soft Money.

"Where are we going to pick up our pin money if we don't play against any conference teams; where are we going to get our soft bets?" was the plaint of the student.

"We are going to have a far stronger schedule than if we played every team in the conference," said Yost. "Where is there a strong team in the conference, anything Minnesota ran through the whole bunch like water through a sieve, and you know what we did to Minnesota. I am not worrying the least bit about games. The only trouble is that there are so many that we are having a hard time choosing them. We will have a schedule all right, and a good one, and don't you forget it."

OARSMEN OUT NEXT MONTH

Crew Candidates Will Be Placed on Machines Early in February.

It was announced yesterday that the first call for crew candidates would be made next month. It is the intention of the members of the rowing committee of the boat club to follow the example of St. Paul, and get the men on the machines for a thorough workout before they are able to get on the water.

The committee met yesterday and took this step. Another meeting will be held in the near future, when several members of the club will be appointed to get out the best rowing material and help during certain rounds of the year. It is the desire of the club officials to bring out a large number of green candidates, as the present season Duluth will endeavor to place four or five crews on the water.

Ernest Ver Wiebe, the big Harvard halfback, stated yesterday that he would be out for the crew if he could possibly arrange the time. The big football man should make a crack oarsman this coming season. A number of the old men have promised to come out, and although it is early to predict, it is very probable that the club will be represented by a veteran eight.

BOWLERS WILL ELECT OFFICERS.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 27.—Officers of the American Bowling congress will be chosen for the ensuing year at the final session of the executive committee this afternoon. It is practically certain that the present officials will be re-elected without opposition.

R. H. Bryson of Indianapolis, Ind., is slated for the presidency again and F. W. Gosewich of St. Paul has been nominated for first vice president. M. A. Phillips of St. Louis is up for second vice president and Louis Wehner of Dayton, Ohio, third vice president. F. L. Pasdeloup of Chicago, is the only candidate for treasurer.

The refusal of A. L. Langtry of Milwaukee to accept the office of secretary again caused much surprise among the delegates. He has served four years. No one has been named to succeed him.

"BILL" WITHERSPOON TALKS ON BOWLING.

"Bill" Witherspoon, one of the big men in the bowling affairs of St. Paul, was in the city yesterday. He came up here on railway business, for William is compelled also to work for a living, and incidentally to line some of the bowlers up.

"Booster Bill" says the coming bowling meet in St. Paul will be the biggest and most successful ever held in the Northwest. He has been instrumental in arranging other bowling meets for the Saintly City, and is in a position to know.

Next week the man from St. Paul will go to St. Louis, and will take some of the crack St. Paul bowling teams with him.

"We have 2,000 bowlers in St. Paul," stated "Bill" yesterday, "and every one of them is busy all the time. St. Paul is one of the greatest bowling cities in the country."

Lamy Wins Again.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Edmund Lamy won by a yard the three-mile race, yesterday's feature of the international amateur skating championships, defeating R. L. Wheeler of Montreal. R. T. Logan of Montreal won the junior mile event.

If Packey McFarland Could Make Lightweight Limit--Well!—Frank Gotch to Cross the Pond — Will Hoppe Quit the Billiard Game?

(BY BRUCE.)

Judging from the remarkable fighting form Packey McFarland has been exhibiting of late, and you have probably noticed that Packey is going some, it does seem as if there is no boy in the country who is the equal of the exceptionally clever boy from the stockyards district.

Talking on the showing McFarland made against Young Erne, an old fan of this city who has seen most of the best fighters in action, declared that Young Erne was rated among the very clever fighters of the East. Yesterday's dispatches said Packey made the Philadelphian look like a tyro at several stages of the contest.

Any time you see a boy outpoint a man like Freddy Welsh, and the little Englishman is credited with making a show of Abe Attel on the Coast, he must be come boxer, yes, indeed. That is exactly what McFarland did during certain rounds of the London encounter with Welsh, despite the fact that he only received a draw.

Drawing conclusions from the boxing ability Packey has shown of late, it would seem that he is improving wonderfully in his skill and ring generalship. He is a boy with brains and such a lad generally learns as he goes along. There are seen no boy in the ring who can compare in cleverness and speed with the curly-haired youth from the stockyards district.

It is very fortunate that he seems just over the light-weight limit. At the present time the best of the boys fighting in the lightweight division weigh around the 128 mark, for instance, Moran and Wolgast. Now if McFarland could make the lightweight limit and be strong there are many who hold the opinion favoring the chances of the Chicago lad.

Any time a fighter has to weaken himself in order to make weight—well, he just throws away so much chance of victory. It is both unfortunate for Packey and for the lightweight division that he finds anything Minnesota really cannot make the limit of the class he has fought so hard to remain in.

With McFarland a legitimate lightweight there would be merry competition in the lightweight brigade. Knockout Brown and Harlem Tommy Murphy are not considered in the class of Moran or Wolgast—that is, if the milling goes further than twenty rounds. But if McFarland were strong at 133 there would be another top notcher and the boys would be compelled to give him all the notice that his exceptional ability warrants.

There are many who wonder if Packey will mingle with the welterweights. He is at the present time clever than any of the welters, but it remains to be proven, whether he is rugged enough to withstand the punches of men like Harry Lewis, the Philadelphia Hebrew, who packs a terrific kick in either hand.

Yes, it is really too bad about McFarland, for there would be some sweet humming activity if only this boy could feel buoyant and optimistic after he had weighed in at 133 in the eventide.

After these many strenuous years on the mat, during which he has admirably accumulated quite a bundle of American dollars, it has been wafted forth from the news room that the world's champion wrestler will take a gentle sight seeing trip over certain portions of this old crust.

Big Frank to Enjoy Dear Old Life.

There have been many of those able Iowa farmers who have saved their money and enjoyed life after the battle and thrift of the work day. Mark Twain once wrote a very humorour book regarding the experience of one of these practical and keen Yankees abroad. The gang over Europe way have laughed at us, for we have sent many farmers abroad; and yet they always carried the rocks in their pockets.

Frank Gotch would make a great hit abroad. Dressed in the clothes that sometimes hide and at other times scandalously flatter the masculine form divine, Gotch looks and acts like a country gentleman, prosperous and happy, well able to take care of himself and on very good terms with the world. That is just what Frank is. He is a farmer and a very good one, according to the reports coming from old Iowa, and he possesses that faculty of being able to keep on the very best of terms with everybody, including himself.

The English would like Frank, and the Germans, ach Loule, when they found that the champion of the world is of German parentage, they would forget their German Oaks—a brand of wrestler—and their Carl Webbers and others, and insist on Frank meeting the kaiser. The boss of Germany is a first class fellow, if we may believe some of the accounts of him, and it might be that he would welcome our Frank with that delightful brand which the Germans know so well how to handle.

It is nice to be thrifty and collect a rock pile and travel and enjoy the world. How great it must be when you have reinforced your little old rock pile with a reputation the like of that held by the able Iowa athlete. If Frank and the new Mrs. Gotch take the trip across the Atlantic and then run down through Germany, maybe hitting Paris, though Frank is too German to like the French metropolis, and perhaps go to Australia before the trip is completed, why the big wrestler should have the time of his young life.

Gotch is a man with brains and judgment. From a raw farmer boy he has rounded into a character that you might be justified for mistaking for one of those prosperous Iowa bankers. He is a shrewd observer and learns much from life. When a man of Frank Gotch's attainments and rock pile, you mustn't forget that, travels abroad, he is going to enjoy it, don't you forget it, and then besides, the people on the other side will think a whole lot of Frank and cease to wonder why he is the champion of the world, before he returns from the pleasure jaunt.

Will Willie Quit the Billiard Game?

It will be really interesting to watch the future course of Willie Hoppe. He is the admitted king of the billiard world. From the press reports of the earnings of this young chap, he is making anywhere from $20,000 up per interesting annum. The bright lights, the admiration of fellow man for one who is a champion, and all that will conspire against the retirement of the greatest billiard player since the days of Wizard Jake Schaefer.

Papa-in-law has come across with the big forgiveness act, which you are more or less familiar with in the melodrama, if not at first and harsh hand. You know Willie was married and he took the ceremony on the run; in other words he eloped. Father Walsh has made his pile in the clothing business and is said to have objected to his daughter marrying a professional billiard player. Well, at that, $25,000 or so per year isn't awful. With economy on the part of the bride, the couple should be able to worry along on Willie's winnings.

But it seems, just like in the play, that father has consented to take Willie into the business if he will quit playing with those other professional handlers of the cue. Willie has apparently consented for the time being, but, Bill, watch and note whether he stays away from the game for all time.

Notice how few champions have quit in the full glory of their prime. We all thought that Frank Gotch was going to quit, but you may have noticed that he is back in the dear old wrestling game. The crowds, the lights, the big admiring stare of the crowd, the whispers of "there he goes," and all that stuff gets the hearts of men. They live on it. It becomes very necessary not so much for their complete happiness, for that is always relative; but to their content, to quell the restless spirit in their minds and hearts.

It is very hard to stay away from it, especially for a boy the age of Willie Hoppe. If he sticks to his decision and stays away from the green tables, the world will be the loser, for Willie is a class above the men playing billiards at the present time. He is the best there is, and in the ranks of the cue handlers there does not seem a man who can possibly reach that stage where he will compare with the wonderful form shown the present season by little Hoppe.

DULUTH BOWLERS WILL ATTEND BIG MEET.

Three bowling teams will be sent from Duluth to St. Paul. The International Bowling meet will be held next month in the Saintly City, and the Duluth teams hope they will carry off some of the honors. It was expected that this city would send a greater delegation, but at the meeting last evening it was decided that it was not best to send more than three five-men teams.

The following bowlers will make the trip from this city:

Fitgers, G. U. Ferguson, F. Lindgren, Gay Olsen, George Massey and Al. Lindgren.

Three Winners—Sam Olsen, Carl Berini, Paul Schultz, Andy Otterson, Fritz Steigler.

Stanley Shoe Company — Kelly, Compton, Harry Campbell, August Mausolf, Walter Staudt.

RHEUMATISM

PURIFYING THE BLOOD THE ONLY PERMANENT CURE

No case of Rheumatism was ever cured except by a thorough purification of the blood; just as long as the blood remains charged with fermenting uric acid poison, the painful disease will continue. The pains and aches of Rheumatism are simply superficial effects of the impurities in the circulation, and sometimes may be temporarily relieved by the application of plasters, liniments, hot cloths, etc. But the person who trifles with this dangerous disease by depending on local treatment alone, is certain to pay for the mistake with constant suffering later on. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism in the only way it is possible to cure the disease. It goes down into the blood, and removes the uric acid from the circulation, so that the nerves, bones, muscles and joints are lubricated and fed with nourishing elements instead of being continually irritated and inflamed with the sharp, uratic impurity. When S. S. S. has cleansed and purified the blood, the pains and aches cease, all inflammation disappears, stiffened muscles are made pliant, and every troublesome symptom of Rheumatism is permanently corrected. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

ENTITLED TO CLEAN CARS

Mayor Claims Street Cars Are Not Being Properly Cleaned.

Health Commissioner Says They Should Be Better Ventilated.

"Duluth is just as much entitled to clean street cars as to efficient car service," said Mayor M. B. Cullum this morning, when asked to explain more in detail the purpose of his communication to the council last Monday, dealing with this subject.

Mayor Cullum stated in plain words that many cars of the company are "filthy." He declared that they are not properly scrubbed or washed out, the floors and platforms being frequently covered with dirt and dust.

The mayor said that that was all there was to it. He asserted that he meant that the cars are not properly cleaned out and that they are insanitary, and that he proposed to remedy this condition if possible. He suggested that a hose should be turned on the floors every night, or other similar means taken to clean them.

Dr. H. E. Webster, health commissioner, said that he was not prepared to discuss this phase of the street cars, but he thought that they should be better ventilated. He emphasized the fact that the traveling public cannot be treated to too much fresh air for the benefit of their health. He remarked that altogether too often the atmosphere in the street cars is close and stuffy, tending to spread disease. He added that the company ought to adopt some regulation whereby the conductors would not sweep out the cars just before starting on their trips from the ends of their routes. He said that he has noticed that this is done to a considerable extent, the result being that passengers boarding the cars breathe their lungs full of the dust which clouds the cars.

A representative of the street car company declared this morning that the cars are cleaned out thoroughly every night. "They are mopped every night," he said, "and scrubbed out twice each week. The rattan seats are thoroughly cleaned out by the use of compressed air."

He stated that the only exception was one Saturday night recently when the entire crew was out all night running the snow plow in order to keep the tracks clear. He thought that the mayor might be referring to this particular instance. He admitted that the cars were rather dirty the next day, but added that the remainder of the time they have been the equal in cleanliness of street cars in any other part of the country.

Folly of Fat Easily Overcome

SLENDER Margaret Knolly, now, if you please. The fascinating leading lady of the Bijou, now more fascinating than ever, astonished all her friends on Broadway the other day by presenting to their admiring gaze a svelt and willowy form in place of the plump, not to say fat, outlines with which she gaily sailed away to new triumphs and foreign shores last January. After a good deal of diplomatic cross-examination from interested fat acquaintances the secret was cautiously whispered to a few dear friends, with the result that everybody knows it now. It was not exercise, nor fasting, nor sea air, nor worry about her new venture that had brought about this wonderful willowy change in the charming Margaret; no, none of these; nothing but a simple mixture which all good druggists are familiar with and can supply at small cost, to-wit: One-half ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and three and one-half ounces Peppermint Water. "Grown folks need a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime," explained the now slender Margaret. "It is simply wonderful. It takes off the fat quickly, as much as a pound a day, and keeps it off. You can eat what you like, too. In that respect it is unlike anything of the kind I ever heard of, and besides it has another splendid feature—it is entirely harmless, and will not cause wrinkles. I think it is about as essential a toilet article for the woman who is fat and wants to get thinner as face powder. In order to get the best results, however, you should buy the Marmola in the original package and mix it in with the other two ingredients agter you get home."

LAKESIDE SEES COMEDY ENACTED BY MAUD, THE MULE

Maud was mad and nothing under the murky skies of yesterday would please her stubborn and unyielding nature.

Maud is a mule, in the full sense of the word. She is about the mulest mule that ever played true to form. The little comedy drama in which Maud was featured in yesterday, is interesting, as it had a distinct plot, in Maud's mind at least, and there was action, comedy, tragedy and conformity, which the Greek rules tell us make the true and better form of amusement. There was unity of time, also.

Yesterday a humble son of toil from Knife River started for this city with a mule. He was happy and occasionally broke into warble. He was on speaking acquaintance with the sunshine stuff until he reached Lakeside. He had been told he had secured a good mule, and the animal truly did seem possessed with a kindly nature and the best of intentions.

Then something happened, or failed to happen, just as you will. The mean Maud stopped. The stop might be called permanent. At first this slight rest from free and regular progression on the part of Maud was taken by the happy owner as a mere idiosyncrasy, if you can associate that stuff with a mule—a passing peeve, a stomach ache, or anything of material nature.

Loses Patience.

The owner wrestled with and secured a hammer lock on patience. He was patience personified, with emphasis on the big P. But there are times when gentle patience ceases to be a virtue, and the owner of the mule, the mad mule, the mean mule, took a club and dealt the dear mule a wallop on the horn, which means in the English language the nose.

Maud shook her head in wrathful protest—but did she move? Answer: She did not. She stood like adamant, which means firm and of strong purpose, while the once patient owner whaled away, with full armed swings, his wrath rising as the gentle tide riseth with the coming of the tempest.

Suddenly an elderly and kindly man tapped him on the shoulder. The new owner of the mad mule, ceased for a moment and his eyes met the reproachful gaze of the gentle meddler.

"Cease my good man, pray thee, or I will call the minions of the law," admonished the elderly man.

The eyes of the owner of the mule bored like gimlets of fire into the placid countenance of the kindly man and they scorched holes into the tough hide of Maudie. But he was of country breeding and the word police conjured up visions of dungeons and crusts of bad baked bread, and his rising fear smote and overcome his running wrath. In his obsession of fear and sudden humility he reached out to stroke the poor puffed nose of Maud, and she reached for him with her teeth, sullen hate glowing from the depths of her somber eyes. That is the kind of a mule Maud is.

To skip blithely along, let it be said that the poor countryman was baffled. He was nonplussed, or foiled, perhaps is better. He scratched his head, which means puzzlement and deep conjecture. He knew not which way to turn.

By this time there were anywhere from fifty to 200 children enjoying with open-eyed wonder the mule melodrama. Older persons too, lingered from the throbbing activities of Lakeside to get the climax of the play.

The mule was finally taken to a stable, by gentle persuasion on the part of many of the assembled multitude, and the assistance of a stout rope, and left there for fifteen long hours to ponder and ruminate. This morning the settler discovered a neighbor driving back with a team of horses. Maud was hoisted into the sleigh and left Lakeside behind her with a parting "Hee-haw."

CITY BOOSTED AT STATE MEETING

Federation of Commercial Club Interested in Local Work.

Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club; John Stone Pardee, assistant secretary, and A. B. Hostetter, agricultural secretary, returned this morning from St. Paul, where they attended the annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs, which they described as a very profitable gathering. Mr. Hostetter read one of the most important papers heard at the meeting and it made a hit.

Agriculture was the keynote of the state meeting, and it was with surprise that many of those attending the convention learned of the great strides the Duluth Commercial club has made in the development of the agricultural possibilities of the surrounding territory. It seemed to be the sense of the convention that the Commercial clubs must realize that a community is not merely that portion of the population which lives within the city limits, but includes the farmers who live in the vicinity, as well.

Duluthians, who attended the sessions at St. Paul, were highly complimented on the volume and quality of work that has been done here, and there was a particular demand for information about the co-operative market that is maintained here.

GRAND LARCENY CHARGED.

Mankey and Lacallo Boys Face More Serious Allegation.

Ray and Arthur Mankey and V. Lacallo, arrested on charges of stealing wheat from a Northern Pacific car were confronted with more serious allegations when arraigned in police court this morning. The original charge was petty larceny, but this was changed to grand larceny. It is said the police have discovered witnesses who will testify that they saw the boys break into the car, which constitutes the more serious offense. They asked for an examination, which was set for this afternoon.

THROUGH ROUTE TO THE ATLANTIC

Playfair Counts on That in Offer to Buy Northern Company.

Some interesting information is contained in the news of the negotiations on the part of James Playfair of Midland, Ont., to purchase the stock of the Northern Navigation company, a steamship line that has branch offices in this city, and whose boats do a thriving business from this port, according to the annual report, just issued.

What is of most interest to Duluthians, is the fact that it is announced Mr. Playfair sees the prospect of a vast increase in the water commerce between the Head of the Lakes and ocean ports by the enlarging of the Welland canal, which he believes will establish an all-water route between the local port and the Atlantic coast.

The purchase of the Northern Navigation company by the Midland man would very probably mean the reducing of competition of the Canadian lines.

The annual report of the Northern Navigation company shows net earnings of $160,000. The company's gross receipts were $84,000 in excess of the company's receipts for the previous season, while the net receipts show a $20,000 gain over the preceding year.

Taking the company's present flourishing financial condition into consideration, together with the possibilities of an increase in water traffic by the enlarging of the canal, some vesselmen may see a shrewd move on the part of Mr. Playfair in his negotiations for the purchase of the steamship property.

"JIMMIE'S" BOLD FLIGHT

10-Year-Old Escapes From School Under Cover of Night.

Conductor Gives Him a Fortune and Another Man Offers Home.

Overcoming his fears of "bogeymen" and ghosts, "Jimmie" Walsh, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Walsh of East Fourth street ran away from the private school in which he had been placed by his parents a week ago and made his way to his home, alone.

Breathless and with his eyes almost popping from his head he burst in upon his astonished parents about 9:30 o'clock at night. He had made his way alone from Woodland and had a series of adventures which he had to tell before he would sit down.

Uncertain as to whether or not he would be reprimanded and probably be sent back to the institution, he had made previous arrangements with a man on the car to go to his home in case he was not welcome. He had the man's name and address written out on a slip of paper.

In the second gasp, after he had said "hello" and had hugged his baby brother, he declared that he would never, never go back to the school again. To sustain his position he produced the slip and explained that the man had told him to come to his home whenever he wanted to. "Jimmie" said the man had told him that he had a sister who would take care of him and send him to the public schools.

"Broke," But Not for Long.

"Jimmie" didn't have a cent when he boarded the street car, but that didn't bother him. He immediately made the acquaintance of the conductor, and instead of the "con" collecting a fare from him, he gave the youngster a small handful of nickles. His wealth was further augmented by the man who offered him a home.

After he had been assured that he would not have to go back again, but could stay at home and attend the big school downtown, "Jimmie" dutifully turned his supply of cash over to his mother, who put it in his bank for him. "Jimmie" felt like a millionaire, exclaiming joyfully, after the coins had been deposited: "It's nearly half full and it's only a little while since Christmas! Gee, that's fine."

The youngster had carefully planned his escape. He asserted solemnly that it was "awful dark and foggy, and that as the kind of a night he had been waiting for, as it would not be so easy to see him when he left the grounds.

"And I put two pieces of bread in my pocket, so that if I got hungry or couldnt find my way home, I would have something to eat, he said, as he pulled the crusts from his coat. "I went out the front door, as they wouldnt be so likely to notice me if I went that way," he continued. "I walked in the fog so that I wouldn't get noticed. But you bet I ran some when I got out of sight. I ran with all my might towards the street car tracks. I knew that that was the way home and I noticed in the day time which way they went. Everybody was awfully good to me, but I'm glad that I'm home and I'm glad mamma is not angry with me and will let me stay."

Promises to be Studious.

"Jimmie declared that he would get all his lessons faithfully and that as soon as he was big enough he would get out and work. He said that he would earn money enough to buy the finest kind of presents for his mother and a lot of toys for his little brother.

SUPERIOR

DEMONSTRATION FARM MEETING WITH FAVOR.

A demonstration farm on the "Dean tract," Tower avenue south, in place of the proposed experimental farm on the "Stinson tract," also owned by the city, seems to be favored by the council committee which is considering the matter. As the farm is a state institution it is probable that the city could be expected to deed over to the state a portion of land for this purpose.

SUPERIOR TEAMS LEAVE CITY FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

The Blaine alumni basket ball team is in Minneapolis, where this evening it will meet the St. Joseph's Athletics of the Flour City in what is expected to be the championship game of the season.

The Superior high school team left this afternoon for Ashland, where tonight it will be matched against the Ashland high school quintet. This will be the first of a series of games between the Chequamegon bay city and Superior.

INDICTMENTS ARE KEPT SECRET.

A number of indictments were returned by the federal grand jury, which completed its work yesterday afternoon and reported at the opening of the session at 10 o'clock this morning. None of the indictments were made public. It is reported that among the indictments, one was returned against Prof. Billman, formerly of the state university, who was arrested for using the mails to send improper letters to "co-eds" at Madison. None of the personal injury cases which were started have been concluded as yet.

Paving Cases Up.

Saturday, Feb. 4, is the date set for the hearing in the state supreme court of the appeals of the city in the Hughitt avenue paving cases, taken up from superior court. The city attorney is preparing to argue the case.

Residence Fire.

Fire broke out last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Kirkpatrick at 1817 Hammond avenue, the blaze being discovered shortly after 10 o'clock when the occupants returned home. The loss was about $2,000, fully covered by insurance.

LIGHT PLANT BATTLE SOON

Strong Delegation of Duluthians to Descend on the Legislature.

Duluth will send a strong delegation to St. Paul next Tuesday to appear before the senate committee which is hearing arguments for and against the bill allowing the city to issue $700,000 worth of bonds with which to acquire or build a municipal electric lighting plant.

The party will be headed by City Attorney Bert Fesler and Aldermen Shartel and Moore. Several other prominent advocates of the enabling act have announced their intention of attending the hearing, making it certain that the city will be well represented.

It is stated that those interested in the project are preparing a volley of facts and figures which they will fire at the committee. It is said that they are going into the subject deeply, not only in regard to the Duluth situation, but with reference to other cities as well. Representatives of the local lighting company are also preparing a considerable quantity of material which they will use at the hearing to offset the arguments of those favoring municipal ownership.

The conference will open here Monday evening at 7:30. There will be meetings Tuesday afternoon and evening, which will conclude the conference.

All Sunday schools in the city will take part in the conference. The object of the meeting is to awaken interest along broad lines in the work of the various Sunday schools, and for that reason those interested in the success of the meeting have asked the co-operation of all the Duluth Sunday school teachers.

Monday evening, Rev. Edward C. Horn of Anoka will give an illustrated lecture, entitled "Around the World."

On Tuesday morning, Paul S. Dietrick, field secretary for the Minnesota Sunday school association, will deliver a talk, and A. M. Locker, state secretary, will also be on the program.

At 1:30 Tuesday afternoon, W. A. Brown of Chicago, superintendent of the International Sunday school missions, will deliver a talk on "Practical Missionary Activities." ELECTRIC DRILL USED Contractors Making Rapid Progress on Canadian Northern Tunnel.

Crew of 125 Men Now at Work on the Job.

With a new electric drill just installed, Foley, Welsh & Stewart, who have the contract for cutting through the Canadian Northern tunnel at Shortline park, expect that work will progress more rapidly from now on and look forward to the completion of the job in May.

At Shortline park, twelve miles from the Duluth union station, the right-of-way of the company is such that it necessitates many deep rock cuts and one tunnel which is perhaps the most difficult piece of work on the entire line.

Here the contractors are cutting through a granite hill for 500 feet with 350-foot approaches on each side. The approaches are open tunnels or deep rock cuts. Both have been practically completed and a crew of about 125 men is now at work on the tunnel proper, working from the west end.

The contractors found that the steam drill with which they were working was unsatisfactory, and they recently abandoned it and installed an electric drill. They generate their own power at Shortline park and splendid progress has been made. Already eighty-five feet have been finished. A passage 18 by 24 feet is being cut out and at the central point the tunnel will be 250 feet under the hill.

It is a difficult engineering feat as the tunnel will describe a 7-degree curve within the mountain of rock. The rock cut is a costly undertaking for the road and when the tunnel is opened up next summer, it will mean an expenditure of about $70,000. Before the road bed is put into condition for trains, the job will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The rock, which is being taken out is used for filling at the ends of the bog hole. This will make the roadbed almost as solid as the hill itself.

Stubborn Blaze Drowned Out After Fight Lasting Two Weeks.

After a stubborn fight, the fire which has been burning in coal piles at the coal dock of the Zenith Furnace company, West Duluth, for the past two weeks has been put out. F. C. Harris, superintendent, today stated that the blaze was not as destructive as was first thought. It was necessary to keep streams of water directed on it day and night for over a week, although the local department was not called. Clam shells were also put to work in order to move the coal away from the pile that was afire.

MAY HAVE TO WAIT FOR ALL-STEEL TRAIN.

Railroad officials of the Omaha line are speculating on the chances Duluth has of securing an all-steel train to Chicago, which the Omaha has for some time contemplated putting on the Duluth-Chicago shortline.

The speculation on the part of the local officials has been increased by the receipt this morning of information regarding the delivery of engines.

Some time ago the Omaha officials ordered some engines to be delivered last June. The information coming to the local office today, states that these engines have just been delivered.

With the information regarding the delivery of the engines comes also the statement that the Eastern factories have been overcrowded with rush orders, that is the factories where railroad equipment is constructed, for some time past, and that at the present time orders are very much behind delivery.

The Omaha has had orders in for over a year, for steel cars. It is the intention of the officials of that company to place an all-steel train on the Duluth-Chicago line just as soon as the cars can be secured.

It might be stated in this connection that every Western road is at the present time ordering steel cars. The immense orders of the Pennsylvania for steel equipment have about swamped the manufacturers, and until they succeed in catching up with their orders, it is probable that the Omaha, like other roads in the West will be compelled to wait, and that Duluth may not get the all-steel train the present season.

CRIMINAL CASE PRATICE.

London Chronicle: It seems hardly credible that less than a century ago counsel were not allowed to address a jury in defence of a prisoner. Sydney Smith first preached against this cruel law.

He pointed out that while in any court where property was concerned counsel was heard on both sides, in a court where human life was trembling in the balance only the prosecuting counsel was heard, and it was unfair to match a prisoner, unaccustomed to marshal facts and unable to speak, against skilled counsel, whose sole purpose for its own reputation was to win a case. Sydney Smith's eloquent words led to the passing of the prisoner's defence act 1820, which altered the practice.

Another unjust practice, which was peculiar to the old Bailey was that when an accused person was acquitted he was obliged to pay the fees of Newgate or go back for want of money. So many unfortunate prisoners died in Newgate through this that Alderman Brown, lord mayor in 1733, caused an order of the court to be made that when any accused persons were acquitted by their county court they should instantly be discharged in court without paying any fees whatsoever, an order which has been strictly adhered to ever since.

Of the challenging of jurors one remembers a tale from Ireland. The prisoner was hard to satisfy and juryman after juryman was asked to leave the box. However, all things come to an end, even in Ireland, and at last the swearing of the jury was completed. And then the prisoner leaned over the dock and sought the ear of his solicitor. "The jury's all right now, I think," he whispered, "but ye must challenge the judge. "I've been convicted under him several times already, and maybe he's beginnin' to have a prejudice."

Laughter at a murder trial jars upon the reader, though it may come as a relief to the nerves of people in court. But sometimes it cannot be helped. We do not know whether there was laughter in the Elstreet murder trial at the witness's famous definition of a respectable man as a man who kept a gig, which made such an appeal to Carlyle. But there must have been another answer. "Well," said counsel, Mr. Thesiger (afterward Lord Chelmsford), "you saw them and heard them talking. What were they discussing?" "Pork chops, sir," replied the witness.

CHINESE SUPERSTITION.

London Globe: The Chinese are offering stubborn resistance to the European doctors who are endeavoring to stamp out the plague. The authorities and the doctors, we learn from a French source, are at their wit's end, for the educated Celestials share with the common people a belief that the hygienic measures and clinical treatment advocated by European surgeons are designed to kill and not cure the people.

One of the legends which has a powerful influence over the people is that the Europeans want the bodies, more especially the eyes, for the preparation of different medicines. More horrible stories still are circulated, and it is said the native press is much to blame for not endeavoring to educate the people up to an understanding of European medical and surgical treatment.

A KENTUCKY MOUNTAIN WEDDING.

Louisa News: They stood on the bridge, but it was not midnight. It was 'long about 9 a. m. Tuesday, somewhere near the tollhouse, and the Rev. S. F. Reynolds held them up with a license. He asked the young man (21) a few questions and then propounded similar interrogatories to the young lady.

Receiving satisfactory answers the reverend gentleman told them they were man and wife and to go in peace and not let it happen again. They said they'd try to and left for Fort Gay happy. They were two very nice people, both teachers. The bride was Miss Alice Frazier of Spruce Lick—she looked spruce, too—and the bridegroom was Youla Lycan, son of Wayne Lycan, of near Fort Gay.

ONR LAW-MADE LEISURE CLASS

"We have in this country a large leisure class, a class that is compelled to live in idleness, while the rest of the population supports them," writes Amos W. Butler, president of the American Prison association in The Survey. "Practically all the inmates of our county jails are idle. That is the reward given those who often intentionally violate our laws. There is no more foul blot upon our civilization than this.

"Do we in a faint way estimate the possibilities of the employment of certain prisoners in many lines of conservation of the water, the land and the forest? How great the results may be in improving our land, increasing our crops, preserving or replacing our forests, or our benefits by good roads, we cannot comprehend.

"In this we should not have to work in the dark. In one state after another practical experience has been gained. Convicts crush stone for roads in Illinois, California, Georgia, Virginia, Louisiana and Washington. In Washington they cut away the heavy forest; in Massachusetts they are engaged in reclaiming the land; in New Jersey in clearing the soil; in Rhode Isand in removing boulders from productive earth; in Minnesota and Louisiana in draining the land; in Ohio, Kansas and California in improving their farms. At Michigan City, Indiana, the prisoners reclaimed a tract of swamp land among the sand dunes. The Southern states have taken the lead, as their favorable climate makes possible, in the employment of prisoners, both upon public roads and state farms. Some of the latter are of 12,000 and 13,000 acres."

CHEAP SLEEPING CARS.

The Swedish State railways have three classes of fares, the proportion in price being about as 5:3:2. Heretofore only the first and second class passengers have had access to special sleepers, also run by the State railways, but now sleepers have been also put in for third class passengers. As third class cars formerly were supplied with only wooden seats, these new cars will be welcomed by third class travellers by night.

The new cars are, comfortably equipped; the seats are upholstered and the compartments make much the same impression, says the Daily Consular and Trade Reports, as an ordinary first class or second sleeper. They are brilliantly lighted.

The length of the car, which rests on two four wheel trucks, is 59 feet 6 inches, and the width is 10 feet. The cars are divided into eight compartments, each with two seats and giving room for six berths. The aisle from which one enters the compartments runs alongside the car's side and is about 2 feet wide. The berths are 6½ by 2 feet, and there is a special cover put over the upholstering, no sheets being furnished. A pillow, with a clean pillowcase, and a blanket are supplied.

The prices for these sleepers are very low. The fare from Stockholm to Gothenburg, 285 miles, covered in ten hours, is $3 third class, and the sleeper ticket costs 67 cents. The charge for sleeping privileges is uniform and independent of distance.

WOMEN AS CAR CONDUCTORS.

They have women conductors on the electric cars of Santiago, the capital of Chile. This was made necessary by the late war, which took so many men to the front, and imposed upon women the work usually done by men. The system has been kept up, the women having proved equally as efficient as the men had been.

One of the most peculiar customs seen here is the evening promenade in the plaza or park, which is attended oy young ladies and young men and quite small boys and girls. They do not mix, but keep quite separate paths.

Yet even the little girls at 7 or 8 years are finished coquettes, says the Logical Point. Their eyes languidly observe every man and boy in the plaza, and they take care that each shall receive a due share of their smiles.

Another curious custom which prevails in Santiago, and which is joined by those fortunate enough to have fine horses and carriages, is the promenade at the Parque Causino, a beautiful park near the center of the city.

A company of mounted police stands in single file in the center of the drive, and the carriages, with uniformed coachmen and footmen and beautifully gowned women and fashionably dressed men occupying the carriages, ride around and around these mounted police.

Sometimes there are two or as many as six rows of carriages, some going in the opposite direction and alternating, the ladies smiling and the gentlemen tipping their hats in a polite manner. This promenade lasts from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening.

AMERICAN WAYS ABROAD.

"American manners rule at Dinard," says the English Sketch, "and trans-Atlantic tastes are catered for on the Casino terrace, where the band plays daily an assortment of ragtime two-steps and a procession of assiduous waiters brings cocktails at noon to the idlers in basket chairs, who never seem to tire of staring at each other.

"The men gulp down their dry Martinis without accompaniment, but the pretty American women drink theirs with cold fried potato chips, a singular form of nourishment which it is the mode at Dinard to convey to your mouth with nature's utensil, your fingers.

"Fried potato chips, I hear, are the latest fantasy of the fair in American seaside places of the highest fashion, and they must be consumed in no other way than with the aid of rosy, perfectly manicured fingers.

"Thus the most dazzling beauties of Dinard—including those who are lovely and youthful enough to wear the new poke bonnet—may be seen toying with this homely vegetable in just this primeval manner. Wonderful are the ways of fashion, for nothing more unlikely could have been conceived than that beautiful ladies should drink gin and vermouth in public while helping themselves to cold fried potatoes with their bare, beringed hands."

Three Banquets at Spalding.

Again it is demonstrated that Gotham has nothing on Duluth. New York has its Sherry's and its banquets, but Duluth has its Spalding and its banqueting Duluthians. There were three formal banquets at the Spalding last night and as many more less formal affairs of a similar nature, and the private dining rooms were filled, while the Palm room had all the patronage it could care for. The remarkable thing about it was that nothing out of the ordinary seemed to be afoot. The Duluth Automobile club was host at one of the banquets, the Duluth Telephone company management at another, and C. A. Michaelson was host at the third. Then there were others of a less public character but distinctly banquetish.

Three-Hour Sale.

Tomorrow (Saturday) morning from 9 to 12 o'clock we place on sale a large assortment of fancy mixture coats, full 54 inches long, also plain black broadcloth 54-inch coats, also a small line of very pretty suits that sold from $15 to $20. Entire lot will go tomorrow, from 9 to 12 o'clock, for $6.98. We also offer during above three hours 75c quality long model corsets with two pair hose supporters on each for 39c. Consumers, Attention

These Specials deserve your immediate consideration. We advise that you take advantage of them while they last. We make the statement without fear of contradiction, that there is not one article in this entire list that—taking into consideration price and quality—but what is lower than any other store can offer you in the entire Northwest section of the country.

We are the only firm in this city whose name will not be found on the books of the Jobbers' Credit association—as an account.

We do our business direct—and only come to the Jobbers from time to time on "pick ups"—we pay Cash and fear nobody.

We are not in any "deals" nor are we dependent upon Jobbers, Commission Merchants, or any other "go-betweens" for our supplies.

If the time ever comes when the "go-between" interests will be able to monopolize our source of supplies—we will then quietly fold up our tent and get out of business—for we say frankly that were we dependent upon intermediaries for our handlings we simply could not sell at the prices that we do. If you will scan the apparent "baits" offered from time to time by others in our line you will readily observe that there is always a string to the "bait" they offer you.

We have already demonstrated to the satisfaction of many of our customers that the grades of goods handled by us—though not of the advertised brand variety, is just as good, even, if not better, than the best of advertised brands. It should be self evident to every thinking person that the cost of advertising must be added on to the selling price of the article. It has been estimated that fully Two Billions of Dollars are spent annually in the United States alone for advertising purposes, this is an amount greater than the total Wheat Crop of the Country. We claim that every penny thus spent is sheer waste and would be wholly unnecessary under a properly regulated system of doing business. Do you grasp our viewpoint?

Another matter deserving your consideration is the question of buying on "tick." We will have something to say about this in our next letter. We hope you will study up our prices and compare them with those prevailing at your regular grocer and then ask yourself if it does not pay to make the change and to try us with an experimental order.

These prices will prevail for the next Ten days—Butter and Egg prices are subject to daily changes, however.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Both Options Show Weakness in All American Markets.

Decline Not Believed to Be Due to Reciprocity News.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 27.—Wheat sold slightly less than 2c off in all American markets today, the decline being 1⅞c on both the May and July option in the Duluth market. Weak cables, estimates of heavy Argentine shipments, heavy shipments to American centers, a poor demand for cash wheat and rain in the Southwest may be ascribed as the causes for the decline.

The Canadian reciprocity treaty is believed to have some little effect on the Duluth market, but the decline in Duluth was but a fraction more than the decline in other American markets, Canadian wheat selling under American wheat of the same option. Some Duluth traders looked for fractional losses on the free admission of Canadian wheat being put up to congress. How much of the decline today was due to that feeling and how much to the general conditions could not be determined, but it is certain that the reciprocity treaty figured little in the loss.

The news was all bearish. The demand for cash wheat had fallen off in all centers. In Kansas City two cars of No. 2 hard was sold at 91c, or 3⅜c under the market. There was no demand for more, even at that price. Cash wheat held at 1c under May in Duluth, but it was weaker in other markets. In the face of that fact was the fact that receipts have been constantly increasing. In Minneapolis the stocks have increased 550,000 bu this week and the demand for cash has fallen off so that the stocks are increasing daily.

Estimates of Argentine shipments and world's shipments are large, and America is facing the competition of heavy shipments from other countries to Europe with strong opposition in marketing American wheat. In the meantime stocks are increasing, the millers are going out of the market again and the bears are in control of the market.

News from the Southwest continues bearish. It is colder in Kansas and Nebraska, but the weather is also threatening and the winter wheat in some sections needs moisture.

The estimated increase in Argentine shipments of wheat is enormous. The shipments are placed at 3,360,000 bu of wheat against 1,264 bu last week and 952,000 bu last year. Corn shipments are placed at 196,000 bu this week against 586,000 bu last week and 358,000 bu last year.

May wheat opened in Duluth ⅛c off this morning at $1.06, dropped to $1.05⅜, advanced to $1.05¾, fell off to $1.05, advanced to $1.05⅛ and fell off to $1.04¼ at the close. July wheat opened at $1.06¼, dropped to $1.05⅜ and closed at $1.05 nominal. May flax opened unchanged at $2.69, fell off to $2.63, advanced to $2.64 and closed at $2.63.

The flax market was weak on a falling off in the demand.

Oats were ¼c off at 32⅜c, while ry and barley were unchanged. Durum wheat was ⅝c off at 90½c and cash wheat was 1c under May.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Notwithstanding the easier American cables yesterday and the heavy Argentine shipments, together with liberal shipments from India and Australia and the forecast of heavy world's shipments this week other than America, thought to be about 3,000,000 bu in excess of last week, the market opened ⅛@¼d lower. Following the opening March received support with some covering of shorts on the fewer sellers of Plate steamers, and light receipts here, particularly of American wheat, there being only 8,000 bu for three days. May continued under pressure and after the opening declined a further ⅜d on short profit-taking. At midday the market was dull and easier with some recovery from the low of the morning on unfavorable report from India. At this time prices were ¼@⅜d lower than yesterday.

In the corn market the Plate grade was firmly supported and ⅛d higher on light Argentine shipments and the firmness of Buenos Ayres at the close. The American grade declined ⅜d on the prediction of continued large arrivals here of American corn."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Proposed Trade Agreement With Canada Has Its Effect on Wheat.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Notwithstanding assertions that the proposed trade agreement between Canada and the United States would have little chance of adoption this year, the effect on the wheat market today was unmistakably bearish. Forecasts of heavy world's shipments this week had a similar influence. News from India, however, acted somewhat as an offset. The weather there was reported showery and very cold, threatening extensive crop damage. Opening prices were ¼@¼c to ⅜c down. May started at 98⅛c to 98¼c, a loss of ¼@⅜c, declined to 97⅝c and recovering to 98c.

Wet weather throughout most of the winter wheat belt, especially Oklahoma, caused a still further decline. The close was weak with May at 96¾@96⅞c, a net loss of 1⅝@1¾c.

Corn weakened on selling by scattered longs who were discouraged by the weakness in wheat. May opened a shade lower to a like amount higher at 50¼c to 50⅜c and declined to 50⅛c.

The corn country was selling little, but on the other hand there was no Eastern demand. The close was easy, with May ¼c net lower at 50@50⅛c.

Resting orders from the country checked a downward tendency in oats. May started unchanged to a 1-16c up at 34½@34⅝c and receded to 34½c, but steadied at the last named figure.

Purchases by stockyards firms gave a bullish tone to provisions. First sales were 5c to 7½c higher with May options at $18.40 for pork; $9.82½ for lard and $9.85 for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 27.—Wheat prices suffered a sharp break late today. May closed 1⅜@1½c lower than yesterday and July 1⅜@1½c lower. Local mills were good buyers on the break. Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 27.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 5 points in response to lower cables than expected and further private advices reporting a less active trade in Manchester. Local traders were sellers at the initial decline but there appeared to be sufficient demand from prominent bull and trade interests to hold the market within a point or two of the opening figures during the early trading. There was a tendency here to believe that the decline in the market for bar silver might have influenced a falling off in Lancashire trade with the Far East following the recent active business.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: January, 14.64; February, 14.66; March, 14.77; April, 14.86; May, 14.93; June, 14.93; July, 14.95; August, 14.63; October, 13.38; December, 13.24. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 14.90; middling gulf, 15.15. Sales, 1,700.

Liberal consignments of horses suitable for agricultural purposes arrived. A number of country dealers from Dakota, Mont., and Canada were looking through the stalls but appeared to be in no hurry to fill their orders. Shipments were made to Duluth and Cloquet, Minn., Rice Lake, Wis., and Bessemer, Mich.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Vigorous Upward Movement in All Directions in Final Hour.

Demand for Hill and Harriman Groups, Coalers and Grangers.

New York, Jan. 27.—The market showed a firm undertone at the opening today. Large blocks of United States Steel, aggregating 12,000 shares, sold at an advance of ¼. Canadian Pacific and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie were up a point each, St. Paul ⅝ and Atchison and Union Pacific each ⅝. International Harvester gained ⅞. The copper shares were heavy.

Opening gains were increased slightly and the list held steady at a level well over last night's closing with the exception of the copper shares, which were noticeably weak on poor trade reports. The largest gains were among inactive issues, International Harvester rising 2, St. Joseph & Grand Island, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg 4 and Wells Fargo Express 8.

Operations during the morning were much restricted but there was a decided under current of firmness, all of the important issues ruling a sharp fraction above yesterday's closing, with more substantial improvement in a few selected stocks. Bethlehem Steel was particularly strong in connection with talk of introduction of new interests in the corporation, and proposed enlargement of the plant. International Harvester was strong on the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada which promised to open a large market for the company's products. There was renewed bullish activity in Norfolk & Western which sent it up 2 points. Other coalers, however, were without essential changes. Bonds were steady.

There was scarcely a movement of more than ⅛ in the principal stocks during the noon hour, with the exception of Norfolk & Western, which made a further advance to 107¼.

The market closed strong. The most striking movement of the day occurred in the final hour, when there was a vigorous upward movement in all directions. The demand was brisk for the Hill and Harriman groups, coalers and grangers, all of which were lifted a point or more.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

"BOYCOTT" CASE IS THROWN OUT

Supreme Court Will Not Hear Labor Federation Matter.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The "boycott" case of the Bucks Stove & Range company of St. Louis, against the American Federation of Labor, today came to a dramatic close in the supreme court of the United States, which decided it was a moot question and one that it would not hear.

ADMIRAL BARRY HAS RESIGNED FROM NAVY.

Washington, Jan. 27.—By direction of the president, Secretary of the Navy Meyer asked Admiral Barry for his resignation. It has been received and was accepted, "for the good of the service," according to an announcement made by Secretary Meyer.

MEETS WITH MUCH FAVOR

Reciprocal Trade Agreement With Canada Strikes Popular Chord.

Broader in Scope and More Comprehensive Than Expected.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The reciprocal tariff agreement between Canada and the United States, transmitted to congress late yesterday afternoon, meets with even a greater degree of favor than was anticipated. It is broader in scope, more comprehensive than was generally expected. There is disappointment at the failure to get paper and wood pulp free immediately, but there is good reason to believe that this will be achieved at no distant date. As explained by the Canadian commissioners, the real obstacle to agreement lies in the fact that certain provinces of Canada have statutes imposing certain restrictions, and the assent of these provinces to the desired change must be procured. The agreement now pending in congress provides that whenever pulp wood and paper shall be admitted to the states free from all parts of Canada, then similar articles shall enter Canada from the states free. This provision indicates the belief on the part of those who negotiated the agreement that further negotiations will remove the obstacles and place pulp wood and paper on the free list.

The Opposition.

In the presence of the generally favorable comments on the agreement, such opposition as may develop did not crystalize sufficiently for expression. Along the Canadian border in the states of the Northwest and West, there is some hostility, the fear being expressed that free Canadian wheat, barley and other farm products may reduce the market value of similar products in the states, but congressmen from the districts bordering Canada in the East and some of the Middle West report the sentiment of their constituencies as favorable to reciprocity. There is good reason to believe that President Taft is correct in holding that the majority opinion of the states favor Canadian reciprocity. Even among friends of the measure in congress the apprehension is expressed that the time now remaining to this congress is too short for the enactment of this legislation.

What Will Democrats Do?

Much depends upon the extent to which politics can be made to affect the situation. The Democrats count upon working the promised tariff reductions as the chief issue, to retain their political power. They do not like to see the tariff revised downwards by a Republican administration, but the Democratic voters, who believe the cost of living will be reduced by removing import duties from foodstuffs, will not excuse their congressmen for refusing a bird in the hand in the hope of capturing several from the bush hereafter.

Then again, the president's insistence that reciprocity shall be voted on gives it strong support. It is plain that such opposition as is voiced from North Dakota, Minnesota and other states must rally to the open promptly but, as stated, the chief danger rests in the fact that the period remaining to congress is so short that there may not be time to rally the strong pressure of public opinion for the success of the measure.

COPPER MARKET HAS QUIET DAY

Fluctuations Are Fractional and Close Is at Opening Level.

The copper market was weak during the early hours of the session today, but the losses were fractional and a slight rally at the close sent values to about the opening level. There was no news to affect the market and traders were apathetic.

Amalgamated opened at $63, advanced to $63.12½, fell off to $62.75 and advanced to $63.25 at the close. Butte Coalition opened at $19 and closed at $18.75 bid and $19.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $19.25, fell off to $48.75, advanced to $49.37½ and closed at $49 bid and $49.25 asked. Lake opened at $33.50, fell off to $33.25 and closed at $33.50 bid and $34 asked. North Butte opened at $27.37½, fell off to $26.75 and rallied to $27 at the close. Superior & Pittsburg opened at $14.12½, advanced to $14.50 and closed at $14 bid and $14.50 asked.

The session on the Duluth Stock exchange was quiet and little stock changed hands, the principal trading being Keating, which reacted slightly after the advance earlier in the week. Keating sold at $2, $1.93¾ and $1.87½. Denn at $5.37½ and North American at $2.50 and $2.62½. Butte Ballaklava was quoted at $5.25 asked and Tuolumne at $4.75 bid, with no stock coming out at that figure.

J. L. Washburn, who is acting with T. J. Walsh of Helena as counsel for the Butte-Ballaklava Copper company in the injunction proceedings brought by the Anaconda Copper Mining company against the Butte-Ballaklava company, returned to Duluth yesterday afternoon. Mr. Washburn entered the case first in behalf of a number of stockholders to attempt to obtain an adjustment of difficulties, but failing in that he was retained to assist Mr. Walsh in the case.

According to Mr. Washburn, the Anaconda company claims that rich ore which the Ballaklava company encountered at a depth of 1,400 feet is being taken from a vein which apexes on the Mountain Chief claim of the Anaconda. The Anaconda company claims that the vein showing on the surface of the Mountain Chief takes a strong lateral turn at depth, then dipping again under the Butte Ballaklava and that the apex of the vein gives the Anaconda company rights to the ore.

The Ballaklava company claims that the ore in question is being taken from a vein which shows on the surface of its own property. It is a substantially vertical vein, it is claimed, with a northwest and southeast strike. There is no basis for the Anaconda's claim, Mr. Washburn says, and the Ballaklava company will show that fact when the case is tried on its merits.

The hearing Monday and Tuesday was on a petition for a temporary injunction. The Anaconda company offered expert testimony, but the Butte Ballaklava company offered no testimony and the temporary injunction was granted. The Ballaklava company has thirty days in which to file its answer, after which the case will be tried on its merits.

A REBUKE TO FALSE PRIDE.

Los Angeles Times: "The late John S. Huyler," said a New York confectioner, "was, for all his millions and all his philanthropy, a man of shrinking modesty. Though he came of an excellent family, Mr. Huyler laughed at those persons who, in a democracy like ours, boasted of their ancient lineage.

"A banker once declared in Mr. Huyler's presence that he was descended from the Princess of Powys-Wales, seventh century, you know.

"'Is that so?' drawled Mr. Huyler. 'Yet I heard a man tell your brother the other day that he could trace his family back to the days of armour and shirts of chain mail, and your brother said in answer:

"'My wife made me stop my tracing when I got back to shirt sleeves and overalls.'"

QUANTITY FOR HIM.

Los Angeles Times: "The late Winslow Homer," said a Fifth avenue picture dealer, "overflowed with stories of his beloved fishermen. Most of these stories were grave—they illustrated the hardships and heroisms of the fisherman's life. I remember, though, another of a different sort.

"A visitor to a Maine fishing village—so the story ran—took an old fisherman to a speakeasy for a drink.

"'What kind of whisky have you?' the visitor asked, as they stumbled into the dark, underground room that served the speakeasy for a bar.

"'Three kinds of whisky, stranger,' the proprietor answered. 'Fifteen cents, 10 cents and 5 cents.'

"'Well, give us the 15-cent, please,' said the visitor.

"The proprietor set a bottle and two glasses on the bar, but the old fisherman coughed and muttered humbly:

"'If it's all the same to you, sir, I'll ask you to make mine three of the nickel kind.'"

SUCCESSOR OF ALDRICH

New Rhode Island Senator Was Choice of Predecessor.

One of Vanishing School of Which Hale Is a Type.

New York, Jan. 27.—The New York Evening Post prints the following in a character sketch of the senator-elect from Rhode Island:

"The line of senatorial succession from Rhode Islanad is unbroken. Henry F. Lippitt is thelogical and legitimate successor of Nelson W. Aldrich. He will not disturb the precedents nor tear down the traditions builded up by his predecessor. Mr. Lippitt is not so much a representative of the 'interets' as he is himself an 'interest.'

"There is nothing radical or progressive or insurgent about him. He is as conserative and reactionary as Eugene Hale or John Dalzell. Of the newcomers to the senate he is the only one of that type which is fast being supplanted by a new order. Mr. Lippit is entitled to all the rights and privileges of a charter member of the old guard in the senate. He comes to it as a recruit at a time when its ranks are thinning, but he is thoroughly grounded in its beliefs, policies, principles, precedents and traditions.

"Science" Applied to Politics.

"The new Rhode Island senator is a rich New England business man. He is without experience in public office and public affairs, unless writing the cotton schedule in the Payne-Aldrich tariff law may be called experience in public affairs. Mr. Lippitt has never held office prior to coming to the senate. He has applied the principles of 'scientific management' to politics. He comes direct from the producer to the consumer. He is Mr. Aldrich's friend. Mr. Aldrich chose him as his successor in the senate. There was nothing for the Rhode Island legislature to do except to ratify that choice. The selection was acquiesced in by the men who really govern Rhode Island. Mr. Aldrich efficiently represented their interests. They wanted another man of the same type and of the same beliefs to succeed him. There seems to be no doubt they have found him in Mr. Lippitt.

"The new senator is not unknown about Washington. He was one of the first to come to 'see Aldrich' when the present tariff law was being framed. He and his friend, MacColl, brought a ready-to-wear cotton schedule with them to Washington at that time. They wanted to save congress the trouble of fixing the duties. According to the story current at the time, they offered this schedule to Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee who refused to accept it and put it in the house bill, asserting with some temerity that he and his colleagues on the committee felt themselves amply competent to write the schedule. Whereupon, as is believed here, Mr. Lippitt and his friend took their schedule over to the finance committee of the senate, where it was accepted and put in the bill.

Aldrich Took His Advice.

"Mr. Lippitt was much in evidence about the finance committee room while the senate bill was being prepared. He was patently deep in the confidence of Mr. Aldrich and was often consulted at that time. From the Washington viewpoint, Mr. Lippitt is to the cotton goods trade what Mr. Whitman is to the wool manufacturers. However lacking the new senator from Rhode Island may be in experience in other governmental affairs, he, at least, should know about all there is to know about how tariff laws are made. He has had opportunities for 'inside' first hand information which have been denied many members of congress of long service.

"There is no reason to suspect that Mr. Lippitt will not make a competent senator from the viewpoint of those who are primarily responsible for his election. His record is that of the modern successful business man. He has had a career of success. He was born with money and he has made more money. So far as is known here he has never, to any marked degree, sought the opportunity to enlist his capacities in the public welfare, but his own affairs and the affairs of others which have been intrusted to his have not suffered."

GOVERNMENT WILL APPEAL

Judge Willard's Ruling to Be Taken to the Supreme Court.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Semi-official announcement is made that the government will take an appeal to the United States supreme court from Judge Willard's decision removing the Indian liquor lid from the territory covered by the treaty of 1855. No appeal will be taken, however, from the decision of Judge Amidon, covering the territory included in the treaty of 1851 and embracing most of the city of Minneapolis.

Letters advising the attorney general of this stand of the department of the interior are now being prepared and will be forwarded immediately after Secretary Ballinger returns from Boston. Directions probably will be sent to District Attorney Houpt within ten days, directing him to file the appeal from Judge Willard's decision, in order that it may be brought to the attention of the supreme court as quickly as posisble.

It is probable also that the government will submit a motion for the advancement of the case on the supreme court docket, in order that it may be argued and decided in this term, which ends the latter part of May.

Later information relative to President Taft's intentions as to the modification of the minor treaties is that he will remove the restrictions on all territory where he has the authority. It is expected that a formal announcement will be made in a few days.

TAFT TO MAKE SHORT SWING THROUGH SOUTH.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Early in March, immediately after congress adjourns, President Taft will make a short swing through the South, winding up at his home town, Cincinnati, where he will spend several days before returning to the national capital. While the exact itinerary has not been arranged, the president expects to be away from Washington about a week.

TOO LADYLIKE.

Los Angeles Times: Fire Chief Robert O. Mesnor of Canton will have no cigarette smokers among his firemen. Cigarette smokers, he claims, lack nerve.

"Your cigarette smoker," said the sturdy chief to a reporter, "is too ladylike for fire fighting. He is too delicate and mild.

"One of these cigarette-smoking gentlemen had occasion, at a harvest festival, to refer to the story of Jonah.

"'Jonah,' he said, 'passed three days and three nights in the whale's—er—the whale's——'

"He blushed furiously and added:
"'The whale's society.'"

DUNN SYSTEM OF GOOD ROADS LEGISLATION IS FAVORED BY SOLONS

Constitutional Amendment for One-Mill Tax Is Approved.

Plan for Elaborating State Highway Commission Also Adopted.

Committee Reverses Its Action on "Pork Barrel" Road Bill.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.) — The house committee on roads and bridges yesterday afternoon adopted the Bob Dunn system of good roads legislation, decided to adopt both of his bills and put them in as committee bills, and at the conclusion of the meeting gave Mr. Dunn a vote of thanks.

The chief bill is the one proposing a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to levy a 1-mill state tax for road purposes, the money to be distributed by the state highway commission among the counties, no county to get less than ½ of 1 per cent of the total, and none to get more than 8 per cent.

Mr. Dunn estimates that by the time the amendment becomes effective, if it is adopted by the people at the next election, the 1-mill tax will raise about $1,200,000. The counties would get from $6,000 to $26,000 each, making an average of about $15,000 to each county.

Representative F. L. Farley of Caledonia, a Democrat, had anticipated the Dunn bill by introducing a bill of his

HAITIEN OFFICERS WILL BE EXECUTED

Twenty-Three Sentenced to Be Shot for Mutiny and Murder.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Jan. 28.—Twenty-three officers, non-commissioned officers and sailors, survivors of the Haitien gunboat Liberte, which sank at sea off Port de Paix last October, following an explosion, yesterday were convicted by a military tribunal of mutiny and murder of the admiral of the Liberte and several Haitien generals who were on board. All were condemned to death.

Reports of the disaster to the Liberte estimated that seventy persons either were killed or drowned when the vessel was blown up. When the Liberte sailed from Port au Prince she had on board ninety persons, only twenty odd of whom were said to have escaped. These will now be shot. Ten Haitien generals on their way to take command of the several division of troops in the Department of the North, perished. The Liberte was formerly the American steam yacht Earl King.

RAILROAD TAX CHANGE

Plan to Turn North Dakota Railroad Taxes Into the State Treasury.

State Aid for Rural and Graded Public Schools Proposed.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Radical changes in the method of handling the taxes received from railroads is proposed by Representative R. C. Burnett in a bill introduced by him. Under the provisions of his measure the railroad taxes would all go into the state treasury for state purposes, thus doing away with the present plan by which the taxing district in which the railroad has mileage receives the benefit of such taxation. Representative Burnett argues that while a taxpayer residing in a township through which a railroad does not run fails to receive any benefit from the railroad tax, he may be just as heavy a shipper as the taxpayer residing in a township having a railroad and therefore is entitled to the same benefits. His bill would make all taxes payable to the state and this would be apportioned among the several counties.

Another bill bearing upon railroad taxation and which also includes telephone companies, provides that such companies shall make a statement to the county auditor showing the exact mileage in each taxing district, with an itemized statement of whatever other possessions they may have. This measure was introduced by Representative Fraine of Walsh county.

For Rural and Graded Schools.

State aid for the rural and graded public schools, as well as the consolidated schools, is proposed in a measure introduced by Representative Olsgard of Nelson county, chairman of the Insists Workingmen Should Pay 20 Per Cent of the Cost.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—As indicated in The Herald several weeks ago, the report of the Minnesota employes compensation commission will be divided, George M. Gillette, representing the employers, dissenting from the majority report, which will be signed by W. E. McEwen of Duluth for the workingmen and H. V. Mercer of Minneapolis for the lawyers. LONDON PRINTERS ON GENERAL STRIKE

Job Men Ask for Working Week of Fifty Hours.

London, Jan. 28.—The general strike in the job printing trade is already under way and the number of employes involved will be rapidly increased in the coming week, when strike notices expire. The men have been offered a working week of fifty-two hours, but demand a maximum of fifty hours.

The principal firms thus far affected are Spottiswoode & Co., Ltd., contractors for much government and other official work, and Waterlow & Sons, Ltd. The weekly periodicals managed to appear as usual, but curiously, the new daily started in support of the printers' campaign, failed to publish this morning.

The daily newspapers are not affected. Their compositors have agreed each to contribute $2.50 weekly in aid of the strikers.

HOTEL GUESTS DRIVEN OUT

Fire Occurs on Seventeenth Floor of the Majestic in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Fire drove hundreds of guests from their rooms in the Majestic and Great Northern hotels, which adjoin at Dearborn and Quincy streets early this morning.

The fire which started in the kitchen of the grill room on the seventeenth floor of the Majestic was extinguished with a loss of about $40,000, mostly from water.

Both hotels are seventeen stories high and it was feared that firemen would have difficulty in reaching the fire, but the water pressure proved adequate and the flames were soon put out.

MRS. SCHENK IS RELEASED

Allowed to Leave Jail on Her Own Recognizance.

Her Husband Immediately Files Suit for a Divorce.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Mrs. Schenk was released on her own recognizance. Divorce papers were served on her in court.

When court convened today Prosecutor Handlan stated that he had read in the newspapers that Isaac Heyman, the juror who had voted against the acquittal of Mrs. Schenk, had been boycotted by the tradespeople of Wheeling and hissed by his neighbors. He asked the court to bring contempt proceedings and scored the jury for giving out Heyman's name as the dissenting juror. Judge Jordan wanted specific cases and stated that when the grand jury met the first Monday in March the matter would be brought to its attention.

PRESIDENT TO INSIST ON THE INDORSEMENT OF RECIPROCITY PACT

PRESIDENT IS ASKED TO PARDON THIS MAN

F. D. WARREN,
Editor of the Appeal to Reason, Who Was Sentenced to Six Months in Prison for Misuse of the Mails.

CANADIANS CONFIDENT

That Reciprocal Trade Pact Will Be Approved By Parliament.

Steel Makers, Salt Men and Market Gardeners Not Pleased.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 28.—Confident that the reciprocity agreement between Canad and the United States will receive the necessary indorsement from the Canadian parliament, representative men are now chiefly interested in the attitude congress will take. There is a fear in some quarters that the measure may precipitate general tariff discussion at Washington, resulting in a delay that would be fatal to the measure. The commissioners of government officials

One Defeat Would Not Turn Him From His Purpose.

If Present Congress Refuses, May Submit Plan to Democrats.

Looks for Material Reduction in the Cost of Living.

Washington, Jan. 28. — Representative McCall of Massachusetts, a member of the ways and means committee, today introduced in the house the administration bill to carry out the reciprocity agreement with Canada. The bill was referred at once to the ways and means committee.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Snags began to loom up in the pathway of the Canadian reciprocity agreement before it had been in the hands of congress twenty-four hours and confident predictions of its failure were made freely by the pillars of the protective tariff faith. It was said that even should the house accept the terms of the arrangements, which Republican high tariff advocates did not concede, it could not pass the senate.

These prophesies were carried to the White House yesterday by members. Mr. Taft, it is said, received them with smiles, which indicated that one defeat would not turn him from his purpose. If his own party, before surrendering control of the house of representatives, fails to put into operation the reciprocity trade pact, the president, it is believed, will not hesitate to submit his program to the Democrats, perhaps in an extra session of the new congress.

One man, who has been the administration mouthpiece on more than one occasion, came from the White House last night with the declaration that the proposed Canadian arrangement could not die an easy death, so long as Mr. Taft was in the White House.

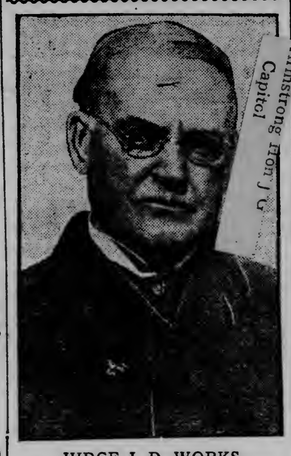

Great Humanitarian Movement.

President Taft believes that the mutual concessions arranged by the United States and Canada, especially the large number of articles of foodstuffs which would be put on the free list, promise a great humanitarian movement that ultimately would mean a material reduction in the cost of living. He believes that even if the promised reductions are not at once apparent, the presence of this document in congress would prove a deterrent force against continued advancement in the prices of food.

The commercial relations of the United States and Canada, according to the view held by the president, should be placed above partisan political considerations and there is the best possible reason to declare that he will take

GAINING IN POPULARITY

Reciprocity Agreement Grows in Favor as It Is Studied.

President Relies Upon Pressure of People to Affect Congress.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is plain that the Canadian-American reciprocity agreement gains in popularity as it is studied and better understood. The president relies upon the rapid development of public favor and its pressure upon congress to aid him in securing a vote. There is an almost universally expressed opinion throughout the states that the free admission of Canadian farm products will cheapen the prices

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—No quorum of the legislature will be present today, when, in joint session, a vote is taken for United States senator. Murphy, after spending several hours last night in conference with Patrick E. McCabe, Democratic state committee man for Albany county, and clerk of the senate, left today.

The tenth joint ballot for United States senator resulted as follows: Democrats, Sheehan, 9; Shepard, 6; Van Santvoord, 2; Keernan, 4; O'Brien, 2; Littleton, 3; Parker, 1; Gerard, 1; Glynn, 1. Republicans: Depew, 4. Total cast, 32. No quorum. No choice.

CLAPP ON WARPATH

Tells Attorney General Something About Work of Government Agents.

Aroused By Protest of Indian Commissioner of His Amendment.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Moses E. Clapp and Attorney General Wickersham had a rather warm interview this morning concerning affairs on the White Earth Indian reervation. Senator Clapp put through an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill which upset the plans of the Indian bureau, in that it provided for an entire new endowment of all person entitled to allotments.

Commissioner Valentine immediately began a fight on this amendment which is pending in the house committee on Indian affairs. He claimed it was vicious legislation aimed to undo the work of the department of justice.

Senator Clapp heard of this and armed with several affidavits which it is said would form a proper basis for an investigation by congress, he went to the department of justice and laid them before the attorney general. Senator Clapp stated that special agents of the government have been inducing allottees, who have been for years known and installed as mixed bloods, to declare themselves full blods. Attorney General Wickesham said that he considered matters so serious that he had sent some of his best men up there to prosecute cases against speculators who, it is claimed, have swindled the Indians. The cases will soon be presented in court. A large number of prominent business men, lawyers and several mixed blood Indians from White Earth are here seeking to have matters adjusted.

CONFESSES TO ROBBERY.

Inmate of Minnesota Reformatory Admits Committing Fargo Crime.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)— Conscience - stricken, John Glenn, the youth now in the Minnesota reformatory at St. Cloud, has written officials here, confessing robbery of Benjamin Wasen's apartments last fall. He took about $150 worth of goods and claimed to have sold the property to George Watkins, a negro, for $4. The negro has since removed to Minneapolis and the local officials are endeavoring to locate him there.

IMMUNITY BATH BILL.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The administration immunity bath bill, exempting from prosecution witnesses compelled by the prosecution to testify and disclose the truth at all hazard, has been ordered favorably reported by the house committee on the judiciary.

FOR THE INDIANS.

Every Effort Is Being Made to Make Them Self-Supporting.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Superintendents and farmers in the employ of the United States Indian service are making every effort to put the American Indian on a self-sustaining basis, according to a bulletin made public today by the service. Letters and circulars are coming into headquarters from all parts of the field containing instructions and suggestions, which are being issued by the superintendents to the farmers. These indicate, says the bulletin, "the deepest kind of interest in this subject, an interest which means an unprecedented progress on Indian farms during the coming year."

Among the means used by the Indian officials to get the government's wards to farm their allotments are the establishment of experimental farms, the formation of farmers' clubs and the institution of state fairs.

TWO TRAINMEN KILLED IN COLLISION OF FREIGHTS.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 28.—Engineer James Edwards and Fireman Schrock were killed and Brakeman Jesse Swasher fatally injured as the result of a head-on collision of two freight trains on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad near Blountsville, Ind., fifteen miles south of Muncie, early today.

An extra freight was running east when it met regular train No. 73 on a curve, piling up fifteen cars and the two engines. The blame for the wreck has not been fixed. The men lived in Peru, Ind.

INTERESTING FARMERS' MEET AT GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second annual Red River Valley Corn and Clover convention to be held here, Feb. 7, 8 and 9, promises to be the most interesting and instructive farmers' meeting in the Northwest this winter. The program has been extended to cover three all-day and two evening sessions. The list of speakers includes some of the best known corn and clover men of the country and numbers Prof. P. G. Holden of Ames, Iowa, who is probably the best known corn man in the country.

The corn and clover educational movement has been tackled in earnest by the North Dakota boosters who have organized this convention to be held here each winter.

This year it is planned to add an interesting feature in the shape of a mid-winter exhibition of grain, vegetables and feed crops.

Among the list of speakers for the corn and clover meeting for this year will be the following well known men: Prof. P. G. Holden of Iowa Agricultural college, Prof. Thomas Shaw of the Great Northern railway system, Prof. M. A. Brannon of the University of North Dakota, Prof. A. B. Hess of Larimore, N. D., and others of equal note.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

JOHNSON IS CONVICTED

Verdict of Third Degree Murder Returned By Jury.

Case of Second Boy Bandit Considered for Six Hours.

Algot Johnson is guilty of murder in the third degree.

The jury in the case of the state against the boy bandit, decided after being out about six hours that he was an accomplice in the shooting of Officer Harry Chesmore.

The verdict was not returned until after 11 o'clock last night. The jurors went out shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Young Johnson was clearly disappointed by the verdict. He had come to believe that he would be acquitted on the murder charge and held on the robbery charge only. When it was read his face fell as the meaning of the verdict became clear.

For the offense he will spend from twenty to thirty years at the state prison at Stillwater. The maximum penalty is thirty years and the minimum is twenty.

Mrs. Ole Hagstead, the boy's mother, was not in the room when the jury brought in the verdict. She had been with her son since the trial began on Tuesday morning and it had such a wearing effect on her nerves that she was at home trying to rest.

The verdict of the jury was more or less of a surprise as it was thought generally that young Johnson would escape more easily. There are those about the courtroom, however, who believe firmly that Johnson was really the leader.

This they claim to be true from watching the two boys together and sizing them up individually rather than from any evidence that was produced to show it.

One attorney states that when the two boys were first brought to the courtroom, Johnson was the one who marched in first. Johnson sat down first. When the names were called he was the one who got up first. When they were dismissed for the time being to be taken back to jail, Johnson walked out ahead of Melodrowski. His head is clearer than Melodrowski's, they say, and he thinks more quickly. He is the brighter in every way and his answers to questions are more direct. The jury evidently took a part of this into consideration.

In Judge Cant's charge he carefully outlined the law to the jurymen. He quoted several decisions from the supreme court to make clear just what constituted aiding or abetting a criminal. If the jury should find from the evidence that the affair had been prearranged, Johnson should be found guilty, he said. He cautioned the men to decide solely on the evidence offered in court. He told them that sympathy must not be considered.

The hold-up of the night clerk of the McKay hotel and the shooting of Officer Chesmore took place just three weeks ago. Johnson and his partner Melodrowski tied the night clerk and porter to the posts in the dining room in true bandit style. They then went through the cash register. They were later arrested by Officer Chesmore and it was while he was taking them by street car to the police station that Melodrowski shot him and the two boys escaped during the confusion. They were later captured in an old lumber camp twenty miles from the city.

PRESIDENT TO INSIST ON THE INDORSEMENT OF RECIPROCITY PACT

his stand upon this belief and hold it until some action is taken by congress.

The overturning of the Republican majority of the house and the great change which will be made in the complexion of the senate after March 4, is thought by some to supply President Taft with more than an even chance of success. When his message was read in the house it was received with acclamation by the Democrats, and appearances seem to favor an indorsement of it by the present minority which soon will be the majority.

Democrats in Favor.

If the attitude of the Democratic leaders of the house proves a true index of the position which minority members of the ways and means committee will take on the joint resolution to put the trade agreement into force, then such a resolution can be brought out of committee. The seven Democrats on the committee are thought to be in sympathy with the agreement, and it is certain that four Republicans will vote to report it. This makes a clear majority of the nineteen members.

Should the resolution be brought out of the ways and means committee within the next fortnight, a vote could be had on it in the house during the present session. Whether it passes or not, it is likely a majority of the present Democratic members present will vote for it. This would be accepted as committing the Democratic house of the next session to its passage.

It is in the senate that the barriers now look impregnable. A Republican member of he finance committee yesterday said that not one of the majority of that body favored the proposed arrangement with Canada, some being opposed because they believed interests of their states to be jeopardized, and others basing their objections upon the ground of supposed menace to the principle of protection. The estimate by this member of the sentiment in the committee concerning the agreement may not be entirely correct.

What Will Insurgents Do?

There was one amusing phase to the discussion of the proposed agreement yesterday. The "standpat" Republicans in the house were laughing at the position in which they said the insurgents from the corn and wheat country must find themselves as a result of the proposition to place grains on the free list. They declared that the insurgents had made the welkin ring with their demands for a further revision of the tariff and for lower duties.

"The proposed agreement," said one of the old-time house leaders, "gives the gentlemen from the Dakotas, from Minnesota, from Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas downward tariff revision with a vengeance on the products of their own states. Now let's see what they are going to do about it."

The insurgents discussed the matter among themselves, but so far as known, came to no general understanding.

Wood Pulp and Print Paper.

The provisions affecting wood pulp and print paper have been the subject of much discussion among house members. Representative Mann of Illinois, who headed the congressional committee that investigated the entire paper situation three years ago, said yesterday:

"The provision in regard to pulp and paper will admit at once, free of duty, pulp and paper from Canada which is made from pulp wood cut on the private lands, as distinguished from the public or crown lands. Whenever any province of Canada removes its restrictions on the exportations of pulp wood cut on its own crown lands, then the pulp and paper manufactured in Canada from crown land pulp wood will also come in force. So long as any Canadian province retains any restriction on the free exportation of its crown land pulp wood, the paper going from the United States to Canada will continue to pay the Canadian rate of duty."

The Free List.

The following list shows the present duties imposed by the United States and Canada on articles all of which will be admitted free under the new tariff agreement. The first figure following the article is the United States rate and the second the Canadian general rate:

CANADIANS CONFIDENT

do not share this year, however.

By mutual agreement between the government and the opposition, debate has been put over for a week. This step undoubtedly has been taken to permit the machinery of government at Washington to get in motion. Following Sir Wilfred Laurier's reply to the strictures of the opposition on the measure and brief debate, the question can be brought to a formal vote at the will of the premier.

Government leaders regard the attitude of the opposition as weak. The assertion that the ratification of the agreement is a step toward political union with the United States and a step away from imperialism is dismissed as untenable. Loyalty to the mother country is above commercialism is their answer.

Aim of Negotiations.

The faith of the government's supporters that congress will ratify the agreement is based upon the fact that the main consideration of the negotiations was to frame an agreement which could be put through both congress and parliament. It is understood that the Canadian negotiators were always willing to accept the opinion of the American trade commissioners as to what congress could be induced to accept.

The American commissioners are said to have adopted the same attitude as to what parliament would accept, and the agreement is the result of careful conferences conducted on this basis. The Canadian government believes congress will give the agreement legislative sanction before March 4.

If this is not done there will be disappointment but not discouragement in Canada, as there is a conviction here that the agitation in the United States over the high cost of living and the important bearing of the agreement on the question are bound to keep it in the forefront.

Some dissatisfied Canadian interests are heard from at Ottawa. The steel makers of Canada do not relish free trade in steel rods. The salt makers declare that the ratification of the agreement will close them up.

Fear Competition.

The market gardeners are dissatisfied with the prospects of competing with the truck farmers of the Southern states. The agricultural implement makers do not like the reductions which the agreement makes in the protection they now enjoy.

There are a few representative men who believe that the commerce of Canada, which now moves East and West will be diverted, and in a few years the bulk of it will be moving north and south with disastrous effect on Canada as now constituted. It is predicted that this diversion of trade will be severly felt by the chief Canadian export ports of Montreal and St. John. It is also held that Canada is likely to disintegrate as the result of this shifting of the direction of commerce.

Men who hold these views are greatly in the minority. The great majority believe that the ratification of the agreement will produce a material prosperity and do no damage whatever.

house committee of education. The bill proposes that such aid shall be granted under the direction of the department of instruction, which department is authorized to appoint an inspecting officer who will have charge of the classification of schools and the making of inspections. The bill carries an annual appropriation of $50,000, of which amount $25,000 is set aside for rural schools, $20,000 being for graded schools and $5,000 for consolidated schools.

State Parole Officer.

Under the terms of a bill passed by the senate this week, J. C. McAndrews of Fargo would be out of the position of parole officer of the state. The bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Johnson of Hettinger county, and under its provisions the state penitentiary warden is also made the state's parole officer. An emergency clause is attached to the bill which it is declared is necessary that inasmuch as economy must be exercised, and that the position of parole officer is unnecessary and creates an expense, that position can handily be done away with.

Senator Cashel has proposed a new plan to care for the indemnity in the glandered horse statute. He would have the state board of equalization levy a tax of one-tenth of a mill for the glandered horses, which would create a fund of between $55,000 and $60,000 in the biennial period. He also proposes to retain the state wolf bounty, but would lower the tax to one-half of one-tenth of a mill, which would give the state between $28,000 and $30,000 in the biennial period, or an amount just about sufficient to meet the claims that are made for bounty.

New Judicial Districts.

Under the terms of the Fifth judicial district division bill that is before the assembly now, Brady, Foster, Wells and Stutsman county make up the Fifth district, while Barnes, Griggs, La Moure and Logan make up what will be the Thirteenth district.

Favorable consideration has been given one of the judicial district bills by the senate committee, a report favoring the adoption of the Eleventh district bill, introduced by Senator Overson, being given out. This district, if the bill becomes law, will be made up of McKenzie, Williams and Mountrail counties, the latter two counties being from the present Eighth district with McKenzie county from the present Tenth district.

Sectarian dormitories would be exempted from taxation by the bill introduced this week by Mr. Ployhar of Barnes county. This bill is designed especially to relieve from taxation such institutions as have sprung up at the side of several of the state educational institutions for the benefit of students in those institutions of various religious faiths.

H. D. PAULSON.

DUNN SYSTEM OF GOOD ROADS LEGISLATION IS FAVORED BY SOLONS

own providing for the 1-mill tax, but the committee unanimously voted for the Dunn bill. The chief differences in the two bills are that Farley's bill doesn't recognize the state highway commission while Dunn's bill does, and that Farley's bill requires each county to contribute as much as it gets from the state, while Dunn's bill leaves this to the discretion of the highway commission.

Mr. Dunn pointed out that it is impracticable to require the counties to contribute as much as they get from the state. The county levy for road purposes is limited to 2 mills, and in most of the counties this will not raise in cash as much as the counties may expect to get from the state. Being unable to levy enough to meet the state's contribution, these counties would not be able, under the Farley plan, to get their share. Even if they were able to collect from the taxpayers enough to match the state's donation there would be nothing left for the county commissioners to divide among their districts, the whole county levy going for the road or roads on which the state aid was expended.

Would Benefit County.

Mr. Dunn, in explaining his bill, said that one reason he was for it was that the three large counties, Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis, would pay 60 per cent of the tax, and could get back only 9 per cent of the proceeds at the outside. The country counties would pay but 40 per cent of the tax, and get back at least 91 per cent of the total collection.

Another reason is that the iron interests alone would pay about $250,000 of the total amount raised, and this money would go for the benefit of the whole state. He considered this vastly better than any tonnage tax on iron, because such a tax, even it amounted to a million a year, would go into the general revenue fund, out of which no appropriations can be made except for administrative purposes, and the country would get little or no benefit from it.

Mr. Dunn's second bill includes a plan for elaborating the state highway commission and equipping it with means of making itself more valuable to the state.

This bill directs a tax levy for road purposes of a quarter of a mill in place of the old-time levy of one-twentieth of a mill. This levy is authorized by the amendment to the Constitution voted upon in 1906, but not yet made use of by the legislature.

In addition the bill carries an appropriation of $150,000 a year out of the general revenue fund, to be used in elaborating the machinery of the state highway commission, which is to be equipped with expert engineers whose duty it shall be to supervise all road work and to co-operate with and advise county boards in their work on the roads.

These two bills will come out next week with the committee their sponsors, and as this will make it unnecessary for them to be referred back to the committee they will go on general orders at once. In all probability they will be made a special order in the house for an early date, when they will be considered thoroughly and probably passed.

Reversed Its Action.

The roads committee of the house yesterday afternoon reversed its action of Thursday in recommending for indefinite postponement the bill by Andrew Davis appropriating about $100,000 for counties that did not get their full share of the "pork barrel" road distribution under the law of 1907.

Senator Swanson of Fridley, who is the author of a similar bill in the senate, appeared before the committee and put the bill in such a light that that the committee unanimously recommended it to pass.

In 1907 the legislature appropriated $200,000 yearly for each of the next two years, and divided it up among the counties.

This worked so well that in 1909 the legislature of that year passed a similar bill, making the appropriation $300,000 a year.

Senator L. O. Cooke of Wabasha attacked the 1909 law in the courts, and the supreme court held it unconstitutional on the ground that the legislature cannot appropriate money for internal improvements out of the general revenue fund, or out of any fund except that specifically provided for that purpose by the Constitution.

In the meantime the distribution under the 1907 law had been in progress, and when the decision was rendered against the "pork barrel" bill about half the second year's appropriation under that law remained uncalled for in the state treasury. Some of the counties had been forehanded enough to collect their share promptly; others had only taken a part, and still others hadn't touched it at all.

The Swanson-Davis bill appropriates out of the internal improvement fund enough money to make up to these counties the shares that they missed.

The house committee on board of control yesterday afternoon recommended for passage the Campbell bill requiring the state board of control, in calling for bids on state buildings, to call not only for complete bids on all parts of a proposed work, but for separate bids on plumbing, heating and ventilating. This is to give smaller contractors a chance.

Moderate Amount of Bills.

The temperance shown by the members of both bodies in introducing bills—the session is far behind that of two years ago at this period in this respect—is all the more remarkable because of the large percentage of new members in both bodies. The new member is pretty likely to think that the way to be useful and to get desirable publicity at home is to introduce as many bills as he can imagine. It is a mistake, of course; for the members find, after one term's experience, that the successful man is the one who doesn't try to cover too much ground. The member who introduces a bill or two and devotes his whole attention to carring for them gets further than the member who introduces so many measures that he isn't able to take care of any of them properly.

There are many members of both branches who have as yet introduced no bills at all, and some who say that so far as they know now they will not introduce any. They think that a man who studies the measures others introduce and votes upon them intelligently and honestly is doing his part as well as the introducer of many bills.

The house yesterday spent half an hour or more killing a proposal to hire an additional page at $3 a day, which would come to about $250 for the session. Some statistical individual figured out later that it cost the state more than $300 for the time spent in saving $250.

The house adopted the resolution by the drainage committee calling for an investigation of State Drainage Engineer Ralph reported in The Herald yesterday, and a committee to look into the matter will be appointed in a few days. It is said that the probe will go deep, and that Mr. Ralph will come out of it either completely cleared or completely convicted.

The senate railroad committee will have another hearing on the Cashman distance tariff bill next Thursday afternoon. Some members of the committee were against more hearings, and wished to push the bill to a vote; but the members who wanted every opportunity given for a complete discussion were more numerous.

Senator Charles S. Marden of Barnesville will introduce next week a bill doing away with the public drinking cup, a step that has been taken in Wisconsin and other states. It is not at all improbable that he has been hastened to this step by an awed inspection of the glasses used in connection with the water coolers in the legislative lobbies.

insist that instead of putting the full burden on the industry, the workingmen should pay 20 per cent of the cost. He will also express a doubt of the constitutionality of the proposed law, and he will state that he is so fearful of the cost of the proposed system that he doubts the advisability of taking it up for the present. In other words, though the labor and legal sides of the discussion have maintained their stand of two years ago, the employers' side has turned about face and now seems to be against such a measure.

An Alternative Bill.

The friends of the majority report anticipate from this that serious, and perhaps fatal, opposition will develop, and in anticipation of this they have had Justice T. D. O'Brien prepare an alternative bill, which will be introduced if the commission's bill is defeated. This measure will abrogate the fellow servant rule and the doctrine of assumption of risk, and will modify the rule of contributory negligence, putting it on a basis of comparative negligence. It will provide a system of compensation which the injured workingmen may take if they wish, and if not they may go to the courts as usual. The measure will apply only to hazardous industries, while the commission's bill applies to all and may therefore be expected to have more general opposition.

I Cure Disease Mechanically!

When you know, as I know, that pinched nerves cause disease, then you will realize that nerve pressure is a mechanical cause of disease and the treatment, or the removal of that presure, must likewise be mechanical.

In removing the pressure on nerves I remove the cause of disease, and consequently, the patient eventually is free from disease and is on the road to health.

The human body generates the electricity it uses, the same as it makes its own hair, nerves, etc. As soon as the electric wiring of the body is disturbed there is sickness and ill health, but that is a mechanical defect and must be treated mechanically.

Sometimes these defects are so slight that only a skilled chiropractor can detect them, yet if allowd to continue indefinitely would surely bring on and cause most serious diseases.

The nerves are the conductors that transmit all the elctric power from the brain to all parts of the body, and when less than 100 units of power pass along them some nerve is being squeezed and some part of the body is doing its work on less power than it should and ultimately it will wear out.

Find the pressure. That's what I do. And until the pressure is found (Pressure causes the diseased condition) any treatment is guess work.

I leave drugs alone when I treat you; I begin immediately to find the cause of your ill and my way saves you time and money, and you get well.

Call on me and let me show you how I make you well without drugs or operations. Offices at 707-708-709-710-711-712 Palladio Building, Duluth, Minn.

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good, I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

Edward J. Hoppman, 422 West First street, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have looked upon Doan's Kidney Pills as a good kidney medicine ever since I first tried them about twelve years ago. An account of my experience was given for publication at that time and in 1904 and in 1908, I again indorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. At the present time I take pleasure in repeating my statement. My kidney trouble was evidenced by sharp pains in my back and I was also annoyed by a kidney weakness. In the morning when I got up, I was tired and all run down. Doan's Kidney Pills completely stopped these troubles. Since then, I have used this remedy and it has done good work."

THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW!

EXPERIENCE

THE experience of W. W. Kimball Co. covers a continuous period of fifty years; thus purchasers of Kimball instruments share in the advantages of half a century of constant and intelligent effort in the piano field and get the most for their money.

LARGEST OUTPUT

THE product of the Kimball factories is more than double in volume that of any similar institution in the world. To you this has much significance indicating great popularity. It signifies all that unlimited capital can command, as W. W. Kimball Co. purchase for cash and accommodate their customers as to terms of payment. It means that the manufacturers can afford to sell at a small profit, obtaining results from mere volume of sales. This is also proof of ability of W. W. Kimball Co. to furnish the most for the money.

SUPERLATIVE MERIT

THE W. W. Kimball Co. received the World's Columbian Award for Superlative Excellence. This award is the most sweeping one ever given producers of pianos and organs. Kimball Pipe Organs are the World's masterpieces. They are in use in hundreds of the most prominent churches and residences from New York to San Francisco. Many of the world's leaders and guides in everything that pertains to music endorse the Kimball pianos and have adopted them for their private and public use. The above testifies to W. W. Kimball Co.'s ability to furnish the most for the money.

GUARANTY

THE capital of the W. W. Kimball Co. is exceeded by few of the largest banks of the United States. This enables them to buy raw material in great quantities, to make every separate portion of the instruments in their own factories, and is the strength of the Kimball guaranty. This is the climax of the W. W. Kimball Co.'s ability to furnish the most for the money.

TO DISCUSS BOND ISSUE

Hillside Club Wants Statement From Board Before Election.

Says Announcement of Revision of Rates Should Be Made.

The Fifth Ward Hillside Improvement club, one of the leaders in the agitation for a readjustment of the water rates, will hold a special meeting Tuesday evening at the Emerson school to discuss the proposed $300,000 bond issue.

At a previous meeting a resolution was passed against the authorization of the issue, but at that time it was understood that the $200,000 issue voted at the election a year ago would stand. At the council meeting last Monday night a resolution was passed stating that if the $300,000 issue were passed, the $200,000 issue would be retired. Since that action the Hillside club is undetermined as to what action to take.

One of the leading members stated this morning that he hoped the water and light board would make some announcement as to what will be done relative to the water rates before election day, which comes a week from next Tuesday. He said that the position of the board in this matter will have a great deal to do as to whether or not the club will favor the $300,000 issue.

"THE DAWN OF A TOMORROW"

Gertrude Elliott and Very Capable Company Charm Lyceum Audience.

Proper appreciation of what is offered should result in filling the Lyceum theater to the gallery tonight, when the second performance of "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is given by the company headed by Miss Gertrude Elliott. It is one of the most strikingly beautiful dramas that has appeared in Duluth in years, and the company is one of the very best aggregations that Duluthians have had an opportunity to see for months.

The sentiment that no matter what exigencies oppress us today, tomorrow holds out a promise of something else, pervades the play. Its story is a dramatic one and heart-strings are touched as the play progresses, but in every instance there is just enough humor, underlying or consequent upon the passing incident, to relieve the strain without spoiling the effect of each succeeding climax. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett wrote the play and Liebler & Co. produced it, but without the intelligent and artistic interpretation it is given by the members of the company, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" might be the rankest sort of a failure. There are opportunities in plenty for exceeding the limits of good taste in acting, but none of the possibilities for exuding melodrama where human feeling, pure and simple, is to be expressed, is taken advantage of by any member of the cast.

As an emotional actress Miss Elliott takes high rank. She is remarkably perfect in her London slum dialect work and from the first chains the interest and sympathy of her audience. The intensity of her portrayal of the character in which she appears, is not marred by over-playing. She knows her art very thoroughly.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is essentially a stimulant toward optimism. Its chief characters represent the highest and the lowest castes in English life today, and the controlling idea of the plot is strongly suggestive of that sterling example of the playwright's output, "A Messenger From Mars." There is no copying of ideas or any suggestion of such a thing, but the goal attained is the same in each play. Tear-dimmed eyes were seen in the audience, and that is the highest attribute that can be paid to playright and cast, for it was an exceptionally intelligent and experienced audience.

Miss Elliott had the role of Glad. "Glad" is the diminutive of a most impossibly long name, consisting of many parts, and Glad herself is a chance product of the underworld of London. Her environment is of the very worst, but her chastity is unblemished and her spirit exceedingly good for all the world with which she comes in contact. She lives up to her name, and as the lines of the play permit her to say, "She is alive!" Miss Elliott makes Glad live for the audience as few actresses could do it. From her first appearance until the last curtain, Glad dominated the stage.

The rise of the curtain at the beginning of the first act discloses the library of Sir Oliver Holt, who is aged and exceedingly rich, besides being afflicted with decreasing physical and mental vitality. He is so self-centered and so completely imbued with the idea that his own interests are the only interests in the world that can possess any interest for him, that he fails to comprehend any of the large humanitarian issues that press upon the world for solution. Indeed, he doesn't know that they exist.

A conference is held by a trio of physicians, specialists in mental afflictions, and the conclusion is reached that Sir Oliver is doomed to a descent into idiocy and then death, which conference the patient overhears. On the pretext that he is going to Paris, he slips out of his home and makes his way on a night full of fog to Apple Blossom court, one of the worst slum regions of London. There he comes in contact with misery, with crime, with hunger, and with Glad. Glad is experimenting with prayer, of which she first learned when in a hospital to have her two broken legs made whole again, an operation necessitated by reason of the fact that a man had thrown her out of a window. Her lover, The Dandy, is a pickpocket, and he comes under suspicion of complicity in a murder of which he is innocent. Glad prays for him and his deliverance, and Sir Oliver is drawn into the net of circumstances with the result that his intention to commit suicide to escape idiocy is driven from his mind, and he is so strongly stimulated mentally that the world takes on an aspect for him that is far from gloomy.

The denouement, involving the complete discomfiture of Sir Oliver's nephew, is naturally reached, but there are many strikingly effective situations that thrill the audience before it comes.

To make any comment on the individual's abilities and fitness is merely to give the names of the members of the company and to say they are all of high class. Chief among them, character and name, are: Sir Oliver Holt, Fuller Mellish; Oliver Holt, Sydney Booth; Sir Bowling Burford, Guy Phipps; Dr. Heath, George Farren; Dr. Satterley, Roy Barnes; Lord Tommy, Phillip Leslie; Dandy, A. Scott Gatty; the thief, Bennett Kilpack; Polly, Angela Ogden; Glad, Miss Elliott.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" will be at the Lyceum this evening.

Owners of Lodging Houses Ask Inspector What Is Required.

Notices of the building inspector to owners and agents of hotels to put in fire escape appliances in conformity to the ordinance is meeting with a general response.

For the last week men interested in the hotels which were inspected by the department, have been coming into the office to ascertain definitely just what is required.

They have announced their intention of fulfilling the requirements. If they do not do so within thirty days of the receipt of the written notice of the building inspector they are liable to fine or imprisonment for a misdemeanor. The inspection showed that many of the lodging houses in the city are nothing but fire traps. The inspector reported to the council that not one of the hotels in the city fulfilled the regulations of that part of the ordinance calling for signs and red lights to designate the location of fire escapes and gongs of sufficient size to arouse every inmate in case of an alarm of fire.

THE SMOOZERS SMOOZE IN SMOOZE ROOM AT SPALDING

Do you smooze? Huh. You can't unless you're among the elect.

The elect smoozed last night, whatever that may mean. Two new smoozers were accumulated at last night's smooze, which was at the Spalding, where the smoozers have smooze quarters. The new ones are J. H. Sanford of Pittsburg and John Harley of everywhere else. Mr. Sanford, besides being a smoozer, is superintending the construction of the new dock that is being built for the Carnegie Coal company, and Mr. Harley has the distinction, besides that of his smoozership, of being manager of Miss Gertrude Elliott, the actress now appearing at the Lyceum.

Being so heavily encrusted with honors, it was natural that these gentlemen should be given honorary membership, in the opinion of their now fellow smoozers.

After the theater last evening, the smoozers smoozed into the smoozers' room at the Spalding, intent upon smoozing a bit of after-theater supper. They did it. There was a distracted rushing about on the part of the chefs and assistant chefs at the Spalding this morning, just on account of the smoozers, who last night smoozed said chefs' and assistant chefs' coats and caps that had been laid handy when they came from the laundry, for the day's delectable diversions. F. A. Patrick didn't care to make any smooze soup, so he donned an apron and a sun bonnet. Where that came from nobody knows. Being supreme smoozer, he can do as he pleases, even to the sunbonnet.

G. A. Tomlinson holds the important and highly lucrative office of soporific smoozer, while B. W. How is secretarial smoozer, and C. A. Marshall, in his Lyceum way, is symphonic smoozer. Aside from these handicaps, the smoozers have no additional membership, except for honorary members, who are numerous and among the most widely known visitors to Duluth in the last two years.

These visitors have been obliged to incriminate themselves, in token of which their autographs are exhibited by the smoozers, but only to the select.

If you want to smooze, go away somewhere and get a reputation.

HAD PRIZE POTATOES IN POOR FARM BIN

Supt. Melby of the St. Louis county poor farm in Duluth went from the telephone to the potato bin and gathered up a quantity of tubers, exercising some discretion in their selection, but, because of scarcity of time, not digging into the heap to make a carefully selected collection such as he might have got together if he had more time.

And they are prize winning potatoes. The Northern Pacific railroad is stocking an exhibition train, showing the very best of Minnesota's premier agricultural products, for exposition at the National Corn show at Columbus, which will be held next week. The National Corn show is described by one who knows as the last word in agriculture. The Northern Pacific, in making up its exhibit, discovered yesterday that no potatoes were on hand. As the work is being done at St. Paul, it might have been natural for the Northern Pacific to garner a few potatoes on the spot, but it didn't. It telephoned to Duluth, for the very best of potatoes were desired for this exhibition purpose, and that's what was secured.

A. B. Hostetter, agricultural secretary for the Commercial club, received the telephonic and impassioned plea of the Northern Pacific for a fine lot of potatoes. Now Mr. Hostetter knows a lot about potatoes, but he doesn't carry a lot of potatoes about with him in his vest pocket, so when the Northern Pacific said to send it an extra good lot of that popular fruit on the night train he had to use the telephone. He called up Mr. Melby and the superintendent did as aforesaid, with the result that the potatoes have been delivered to the Northern Pacific at St. Paul, and Minnesota tubers will be represented at Columbus by the aristocrats of their species, and they come from Duluth and St. Louis county.

It may seem a trivial thing to many people, but it isn't. It's considered a justification of all the faith of those who are working for a realization of St. Louis county's agricultural possibilities.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST DELIVERS LECTURE.

Willis F. Gross, C. S. B. A., member of the board of lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, delivered an interesting lecture on the doctrines of Christian Science last evening at the Grand opera house.

"There is no mystery connected with Christian Science," he said, "save the mystery which ensrounds everything which is not understood. Christian Science can be understood and when it is understood, it will bring healing to the sick, comfort to the sorrowing, and strength and courage in the hour of trial and temptation."

Minister Carter Files Protest With the Turkish Authorities.

Constantinople, Jan. 28.—J. Ridgley Carter, who has been placed at the head of the American embassy with the rank of minister plenipotentiary pending the appointment of a successor to Ambassador Straus resigned, has lodged a protest with the Porte against the assault and indignities to which the American consular representative at Buriut and Alexandretta were recently subjected.

It appears that a sergeant instigated a mutiny among fifty Turkish soldiers, who were being transported on the steamer New Jersey. When that vessel reached Alexandretta she was flying the American flag and the American consular agent, John T. Peristiany, went on board to investigate. There he was set upon by the soldiers and driven from the ship. During the attack his hand was cut and his coat was torn off.

The local police arrested some of the rioters, but the captain of the New Jersey refused to surrender the sergeant, the ringleader. The vessel proceeded subsequently to Smyrna, where there was a second row over the question of whether the soldiers or the sailors of the New Jersey were primarily at fault. When the vessel docked, its second mate was arrested. At this stage of the quarrel the American consul-general, Ernest L. Harris, took a hand with the result that he was roughly abused by the warring factions. However, he brought about the arrest of the sergeant.

When the trouble reached Saloniki the boycotting among the shipping men declared a boycott against the owners of the New Jersey.

Acting upon advices the American embassy here promptly took the matter up with the Turkish government and in addition to protesting against the ill-treatment of Mr. Peristiany and Mr. Harris, made representations regarding the boycott at Saloniki. Later the embassy received assurances that adequate measures to stamp out the boycott had been taken.

SECOND HEARING ON ORDINANCE

New Law Regulating Theaters Will Be Publicly Discussed.

The second public hearing of the so-called Moore theater ordinance, proposed to regulate the character of pictures and shows in the city, will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the council chambers of the city hall.

The members of the committee on ordinances and resolutions which has charge of the ordinance are Aldermen Shartel, Hoar and Hector. No action was taken at the last meeting about two weeks ago as the theater men wanted time to investigate conditions in other cities. The ordinance was drawn by Attorney Edmund M. Morgan at the request of the Women's council. It prohibits any immoral performance or exhibition or the showing of any pictures which are improper. There is a good deal of interest being manifested in the fate of the ordinance and it is expected that the council chambers will be filled.

DULUTH POLICEMEN ARE PLANNING ANNUAL DANCE

The Duluth policemen are shining the brass buttons of their dress uniforms and working up a polish on their boots for the annual policeman's ball, which will be given a week from the coming Monday at the Armory.

The "city's finest" promise that the event will eclipse all previous affairs of that nature. Already hundreds of tickets have been sold in the city, leaving little doubt but that the big hall will be filled when the orchestra starts the strains of the first waltz or two step. The committee in charge of the arrangements, which is doing all the "heavy work," consists of Sergeant John Kenna, Sergeant James Bradley and Officer Oscar Peterson. They are busying themselves every minute, determined that they will show the committees which have had the job before, that they didn't know much about making arrangements for the ball.

They state that the decorations will be a revelation in themselves. Some of the more curious at headquarters have been asking them what they are going to be, but the only answer has been a wise shake of the head, accompanied by a remark to the effect that "you just wait and see. There's going to be some 'class' to them." Even Chief Troyer declared that he hasn't the faintest idea as to what the decoration plans are.

The Duluth force boasts some of the finest looking policemen in the country. However, some of them have become rather portly in late years. In order to be in condition they are taking long walks each day, toning down to the stage where they claim they will be able to dance every number on the bill with the best of them, including the eligible bachelors. Arthur T. Brigham, one of the oldest men on the force and at one time chief of police of West Duluth, is credited with the honors in this line. Once upon a time, not so very long ago, a reporter had the audacity to call him "fatty," in writing a story about him, accompanied by his picture. He only weighs about 300 pounds, but he declares that when the night of the ball comes around he will "show one or two of the young roosters where to get off." Sergeant Kenna, one of the arrangement committee, isn't so small around the waist, either, and to make things interesting the detail at headquarters, where both are stationed, have begun to place bets as to which of them will last the longer. Detective Frank Schulte says that he will be in the whirl until the end and so does Detective Norman Terry. Patrolman John Link, Nelson Perry, Bob Smollet, Jerry Gleason, Charlie Stahl, Pat Walsh, Fred Grandmaison, Dave Olson and W. F. Reidel say that they will be there but that they don't think they will have time to dance more than three-quarters of the program. Mrs. Walsh, the police matron, has her program nearly filled.

SUES THE CITY; GETS DAMAGES

A Verdict of $1,167 Returned in Favor of John Koivisto.

The city of Duluth must pay John Koivisto $1,167 for the death of his infant daughter, the loss of his home and injuries caused to his wife and himself which were, he claimed, the results of the explosion of a gas main on St. Croix avenue last July.

A jury in district court returned a verdict for this amount this morning. In his complaint Koivisto asked $15,000.

He claimed that the city was negligent in that the main, which was known to be out of repair, had not been fixed. It was claimed that gas had been escaping from that particular main for three years past.

The case has been going on in district court for the past three days.

Lawyer, Preacher and Municipal Reformer in One Personality.

Raymond Robbins, who will speak at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon, is one of the best known investigators of civic conditions, of industrial wrongs and of municipal wickedness in the country. Mr. Robbins, in addition, is one of the most noted settlement workers of the West, a preacher, an orator and a laborer for the good of humanity. Mr. Robbins will bring a message to this city, important and of vital meaning. His subject is "The Social Consciousness of Jesus," and it is said to be one of the most inspiring addresses ever delivered from a public platform.

Running away from his New York home when a youth, he made his fortune in the kaolin and phosphate beds of Florida. This was not until the youth had grown into a young man, had passed through many adventures that read almost like a tale from a modern "Arabian Nights," and had learned to be sturdy and independent and to conquer the problems that opposed his upward progress.

It was while in Florida that a new found friend took a very deep interest in Robbins. He placed the books of the late Henry George in his hands and it was through this early study of the theories of the great single tax advocate that Mr. Robbins has since his first conviction of the truth and logic of the George principles been a firm advocate of the single tax system.

Admitted to Bar.

The philosophy of the law attracted the study of young Robbins, and it was while working as a clerk in a little Florida store that he took up the task of mastering it. He studied so hard that he passed the bar examination and was admitted to practice in the state of Florida. Not satisfied with his advance in the study of the statutes, he went to Columbia university, Washington, D. C., and was graduated from that institution with honors.

Mr. Robbins has applied this knowledge of law to the betterment of conditions in settlements, has sought to improve municipal conditions where he has found them bad, and has pointed out to many communities the wrongs that exist in their midst.

He has performed great good in civic reform in the city of Chicago. He assisted former Mayor Dunne in straightening out many of the entanglements of vice and politics, and it was in Chicago that Mr. Robbins first became known as one of the greatest civic reformers of the West. In addition to this he has shown great ability in dealing with the Settlement problems.

Exposes Municipal Wrongs.

Many sided are the accomplishments of this remarkable man. He is an ordained minister of the gospel, and his big character has made him grasp the broad character of humanity to man. He has stepped outside of the beaten path of convention that many ministers tread and has spoken freely and fearlessly of municipal conditions that have been rotten to the core.

So effective has his work been in stimulating new thought, awakening knowledge and action on the part of the people toward better conditions, that his fame as a speaker has grown by leaps and bounds. His work in the pulpit, where on more than one occasion he has denounced some public official, has perhaps done more good in bringing to light conditions of municipal shame than has the efforts of any one man during the past decade.

Mr. Robbins is an able, fearless man, optimistic, holding to an ideal and working along practical lines for its accomplishment. His message to the American people is an important one, for he tells of conditions as he has seen them, speaks of an innate knowledge of things as they are. He has an important message to deliver to the people of this city, and it is expected that his address will make a profound impression here.

HUGE ELECTRIC SIGN TO ADVERTISE DULUTH

Letters Eight Feet High to Be Placed on Hillside.

Herald Offers $10 Prize for the Most Acceptable Slogan.

A gigantic, glaring sign advertising Duluth, placed on the hillside at some point, where it will be visible to the eye of every person who enters the city either by train or boat, was proposed by W. N. Ryerson, chairman of the publicity committee of the Commercial club at a meeting of the committee in the club rooms today.

The Duluth Herald offers a prize of $10 for a slogan that will be acceptable to a tribunal to be selected by the Commercial club. This slogan or phrase must not exceed fifteen letters in length and must contain the word "Duluth." Details concerning this offer will be published later.

As general manager of the Great Northern Power company, Mr. Ryerson offered on behalf of that company to supply the power which would be needed to illuminate such a sign, and he said that in his opinion the Duluth Edison company would readily agree to maintain the sign itself. The only item of maintenance expense will be the cost of lamps to replace those broken or burned out.

But the prime necessity is to find a phrase, very brief, very pointed, that will most accurately express Duluth.

The plan is to place the proposed advertising sign on a blank wall perhaps as far up the hill as Fourth or Fifth street. The letters are to be not less than eight feet in height, as the plan now stands, and will serve not only to advertise Duluth to the visitor as an enterprising community, but will be talked about in all parts of the country. No individual or corporation will have any benefit from the sign, except such indirect benefits as are sure to result for the building of the great, blazing advertisement.

Tourists coming into the harbor on the lake steamers during the summer months will see that sign before they see land at night. They will know that Duluth is—what? Well, that depends upon what is suggested by the winner of the $10 prize offered by The Herald.

Mr. Ryerson said that he proposed the idea merely with a desire to suggest it to the consideration of the Commercial club. He said he had no doubt as to its feasibility, and added that he was prepared to guarantee the collection of the money needed to build the sign. It will cost a minimum of $1,500, was his estimate. The good results that would accrue from it as an advertisement of the city he considered to be so far in excess of the cost that it undoubtedly would be one of the most profitable investments the city would make in its campaign for publicity.

The publicity committee referred the proposal to the public affairs committee with its recommendation. The public affairs committee will meet Monday evening, when it is expected definite action will be taken on it.

DEPUTY SHERIFF DIES OF WOUNDS

Expires as Train Bearing Him to Hospital Pulls Into Bemidji.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Deputy Sheriff Harry McCabe, who was shot by Charles Smith, caretaker at the Morris summer resort on the shore of Leech lake, yesterday, as he was trying to enforce a search warrant at the Smith home, was brought here from Bemidji, McCabe having been taken to that city soon after being wounded. He died as the train was pulling into Bemidji. The Bemidji Elks, of which deceased was a member, cared for the body until it was shipped here.

McCabe lived over three hours after receiving his wounds, and at the Walker hospital, before starting for Bemidji, gave all the particulars of the tragedy before being conveyed to the train, Marshal Morical and Mayor Scribner taking down the testimony. His statement was that the Smith woman endeavored to shoot him with a rifle as soon as he entered the house, and after disarming her, he turned his attentions to an adjoining room, from which he had heard sounds. As he opened the door he found himself facing a shotgun in the hands of Smith, and before he had a chance to turn, received the full charge in the abdomen.

Accident, Says Smith.

Smith, who with his wife is now lodged in jail, says that the shooting was an accident. The complaint for the search warrant under which McCabe was acting was made by Robert McLean of Minneapolis, who lives on the shores of Leech lake. Sheriff Delury, who went to the Smith home this morning, found numerous stolen articles, including guns, revolvers and a gasoline engine, which was stolen last summer. When arrested, Mrs. Smith made the statement to the marshal that she tried to shoot McCabe herself before she was disarmed by him. County Attorney Funck came from Cass Lake this morning to arrange for the Smiths' preliminary hearing.

ADVOCATES RECIPROCITY BY GRADUAL REDUCTIONS

Retiring President of Board of Trade Delivers His Address.

Would Not Have Duty on Canadian Goods Removed All at Once.

The wiping out of the tariff on foodstuffs imported from Canada by a reduction of 25 per cent in the tariff for each of four years instead of the establishment of complete reciprocal relations at once, the carrying on of Duluth's fight for equitable freight rates, the turning of the tariff over to a tariff commission, and the expansion of Duluth's trade relations so as to make it the real distributing center of the Northwest are some of the measures advocated by President Stephen H. Jones in his farewell address at the annual meeting of the board of trade this afternoon.

Mr. Jones is succeeded as president by W. C. Frick, who was elected Jan. 17. The annual meeting today was principally to hear the retiring president's address and to receive the financial statement prepared by C. F. Macdonald, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Jones said in part:

"Each year has shown a step forward in the affairs of the association, and this year is no exception, and I wish to congratulate the members on the showing made.

Freight Rates.

"In the matter of freight rates, Duluth asks no more of any city or community, but we do demand that we be put on a parity with all others competing for the business of the Great Northwest. Our country has a problem to solve which the countries generally of the Old World have never found it necessary to meet. In the Old World the cities were established previously to the advent of the railroad—each one practically an independent community; and all that was necessary was the commencting of these communities for interchange of their various commodities in such volume as to make uniform rates possible almost immediately. In our country, communities have sprung up of such varying sizes and with such varying volumes of business that railroads have been compelled—just as naturally as we would under like circumstances—to grant rates to communities of large business which they could not possibly grant to others, and live.

"Gradually, with a more even distribution of population and business, the country is arriving at a stage where it is no longer necessary for any community to receive a lower rate than another at an equal distance from a given point of discharge or distribution—exclusive, of course, of such conditions as water competition, railroad grades, case (or otherwise) of access, and direct competition with railroads of another country. To this problem the several railroad and warehouse commissions are giving their most serious consideration, but it is a stupendous problem, and we must not be impatient. I believe the gentlemen of these commissions are approaching decisions just as rapidly as due consideration of the points involved will allow. I believe also that the railroad companies are just as anxious to have these questions settled as are the the citizens of Duluth or the members of the commissions. Our local committee is doing a great deal of hard and efficient work and can do it best at this stage, any independent attempts to assist might only prove detrimental. A time may come soon, however, when they will ask for your assistance. When that time does come, you, as an individual, as board of trade, will not be able to do too much, nor contribute too freely, to carry on a fight to secure the full benefits of our naturally strong position. I believe this question is fraught with more good for Duluth in its proper solution than any other question before us today.

Short Crops.

"As this is the last time I shall appear before you in an official way, I wish to call your attention briefly to a few points mentioned in my address last year. Unfortunately, we have had short crops in what we call our territory, and trade has fallen off materially. The time is not far off when the country west of us will have increased in population so that, even on a large crop, no more grain will pass through our elevators than on the present crop. I feel that I am not crying 'wolf' without good reason. I spoke last year of increased trade with Canada. How many of us have taken steps anticipating the losses in business we are bound to meet with in time through increased consumption in our own country and to rehabilitate such losses? Disraeli says 'The great secret of success in life is to be ready when our opportunity comes.' Our opportunity is now here—to make of Duluth the recognized center for the distribution of the surplus grains of the whole Northwest. Much will come to us naturally, but we want that also which will only come through individual effort.

Reciprocity With Canada.

"Reciprocal trade relations with Canada has been the main feature of the grain and business world the past few weeks. For the past ten years I have persistently advocated the reduction of the tariff on foodstuffs, but never with the idea of an immediate removal of the full rate. I believe a removal of 25 per cent of the present duty each year for four years would serve the best interests of the whole Northwest, giving the farmer, also the pioneer of today, and the investor the opportunity to find himself under the new conditions. If a more drastic step be taken, the application of it at least should be deferred until the beginning of next year, with the same end in view.

"After being pigeon-holed in a senate committee for three years, it looks now as though the demand for a permanent tariff commission will be given more serious consideration and a non-partisan commission appointed. This is confirmed by the report of the delegates from this board to the convention at Washington. After the appointment of the commission, results will necessarily be slow, as each schedule will require a great amount of technical study and research, but it will take the tariff out of politics and put it on a scientific basis where it properly belongs.

Capital and Labor.

"The larger questions of the country are being settled in a more amicable manner every year. Capital realizes that it must have the best quality of labor obtainable, and is willing to pay for it. Labor realizes this also, and it is one of the main objects of good unionism to deliver the best quality of labor. Labor realizes also that the moment it saves a dollar for investment, its aim is the same as capital's—to find the best safe investment for its money. Their interests are, and should continue to be, identical.

"In the same way the railway user is coming to know that a good quality of railway service is worth paying for. For the safe transfer of yourself and your goods, the railway must pay for a good quality of labor, and a good quality of material in its equipment and construction, and should receive a fair remuneration. The people are realizing this more and more every day. A great deal has been said lately about public ownership of railroads. This has been tried in several countries of Europe—with indifferent success in some cases, with absolute failure in others. Austria tried it, and it resulted not only in deterioration of services, but all railway expansion ceased. They faced an annual deficit, which had to come out of the general taxes, and now there is agitation for a return to private ownership. We demand efficient railroad service and should be willing to pay for it. Cheap goods are generally dear at the price, in the long run."

In closing, Mr. Jones paid a tribute to the memory of Ward Ames and Henry L. Wright, members of the board who died during the year. He ended with a hearty wish that the board of trade may be a great aid in the advancement which is to come to the Northwest country during the next decade.

DISCUSSION OF COURT TERMS

County Bar Association Talks Over Bill Now Pending.

The St. Louis County Bar association at a meeting this afternoon in the Commercial club assembly room may take action which will dispose of some of the locally objectionable features of a bill drawn in the interest of the ranges to amend the present law relating to court sessions.

The bill was the subject of controversy this morning before a committee named at a meeting of the association a week ago, and when the association convened at noon it was taken up by the larger body. The discussion was animated but there seemed to be a disposition to reconcile all differences.

The proposed law as amended but not finally acted upon by the organization provides for three sessions a year at Hibbing and three at Virginia, and eliminates the section providing that county officials at Duluth supply whatever documents might be called for by range litigants without cost to the latter. It also eliminates the provision that deputies at the range court cities shall receive salaries of not less than $2,000, providing instead that the deputies shall be appointed and paid the same as are other deputies.

LEASING OF COAL LANDS OF ALASKA

Senate Committee Will Report Favorably on Administration Bill.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The senate committee on public lands today authorized its chairman, Senator Nelson of Minnesota, to report favorably the administration bill providing for the leasing of the coal lands of Alaska. Transportation companies and their stockholders are barred from operations. The action of the committee was unanimous. The interstate commerce commission is delegated to fix the price at which coal mined on the leased lands may be sold or transported.

The area of land which may be leased to any person or corporation is limited to 2,560 acres and both a rental on the land and a royalty on the coal are to be exacted. The royalty is placed at 5 cents per ton if the lease is made within ten years from the passage of the act; after that time it may run as high as 10 cents per ton.

Under the terms of the bill coal is to be reserved to the United States in all patents to mineral lands in Alaska.

MEXICAN REFUGEES FLOCK OVER BORDER.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 28.—Mexican refugees are flocking over the border into Texas near Lajitas, east of here in Brewster county to escape taking sides, either with the federals or the insurrectos. Many are bringing their horses and cattle and United States government officials are somewhat puzzled over the situation that confronts them if they seize the animals for the duty the Mexicans will be destitute. Few of the refugees have any food, but if allowed to keep their animals it is thought they will be able to work their way into the states and get employment.

Conditions are serious, as robbers are operating freely and no provisions are being received in the district even for Americans.

CRUSHED BY DUMP CAR

West Duluth Laborer Meets Instant Death on Coal Docks.

Small Car Runs Off Trestle and Falls on Him.

Crushed under a dump car and a load of coal weighing several tons, Valentine Sperlongo, aged 27, a laborer employed by the Zenith Furnace company at West Duluth, met almost instant death about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the company's coal docks.

Sperlongo's chest was badly fractured in the accident and an autopsy performed by Dr. Fayette, under the direction of Coroner McCune, last evening at the undertaking rooms of M. J. Filiatrault, 5413 Ramsey street, disclosed, besides a severe fracture of the chest, several broken ribs and a puncture of the heart.

Sperlongo was a coal heaver on the dock and was working under a trestle. A small dump car ran off the track and fell over on top of him. Fellow workmen rushed to his aid and succeeded in getting him out. He died before a physican could be summoned. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of M. J. Filiatrault.

Sperlongo was a single man and lived with his brother, Mike, with whom he worked at the coal docks, at 124 South Sixty-first avenue west. He had no other relatives in this country. The funeral will be held Monday morning from the Italian Catholic church, Eleventh avenue west and Superior street Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

225 CHILDREN HEAR STORIES

Branch Library Crowded to the Doors for "Story Hour."

More than 225 school children of West Duluth were in attendance this morning at the "story hour" of the West Duluth branch of the public library and listened to the entertaining stories of Miss Mary Shesgren of the library staff.

The small library quarters were so crowded that Miss Shesgren was forced to stand on a table to tell her stories. Children were packed in every nook and corner of the room and some stood up on the window sills. They were there for about an hour.

Last week, when the attendance was 172, Miss Shesgren thought that it would be a record day. When 225 "kids" turned out today, all expectations were broken and it was almost impossible to get them all in.

Miss Shesgren entertained the children with the old favorite "Uncle Remus" stories and also related a few fairy tales. The "story hour" is perhaps the most popular feature of the West Duluth branch library work.

It is thought that other quarters will be asked for in connection with the "story hour" work. It has been suggested it would be better to have the children meet Saturday mornings at one of the school houses.

COMMISSIONERS INSPECT ROADS.

Splendid for Old People

When the human system declines the accumulated poisons in the blood cause rheumatic pains in the joints, muscles and back. These warnings should be promptly relieved and serious illness avoided by using the following prescription which shows wonderful results even after the first few doses. It will eventually restore physical vigor. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bed time. The bottle to be shaken each time." Any druggist has these ingredients or will quickly get them for you. Any one can mix them.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BANGOR MINERS NOW QUALIFIED

Eighteen Given Certificates That They Can Care for Men Injured.

Biwabik, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eighteen miners employed at the Bangor mine, who took the course of study in first aid to injured, have qualified to receive certificates that they are able to care for men who are hurt until the physician arrives.

Dr. C. W. Bray has had charge of the class, and has, between Nov. 18 and Jan. 13, delivered eight lectures to the class, besides giving practical instruction in the work.

Encouraged by the officials of the company, the men have been active and earnest in attempting to master the necessary course to pursue when a man is badly hurt. It is realized by all with mining experience that many men lose their lives because they are not properly cared for directly after an accident takes place. It is to overcome this unnecessary loss that this and other classes to study first aid to the injured have been formed on the range.

Dr. Bray Much Pleased.

Dr. Bray is much pleased with the outcome of the first experiment, and may have other classes at other mines in the future. The doctor is giving the eighteen men who have completed the course certificates showing that they are familiar with giving first aid. This is expected to be valuable to men following mining as a business.

Supt. Bottsford and Capt. Vickers were very much in earnest in urging the formation of the class, and watched its progress to graduation, so to speak, with considerable pride. It is known that other classes will be formed at other mines owned by the Pickands-Mather company.

JOE BOWSTRING GIVEN FREEDOM

Jury at Grand Rapids Acquits Indian of Killing John Caldwell.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bowstring Joe, or Joe Bowstring, the old Indian tried in the district court for killing John Caldwell at Sand Lake Oct. 17 last, was acquitted by the jury in the district court after a few hours' deliberation.

The case was submitted to the jury last evening and about 11 o'clock the twelve men agreed upon a verdict of not guilty but did not report their finding to the court until this morning at 9 o'clock. The court ordered the Indian released. The evidence went to show that Caldwell had attacked Bowstring's squaw and he shot largely in defense of his wife.

The case against James Goggle-eye, indicted for killing Caldwell, was sensationally ended Wednesday when old Bowstring while testifying for the defense admitted he killed Caldwell to protect his squaw. The prosecution then turned its batteries upon Bowstring, who is now also acquitted.

Court has adjourned until next week, when Judge Wright will preside and take up the balance of the cases.

of these articles and reduce the cost of living. It was clearly demonstrated at the last elections that any measure which promises to reduce the cost of living will receive popular support, and that alone ought to carry the Canadian-American reciprocity agreement over the legislative seas.

Minnesota Members' Stand.

Opposition in congress to ratification of the agreement is decidedly expressed in many quarters; but it has not crystalized nor as yet has any movement been made to organize. It is already demonstrated that President Taft accurately gauged public opinion when he said that even in the Western and Northwestern states there would be strong support for reciprocity. Three of the Minnesota congressmen, Miller, Stevens and Nye, are proclaiming ardent support of the document, while Hammond may be stated as on the fence. The Minnesota representatives declaring their opposition to the measure are Tawney, Lindbergh, Volstead and Steenerson, with Davis in the noncommittal class.

Democrats Declare For It.

The Democrats generally declare for the agreement on the score that it reduces tariff duties and enlarges the free list. They cannot engage in opposition as the agreement is in line with Democratic policy. If President Taft can exert sufficient pressure to get the agreement to a vote in congress it will be ratified, but there's the rub. It is known that the Republican leaders of the standpat element, the high protectionists, are against this agreement. They do not openly proclaim their hostility lest that bring them in collision with the administration.

Standpatters Hostile.

Congressman Payne, author of the existing tariff law, and Representative Dalzell, his chief lieutenant, refuse publicly to declare themselves, but it is known that they, together with Speaker Cannon and Congressman Tawney, are hostile to the proposition. They may so direct the proceedings of the house as to exclude legislation on this subject. They talk of the pressure of public business, of the great importance of the reciprocity measure, the necessity for deliberate action and shake their heads dubiously over the prospect of a vote. While there is no rule to limit debate in the senate and no way to force a vote against any sort of opposition, the universal practice has been that where a positive majority demanded action on a non-political question, a vote was had.

FUNERAL OF PHILLIPS.

Many Prominent People Pay Last Respects to Dead Author.

New York, Jan. 28.—The funeral of David Graham Phillips, editor and author, who was assassinated by Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, brought together in St. George's Episcopal church near Gramercy park yesterday several hundred men and women well known in art, letters, science, finance and the professions. Outside the church was a crowd of less prominent people, attracted by curiosity or admiration of his writings. The gathering became so large before the simple services in the church had been concluded that the police had difficulty in handling the crowd.

The only near relatives present were the author's brother and sister, Harrison W. Phillips and Mrs. Carolyn Frevert. The pallbearers were Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who was one of the author's closest friends; Robert W. Chambers, George Horace Lorimer, Samuel G. Blythe, Otto Carmichael, Henry L. Lewis, Arthur W. Little, John O'Hara, J. Henry Sears and F. C. Penfield. The coffin was nearly hidden by a blanket of violets and smilax. Archdeacon Nelson, assistant to Bishop Greer of the New York diocese, officiated, assisted by the Rev. George F. Norton and the Rev. J. C. Scott, curates of the church. A male sextet sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Rock of Ages."

Two carriages laden with flowers were in the procession to the Marble cemetery, where the body was placed in a vault pending probable removal to Phillips' former home in Indiana.

Healthy Mothers

The bearing of children is frequently followed by poor health for the mother. This supreme crisis of life finding her physical system unprepared for the demands of nature, leaves her with weakened resistive powers and sometimes chronic ailments. This can be avoided if Mother's Friend is used before the coming of baby, and the healthy woman can remain a healthy mother. It is the only remedy that perfectly and thoroughly prepares the system for healthy motherhood, and brings about a natural and easy consummation of the term. Women who use Mother's Friend are always saved much suffering when the little one arrives, and recover more quickly, and with no ill effects, or chronic troubles. GARDEN AND HOME IDEAS

Instructive Talks By Duluth Men in Agricultural Lecture Series.

Small Fruits and Domestic Plot Adornment Are Subjects Discussed.

Culture, but not of the Bostonese species, had the carpet at the Y. M. C. A. last night, when the second series of talks on agricultural subjects, managed by the Duluth Commercial club and the educational department of the Y. M. C. A., was given. C. E. Roe and Arthur Crassweller were the speakers.

The speakers devoted their attention to the culture of common things that spring from the ground, when the ground is properly persuaded to let them spring forth, and both talks were not only interesting but exceptionally instructive. Small fruits and their culture in St. Louis county provided a subject for Mr. Roe, and Mr. Crassweller talked about beautifying home grounds. Each of the speakers is exceptionally well qualified to talk on the subject assigned to him and the lecture program was one of exceptional merit.

"Duluth and St. Louis county have many interesting and important problems to solve," said Mr. Roe, "but none of them assumes greater importance with the passing of years than that of developing our agricultural facilities and the growing of fruits and vegetables for home consumption.

"For twenty years men have argued that our soil was too thin and our season too short for profitable land development. But Duluth strawberries took the first prize at the St. Louis exposition, and our dairy herds now rival any to be found in the state. In spite of our April freeze and our lack of moisture last year we matured apples, currants, and raspberries, while our neighbors in the vicinity of the Twin Cities had a total failure. Where our gardens were properly cultivated we were rewarded by an abundant crop, while St. Paul gardens were so parched as to completely discourage the owners.

Good Soil for Fruits.

"The requisites for success in the enterprise of small fruit growing are ready to our hand here in St. Louis county. Our soil is remarkably well adapted to that purpose. In it there is a healthy proportion of sand and silt, with a sufficient quantity of clay to retain the moisture. With this clay mixture to rely upon, the soil can be worked whether the weather is wet or dry.

"Berries are an especially good crop to raise in St. Louis county. Any good garden soil will produce raspberries, if well drained, and properly fertilized. Set in rows five feet apart and have at least three feet between plants in the row. The red raspberry grows from an underground root-stock, and these new shoots or suckers are the fruiting canes for the following season. All old fruiting canes should be carefully cut out and burned each fall or early in the spring before the new growth starts. Better fruit and a larger yield will result if the weaker canes are cut out and sufficient room is left between those remaining for the sun and air to penetrate readily. Early in August all new growth should be nipped back leaving the new canes from two and one-half to three feet in length. This pruning will cause these fruiting canes to throw out laterals, thereby increasing the yield for the following season.

"You cannot expect to get results from raspberries until the second year after planting and you will not get a large crop of berries until the third year. Keep your patch free from weeds and cultivate frequently except during the fruiting season.

"Substantially the same culture should be used for currants and gooseberries as for raspberries. However, the bushes should stand at least five feet apart in the row. In the case of currants, however, your best fruit will be produced on wood that is from two to four years old. Your currant bushes should be carefully pruned each spring as soon as the snow has disappeared.

"Duluth is evolving from a city of flat dwellers to a city of home builders. While many still seem satisfied with the little "seven by nine" lots on the hillside, the more prudent investor is seeking for garden room in one of our suburbs. While he is planning his garden, he should not forget to reserve a liberal corner for small fruits. The profits of such foresight mean more than the reduction he should experience in his grocery bill, it will mean more delicacies for his table and better health for himself and family. If he has a surplus he can readily find a market for it."

Has Attractive Subject.

In his talk on the beautification of home grounds, Mr. Crassweller was eloquent and forcefully convincing. He has his subject at heart and talks from the premise of experience, with the result that he aroused the most intent interest in what he had to say. The idea of adornment of the home place seemed to grip the imagination of the large audience and Mr. Crassweller's remarks were followed with the closest interest.

There are two ways of making the best of the city lot, he said. One is to lay out a plan, like that for an Italian garden but along any lines of arrangement that may be favored, and the other is to proceed without formal plans and develop all the possibilities that may present themselves, with the ultimate object of getting as much beauty out of the plot as may be.

He pointed out that to obstruct the view of a house with clumps of trees that served no other purpose was a mistake, and said that utility as well as beauty should be considered in the laying out of the grounds. There are lawns which are cut up by indiscriminatingly placed flower beds, he said, that would, except for that fault, be ideal grounds. He warned his hearers against this mistaken practice and said they should not proceed to plant a garden without having a definite plan in mind. Whenever a plant is placed, he said, it should be with regard to effect.

"There are certain principles to be recognized in doing this," he said. "Each garden must be a unit by itself with the house as the principal object in the picture.

"The back yard is as important as the front yard. It should not be made the resting place for old tin cans, ashes, refuse or other filthy matter. Every home can have a park of its own in the rear yard if properly taken care of by the planting of suitable trees, shrubbery or flowers."

These lectures have won the enthusiastic attention of a large number of Duluth people, and farmers from the surrounding territory are coming in to hear the talks in increasing numbers. This is the third season the lectures have been given, the series extending from Jan. 13 to March 24. The next lecture will be given at the Y. M. C. A., by Prof. F. L. Washburn, state entomologist, Feb. 10. His subject will relate to insect pests and how best to destroy them. Everybody interested in gardens, lawns and parks should be interested in this talk.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

WARMER

The sage on the hilltop is vindicated. The mercury droped to 8 deg. below zero last night and today is a gray, snappy winter day. April weather at the tail end of January is unseasonable, unhealthy, unwelcome and undesirable and the return to normal conditions is satisfactory to everybody. The high temperature yesterday was 21 deg., so the sudden decline of 39 deg. may have been disconcerting to some. The temperature will be about 10 deg. above zero tonight and fine weather is predicted for tomorrow.

Mild weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:38 and it will set at 5:05 this evening, giving nine hours and twenty-seven minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Western North Dakota high pressure has advanced its center to the Upper Mississippi valley attended by cold wave conditions in Minnesota and Western Ontario. The temperature drop at Duluth from 7 a. m. Friday to 7 a. m. today was 38 deg. This cold wave will be of short duration, as the temperature will moderate somewhat tonight as the result of the easterly movement of a barometric depression now overlying Alberta. Much warmer weather prevails to the northward of Nebraska, Colorado and Utah. The disturbance referred to caused rain or snow in Pacific coast districts during the last twenty-four hours, while the low pressure central Friday morning over the lake region and which has moved to Maine, resulted in rain or snow over the Ohio valley, Eastern lake region and North Atlantic districts.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. today:

Upper Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Sunday.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Sunday.

Minnesota—Fair and slightly warmer tonight; Sunday fair.

Iowa—Fair tonight with slightly warmer in north-central portion; Sunday fair.

North Dakota—Fair tonight with colder in west portion; Sunday fair and colder.

Montana—Fair tonight with colder in north and west portions;; Sunday fair.

Shippers' forecast: Protect 36-hour shipments of perishables against temperatures 5 deg. to 20 deg. above zero in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Sociology Department Arranging for Class in European Travel.

Regular Winter Course in Practical Agriculture Has Opened.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. S. N. Reep of the sociology department of the university is making arrangements for a class in European travel this coming summer. It is the plan of Mr. Reep to have the class start early in June and travel through almost all of the countries of Europe. Among the important cities to be visited are London, Paris, Rome, Venice, Berlin, Milan, The Hague, Amsterdam, Stratford-on-Avon and many other places of interest in history, art and literature. The tour will not be made under the auspices of the university, but will be a private venture for pleasure and instruction. The class will be limited to fifteen or twenty, but may include others than students. The idea is a new one at Minnesota and one which promises to work out with great success.

Names of the successful candidates for parts in the Minnesota Union operetta, "The Girl in the Moon," will not be announced until after the examinations. This conclusion was reached by the board of governors of the union, after careful deliberation. It was feared that in some way it might affect successful candidates so that they would be unable to pull through mid-year's.

The regular winter course in practical agriculture has opened and most of the registrations are in. Thus far only 184 have registered as compared with 236 of last year, but this shortage is explained by the fact that the crowded conditions at St. Anthony Park has restricted attendance. Many new courses are offered this year. A noted agriculture expert of national prominence has been secured for each of the four weeks in the course. The speakers are: Lee C. Corbett of the horticulture division of the department of agriculture; Joseph E. Wing, Mechanicsville, Ohio, a noted agricultural journalist; and William J. Spillman, bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture. Cyril Hopkins, University of Illinois, was expected, but will be unable to come.

The department of economics and political science of the university is offering several evening courses for progressive men and women. All persons who are qualified by educational training or experience will be admitted. All instruction is by members of the faculty of the department of economics and political science. Each course is so designed as to equip the student with a clear understanding of essential principles and theories involved, together with a maximum of practical values in a knowledge of actual up-to-date facts and methods.

All third-hour classes were excused on Saturday Jan. 21, in order that the student body might attend chapel and meet President-elect George E. Vincent. The chapel was crowded to its fullest capacity. Talks were given by President Northrop and Dr. Vincent. Dr. Folwell, the first president of Minnesota, was also present. All the students were distinctly pleased with the new president and everyone feels that he is the one man to succeed Cyrus Northrop.

After the chapel meeting, Dr. Vincent visited the agricultral college, lunched at the Minneapolis club and in the evening attended the banquet given in his honor, by the faculty club. He returned to Chicago the early part of the week and will remain east until next spring when President Northrop will retire from active work.

The training school for nurses at the university will open Feb. 1. Applications for admission are now being made. A first grade high school diploma is required for admission. The students are entered in a few months' preliminary course of instruction under a tuition fee of $25. The remainder of the course covering in all a period of three years, requires no fee. The limit of the number in this entering class will be enlarged in view of the opening of the Elliott Memorial hospital building.

"The Riot" is the latest addition to the carousals, spreads and dances that will come off the week after examinations. "The Riot" is the new name for the post-exam jubilee given by the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. The most absurd and amusing entertainments are being prepared by the committee in charge.

Hamilton Holt, Yale '94, managing editor of The Independent, will deliver his lecture, "Commercialism and Journalism," at the university on Thursday, Feb. 2. Mr. Holt comes from New York under the auspices of the extension division of the department of economics and political science.

TRAVELING SALESMAN LEAVES ON YEAR'S TRIP.

"Pete" Henry, a well known Duluth traveling salesman, will leave tonight for the northern territory of the Pacific coast to be gone for a year. Mr. Henry represents the Christensen - Mendenhall - Graham company of this city, and during the past two years he has traveled for this firm he has built up a splendid business for the Duluth manufacturers in the Pacific Northwest. Duluth products are becoming well known in that territory and this city is becoming to be the recognized market for heavy lines of merchandise. Lumbermen, railroad men and contractors are eager for Duluth-made goods and the trade is constantly increasing.

Mr. Henry has been in for nearly a month now arranging his samples and having his firm prepare some new lines for which he has found a demand.

COUNTY LOCAL OPTION ENDS

Superceded in Indiana By the Proctor-Keeney Measure.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 28.—The county local option law was superceded by the Proctor-Keeney local option measure, passed by the senate last Tuesday and by the house Thursday, when Governor Thomas R. Marshall yesterday affixed his signature and made it a law.

Under the operation of the county option law, eighty-two counties held special elections on the liquor question, sixty-nine voting dry and thirteen wet. In the eighty-two counties the dry obtained a net majority of about 73,000.

Under the Moore remonstrance and the county option laws, 2,609 saloons were put out of business in Indiana, 1,619 under the first act and 990 under the second.

JUROR ORDERED OUT OF STORE

Man Who Voted Against Mrs. Schenk Appeals to Prosecutor.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Isaac A. Heyman, the lone juror who held out for conviction of Laura Farnsworth Schenk for giving poison to her husband, has reported to Prosecuting Attorney J. B. Handlan certain facts which may lead to an investigation and charges of contempt of court. It is charged that intimidating methods were used to get Heyman to change his vote to one of acquittal. After the jury had been dismissed Heyman alleges he was ordered out of a local store because "he did not vote right." He was informed by Prosecuting Attorney Handlan that no one had the right to question the right of a juryman to vote as he pleased and that he would probably investigate.

Heyman also alleged that certain jurymen had declared as soon as they went into the jury room that they would vote for Mrs. Schenk's acquittal even if they thought her guilty.

Mrs. Schenck yesterday gave out her first authentic statement since the trial began. She said:

"I am sorry that Mr. Heyman could not see it as the other eleven jurors did. I appreciate the kindness and sympathy of the press and the universal public sentiment in my favor gives me strength to bear up in my sorrow. I would like to see my children and my home."

Mr. Schenk, who is recovering from his illness, also gave out a statement, declaring that he would not take his wife, even if she should be acquitted after a second trial and that he was in favor of the action the state had taken.

Attorneys for the defense say there will be no difficulty in giving bail. Prosecutor Handlan will oppose any reduction in bail. He declared that he would apply for a change of venue.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CLERKS MAY JOIN UNION

Postal Clerks Thinking of Becoming Members of American Federation.

Meeting to Be Held in St. Paul Today to Consider It.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a mass meeting to be held here this afternoon the postal clerks will discuss the feasibility of becoming affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as a result of the trouble with the postoffice department brought about by Postmaster General Hitchcock's economy policy.

Already steps have been taken to ascertain the attitude of the federation in the matter. John L. Fullerton, the discharged mail clerk at the head of the grievance committee, has written to Harry Thomas, one of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor at Cleveland. It is hoped some word will come from Mr. Thomas in time for today's meeting.

The militant spirit of the clerks throughout the Tenth division is growing, according to the letters received by Mr. Thornton. He believes that the attendance today will be much more than the 200 who expected to come. The exact time and place of the meeting are being kept a secret by the men.

After Perkins' Scalp.

Besides taking up the question of affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, the clerks probably will send a letter to Norman Perkins, superintendent of the division, requesting an explanation of the letter sent to Mr. Thornton last Tuesday, in which the superintendent became sarcastic. Resolutions may be passed to be forwarded to the department at Washington, asking the dismissal of Supt. Perkins. A sort of endless chain of telegrams to the postoffice authorities, members of congress and senators from the six states comprising the Tenth division will be sent to Washington.

The book contains much matter of interest to all interested in the mining industry. Among other things, it includes a description of the various mines in the Gogebic district, a description of the Gary steel plant, and the text of seven papers delivered at the institute. Among the biographical notices of mining men who have passed away within the past year is one of the late Governor A. P. Swineford, who is spoken of as having been intimately identified with the early development of the Lake Superior region, and to which he greatly contributed.

Smith, caretaker of Morris Point, a summer resort on Leech lake. Smith is in jail and public feeling is running high over the affair.

McCabe went to the place yesterday to search the premises for stolen goods and Smith and his wife resisted. While McCabe was endeavoring to handcuff the woman, the husband snatched a sawed-off shotgun from the wall and emptied a charge of buckshot at the officer, hitting him in the abdomen.

McCabe was brought here, a distance of three miles to the hospital.

Smith was later arrested.

PLAN COLONIZATION SCHEME.

Movement on Foot to Bring Settlers to Upper Peninsula.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 28.—In an interview with railroad officials and others interested in the organization of the Upper Peninsula Publicity bureau, who were in the city this week, it is learned that the plan is based on even broader lines than was first anticipated and which, if carried out will bring about a speedy realization of the hopes of the residents of Northern Michigan in so far as it relates to the settlement of the thousands of acres of the now vacant tillable lands of this region.

The railroads and large land owners are already interested to the extent that an advertising campaign of very large proportions is assured for the Upper Peninsula country as a whole if the residents themselves show the proper spirit and perfect the proposed new organization, at the coming meeting to be held at Menominee. The welcome and co-operation with which the plan is being received wherever it has become exploited augurs well for its final and permanent success and justifies the belief that a colonization movement of large proportions is at last about to take place in this peninsula.

"Among the workers for the fund I mention Paul M. Hanson, who is only 15 years old. In a letter to me he said: "'Your letter to my father, Otto Hanson, was turned over to me, as my father is dead. I have not been very successful, but send you a draft for $1.25 for the Roosevelt monument fund.'"

CENTRALS WIN AGAIN

High School Basket Ball Team Humbles Superior By 29 to 17 Score.

Harris and Solheim Star for Duluth—Second Team Also Wins.

Last evening the crack Central high school basket ball team defeated the Normal school five of Superior by the score of 29 to 17. At all stages of the game the high school boys showed superiority over the embryo teachers and at no time was the local team in danger of being held even by the Superior boys.

As a curtain raiser to the big game the high school second team played and defeated the second team of the Normal school by the score of 23 to 8.

Of the Central players Solheim and Harris showed to the best advantage, these two players getting all of the baskets caged by the local team. Harris got six field baskets and Solheim threw five. Harris also threw seven free baskets.

In both the open and close guarding game, the high school boys showed the better team work, the better individual playing, and also greater ability in shooting baskets. At times the Superior boys showed a stiff defense, but on the offense failed to measure up to the form shown by the Central players.

While the offensive work of Harris and Solheim featured Central's play, Waldron, Johnson and Osman figured prominently in the machine play of the fast aggregation, their work in this regard being the feature that enabled Harris and Solheim to cage so many baskets.

Underhill and Conley showed some good basket ball for Superior. They were fast and caused some trouble to the Duluth defense.

Central's second team showed to good advantage in the preliminary game, the playing of "Dutch" Jeronimus, Boyle and Mars featuring the work. Kenneth Harris also played a fast and strong offensive game for the Duluth boys.

The result of last night's victory of the Central first team only emphasizes the fact that the high school has perhaps the strongest team in its history. Every one of the boys is a star and Prof. Schilling has drilled them in excellent team work. The students believe the team is even faster than the 1910 five, and if Duluth is represented at Madison this season a great showing is expected of the boys.

The lineup of the two games:

Central First—		Normal First—
Harris	f	Underhill
Waldron	f	Conley
Osman	c	Daley
Johnson	g	Sheehan
Solheim	g	Susans
Central Second—		Normal Second—
Mars		May
Harris	f	McGowan
Kelly	c	Landry
Boyle	g	Pickering
Jeronimus, Bevis	g	Susans, Krause

Summary — Officials, Conley and Batchelor. Scores of the first game, field baskets, Harris 6, Solheim 5, Underhill 2, Conley 3, Daley 2. Scores from free throws, Harris 7, Sheehan 3. Second game: Field baskets, Mars 5, K. Harris 2, Kelly 2, Boyle 1, May 2, McGowan 1. Free throws, Harris 3, Langley 2.

ARNST WOULD BECOME BOXER

World's Champion Oarsman Has Ambitions to Meet Jack Johnson.

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 28.—The search for a white man capable of wresting the world's heavyweight championship from the present titleholder—Jack Johnson—has been going on for some months, but with little success, as first-class boxers among the big men are very scarce, so scarce, in fact, that none of them is given even a look-in by men who know and follow the game. Hugh D. McIntosh, the Australian promoter, who is now in London, has been holding elimination contests with a view to picking out a man to put against the colored champion, but so far the results do not appeal to the sport-loving people, although Bill Lang and Al Kaufman may develop into better men, and some have hopes of Bombardier Wells, but only slight ones.

The man who may be brought forward, and who really could be depended upon, is none other than Richard Arnst, the champion oarsman of the world, and who was also champion cyclist of Australasia at one time. Mr. Arnst has autohrized the statement that he will consider a contest with Jack Johnson, providing that, after several weeks of sparring with competent men, he believes he can learn the game properly and prove himself a worthy and capable challenger for the title.

Started Feeling Self.

The fact is, Mr. Arnst has already started "feeling himself out" for just such an emergency, and has been boxing privately for some time, and with men who know the game from A to Z, among his tutors being "Snowy" Baker, the Australian professor; Jimmy Clabby, the clever American welterweight, and Ray Bronson, the American lightweight. He will also work with Billy Papke, the middleweight champion, and Cyclone Johnny Thompson.

People over there who are intimately acquainted with Arnst have the utmost confidence in his ability to make good, for they remember how he fooled them all when he took up sculling. Arnst becaame one of the greatest cyclists in Australia and New Zealand, finally winning all the big stakes and handicap events. Then he turned around and learned how to row, and became the world's champion, although experts ridiculed the idea when he first started to learn how to row, claiming that no man who had not been brought up around the "sheds" could ever accomplish such a feat. Just the same, Dick did it, and today holds the world's title. Big events usually go in threes, and who knows but what Arnst may become boxing champion of the world, in addition to being a champion cyclist and oarsman?

BURNS HAS ADVANTAGE

Outpoints England's Champion in Ten-Round Bout in New York.

Stanley Narrowly Missed Being Put Away in the Ninth.

New York, Jan. 28.—Frankie Burns of Jersey City outfought and outpointed Digger Stanley, England's bantamweight champion, in a snappy 10-round bout last night.

The British champion had the advantage of height and reach and in the clinches used the kidney blow with some effect. He was inclined to wrestle, however, and was eventually worn down by Burns' body blows and in-fighting. Burns had the better of the start and began his body blow tactics in the first round, while Stanley swung rather wildly for the head. In the second, Stanley sent a left and a right to the head and a left to the body and had a shade the better of the round.

Burns' terrific in-fighting in the third gave him all the better of the round and Stanley's holding kept the referee busy. The Britisher showed to better advantage in the fourth. He did most of the leading but his blows were ineffective.

Burns put hard rights to the stomach in the fifth, but Stanley escaped serious damage by clever footwork. He was fast on his feet in the sixth also, but in starting away once he slipped to his knees. He was up quickly and the round continued fast and even.

In the seventh Burns forced the fight with blows to the head and body. Stanley tried for the head several times in the eighth but generally missed. Burns continued to hammer at the digger's body, but the English boy covered up by clinching.

In the ninth Burns' right and left to the body sent the digger tottering until he lay over on Burns and the referee had to drag him off. Both entered the ring full of fight for the final round. In a break from a clinch, Burns received a blow to the shoulder which sent him to the ropes but he was soon back with his in-fighting.

They clinched often, however, and there were few blows struck thereafter, until the gong rang.

While no decisions are allowed here, the popular verdict went to Burns almost unanimously. Both weighed in at 117 pounds.

CHAMPION IN LONG MATCH

Rumor Says Gotch Will Wrestle Finish Contest Before Empire Club.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Champion Frank Gotch after avowed intentions to quit, will appear in a finish match here about the middle of next month. This was the information given out by the Empire Athletic club yesterday when the officials of what has been termed the "trust" were forced to show their hands as evidence that Gotch had not joined with Hackenschmidt, Zbyszko, Roller and Ordemann in an insurgent movement to bust the alleged wrestling combine.

President Herk of the Empire club, when asked what he knew regarding the proposed war, claimed that it was a surprise, but added that it was possible, in face of the row which had occurred between the club and Jack Herrmann, manager of Zbyszko. To show, however, that as far as he knew Gotch was on the best of terms, Herk announced that negotiations are now being carried on for a finish match, with the champion as one of the principals. The only hitch is the apparent impossibility to find a suitable opponent for the Iowa farmer.

According to Herk it is almost a hopeless case of finding a good man. Gotch is not ready to meet Hackenschmidt, believes that Mahmout is out of the question, as he lost to the Pole, and that Zbyszko is not to be considered in face of the decisive defeat he suffered at the hands of Gotch last spring.

The wrestling situation at present is explained best as follows:

Hackenschmidt, backed by Roller and Jack Curley, working with Hermann, Zbyszko and a few others, are at odds with Mahmout and his management, and also the Empire club; Mahmout and his backers are on the fence so far as the club is concerned. This leaves three factions. Zbyszko or Hackenschmidt will not consider meeting the Turk. Gotch is not ready to meet Hackenschmidt, and all of them are reported on the "outs" with the local clubs, so the game is in a precarious condition.

St. Paul Coming Friday.

The Phoenix hockey team of St. Paul will play the Duluth Curling club seven here next Friday. The activities of the bonspiel interrupted the playing of the local puck chasers, but now that the club rink can be used for practice and scheduled games, the team will begin playing out its schedule. Some very good games are booked for the remainder of the season.

CHICAGO MEN ARE LEADING

Flenners Have Tournament Record of 2,924 at St. Louis Meet.

Officers Are Elected, R. E. Bryson Being Again Chosen President.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28.—Several of the leading bowling fives will strive today to wipe out the tournament record of 2,924 established by the Flenners of Chicago at the American bowling congress tournament here. The Cosmos of Chicago, 1910 champions, and the Bensinger-Centurys, also of Chicago, winners of the championship in 1906, are among the prominent teams entered in the five-men competition.

Charles Gilbert and Louis Franz of Cleveland, one of the most famous two-men teams in the country, are expected to pass the record of 1,224 established by Smith and Gebhard of Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday.

New leaders cropped out in the individual and two-men team events yesterday. James Smith and Edward Gebhard of Buffalo forced Riehle and Gardell of Cincinnati out of the leadership in doubles with 1,224. Oscar Lange of Watertown, Wis., went into the lead in singles with 656, displacing Charles Schneider of Dayton, whose 651 had the top place.

Smith made the most remarkable scores of the day, dropping 1,919 pins in all events. He scored 673 in the doubles, 637 in the singles and 609 in the five-men event.

Officers Chosen.

Officers of the congress were elected at the final meeting of the executive committee yesterday afternoon, and the ticket went through without opposition. R. E. Bryson of Indianapolis was unanimously re-elected president. F. W. Gosewich of St. Paul was chosen first vice president, F. A. Phillips of St. Louis, second vice president, and Louis Wehner of Milwaukee, third vice president.

Delegates from Chicago and Milwaukee forced A. L. Langtry of Milwaukee to accept the office of secretary again, although he declined the post when the officers were nominated at a preliminary meeting. F. L. Pasdeloup of Chicago was re-elected treasurer. The following were elected members of the executive committee: Judge Howard, Chicago; William Lucas, Kansas City; E. J. Ryan, Detroit; John Koerner, Milwaukee; George Strotz, Des Moines; G. O. Francisco, Denver; A. L. Reinhardt, Cincinnati; L. J. Gazzelo, Toledo; M. J. Costa, Philadelphia; C. M. Barker, St. Louis; William Agnew, Cleveland; W. J. Ennis, Cleveland; W. J. Ennis, Wheeling; D. P. Inager, Louisville; C. F. Balz, Columbus; E. B. Hull, Minneapolis; A. J. Thieme, Peoria; Marshall Levy, Indianapolis; John H. Hartman, Pittsburg; W. F. Weber, Omaha, and H. V. Shaples, Vancouver.

The next tournament was awarded to Milwaukee over Chicago, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Indianapolis Night.

With five teams representing Indianapolis competing in the five-team division last night, "Indianapolis night" was a success, although the leadership remained unchanged.

The Queen of Nelsons of Louisville went into second place with a score of 2,768, while the Indians of Indianapolis, with 2,750, are now tied for third place with the Budweisers of St. Louis.

Five-men events: Queen of Nelsons of Louisville, 2,768; Indians, Indianapolis, 2,750; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,742; Wheelings, Wheeling, 2,736; Fuehrings, Indianapolis, 2,727; Dombrowski, Chicago, 2,689; Elks No. 235, South Bend, 2,637; Marions, Indianapolis, 2,609; Morgan Roths, Milwaukee, 2,607; Bonds, Cleveland, 2,602.

HOPPE MAY NOT RETIRE

Champion Declares He Is Not Ready to Quit Game.

New York, Jan. 28.—Willie Hoppe, billiard champion of the world, and his bride of a few weeks, were much excited over a report that he had announced his retirement from the game because of the objections of his wife and father-in-law.

The story was that Thomas W. Walsh, a wealthy dry goods manufacturer, with whose daughter Alice, young Hoppe eloped in December, insisted on his son-in-law's withdrawal from professional billiard to go into the dry goods business, and that the champion of the cue was giving up the game.

Will Stick to Cue.

Young Mr. Hoppe yesterday admitted that while he was perfectly willing to do anything in the world for his wife, matters had not yet reached a stage where he has to decide between her and billiards, not to mention dry goods. And, incidentally, it may be mentioned that Willie, who is not quite 23 years old, makes about $25,000 a year out of billiards, and it takes a long time for a beginner in the dry goods business to reach that income.

"It is all nonsense," said Hoppe. "Neither my wife nor my father-in-law objects to billiards. Why, I couldn't make a living any other way. Dry goods? Why, I don't know a bale of cloth from an aeroplane.

No More One-Night Stands.

"The way the story started, I guess, was when I told my manager that I wouldn't play any more one-night stands. I have been on the jump playing these engagements for nearly a month since our marriage, and, naturally, Mrs. Hoppe doesn't like it. I will continue to accept engagements ouside of New York, of course, but I will not go on the road for an extended trip. We are going to Europe in a month or two, and I expect to play a series of matches with the French champions, Vignaux, Cure, Cassignol and Addorgan."

"Yes, sir, and you can just say that I am going with him," put in Mr. Walsh, and he smiled largely at the prospect. Mr. Hoppe's father-in-law is a keen follower of the game and bets on Willie every time the boy plays.

OSCAR CHAGES IS DEFEATED

Game Is the Feature of the National Chess Masters' Tournament.

New York, Jan. 28.—The defeat of Oscar Chages of Chicago, which brought him down from leadership to a tie for that place with Frank J. Marshall, the United States champion, was the feature of the sixth rouhd in the national chess masters' tournament yesterday. Marshall won from W. G. Morris.

Paul Johner of the Manhattan Chess club caused his first downfall, gradually wearing him down to a resignation on the fiftieth move.

C. Jaffe won from R. T. Black and Capablanca defeated A. B. Hodges, the Cuban champion thus scoring his second victory.

Baird and Tenenweurzel, after thirty-six moves, agreed to a draw while Smith of Brooklyn won from Keyemberg. Walcott had a bye today.

Duluth Ski Club Planning Greatest Tournament Yet Held—Wrestling Champions Do Not Grow on Every Bush—The Big Men of Europe.

(BY BRUCE.)

If the plans of the officials of the Duluth Ski club are carried out this city will witness in February one of the greatest ski meets ever held in this part of the country. Officials of the club are present today at the national, being held at Chippewa Falls, Wis., and they will attempt to secure for this city the promise of the attendance of the best of the professional and amateur riders.

In other years there have been two big meets for this city. The present season there will be but one meet, the one booked for Feb. 12, and that promises to be the best and biggest ever held in Duluth, or in the Northwest, for that matter.

Secretary Mattocks is at the present time busy arranging the advertising matter that will be sent to every city and village of this state, Upper Michigan and Northern Wisconsin. Every place where skiing is recognized in the least will be aware of the fact that a monster meet is scheduled to be held in the city of Duluth next month. Because of the fact that there will be but one meet, it has been decided that more time and effort and expense will be put on it. The officials of the club have decided that it shall be big enough to make up for the fact that there is but one tournament the present season. After the best riders at the national are lined up, the directors of the club will go after the other famous jumpers in the country. It is also possible that some new features may be incorporated in the program the present season, for the officials are authority for the statement that the coming tournament will make the others look like burned biscuits that wifey failed to even flirt with while undergoing that delicate process of being baked into character and firm repose.

The good citizens of this city, and the women, too, have shown that they are very strong for the great Scandinavian winter sport. Visitors who happen to be in the city when there is a big tournament going on, are thrilled with the wonderful leaps made by the reckless riders. The sport is a good one, a clean one, and it is deserving of the patronage it has received from the people of this city in the past.

Here's hoping that the big February meet is the most successful ever held in the history of Duluth, because, if it is, it will be about the best tournament ever pulled off in this section of the tall and uncut.

Talking about wrestling, which may be plum presumptuous since it seems to cause a pale peeve in certain quarters, it may be well to say something about a conversation a man very well versed in the wrestling game, sprung yesterday.

Champions Are Hard To Find, Dear.

The fan was talking about the showing made by Lehto against Ordemann, and stated that it struck him as funny that the people expected that a champion of the world could be developed within a very short time. Looking over the country at the present time, how many grapplers will you find in the first flight? About three in the very first rank, and then you will come to the second row and you will not find very many men in that.

Let us take Gotch, Hackenschmidt, Mahmout and Zbyszko for the first wrestlers in the world. In this class it will probably be found that Gotch and Hack have it on the other two. The Turk is awfully good and Zbyszko too, because of his almost superhuman strength, is one of the greatest mat men of the world, though he was beaten by the great American, Frank A. Gotch.

Then we come to the second flight of wrestlers. There is little doubt but that Henry Ordemann, the Minneapolis Norsk, is the best of these men. In this class will also be found Westergaard, Cutler, the Chicago boy who was born in the northern part of this state, Roller, Americus, Fred Beell, the little Wisconsin wonder, and possibly one or two others who do not come to mind at the present time. You can see how few really great grapplers there are in the country today, when you are figuring in close touch with the wonderful wrestling Gotch has shown us since he became the champion of the world.

In the old days Muldoon and Whistler were accounted great, and for those days these men were wonderful wrestlers. Old timers who have seen these two best at their best are of the opinion that Frank Gotch could have made short work of the two men in the same ring on the same night.

It is very probable that Ordemann, Westergaard and Cutler could have beaten Whistler and Muldoon, if they could journey back along the wrestling path with the ability they are showing in the wrestling rings today. Greatness is also relative. Competition is so keen today in the wrestling profession that there are a great many really remarkable wrestlers who are not classed as great, simply because they lack weight or sufficient science to make them compare with the five or six truly great grapplers in the business.

Lehto has given the fans of this city some of the best wrestling seen here for years and he has not won a match in this city. In one instance he was opposed by one of the greatest of the day, the wonderful Mr. Hackenschmidt, for he likes the use of "Mister," if you please; and in his other two matches his opponents were leaders of the second flight men just lacking world's championship class.

It is an admitted fact that the people of this country like to see a champion. That is the most logical reason why fighters fight to win the championship and wrestlers wrestle their bloomin' heads off to become the best—there is more money in it.

This young Finn is a tough and enduring mat customer. No one has appeared so far who has had a picnic with him. He has shown nerve, courage and remarkable powers of endurance, and some day he is going to break into the limited area of greatness with a loud noice. He is coming all the time, working, developing, and as he is only a boy in years and can be expected to develop in strength and take on weight and also improve in his knowledge of the finer points of the game, there is no reason that any one can see at the present time, why some day he isn't going to crowd Ordemann, Westergaard and some of the others for the place they occupy as the greatest of the second flight wrestlers of the world.

The Big Men Of Old Europe.

Gunnar Gronlund, the stocky young Finn, who refereed the Ordemann-Lehto contest, last summer made a tour of Finland and Sweden, wrestling some of the mat men of these two countries, but for the most part making the trip purely for pleasure and to visit some of his old friends.

According to his statement, there are many men in these two countries as large if not larger than Hackenschmidt. Somehow they seem to thrive in Europe and the wrestler weighing well over 200 pounds is as common as the man of 175 in this country. It may be the air or it may be something else but they have them and they overtop most of our athletes in sheer strength.

This young man also stated that the --merican game of catch-as-catch-can wrestling was being taken up more or less in Europe, especially in Finland and Sweden, where a few years ago they never thought of it, with the result that it would not be surprising if one of these two countries, where many men of really wonderful stature are produced, would produce a wrestler that will figure prominently in settling the world's championship problem.

NEW YORK HAS A NEW "PHENOM"

H. RUSTENHAVEN.

Harry Rustenhaven is only twenty-eight years old, but last year pitched in fifty games of which he won forty-five and tied one. The New York Giants, who have just acquired Rustenhaven from Abilene, Kan., believe he is going to be something of a wonder. However, the infant phenomenon does not always make good in baseball.

Cornhuskers 10; Gophers 25.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—The university of Minneapolis defeated Nebraska at basket ball last night, 25 to 10. The same teams play here tonight.

"ANYTHING" FOR WAGNER SAYS MUGGSY McGRAW.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 28.—"The Giants have signals of their own, and no team has ever even come near getting on to them," said "Rube" Marquard, Giant pitcher. "We tell what's coming off in so many words, too.

"The old style of lifting caps, tugging at belts, standing on one foot and then the other and gripping the bat, is obsolete with us. We use the mute language, which Dummy Taylor taught us when he was with the team.

"Manager McGraw has shortened the sign talk to letters for quick work. When he wants the hit-and-run played he flashes H-R from the coaching line. L means delayed steal, and so on. The other teams know what we use, but the Giants are so speedy no other players can catch on.

"I was up against it the first time I faced Hans Wagner. I looked at McGraw on the bench. He flashed back A. Hans hit a high fly, which I thought was lucky for me, because I didn't know what ball bothered him. I asked McGraw what A stood for.

"'Anything,' he replied. "That Dutchman has hit every kind of ball a mile. Just give him anything, and trust to luck and the fielders."

HAS SELDOM CUT LOOSE

Johnson Says He Was Always Forced to Stall in Early Fights.

Worked Just Hard Enough to Win—Looking for Return Bout.

Jack Johnson sat in his lawyer's office the other afternoon, and sadly gazed upon a receipt for a $2,500 counsel fee. It costs money to be dragged into court—especially when you have money. But the champion's face spread into its usual golden smile when I remarked that for a man accused of breaking all training rules as a daily amusement he looked pretty fit.

"Sure," said Jack, "I have been traveling around with shows and doing a lot of boxing. I can't help what people say about me. Honest, I take mighty good care of myself.

"Fight again?" echoed Jack, with a look of surprise. "Why, sure! I'm going to fight again just as soon as I can get enough money for it. I want at least one more good fight with a big clean-up. Any time will do me. Of course, I hope a good white man will come along, because I know I'll draw a lot of money when it looks as if there's a chance for a white man to beat me. That's one reason why I don't pay attention to Langford and Jennette and McVey. Nobody would take much interest in a match with those fellows. If the money showed I'd fight them, of course.

Not Matched With Kaufman.

"Kaufman? That story about my being matched with Kaufman to fight in England was just press agent dope for a show Kaufman was with. There never was any match. I never paid any attention to the story. We haven't been offered a match and never talked over fight terms at all. But let me tell you, Kaufman is the best heavyweight in the world right now, in a long fight. Langford? Why, Al would beat Langford dead sure over a long route. He'd beat Jeanette, too, and McVey. These fellows don't class with him. People may say he's slow, but he's a fighter. I ain't the hardest hitter in the world, but I can punch pretty hard, and I chopped him all I was worth in that 10-round fight in Frisco. He was all cut up and bleeding like a stuck hog, and in the last round he was coming faster and stronger than ever and fighting like hallelujah. Jimmin'! But he was fighting! Al's the nicest fellow in the world, too, he is.

"No, I've never seen this fellow Morris. I hope he makes good, so that people will want to see him fight me. If he's as big as they say he is, his chances will look fine. But he'd better steer clear of Al for a while.

"I never did let out much before I beat Burns," Johnson went on, growing reminiscent. "I would have just starved myself. I had two or three fellows like Langford and Jeanette that I could fight around in different places, and I beat 'em just far enough to be safe and keep 'em for the next time.

Some Inside Facts.

"Once I knocked Jeanette out with a punch in the stomach and I went over to his corner and says to his seconds, 'Holler foul.' Right away they set up a big holler of 'Foul.' We fought again a week later, and jimmeny! What a house we had! It was the same way when I knocked McVey out in the twentieth round. I had him near out two or three times and had to stall a couple of rounds to keep him going. I cut loose after the eighteenth and just got him in time. I could have put him out sooner, but I had to eat, didn't I? It's different now. I can make money even if I don't get figlits. And I got enough at Reno to keep me in bacon for a while. How much? Well, let's see. I got $55,000 for my end of the pictures and $5,000 for training camp pictures, and 60 per cent of the $101,000 purse. That's $120,000. And I won that $20,000 bet. That makes about $140,000. Besides that I've been pretty busy ever since with the theaters. No, I don't recollect just how much I've cleaned up there, but they haven't taken it all away from me yet. Not yet."

Jack Johnson tells some funny stories about his fighting experiences.

When Jack Fought Tom.

"Down there in Australia the day I fought Tommy Burns there was a terrible crowd," said Jack. "It was like a national holiday, with all the people in the country flocking out to the arena.

"When I got there I looked all around to see if there were any black men in sight. Nothing doing. After a while I saw a 'spade' sitting up on top of the fence waving his hands at me. It made me feel better to have one colored man looking on. It was funny to look around and see just nothing but white people everywhere.

"All along during the fight I kept turning my eyes up every now and then to that 'spade' sitting up there on the fence. Now and then in a clinch I'd wave my hand to him and he'd wave back again. The first thing I did after I won was to turn and look for my friend up there on the fence. He was gone. I looked all over and couldn't find him. Never did see him again. I bet some fellow reached up and knocked him off the fence when Burns lost."

ZBYSZKO ANSWERS HACK.

Polish Champ May Meet Russian Lion in Peculiar Handicap.

New York, Jan. 28.—Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, has a hard wrestling job cut out for him in his contract to throw Zbyszko, the Polish champion, three times in two hours. Hackenschmidt issued a sweeping challenge to throw any man in the world, barring Frank Gotch, three times in two hours, and Jack Hermann, the "Biscuit's" manager, grabbed up the offer instanter. Hermann says the Pole is as good as there is and "Hack" will be lucky to throw him once in the allotted time.

"Hello Brown, how is your health?"

"Fine! Fine! Couldn't be better. How is your own?"

"O. K., thank you. Say! You and I are pretty steady customers here, aren't we."

"Well, I gave them all a fair trial and found that I could get the best meal right here at the St. Paul Cafe, for the money. Do you know I only pay 15c for my dinner, and just think, I used to carry my lunch, because I didn't know a fellow could get meals like these for 15c. But those days are over, my wife is using my lunch basket for clothes pins now."

THE FIRESIDE CLARION

EXTRA "Oh wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursel's as others see us."—Burns. EXTRA

EDITOR'S NOTE—Issued every once in a while at The Herald office for the benefit of curlers only.

ED HOLLAND, CHRIST DAUGAARD, FRANK McDONALD AND DONALD SIMPSON.

Four Curlers Who Are About as Poor as Any in West Duluth.

This is the famous Holland "kid" rink of West Duluth.

The boys put up a good game at the 'spiel and were able to come home wearing a bunch of new 'sporty' vests.

The skip, "Eddie" Holland, could not find one big enough across the chest for him at the time of picking them out, but finally took one that was a little tight. On arriving at the rink that evening he put it on and found that instead of being tight across the chest, it hung on him like a sack. He claims that the cloth must have stretched, but the rest think differently. Holland is perhaps the worst curler of the bunch, and that is saying a great deal.

Christian Daugaard, the young man to the right, is noted for making running shots and has taken out as many as three of his own rocks with one shot. He is never in time, and in order to get a game started the skip usually has to go out on the ice and take off Daugaard's skates.

Frank McDonald, the second man, is seen leaning on the shoulder of Daugaard. He usually leans on somebody. Frank believes that the curling ought to be done in the summer time, and has suggested to the directors that it would be a good scheme to pave the rink with Donnellite and in that way curl the year round. Simpson, the lead, is the only Scotchman in the bunch, and has taken to curling as a duck takes to water. His folks say that the first word he ever spoke was either curl or girl, and as he has shown a great interest in both, the question will probably never be settled.

Angus G. Macauley, in talking over the Clarion the other night, said that at the time of taking the pictures he smelled a rat and refused to have his picture taken. That is a great loss to the paper, as Angus is to West Duluth what Dunbar is to St. Paul. We are very sorry not to be able to print his picture, but will say that he looks like Jamie Myron must have looked twenty years ago. He is very Scotch and always curls at his best when wearing the cap he imported from the old land.

WILL RESUME PLAY IN LOCAL TROPHY EVENTS

Now that the bonspiel is over, it is very probable that The Herald trophy event will be completed very soon. But two more games remain in this event, the winner of the Catterson-Dinham game meeting Ron McLeod in the finals. There is a great deal of interest in the outcome of the final games.

No games have been played in the St. Louis event since the last time the standing of the teams was published in The Herald. The changes in The Herald event and the standing to date in the St. Louis event are found below:

BROWN WINS FROM LEPER

Knocks Milwaukee Boy Out in Third---Hibbing Boy Coming Fast.

By his victory last evening over Jack Leper of Milwaukee, which was won by Brown via the knockout route, the young Hibbing scrapper again demonstrated that he is one of the coming boys of the country.

They think so well of the Brown boy in Hibbing that only recently negotiations were opened to match him with Owen Moran. To date Brown has gone along and beaten all the boys he has met, and considering the fact that he is only a youngster who has been in the fighting game but a little over a year and a half, his record is one that is beginning to attract the attention of outside fight managers.

Brown's victory over Chuck Larson, conceeded to be one of the toughest scrappers of the Chicago colony, has done much to boost his stock. Larson is one of those iron-jawed boys, and the fact that he was on the verge of a knockout in his fight with Brown, speaks for the wallop carried in those long arms of the Hibbing lad.

During the present season if the program mapepd out by "Doc" Plapper, manager of Brown, is carried out, he will meet a number of classy opponents. Jimmy Murphy is booked up to meet Brown, and young Whitney of Minneapolis, a protege of Coleman, the Minneapolis impressario, is also being talked of as an opponent of the Hibbing boy. Jimmy Potts would like to meet Brown, but there is the doubt as to whether James Ebenezer could make the weight.

Potts and Brown would make a great fight. Jimmy says he will do 133 ringside for the comer, and if he can show this fighting weight the match may be made.

JOHNSON MAY MEET KAUFMAN

Talk of a Six-Round Bout Before a Philadelphia Club.

New York, Jan. 28.—The probability that Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, would meet Al Kaufman in a six-round bout in Philadelphia some time during February, was the absorbing topic of discussion today among followers of pugilism.

Johnson's reported recently expressed desire to appear in Philadelphia if a big guarantee was offered him for a six-round bout is declared to have paved the way to the making of a match with Kaufman, as the latter has long expressed a desire to meet the champion.

Current reports here have it that Jack O'Brien wired Kaufman to come East and that the Californian is already on his way. Should Kaufman decline to meet Johnson, Joe Jeanette will be substituted, it is said.

Easy for "Kid" Baldwin.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 28.—"Kid" Baldwin of Los Angeles last night won as he pleased over Stewart Donnelly of Indianapolis, flooring his man five times in the third and three times in the fourth when the referee stopped the bout. It was virtually a knockout. Originally it was planned that Baldwin should meet Joseph Mandotte, but this bout was declared off several days ago.

KODAHPA SEVEN WINS ANOTHER

Defeat Fairmonts at Hockey By Close Score of 1 to 0.

Kodahpas	3	1	.750
Big Duluths	2	1	.666
Fairmonts	1	3	.250

The scrappy Kodahpas won from the Fairmonts last night in one of the regularly scheduled city league hockey games, the score being 1 to 0. The defeat of the Fairmonts makes the Kodahpas rank with the Adams and Big Duluths as the contenders so far in the race for city league honors.

In the last two games the club boys have shown great improvement and if the team continues to improve with each game it may capture the city league pennant.

The playing of Fenton, McLaughlin and MacKenzie and Asher Taylor featured the work of the club boys, though every member of the team showed good form. The game was fast and well played throughout.

Asher Taylor made the only score of the game early in the first half, shooting the goal from the side on a long and difficult lift of the puck.

IN THE MOTOR WORLD

AT CHICAGO AUTO SHOW

Forecast of Machine Types to Be Shown at Windy City.

Makers Trying to Make Motors of Use on the Farm.

Some novel and interesting types of machines never previously displayed at a public exhibition will be seen among the commercial motor vehicles that will be exhibited in the Coliseum at Chicago during the week of Feb. 6 to 11 under the auspices of the National Association of Automobile manufacturers. One of these that will attract a great deal of interest and appeal directly to farmers and others dong business in rural districts, is a combination farm tractor and truck of three tons load capacity.

This machine is used for all sorts of work on the farm. It hauls gang plows that turn half a dozen 14-inch furrows at once, pulls two ordinary 14-foot harrows over plowed ground faster than horses can travel, hauls thrashing machines into the field and then drives the belt to operate them. It furnishes power to run a circular saw to cut firewood, drags a road scraper, hauls loads of three and a half tons of grain, hay or other farm products to the railroad and carries back loads of machinery, household goods or supplies from the stores.

Instead of the usual rubber tires, the tractor has steel tires that are perforated and filled with two-inch cylindrical hardwood blocks. For use in the field where great pulling ability is required, there is a special attachment for the rear wheels which has broad steel blades so designed that they dig deep into the earth as the wheels revolve but automatically fold up when the tractor is driven on hard roads.

Another exhibit of great interest will be a 10-ton truck with an 18-foot platform—one of the largest motor trucks that is built as a regular model. Ten of these trucks, fitted with steel bodies and side chutes, are in regular service in New York city for delivering coal.

In remarkable contrast with this monster truck will be two or more makes of small general utility wagons that can be converted in a few minutes from work vehicles to pleasure cars for two or four passengers.

The other of these small convertible wagons is of the regulation automobile type, having a 20-horse power vertical water-cooled motor under a hood and fitted with 4-inch pneumatic tires. It can be used for light delivery work when fitted with an open body or a covered top delivery body, and can be changed into a two-passenger democrat wagon or four-passenger pleasure car.

The smallest and least expensive of all the business motor vehicles will be seen in the motorcycle section of the show, where different manufacturers will have displays. Among these will be found tricar parcel carriers of 100 to 300 pounds load capacity suitable for the quick delivery service of laundries, bakeries, mens' furnishing stores, small drygoods stores, shoe stores, drug stores, millinery stores and so on. Business men who own pleasure cars will find much to interest them in new motor trucks that have just been put on the market by several of the best known pleasure car factories in the country whose touring cars, limousines and other models rank at the very top.

Metal chain cases that keep the side drive chains clean and thus reduce chain wear, breakage and transmission loss to the minimum, are a notable feature of the new trucks just brought out by another pioneer automobile company whose pleasure cars are in the top-notch class. These trucks are also equipped with permanent tops that can quickly be made into closed cabs of the drivers in bad weather.

Still a third well known pleasure car company is springing a surprise at the show this winter in the form of a truck of three to five tons capacity. It, too, has been severely tested and did splendid work in Cleveland during the holiday rush in December. An unusual feature of the construction, which in general follows prevailing practice, is the placing of the 34-horse power four-cylinder motor and all the transmission system on a subframe, which is suspended from the main frame by semi-elliptic springs in front and by a pivoted connection at the rear.

The Chicago show will be remarkable for the number of delivery wagons and light trucks on exhibition. Several of these are Chicago products, while others are manufactured in nearby places in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. They have load capacities ranging from 1,000 pounds to one ton and vary greatly in design and construction, some being driven by four-cylinder vertical water cooled engines and others by two-cylinder horizontal air-cooled motors.

One of the novelties promised for the show, which is expected to attract unusual attention, will be an electric hearse that is in the regular service of a Chicago undertaker. This is believed to be the only electric hearse that has been built.

Several manufacturers will display models of motor fire apparatus. There will come from Wisconsin a combination chemical engine and hose wagon, from Detroit a swift, high-powered car equipped with life net and chemical fire extinguishers and fitted with seats for eight firemen.

There will be a number of different makes of police patrol wagons and motor ambulances, both gasoline and electric, suitable in size and price for large and small cities.

Taxicabs in several types will make it worth the while of liverymen and taxicab company owners and managers to visit the show. One manufacturer announces his intention to exhibit cabs for public service fitted with four-cylinder air-cooled engines that cannot freeze in winter. Another will display cabs with two-cycle engines that have no valves or valve operating mechanism to get out of order and give trouble.

Owners and promoters of sightseeing companies and intrcity stage lines will find different cars in construction to meet their varied needs in the many motor stages, omnibuses and sightseeing cars with seats for from a dozen to two dozen passengers.

AUTO MEN URGE BETTER ROADS

Is Principal Subject of Discussion at Meeting Held in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 28.—Better roads for Wisconsin was the chief subject discussed by the Wisconsin State Automobile association, which met in connection with the automobile show of the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers' association in the auditorium. About 200 attended the meeting, this number including delegates and directors of the clubs affiliated with the state association, as well as the regular members.

Automobilists believe that good roads would do more toward advertising Wisconsin and bringing tourists here than almost any other improvement. Trail-blazing expeditions were outlined and methods of road building and road maintenance discussed. A road from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, modeled after Iowa's river road, will be urged. The Iowa road includes more than 400 miles of well kept speedway. Such a road, declare automobile enthusiasts, would make Wisconsin famous among automobilists in every state in the Union.

Cities, counties and districts represented at the state meeting were: Milwaukee, Ripon, Portage, Waupaca county, Green county, Janesville, Southwestern Wisconsin, Wisconsin valley, La Crosse, Eau Claire, Columbus, Oakfield, Outagamie county, and Sturgeon Bay. Eau Claire was represented by Col. W. K. Coffin.

The next state reliability run will be from Milwaukee to La Crosse.

TRYING OUT THEIR NEW CARS

Manufacturers Are Testing the 1911 Product on Indianapolis Track.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 28.—Although Memorial day will bring the greatest motor race of all time to Indianapolis, the roar of the powerful racing automobile is to be heard at the Indianapolis motor speedway long before that time, if the intentions of several manufacturers are carried out. Several inquiries have been received recently by the Speedway management asking if the big brick course is open to prospective entrants in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race to try out their steel steeds and attain greater speed by working on the specially prepared course.

The Speedway has been declared open to all who wish to try their new speed makers and one or two manufacturers will take advantage of the offer as soon as the severely cold weather is ended. The Amplex, made by the Simplex Automobile company, of Mishawaka, Ind., probably will be one of the first to test at the brick oval this spring. The makers of that car have signified their intetinon of bringing one or two of the new 1911 models here to try out and tune for the 500-mile race May 30, and others will follow soon after.

The speed requirement of seventy-five miles per hour is causing many car makers to think well before they enter, as it is no easy matter to send a car along at that pace and make it perform consistently. The belief has been advanced by many of the drivers who will compete in the long grind that an average of better than seventy-five miles an hour will be made and some have said that the winning car will be forced to make fully eighty miles on the average for the seven hours' drive.

The entry list for the International Sweepstakes race is certain to swell fast from this time on, according to advices received by the Speedway management from the auto makers. In addition to the four entries already made, a half score of others are promised for the next few days and the roster of those who will face the starter to begin the long grind could easily be termed the hall of fame of motordom.

The entries to date are Louie Strang in a Case, entered by the J. I. Case Thrashing Machine company of Racine, Wis.; C. B. Baldwin in an Interstate, entered by the Interstate Automobile company of Munice, Ind.; Johnny Aitken in a National, entered by the National Motor Vehicle company of Indianapolis; a Simplex, with no driver named, entered by the Simplex Automobile company of New York, and a Pope-Hartford, with Louis Disbrow up. It is possible that the famous mile track champion, Ralph De Palma, may drive the Simplex entry, as he is driving a car of that make on the coast at the present time. De Palma, however, had some communication with the National Motor Vehicle company when in Indianapolis this week, and may decide to take one of those famous cars through the trying contest.

Entries which soon are to be made, according to the word of the car makers and owners, are Wild Bob Burman in a Buick model 100, Arthur Chevrolet in the same make and model of car, Frank Dearborn of Los Angeles in a Flat "60," Spencer Wishart in a Mercedes, and others. Such a formidable list as this means that the winner of the big event may easily be termed the "champion of champions."

The Speedway management is confident that another thirty days will see the list grow to fully thirty cars, which is the required number to make the race certain.

WAS THE FIRST OF ITS KIND

A single landaulette, the first of its kind built in America, was shown for the first time in the lobby of the Hotel Manhattan during the A. L. A. M. show in New York city.

The car answers the purpose of an enclosed car and a runabout. It seats two passengers. Its novelty of design is in the fact that it is readily convertible into either form of car. It takes the place of those vehicles with interchangeable bodies which have been presented for use in cold and again in warm weather.

When used as a landaulette the front is a glass shield, in the doors are windows. The back and sides are composed of leather, as is the case in the ordinary landaulette. The driver sits at the left, with the lever controls at his right in the center of the floor of the car.

When it is to be used as a runabout the leather portion of the top and the whole roof fold backward behind the seat, the windows drop into the doors and the glass front is transformed into a wind shield. What appears to be a cover on a hatchway in the rumble deck is readily transformable into a rumble or mechanician's seat.

The car has a twenty-five horsepower motor of four cylinders.

The vehicle attracted considerable attention when exhibited in New York.

TO MAKE TIRE LAST LONGER

That grinding the letters off the sides of an automobile tire will lengthen the tire's life is a statement made by John E. Lamble of Lewiston, Idaho. He has thus traveled 3,000 miles without a puncture.

"I ground all the large letters off the sides of the tires," said Mr. Lambie, "and find they last better. I have driven over some of the roughest roads in this Western country, other cars making the same mileage over the same roads have used up two sets of tires."

The theory behind Mr. Lambie's treatment of his tires is that in traveling through rough roads the projections of stones or frozen mud are likely to slip up along the side of the tire, strike the letter and tear out a chunk of rubber. As the result of the carrying out of this scheme his tires, he states, are all in good condition and will, without doubt, go through another season.

SOMETHING MORE ABOUT "WHITE HOPE" MORRIS.

That young Oklahoma giant, Carl Morris, seems in a fair way to develop into something more than a mere reading notice. His victories in jig time in five fights indicates that the native material is there. All that is needed now to develop him into a real "hope of the white race" is to keep Jim Corbett from coaching him.

Here's the record of the young man with the six feet three inches altitude, weight 240 pounds.

Knocked out Tim Hurley of Muskogee in three rounds.

Knocked out Ed Anderson of Tulsa in five rounds.

Knocked out Battling Britt of Henryette, Okla., in one round.

Knocked out Jim Harper of Kansas City in three rounds.

Knocked out Marvin Hart, Louisville, in three rounds.

Knocked out Spike Kennedy of Kansas City in two rounds.

While the record is not long on "class," even Marvin Hart being greatly deteriorated, it is marvelously consistent both as to results and the manner of their attainment.

A man who can clean up his foes so decisively after six months of boxing practice is sure to have a ring future in front of him. Down in the sooner state Morris had become a popular idol and the greatest menace to his future is the possibility of his being urged by his admirers into a fight with experienced ring generals before he is fit to face the music. Already they are trying to match the big 'un with Al Kaufman. If they do Mr. Morris will be cut down in his prime. For, although he is slow, Kaufman is something of an iron man. Jack Johnson paid him a deserved tribute when he said that in a finish fight Kaufman was the most formidable man in the country today.

Morris will be ready to meet so redoubtable a fighter not sooner than twelve months hence, and then only when he has fought his way up through Stewarts, Kublaks, Joe Jeanettes and lesser lights of the ring.

But it's an even money bet his backers will try to pluck the fruit before its ready for the picking.

DONLIN THROUGH WITH BASEBALL.

New York, Jan. 28.—Mike Donlin is through with baseball for good and all. His declaration to that effect, which appears today, was drawn forth by Fred Tenney's recent attempts to bring the former New Yorker back to the diamond as a member of the Boston Nationals.

Breaks Skating Record.

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 28.—Joseph Hampton of Wichita, 22 years old, last night broke the world's continuous roller skating record, skating twenty-four hours. He felt faint at the close of his heat. The previous record made in 1909 by Joseph Boamann of Texas was 19 hours and 45 minutes.

AT THE THEATRES

THE COMING WEEK IN DULUTH THEATERS

LYCEUM—Sunday and Monday, "The Call of The Wild"; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "The Burgomaster."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

AT THE LYCEUM

Gus C. Weinburg will head the big revival of "The Burgomaster," which William P. Cullen will present at the Lyceum for three days, commencing Thursday, Feb. 2, with a matinee Saturday.

This clever comedian is the original in the role of Peter Stuyvesant, the governor of New Amsterdam, who sleeps for 200 years and awakes to find himself in modern New York. The costumes are all new for this big revival and are the handsomest, it is said, of any musical comedy now touring. The scenery is all new, some of the scenes having been changed. "The Burgomaster" was the first of the Pixley & Luder's popular successes to gain favor. It is in a class with "Robin Hood" and "The Prince of Tusen for tunefulness and many of the numbers have come to be known as classics. "The Tale of the Kangaroo," "I Love You," the famous Indian chorus, "Cupid Never Marries" and other songs have a lilt that sends the audience from the theater whistling merrily. The chorus, which is a very large one, has been selected especially for its singing and dancing ability. Mr. Cullen will be remembered as the producer of "The Alaskan" and "The Tenderfoot."

"Call of the Wild," a dramatization of Frederick Remington's story of the Far West, John Ermine of the Yellowstone, will be presented at the Lyceum tomorrow and Monday nights, with Franklin Woodruff in the leading role of Ermine.

The play is laid in Northern Wyoming, just after the Custer massacre. The theme is to show just how simple and direct is the life of the redman in comparison with the subtleties and complexities which civilization his thrust upon the white man. But John Ermine was a half-breed, "white without, but red within," as his friend and fellow scout "Wolf Voice," told him after "John" had confessed his love for his major's daughter, and the girl, while not disclaiming her love for the noble fellow who had saved her life, and that of the entire party, nevertheless had endeavored to point out to him the impossibility of their marriage.

In his lonely jaunts through the mountains "John" had found the picture of a lovely girl. Just at this time came to him an opportunity to join Uncle Sam's cavalry as a scout, and in the expectation of meeting the girl, whose picture he had treasured, "Ermine" joins the troop, whose major, a rough-and-ready frontier soldier, is father of the girl with whom the son of the plains is in love. These two meet, and the scout is captivated. But the girl has a West Point lover, a lieutenant serving in her father's troop. It is her picture secured surreptitiously and lost, which "Ermine" has found. On several occasions the soldier has demanded the picture of the scout, and each time he has been sternly refused. A tragic climax comes when "Lieut. Butler" visits the scout in his cabin while "Miss Searles" has called to show to "Ermine" why they must part. She is secreted, and eventually sees the quarrel between the redman and the white man. In which the former kills the latter, but not before the soldier had attempted to shoot his rival and is shot himself because the scout had the "drop" on him. But "Ermine" must flee, and back to his mountain cabin he goes. There follows him a note from "Miss Searles," saying that he must return. A price has been offered for him, dead or alive, but she decides to brave the confusion of a court, and swear that "Butler" attempted to shoot "Ermine" before he in turn was shot. Her reputation is at stake, because she must declare that she was in "Ermine's" cabin at the time. Following closely after the letter comes the girl herself, escorted by one of her father's captains. Soon after the major himself and a troop of cavalrymen swoop down on the party, and "Ermine" is placed under arrest. The daughter intercedes, the halfbreed shows his manliness is equal to the occasion, the girl confesses her love, paternal blessing is bestowed, and the troopers are dismissed with the order to report at the post that "John Ermine" has been captured.

Joseph C. Smith, who produced "Miss Nobody From Starland," the big musical production coming to this city at the Lyceum theater soon, is also responsible for the production of "The Flirting Princess." He is the son of George W. Smith, who staged "The Black Crook" and other musical productions of other days.

Henry W. Savage's production of "Madame X," the powerful melodrama which achieved sensational success in Paris, London, Chicago and New York last season, is shortly to be seen here.

Alan Dale, the eminent New York critic, in reviewing "A Man's World," in which Mary Mannering will shortly be seen here, said:

"Mary Mannering was earnest, artistic, sympathetic and wholly charming. She has never had a role to fit her as this does—it will establish her artistically."

"A Man's World" should have a prosperous career—it is the "goods."

Since the successful days of "David Harum," William H. Turner has been casting about for another play that would afford even a semblance of the laughing possibilities of "Harum." The search has been a long and trying one, but Mr. Turner feels that his efforts have been rewarded in "Father and the Boys," in which he will be seen at the Lyceum Feb. 10 and 11.

AT THE ORPHEUM

No less an actress than Miss Helen Grantley will feature next week's bill at the Orpheum. She will be seen in a dramatic playlet from the pen of the fanciful Zangwill.

Many Duluthians will remember Miss Grantley in her altogether charming portrayal of Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew." Her interpretation of the willful, petulent, spoiled and youthful and shrewish Katherine was a delight to the lovers of the Shakespearean farce and was such as to make many converts to the great poet.

Miss Grantley's vehicle next week is one that is said to be especially suited to her talents. The playlet which is called "The Never Never Land," would in its title suggest the author of "The Melting Pot," "Merely Mary Ann" and "Children of the Ghetto." Beautiful imagery and exquisite fancy is always expected from the pen of Zangwill, and in his playlet which will be featured next week at the Orpheum with Miss Grantley as the star, the qualities for which he has become famous, are well in evidence. The story of the condensed play is outlined in the following description by Mr. Zangwill himself: "At the moment of death the dying sometimes see and live over again a tragic event in their lives. Upon this basis I have built up this weird dramatic situation in which a vision that comes before the soul of a dying woman is shown upon the stage and the eventful happenings of her past, enacted half a century before the curtain rises, are again revealed to her in all their dramatic and passionate intensity."

"The Never Never Land" gives Miss Grantley a fine opportunity for her dramatic talents and will prove one of the most forceful and powerful sketches seen on the Orpheum stage this season.

The act of next importance on the bill for next week will be Hal Stevens, a versatile character actor, who will present a novelty, "Famous Scenes From Famous Plays." Mr. Stevens will be assisted by Isabel Allan and William Scanlan. Shylock from "The Merchant of Venice" is first presented, the actor giving as a prelude during the time devoted to make up, a short history of the play telling of the time of Burbridge, which actor acted Shylock as a comedy role. The more accepted manner of presenting the great character is accepted by Mr. Stevens, who gives the famous scene. A scene of Venetian beauty is provided for this set. Following "The Merchant of Venice" comes a scene from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," cotton fields and sun flowers of the Southern plantation forming the setting. Three scenes from "Rip Van Winkle" follow, and old timers who have seen the great Jefferson in the play delight in Mr. Stevens' presentation of the immortal Rip. The final scene is the Brocken scene from "Faust." The act is a most interesting one.

Hess, Monro and Powell are vocalists and instrumentalists. The 'cello and violin are featured in the act of these clever young men and for the vaudeville patron who delights in musical numbers this act should prove a keen delight.

Paul Quinn and Joe Mitchell will appear in their laughable skit, "The Land Agent," which should please all those who have ever become interested in suburban land deals. The act consists of bright dialogue during which the clever land agent tries to interest the prospective buyer in an outlying territory where, to use the words of the buyer, "the lots should be sold by the gallon and not by the acre." The idea was suggested by a recent land scandal in New York where lots were sold from an attractive map and the purchasers when they went to look at their property found it under water at high tide. The act has been a tremendous comedy hit in other cities on the circuit.

The Frey twins are two young men who are said to have approached the perfect type of physical manhood. They have a unique act of an acrobatic type, and introduce a wrestling match. The young men are really twins, and have seldom been separated since their early childhood. They began physical culture exercises in their early youth, and in their work on the stage they show to what perfection the human form can be brought. The following notice from the New York American gives a good description of their act: "One act seems to have attracted more attention than any other. It is the Frey twins, wrestlers and physical culturists, who figure in a posing and wrestling stunt that is both entertaining and interesting. The twins are perfectly developed athletes and good looking. They have a gift of grace as well as being good looking and present a picture of youth and muscle that makes a direct appeal."

Neuss and Eldred have something really new to offer in the acrobatic line. The following is a recent notice from a Louisville paper: "In this day of both aeroplane and auto craze any vehicle of a flying nature is sure to attract much attention. Especially is this true when such a device makes its appearance on the stage. This is one reason why Neuss and Eldred, a pair of grotesque acrobats appearing as 'Yaphank National Guardsmen' gain the undivided interest of the audience the very second the curtain rises on the eccentric but nevertheless entertaining performance. Seated calmly in a miniature aeroplane, one of the military heroes gets everyone laughing by the amusing way in which he soars across the stage for his entrance. This is followed by equally funny and original stunts on the part of the two 'soldiers,' that tend to give a pleasing close to an altogether entertaining turn."

Miss Elise Durand is a young American girl who has a pleasing vaudeville novelty to offer, and with the Orpheum motion pictures and the overture by the concert orchestra she will complete the bill.

The opening performance will be given Sunday afternoon and the bill will continue all week with a daily matinee.

Sam Chip and Mary Marble, the musical comedy stars, who have been seen in Duluth before, will be the headliners for the bill of Feb. 5. They have taken their Dutch comedy sketch into vaudeville and are making a tremendous hit around the circuit.

One of the February bills will be featured by the Imperial Russian Dancers. Alexander Volinine of Moscow, Lydia and Theodore Lapokawa of St. Petersburg. These Russian dancers are now in Des Moines, and will go from there to the Twin Cities and then to Duluth. They are considered the biggest headline feature on the Orpheum circuit at the present time with the possible exception of Alice Lloyd, the English comedienne, and Nat Goodwin, who has just opened on the Orpheum circuit.

AT THE EMPRESS

Many good things are promised in the vaudeville line at the Empress commencing Sunday matinee. Each act is a selected feature and the show as a whole will be one of the very best that has ever appeared in this popular theater.

Heading the bill will be Arthur Lavine and his big company, who are presenting Mr. Lavine's newest vaudeville sensation "The Flying Dreadnaughts," which is a spectacular musical comedy production with pretty girls and talented comedians, backed by three different scenic productions. Mr. Lavine has probably been the producer of more big spectacular vaudeville creations than any other vaudeville producer, as he has produced big numbers in both Europe and America for the past ten years, and every production has been a success. In presenting "The Flying Dreadnaughts," Mr. Lavine has surrounded himself with some very clever talent and a bevy of pretty girls, whose singing and dancing are a feature.

The first scene represents "Coney Island" at the start of the aerial journey to the North Pole. All of the lustre and beauty of this seaside resort are realistically shown and the electric effects showing the ocean are said to be wonderfully conceived. The second scene is that of the Dreadnaughts passing through the clouds. This scene causes the audience to sit in wonderment at the cleverness of its production and at the same time a brilliant line of comedy and musical numbers is introduced. The third scene, which is the most elaborate of all, shows the party arriving at the North Pole, showing the mammoth ice gorges and snowy peaks of the arctic region. Added to this are the pretty girls in their fur-lined aero costumes, brightly colored and gorgeous in design. In this scene Mr. Lavine sings his latest song hit entitled, "With Peary at the Pole," and is assisted by his company. The act closes with a grand dancing finale, which never fails to bring forth rounds of applause. In presenting the Flying Dreadnaughts, Sullivan & Considine are giving Duluth one of the cleverest novelties in vaudeville.

Lovers of clever ragtime piano playing and singing will be offered a rare treat by Biglow & Campbell, who are claimed to be one of the most clever teams that have ever appeared in this line. Their piano playing is irresistible, it is said. Their songs are of their own composition and are rendered in a manner which will make their act one of the bright spots on an excellent bill. They feature the great ragtime song, "Stop! Stop! Stop!," which has set New York wild and also "The Chinatown Rag," which is another late rag composition. Both gentlemen possess excellent singing voices and this along with their clever piano playing is a sufficient guarantee as to the quality of their act.

Nelson Hall is a modern Hercules who is regarded as one of the finest developed men in the world. He and his brother will be seen here in a remarkable athletic exhibition. Alfred Hall, who weighs 180 pounds, is tossed about the stage with as much apparent ease as though he were a tiny ball. Nelson Hall is a rare specimen of genuine physical culture. He has brought out muscles in his anatomy that the famous Sandow does not boast. His back display is marvelous, and he causes his muscles to twitch and dance at will, and as the perfectly developed athlete in all of the lines of perfection, he is claimed to be without a peer. This act will be somewhat removed from most acts in this line, as the performers introduce several sensational acrobatic feats.

The lure of the vaudeville is again evidenced by bringing into its fold Jack Haskell and Vera Renaud, who were recently with "The Yankee Prince," in which they scored a hit and are continuing to win great favor in vaudeville. Their offering consists of singing, talking and dancing. Their dancing was one of the features of "The Yankee Prince" and helped it to maintain its long run in New York city. One feature will be Miss Renaud's gown of a thousand mirrors. Mr. Haskell is one of these quiet, eccentric dancers who dance their way into the good graces of the audience.

The big added feature will be George Palmer Moore and Florence Elliott, in a comedy sketch entitled "A Matrimonial Substitute." The act is claimed said to be worthy full of amusing situations and a genuine fun-producer. The lady in the act is dressed for her wedding when she receives a note from her husband-to-be saying that he is already married, the ceremony having taken place about three years before while he was intoxicated. He sends a friend in his place. Before the arrival of the volunteer groom a salesman for a baby grand piano concern arrives at the flat and tries to make a sale. The girl, in her excitement, believes the piano man to be the man her intended husband sent to fill his place, and the salesman is given a warm reception. On towards the close of the act the bride receives a second note saying that the first note was a joke played by a friend. Matters are righted and the wedding is held. The piano man is also made happy with a sale. The following is a recent notice from the Cincinnati Post while the act was playing at the Empress theater in that city:

"'A Matrimonial Substitute' is presented by George Palmer Moore and Miss Florence Elliott. These talented young people deliver the sketch in a very dramatic manner, and the performance of Miss Elliott is one rarely found in vaudeville."

The usual moving pictures, which will be instructive as well as highly interesting, will close this most excellent bill of vaudeville, of which every act will be a feature in its own particular line. A matinee is given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance by either 'phone. A special school children's matinee will be given every Saturday at 2:30. All scholars under 14 years of age are admitted for 5 cents. Special attention is paid to the amusement and comfort of ladies and children at all times.

BILL FOR WEEK OPENING SUNDAY MATINEE JAN. 29.
HELEN GRANTLEY & COMPANY "The Never-Never Land" is the name of the sketch presented by Miss Grantley and her company. It is the work of Israel Zangwill, and a most compelling little playlet.
HAL STEVENS & COMPANY "Famous Scenes From Famous Plays" is the name of Mr. Stevens' act. You have heard of Mr. Stevens before. This is the best work he has ever done in his career as a character actor.
HESS, MONROE & POWELL Hess, Monroe and Powell have one of the best musical acts on the Orpheum circuit. They are instrumentalists and vocalists, and there are none better.
QUINN AND MITCHELL Paul Quinn and John Mitchell have one of the biggest comedy hits in vaudeville in their dialogue, "The Land Agent." They can't be described. They must be heard to be appreciated.
THE FREY TWINS A wrestling exhibition is a rather unusual act in vaudeville. The Frey Twins are two perfectly developed and perfectly matched athletes. Their wrestling match is not meant to decide which is the better wrestler, but to show the different holds as rapidly as possible, and it is a whirlwind exhibition while it lasts.
NEUSS AND ELDRED Neuss and Eldred really have something new to offer in the acrobatic line. Their entrance in an airship is significant, and typical of the act.
ELSIE DURAND Don't miss Elsie Durand. She has a vaudeville specialty that has been the talk of the circuit.
The Kinodrome and the Overture by the Concert Orchestra will complete the program.

theatrical pamphlet. A part of the contents of this week's issue follows:

"The year just closed has marked many changes in the photoplay. The most important of which has been the opening of handsome theaters for the exhibition of Photoplays which have replaced the store show.

"We are asked, are we going to use vaudeville with the photoplay? No. These houses will go as in the past; forward, not backward. The introduction of cheap and nasty vaudeville into the picture show has worked temporary harm, in some instances. We would rather put the money wasted upon the vulgar sister act and the unpleasant and obscene monologue grammaphone men to better use.

"Again we have placed an order with the Edison Manufacturing company for two of the latest, Model B, machines for as we have said, we must keep to the front.

"The Odeum and Lyric can promise some very fine photoplays in the next two months. The Biograph company has sent seventy-five people to California. Many remember the beautiful photoplays made there last winter. Selig is also there with a large company."

Madame Johanna Gadski returned to New York in concert within the last week and received a remarkable ovation from two great audiences, which packed the great Carnegie hall.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Edgar Selwyn, author of "The Country Boy," sailed for London last Monday. Mr. Selwyn will remain abroad for several months, recuperating after the arduous labor of rehearsing two companies of "The Country Boy" and producing Percy MacKaye's fantastic romance, "The Scarecrow."

"The Warning" is to be produced for the first time in Chicago at the Princess theater, following a long engagement of "The Deep Purple" at the same playhouse. "The Deep Purple" was highly sensational, but "The Warning," which is by Arthur J. Eddy, who wrote "The Great John Canton," is said to be a double twister in comparison. The Messers. Shubert were the producers. Frank Mills plays a man of the world; Menifree Johnstone assumes the role of King Conway, a prosperous gambler with a half sister, Tress (Josephine Victor), and Ralph Delmore, a detective. Others are Frank Dawson and Grace Wood.

In order to protect the English copyright of Rupert Hughes's farce "Excuse Me," Henry W. Savage sent a representative with the manuscript to Canada last week, and had a special reading of the play given in Toronto. Under the copyright laws of England a reading or production of a play must be given in British teritory. As Mr. Savage will in all probability present the Hughes farce in London, he complied with the provisions of the British law in order to safeguard his and the author's rights. The parts in the Canadian copyright performance were read by members of Miss Grace George's company, who were playing an engagement at the Royal Alexandre theater.

Fola La Follette, daughter of the senator from Wisconsin, has been engaged by Henry B. Harris as leading woman for Edmund Breese in Percy McKaye's fantastic romance, "The Scarecrow." Miss La Follette succeeds Beatrice Irwin, who was compelled to resign from the company by reason of illness.

The Craig dramatic prize at Harvard, offered a year ago by John Craig, the popular Boston actor-manager, has been awarded to Miss Florence Agnes Lincoln, of Charlestown, a special student at Radcliffe college. The prize, which carries an award of $250 and a guarantee of professional production, was to be awarded to any undergraduate at Harvard or Radcliffe who should submit an original play most fitted for public production. The prize-winning play is "The End of the Bridge," and it is a domestic drama of modern American life. The judges making the award were Prof. George P. Baker, Horace B. Stanton and John Craig.

Edward Abeles will make a tour of the continent of Europe in a pantomime role, supported by actors speaking the language of the country in which he is playing his well-known sketch, "The Defense."

Nazimova, now touring the South after a hurried trip to the coast, will shortly return to New York, where she will be sen at her own theater in a new play.

"Ben-Hur" is to be revived in Australia this spring. J. C. Williamson, the Australian manager, has made arrangements with Klaw & Erlanger and the Harpers Brothers to this end. Mr. Williamson produced "Ben-Hur" nine years ago. The play is now in its twelfth season in the United States.

Milton and Sargent Aborn, managing directors of the Aborn Opera company, have mapped out a campaign for the production of grand opera in English for their spring and summer season on a much larger scale than has ever been attempted by them.

Opera will be given at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, and in Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Newark and Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Minneapolis. Six companies will be organized to cover this territory, appearing from five to ten weeks in each city. It is also the purpose to establish a permanent home for English grand opera in New York. Negotiations are now pending for a house with a seating capacity of 2,500. Double casts and a large chorus and orchestra will undertake to give eight performances each week, at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.

The Messrs. Aborn have secured rights for "Madame Butterfly," "La Boheme" and "La Tosca," and have also arranged for the production in English of "Thais" (English version of Herman Klein), "Louise" (English translation by Henry Grafton Chapman) and the "Juggler of Notre Dame" (English version by Charles Alfred Byrne). This will be the first time in this country that these three operas have been sung in English.

In addition to the above, the following will also be given: "Tales of Hoffman," "Lohengrin," "Il Trovatore," "Carmen," "Faust," "Lucia," "Rigoletto," "Martha," "Aida," "Cavelleria" and "Pagliacci."

Edward P. Temple has been engaged as general stage manager and Carlos Nicosia and Max Fichandler as general musical conductors.

The production of Percy MacKaye's fantastic romance, "The Scarecrow," in which Edmund Breese plays His Satanic Majesty, the Devil, recalls a number of plays in which the character of the Imp of Darkness appeared.

The most famous of these plays, of course, was "Faust," that is so closely connected with the name of the late Lewis Morrison. To begin with, among the first of the plays in which the character of the Devil appeared was "Dr. Faustus," written by Christopher Marlow in 1588, printed in 1604, and presented as a play on Jan. 7, 1607. "The Necromancer" was another play closely connected with "Dr. Faustus." It was a pantomime, and was seen at Lincoln Inn Field, Dec. 20, 1724. To Goethe we are indebted for "Faust," in which the character of Mephisto is the central figure. It was written in 1798. Satan also appeared in "The Demon of the Drachenfels," which, was produced at Sadler's Wells, London, 1842. On Aug. 9, 1850, at Gymnase-Dramatique, Paris, "Faust and Marguerite," another version of the old story, was produced. In 1840, at the Adelphi theater, London, a three-act extravaganza by R. B. Peake, called "The Devil in London," was given. Henslowe mentions that a play was given in London called "The Devil and His Dames," and that his Satanic Majesty occupied the center of the stage throughout the performance. This was in 1600. In Molnar's play, "The Devil," which two seasons ago attracted considerable attention, the character wore modern garb.

In the Mackayo play the Devil is called Dicken. The first act he is seen in all his glory, with cloven hoof and forked tail, and those other familiar embellishments so wonderfully illustrated in Gustave Dore's paintings identified with Milton's Paradise Lost and Dante's Inferno.

Bernice Golden Henderson, whose remarkable success as the vampire in "A Fool There Was," with Robert Hilliard, is still fresh in memory, and who, on her recent marriage to E. Augustus Heinze, retired from the stage, is to return to the footlights as a star. Mrs. Heinze declares that her return is due to her necessity for active life. She will appear in London in James A. Fagan's dramatization of Robert Hichens' novel, "Bella Donna."

Daniel Frohman will make his reentry into the producing field by starring Charles Cherry in a comedy called "The Seven Sisters," adapted from the German by Mrs. Edith Ellis Furness. The story of the play concerns a household of marriageable young women and an equal number of suitors. Laurette Taylor, who starred last season in "The Girl in Waiting," will have the leading feminine role. Mr. Cherry is under a three-years' contract to Mr. Frohman, and each season will appear in a new play at the Lyceum. The first of this trio of plays was Edward Peple's "The Spitfire," in which Mr. Cherry appeared last season at the Lyceum theater.

Two leading ladies is the generous allotment made by Liebler & Co., to George Arliss for his new Louis N. Parker comedy "Disraeli." Elsie Leslie, recently leading woman for H. B. Warner in "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and Margaret Dale, who has been serving in a similar capacity for W. H. Cane, are the two young women to whom these posts of honor in the new play by the author of "Pomander Walk" have been assigned. In addition, Mr. Arliss' support will include Courtenay Foote, a young leading man who has several times proven his worth in period plays; Alexander Calvert, a brother of Louis Calvert, of the New Theater company, and himself an actor of no mean distinction, having played Orlando to Julia Neilson's Rosalind at the Globe theater, London, and many leading parts with Tree at His Majesty's; David Torrence, late with Maude Adams; Marguerite St. John, J. L. Mackey, Leila Repton, Douglas Geoffrey, Constance Kirkham, Dudley Digges and several others.

That the "badger game" is being worked daily in New York is the positive statement made by Emmett Corrigan, an actor in "The Deep Purple" a play of underworld life current at the Lyric theater. The play deals with the frustrated attempt at the particular blackmail which got William A. E. Moore, Florence Burns and others of certain note into trouble. Mr. Corrigan, who has familiarized himself with conditions shown in the melodrama, said bluntly yesteday: "If any one questions the daily practice of badgering, and the existence of numerous badgers, I will walk down Broadway any afternoon and point out twenty-five badger men, and the majority of them will be in confidential conversation with plain clothes men. The thieves of New York pay for protection, just as other law-breakers pay."

An interesting feature of the production of "Judith Zaraine" at the Astor theater, will be the return to Broadway of John Kellerd, a sturdy actor who has been absent from the stage for some time. The cast is indeed a splendid one, headed as it is by that truly powerful actress, Lena Ashwell, who paid her only previous visit to this country five years ago, and including Charles Waldron of "Fourth Estate" celebrity, that prince of boy actors, young Donald Gallaher, and several other notabilities of the theater.

It is interesting to note the individuality with which Blanche Bates clothes her part of Roxana Clayton in "Nobody's Widow"—a part calling for the most sombre of widow's weeds. In Miss Bates' gown the material is a full-finished crepe meteor, with solid crepe arranged in a semi-tunic about the hips and caught up at the right side with a buckle of crape and long sash ends. The only touch of white in the gown is the line of white coral beads which outlines the neck. Miss Bates carries out her mourning in every detail. A band of the same material as the gown is wrapped about her shapely head, turban style, and she wears long pendant ear-rings of dull jet, and a large matrix ring of black onyx.

Miss Janet Dunbar, who plays the part of "Oom Peter's" niece, Katherine, in "The Return of Peter Grimm," in support of David Warfield, is one of the most talented of the younger women on the American stage. Miss Dunbar will be remembered by theatergoers as the last of the several young women who successively played the part of the daughter in "The Music Master." One of these, Frances Starr, has since become one of Mr. Belasco's brightest stars, and the fact that Miss Dunbar should have been retained to support Mr. Warfield in a very difficult role in his new play is proof of the high esteem in which Mr. Belasco regards the young woman's talents.

Last summer Gertrude Bryan, the prima donna of Harry W. Savage's "Merry Widow" company, was fortunate enough to secure a little colored maid who was quite a treasure. The charming Sonia was desirous of having her travel with her this season, but Dinah was obdurate. For a long time she would not give a reason, but at last it came out.

"I'se mighty skeered of dem big injines, Miss Gertie," she declared.

"Why, you foolish girl, they can't hurt you!" said Miss Bryan.

"Maybe not, Miss Gertie, maybe not, but I don't like dem nohow. When I was a little gal, way down near Richmond, we lived right close to the railroad. Dem big injines used to come along shootin' out sparks an' hollerin': 'Sst, Sst! Ketch a nigger, ketch a nigger!' An', Lawdy you jes' ought to see me run. Ever since I'se been powerful skeered of dem injines, an' you don't ketch dis yere nigger runnin' round where dey is. Uh! Uh! I stays right here in New York, where dey isn't nothin' bigger'n trolley cyahs." And she did.

What is said to be at once the shortest and most effective feminine leading roles in modern light comedy is that of Stephanie Delins, the heroine of "The Great Name"—the delightful play dealing with life in musical circles, in which Henry Kolker is starring under the management of Henry W. Savage.

Through the entire play Stephanie has three or four scenes in which she speaks but a few words, yet there is not a moment in which she is overlooked or forgotten by the audience, for the reason that it is her influence and her gracious personality that influence the young composer to change the whole course of his life. For this important role in "The Great Name" Mr. Savage has made a wise selection in the choice of Gertrude Dallas, a talented young actress who has achieved envious distinction in James Clarence Harvey's adaptation of the fascinating Viennese comedy.

SCENES ABOUT THE GREAT COAL FIELDS WHERE STRIKE IS ON

FAMILIES OF STRIKING MINERS, SALEMVILLE, PA.

STRIKING MINERS BUILDING SHACKS.

It is now ten months since the great strike began in the coal fields of Westmoreland county, Pa. Between 18,000 and 20,000 miners have been on a strike since March 15 last. The question at issue has been the recognition of the union. The scale of wages, the eight-hour day, and the matter of the companies' stores are minor issues in the fight. In the Pittsburg district adjoining, where union conditions prevail, higher wages are paid. The miners say that the coal in the Irwin-Greensburg-Latrobe fields is as good as in the Pittsburg district. Their employers claim that they cannot get so good a price for it. The miners struck March 15. The mining company ejected the miners from the company houses and they went to living in tents. The union has helped them regularly, but its contributions to their relief have varied. Last summer the striking miners received as little as $3,000 a week. Now the union is sending them $20,000 a week. The union leaders claim that the companies are paying strike breakers more than union wages and are not producing one-tenth of the normal coal production. The owners of the coal mines say that they have plenty of labor and are producing the normal amount of coal. The miners seem prepared to hold out indefinitely.

HER FIRST ROLE THAT OF A STAR

DOROTHY PARKER.

Dorothy Parker has captivated New York. She has been taking the ingenue part in Louis Parker's "Pomander Walk" at Wallack's theater. It is a part so easy to overplay, so easy to make mawkish and super sentimental that Miss Parker's success in interpreting it has attracted most favorable criticism and has raised again the question whether the English or the American character lends itself most easily to the stage. Miss Parker is a daughter of Louis N. Parker, who wrote "Pomander Walk," and she has never been on the stage until she appeared here in her father's play. All her stage schooling she obtained from her father himself. Her unconsciousness, her perfect stage presence, her charming manner and the musical reading of her lines is remarkable for an actress so young and inexperienced. There are few American actresses on the stage today who can be compared with Miss Parker in many of her best qualities.

SENATOR CUMMINS OPPOSES LORIMER

Resumes Argument Against Exonerating Senator From Illinois.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Senator Cummins of Iowa resumed his argument against the adoption of the committee resolution exonerating Senator Lorimer of Illinois from the charge of having procured his seat by corrupt means in the senate yesterday. He declared there were many circumstances tending to sustain the charges.

The Iowa senator continued his dissection of the testimony in the case. He declared it would have been impossible for the human mind to have fabricated such a story as that supplied to the Chicago Tribune by Representative White of the Illinois legislature without having it refuted by the facts.

This refutation, he said, had not resulted. On the contrary many circumstances corroborative of the story had been collected by the committee and these were outlined at length. They included Lee O'Neill Browne's visit to St. Louis and his meeting with White in Chicago, and the consequence growing out of these two incidents. Mr. Cummins also declared there was not one single undisputed item of testimony that was not in harmony with the original White story.

NOT A COMPETITOR.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 28.—In the circuit court yesterday Judge Benton handed down a decision declaring the purchase of control of the Frankfort & Cincinnati railroad by the Louisville & Nashville, a parallel line, was not a violation of the law prohibiting the absorption of a railroad by a competing line. The Frankfort & Cincinnati, Judge Benton declared, was in too dilapidated a condition to compete with anything. The road extends from Frankfort to Paris, Ky.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Orders issued from the war department designate the 142nd company, Coast Artillery corps, now at Fort McHenry, Md., for services at Fort Wint, Grande Island, in the Philippines, sailing from San Francisco, Aug. 5 next.

COMPRESSED AIR PLANT IS NOW BEING INSTALLED

Mountain View Mine at Butte Shut Down for the Change.

Butte & Superior Makes New Lease of Basin Production Works.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—At one time there was a fear that the fire in the High Ore mine would be the cause of delaying for some time the operation of the compressed air plant for the hoisting of ore in the mines which it is proposed to equip for that purpose. However, all danger of the fire spreading was over in a few days and now the work of preparing the engine of the Mountain View mine for the new system is progressing with as much speed as possible. Just before the fire made its appearance in the High Ore, the Mountain View was closed down for the purpose of making the necessary change in the engine, but when the fire appeared it was at once determined not to dismantle the Mountain View for fear that the fire might assume such proportions that several mines could not be worked and the Mountain View would be required to furnish its full quota of ore to keep the smelter going. Just as soon as the fire was got under control, orders were issued to dismantle the Mountain View and prepare for the new order of things. It is expected that in making the necessary alterations about thirty days will be consumed, which will mean that everything will be in readiness to start hoisting ore by compressed air somewhere about March 1. Notwithstanding the strained relations existing between the Anaconda company and the Butte-Ballaklava company, the management of the latter company came promptly to the rescue of the Anaconda company when the fire first made its appearance and placed its property at the disposal of the Anaconda company through which to fight the fire, which is just about on the boundary line of the two companies. President Nelson of the Butte-Ballaklava company was in the city at the time and his offer was gladly accepted. Three lines of pipe were laid down through the Ballaklava shaft to the scene of the fire and this afforded an easy means of getting the water to the flames. No work is being done in the Butte-Ballaklava, and Supt. Newton is of the opinion that the Anaconda people will be required to keep streams of water on the scene of the fire for the next three weeks or month in order to make sure that every sign of fire has been put out. The production of the mines for this month will not be materially effected by the fire, as the force in other mines has been increased and both smelters are being kept fully supplied with ore.

Boston & Montana.

The petition filed a few days ago for the dissolution of the Boston & Montana company is to come up for hearing in the district court in this city on Feb. 20. The petition praying for the dissolution of the corporation is signed by F. P. Addicks, B. B. Thayer, D. B. Hennessy and John D. Ryan, four of the five directors of the company, and sets forth that all the debts of the company have been fully paid and satisfied. It is further stated that a meeting of the stockholders was held on Dec. 27, at which 147,611 shares of stock were represented and that on the following day to which an adjournment was taken, 149,375 shares were represented, all the stock voting in favor of the dissolution. The Boston & Montana company has a capital stock of $3,500,000 divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $25 each.

The Parrot Suit.

On application of Attorney Freeman, representing William E. Wall, and Louis Foss of Boston, the application for the apointment of appraisers for the valuation of the Parrot company stock has been dismissed and the case now goes to the United States court without further interference, in accordance with the filing of the suit asking that the sale be set aside. This suit was filed about two weeks ago.

Basin Reduction Works.

The State Savings bank is now in possession of the Basin Reduction works, according to a default judgment entered the other day for $145,000, with $13,920 interest and an attorney fee of $2,500. This suit was brought some time ago by the bank to recover the amount stated for a loan on a note which was to bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent. According to a statement made in court not any interest has been paid since Nov. 1, 1909. The Basin works are supposed to be owned in most part by F. Augustus Heinze, and when he had an interest in the bank he secured the loan on a note, which was signed by the president and treasurer of the Butte Reduction Works company. H. Mason Raborg, who was supposed to be a close friend of Heinze and vice president of the Davs-Daly company, is now at the head of the State Savings bank, having removed his residence from New York to this city. Some time ago, Mr. Raborg caused it to be announced that he was no longer connected with the Davis-Daly company. None of the principal was ever paid on the note.

Pittsburg & Montana.

The appointment of a receiver for the Pittsburg & Montana company has been knocked out by the supreme court, it being decided that the district court judge in this city exceeded his authority when he appointed L. P. Donovan to that position. The Pittsburg & Montana company a few years ago sold out to the East Butte company, but while the former corporation was doing business in this city, a miner sustained injuries in the mine and on bringing suit for damages was awarded a verdict for $15,000. Then when the time came to look around for the money it was ascertained that the Pittsburg & Montana did not have any assets in this state, so the application was made for the receiver in order that that official might take steps to secure the money from the Pittsburg stockholders of the company. The case occupied several days and finally the receiver was appointed. Then the Pittsburg & Montana stockholders, or rather some of the wealthy ones residing in Pittsburg, appealed to the supreme court with the result as stated.

Will Try to Collect.

Soon after the Pittsburg & Montana case was tried, a miner who had secured a judgment against the Heinze Hypocka Mining company and was unable to get his money, applied for a receiver and the same was duly appointed. No appeal was ever taken in this case and now Attorney Donovan, who was appointed, proposes to take steps to ascertain if he cannot collect the amount from Arthur P. Heinze, who was the heaviest stockholder in the company, and who, it is said, received the greater part of the money from the sale of the supposed property of the company from the Amalgamated at the time F. Augustus Heinze sold out.

Butte & Superior.

The Butte & Superior company has signed an eighteen-months' lease on the Basin Reduction Works for the treatment of its zinc ore. On the strength of this agreement the company is putting in some new machinery of a modern character, but it is with the understanding that it can be removed at the expiration of the lease should the company decide not to enter into any further agreement. The ore of the Butte & Superior is being very successfully treated at Basin at the present time, and for this reason the company will not build the proposed concentrator for at least some time to come.

Stewart Mine.

Although glowing reports are sent out from time to time as to the earnings of Heinze's Stewart mine, the management does not appear to be able to create any great interest in the stock which remains weak. The latest statement concerning the property is that it is making some $75,000 a month gross and that the mill is treating more ore than at any time since it has been in operation. The debts are being rapidly paid off, it is stated, and the next six months may bring dividends to the stockholders.

Butte-Central.

Supt. Sam McConnell of the Ophir mine of the Butte-Central company has made a rich strike on the 500-foot level and this leads him to believe that he has one of the best properties in the district. Some time ago several rich ore shoots were found on the upper levels on the south vein but they were lost on the lower levels. He started two drifts eastward on the 500-foot level, one on the north vein and the other on the south vein. His efforts were crowned with success, for a few days ago he opened a rich body of ore with a width of three feet in the face of the drift. The vein is somewhere about eighteen feet wide, and the ore runs very high in gold and silver with some copper. The work of sinking the shaft from the 500-foot level to a depth of 1,000 feet will be commenced under a contract in a few days and will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The superintendent has great hopes in striking some very rich ore at depth.

Phosphate Rock.

The official announcement of the discovery by the United States geological survey of some 33,950 acres of land twenty-five miles southwest of this city at a point near Melrose, on which are valuable deposits of phosphate rock is creating considerable excitement in view of the fact that the land in consequence is said to be worth several millions of dollars. It is within the limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railway company, but in view of its mineral qualities it has been withdrawn from entry. Until a thorough examination of the deposits has been made and President Taft and congress take some steps to provide a way of having the property developed, nothing can be done in the matter. Several Butte parties are urging that a law be passed giving the government power to lease the land.

GREENE-CANANEA REDUCING COSTS

Expects to Turn Out Copper at 9 Cents in April.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 28.—"Great Falls people who hold stock in the Greene-Cananea Copper company may well take new enthusiasm over their possessions," said George Berthold, in speaking with the Tribune about the copper outlook in Mexico.

"Let me clear your mind," said Mr. Berthold, "about any interest that I may have in the company, personally. I lived in Sonora for some years and this information comes to me from friends there in a position to know conditions. I am not booming the stock to sell some of it."

Mr. Berthold then explained that the company has at last gotten its plant equipped with modern machinery and is able to handle the ore in a manner that makes it possible now to produce copper at 10½ cents the pound and that by the first of April the management announces it will be able to turn out copper at not exceeding 9 cents the pound.

He explains also that the company has secured a five years' contract to smelt the concentrates for the Miami company which will mean a big revenue for the Greene-Cananea company.

"Greene-Cananea has an almost unlimited supply of copper," said Mr. Berthold, "and the holdings will grow more valuable from year to year, now that the problem of cost of production has been so well taken care of. Where the company is now working the supply is almost limitless and when the time shall come, if that ever happens, that the present working tract is exhausted, there is a great deposit not more than eighteen miles from this one which will suffice for the supply indefinitely.

"There are a great many people here who loaded up with Greene-Cananea when it was around $22 and then the slump in the copper market drove the stock down to below $10, perhaps as low as $6. I understand a large number have simply held on to their shares and, if such is the case, they will soon begin to see prices that will make them satisfied with the price they paid for it, unless I miss my prediction.

"It is the belief of the Greene-Cananea insiders that the property will be in a position, when conditions justify, to produce 100,000,000 pounds of copper per annum at a 9-cent cost."

ALL RECORDS SHATTERED

Past Year Most Prosperous on Lake Superior Iron Ranges.

Shipments By Lake Fleet and Rail Reached 43,375,000 Tons.

Measured from the standpoint of production, the year 1910 was the most prosperous twelve months the Lake Superior iron ranges have ever experienced. The outgo of ore was the largest yet recorded. The shipments did not attain the high mark that seemed likely of achievement at the opening of inter-lake navigation and when there was little indication of the subsequent lull in iron and steel trade circles, nevertheless they surpassed those of the preceding and banner year by more than 750,000 tons. The movement was remarkably large the first half of the year and it appeared that the 50,000,000 ton goal was surely in sight. Then came a scaling down of furnace requirements. Shipments fell away and with the waning of the season the traffic slumped severely. Under the circumstances, the outgo is considered most gratifying.

In round numbers, and with the all-rail movement estimated, there was forwarded from the five shipping ranges of the Lake Superior country during the past year, 43,375,000 tons of iron ore. Of this amount, 42,619,060 tons were carried by the lake fleet. The Mesaba range furnished the great bulk of the tonnage, as has been the case a number of years past, and, indeed, it somewhat increased its percentage of the whole. Considerably more than twice as much ore came from this wonderful field, in fact, as from the other four ranges combined. The following comparative tables of the gross tonnages show the lake shipments from each of the five ranges, with estimates of the all-rail movement for the entire region:

Mesaba	29,114,407	28,176,281
Menominee	4,184,686	4,741,534
Gogebic	4,093,659	3,834,285
Marquette	4,023,133	3,823,558
Vermillion	1,203,175	1,108,215
Totals	42,619,060	41,683,873
All-rail	756,940	815,237
Grand totals	43,375,000	42,499,110

The 42,619,060 tons of ore forwarded by water the past year were furnished by the three states in which the Lake Superior iron region is included in the following proportion:

	Gross Tons.
Minnesota	30,317,582
Michigan	11,361,875
Wisconsin	939,060
Total	46,619,060

The all-rail shipments, estimated at 756,940 tons, came almost wholly from Michigan and Wisconsin, little if any from the former state. They represent ore sent to interior furnaces tributary to the Lake Superior country.

Duluth the Leading Port.

Duluth easily maintained its position as the leading port of the six whence the product of the mines is shipped, and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern closed the year still well in the lead as the great ore-hauling railroad of the region. The shipments via ports was as follows:

	Gross Tons.
Duluth	13,609,155
Superior	8,437,261
Two Harbors	8,271,166
Escanaba	4,958,890
Ashland	4,093,659
Marquette	3,248,929
Total	42,619,060

The proportion of this ore handled by each of the eight railroads are:

	Gross Tons.
Duluth, Missabe & Northern	13,609,155
Great Northern	8,437,261
Iron Range	8,271,166
Chicago & Northwestern	7,085,689
Lake Superior & Ishpeming	1,865,723
Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic	1,383,206
Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul	1,261,117
Wisconsin Central (Soo line)	705,743
Total	42,619,060

Iron ore was discovered in the Lake Superior country almost seven decades ago. Since that time there have been mined and shipped very close to half a billion tons. The growth of the production the past one and one-half decades has been remarkable. It was not until 1894 that the annual output reached as much as 7,500,000 tons. The 15,000,000-ton mark was obtained in 1899, the 25,000,000-ton mark in 1903, the 30,000,000-ton mark in 1905 and the 40,000,000-ton mark in 1907.

Of the aggregate production of 492,341,418 tons to date, the various ranges have furnished gross tonnages as follows:

Year Opened.	Range.	Output
1892	Mesaba	224,817,831
1844	Marquette	96,427,124
1877	Menominee	75,563,741
1884	Gogebic	65,114,162
1884	Vermillion	30,328,560
Total		492,341,416

Prospects for 1911.

Just when the annual production of the region will reach 50,000,000 tons is uncertain. It had been expected that the record would be attained the past year and, indeed, the volume of the shipments the first few months indicated that the achievement would be easy of accompl'shment. It was not the fault of the mines nor of the railroads nor of the lake fleet that the goal was not registered. All of these were prepared to do their full share. The iron market did not hold up, however, and as its depressed condition has extended into the present year it is considered entirely improbable that the 50,000,000-ton mark will be achieved in 1911. It is believed, in fact, that the outgo will fall under 40,000,000 tons.

While the mines the past year were prepared to furnish a tonnage much above the greatest record registered to date, and this without difficulty, they will be in still better condition to make new high records the present year and the years to follow. The vast stripping work on the Mesaba range is steadily adding great areas of ore to the deposits previously uncovered for steam shovel mining; the number of underground producers on all five of the shipping ranges is continually receiving accessions, and this year for the first time the Cuyuna properties will be ready to furnish a share of the output of the region. Rarely has exploratory work been conducted with greater vigor than at the present time. There is hardly a field throughout the iron country in which diamond or churn drilling or test-pitting or shaft-sinking are not being done. Development operations also are in progress on an extensive scale. There are few districts in which new mines are not being opened and there are few old producers which are not increasing their available reserves. Some mines are inactive, as is always the case, but in most cases these are properties producing ore of a quality not readily saleable except when the market is broad and animated. In the aggregate, as many men are employed in and about the mining properties this winter as during any winter heretofore.

Railroads' Improvements.

Since there is little reason to expect that the shipments the present year will approximate the traffic handled in 1909, the railroads are making only small additions to their rolling stock. Some new locomotives will go into service, but not many new cars, the holdings of this latter kind having been materially increased the past season. Considerable work is contemplated or is in progress in the way of improving or increasing the facilities at the shipping ports, however. In this respect, most of the railroads are looking ahead to the possibilities of the season of 1912. At Two Harbors the Duluth & Iron Range old No. 1 ore dock, a wooden structure 1,380 feet long, 60 feet wide and 73 feet high, is to be replaced with a pier of concrete and steel of approximately the same proportions. The No. 6 dock was similarly rebuilt a year ago. The old pier is now being dismantled, and with this work completed the erection of the improved dock will be started and will be rushed to completion. The cost is estimated at close to $1,600,000. An ore dock of steel and concrete calls for an expenditure fully twice that necessitated where a wooden structure is built, but as there is no reason why it should not render service for half a century, whereas its antequated predecessor has a life of only twelve or fifteen years, the increased cost is deemed economical in the long run. The Two Harbors pier will have a storage capacity of upwords of 60,000 tons.

The dock system of the Great Northern railroad at Allouez is likewise to have a fine new pier of steel and concrete. Construction was started the past summer, but for some time now the operations have been suspended, as has much contemplated improvement work all along the Great Northern lines. However, the dock will not be needed until 1912. It will cost upwards of a million dollars. Much of the concrete work has been done and much of the steel is on the ground. At a cost of half a million dollars, the Soo Line is building a dock on St. Louis bay at Duluth. This pier will handle ore from the Cuyuna range, the initial shipments from which district will be made this year. The dock is a small one, in comparison with the others at the head of Lake Superior, its length being only 600 feet, but it will suffice for a few seasons or until the Cuyuna is ready to doff its swaddling clothes. A prospective bidder for ore traffic on the Mesaba range is the Canadian Northern railroad. This company is now building from Virginia, Minn., to Duluth and providing it is guaranteed sufficient business from the mines it will erect a dock at West Duluth, where it has large terminal grounds. It is expected to be running trains into the Zenith City by early next fall.

The Lake Superior & Ishpeming line, a railroad property owned jointly by the Jones & Laughlin Steel company and the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, and which extends from Marquette to the mines at Negaunee and Ishpeming, is preparing to build a second ore dock on the shore of Lake Superior at Presque Isle. The dock will be of steel and concrete and will cost $1,250,000. Construction work will be started shortly, although it is not intended that the pier shall go into service this year. The Cleveland Cliffs company is opening new mines in the territory to the west of Ishpeming, as well as increasing production at Marquette range properties already developed, and by the season of 1912 ore dock No. 2 will be urgently needed. The Chicago & Northwestern is to give both its No. 4 and No. 6 docks at Escanaba an extensive overhauling this winter, spending some $50,000 in that work, and it likewise is to repair its No. 1 dock at Ashland, this latter improvement at an expense of $25,000.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Echo Company Resumes Development Work After Year's Idleness.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 28.—Development work on the property of the Echo Mining company in the Maitland district has been resumed after an idleness of over a year. A force is cutting a station in the main tunnel for an electric hoist to sink on the main ledge. The vein is 200 feet wide and is one of the largest and most substantial in the Homestake belt. The ore carries a fair grade milling gold which is expected to grow richer with depth. It is proposed to sink at least 200 feet before crosscutting.

The Hutchins Consolidated Mining company, operating in the Bear lodge district just over the line in Wyoming has installed a couple of hoisting outfits and put men to work to develop its property. A shaft is to be sunk 300 feet as fast as possible. The company expects to be the first of the larger operating companies in that district to attain depth.

The Lundberg, Dorr & Wilson mill at Terry treats chiefly custom ore from nearby properties, and is now handling about seventy-five tons daily, mostly from the Imperial, from which P. H. Bertschy is shipping on a lease, and the Portland.

James Yerxa is developing a vein 60 to 80 feet wide in a good prospect near Custer. He has sunk a shaft sixty-five feet to tap the vein, which is now about fifty feet in. Preliminary test sindicate that the ore is about $2.50 to $3.00 free gold a ton. He has organized a company known as the Gold Banner Mining & Milling company; he has 140 acres of ground.

A ledge of unusually rich ore for this section is being uncovered on the Montezuma and Whizzers property just west of Deadwood, one of the old-time properties of the Northern Black Hills and some years ago a large producer of fluxing ore that was shiped to the old Golden Reward smelter. This ore carried a large amount of pyritic material and was the only avialable flux here. For some months past, J. T. Gilmore of this city, the owner, has been quietly working the old property, and although he made the strike last fall, has kept it quiet. The ledge is gradually widening and increasing in value. It is of gold ore that runs better than $52 a ton. The property consists of eighty acres of patented ground.

The Golden Reward company is much gratified over its recent big strike in the Bald Mountain district, where an immense ledge of gold ore running from $12 to $48 a ton is being opened up in the workings of the Golden Reward No. 4 shaft. A drift has been run 1,050 feet and several crosscuts of the ledge made, with each crosscut the width increasing until it is now better than 150 feet wide, and neither wall has yet been encountered. The ore is entirely different from any milling proposition heretofore discovered in the Black Hills flat formation and contains 12 to 15 per cent sulphur and the same per cent iron, and the shoot has a thickness of eight to fourteen feet. It lies on the quartzite and is believed to lead to a large vertical of the same character. Numerous tests of the ore have been made in the company's laboratory and at the School of Mines at Rapid City, and show that after roasting it will readily yield to cyanide, the presence of the sulphur making it possible to mix in a quantity of the blue silicious ore, which for lack of known method of treatment has long been a puzzle to Black Hills mining experts.

LAKE COPPER MINES BUSY

Houghton Again Sinking Shaft After Delay By Soft Ground.

Ojibway's Good Results in Territory Tributary to No. 1 Shaft.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Houghton Copper company, next north of the Superior mine, is again sinking its shaft steadily after some delay, caused by soft ground, in which it became necessary to reinforce the shaft timbers with concrete and steel. The shaft has attained a depth of about 250 feet. Sixty-foot crosscuts will be necessary to connect the shaft with the workable copper ground at the various levels, and the first of these will likely be run at about the 500-foot level.

Michigan.

The Michigan Copper Mining company, since the suspension of operations in the so-called Bee tract, is confining its activity to diamond drilling in an effort to locate commercial copper ground that may lie in the southern limits of its extensive acreage. The Bee tract has been given over to several tributors, and from their operations the company expects to derive funds sufficient to meet the cost of its own exploratory operations.

Ojibway.

The Ojibway Mining company is getting excellent results in the development of the territory tributary to the No. 1 shaft. At this point drifting is in progress at the 350, 500, 650, 800 and 1,100-foot levels. Values are not continuous but alternate between what appears to be two distinct beds. Where one bed is found well charged with the metal the other bed in the same cross section and parallel is apt to prove lean. Both shafts are sinking steadily, the one below a depth of 1,550 feet and the other at around 1,700 feet measured on the incline of the lodes. The southern end of the property commanded by No. 2 shaft is not looking so well and is receiving less attention than is the ground to the northward. A diamond drill operating in No. 2 territory has recently yielded some excellent cores of copper rock, the first real encouragement obtained in that end. The mine is well equipped for immediate needs and is developed to a point where a steady though rather small production could be had at any time.

South Lake.

The South Lake Mining company has finished Drill Hole No. 8 and is preparing to make a last boring to more fully determine the extent, dip and strike of the several copper-bearing lodes disclosed in these explorations. Shaft sinking will follow, but because of an unusually heavy overburden, in places as much as 260 feet thick, sand pipes will be driven at various points with the object of avoiding as much as possible such difficulties incident to shaft sinking in sandy or clayey soil. The company has 40,000 shares of treasury stock which it proposes to issue in the near future to provide the funds necessary to carry on operations.

New Baltic.

The New Baltic Copper company is again to continue shaft sinking after a two months' delay, occasioned by the erection of the shafthouse. The shaft is around 200 feet deep, and at this point will open into the lode through a short crosscut. This crosscut will give the first exposure of the New Baltic lode other than that yielded by the diamond drill. The drill core was well charged with copper. The shaft is equipped with a small air compressor and steam hoist, both adequate for present needs but of rather limited capacity. The management has a genuine prospect in a new territory and in making haste slowly is showing commendable judgment.

Oneco.

The Oneco Copper Mining company has completed the task of unwatering its long idle shaft, and is preparing to sink to greater depth. The shaft is down around 450 feet. A limited amount of drifting was done on the fourth level and this work resulted in the disclosure of fair average copper ground. A crosscut is now being run across the formation at this level. The property was thoroughly diamond drilled previous to the resumption of operations in the shaft on the Oneco lode, so-called, and this work though disclosing one other copper-bearing lode, would indicate the Oneco lode as the most promising traversing this territory. Of the several holes put through this lode all but one yielded cores of apparent commercial values, and in the case of this single exception it was found that the copper contents had leached into the footwall trap rock. The Oneco lode is very likely identical with the Isle Royale or Portage lodes, both of which are being wrought with some success by the Isle Royale Copper company on the south side of Portage lake.

Victoria.

The Victoria Copper company is being seriously handicapped through lack of power, and for some time past has been unable to operate the mine and mill concurrently. Another ice forming in the intake to the hydro-pneumatic power plant is the indirect cause in that it shuts off much of the water that would ordinarily be drawn into the intake canal and upon the capacity of which to supply water in sufficient quantity the efficiency of the power plant depends The trouble is an old one and recurs annually in freezing weather. Mine and mill are operating single shift and must continue to do so until the trouble is abated. The situation in the mine is not greatly changed from the past, and offers small hope for permanent betterment. The ground is extremely low grade and but for the cheap power supplied by the hydro-pneumatic power plant would be unworkable at even higher prices for the red metal than at the present obtains.

NEW MINES IN COEUR D'ALENES

Eight Will Be Placed on the Smelter Books This Year.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 28.—The year 1911 promises to be the banner year in the history of the Coeur d'Alenes in the number of new producers which will be added to the list of shippers.

Eight mines have been, or will be, placed on the books of the smelters this year. In 1910 the new producers numbered four.

Eight lead-silver and copper mines have been sending out ore for periods of five to twenty years back and are now, in most cases, in their prime. The gross amount of ore taken out in 1911 promises to exceed the output of any past year in the rich North Idaho mining section.

The best known lead-silver shippers of the district are the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine, near Kellogg, declared to be the largest lead-silver mine in the world, the Hercules mine, near Burke, which is remarkable for the richness and extent of its ore bodies; the Morning mine at Mullan; the Standard at Mace, a steady shipper, with ore bodies persisting at depth; the Hecla at Burke, which is just beginning to open up on the 1,200-foot level, and the Last Chance at Wardner.

The Snowstorm is the sole copper shipper of the Coeur d'Alenes and will continue sending out ore from its upper levels for many months. The company is thoroughly prospecting the property on No. 4 level and expects to locate the ore shoots there. The No. 4 is the lowest level reached by the company.

The Success is a zinc producer, lead occupying only a small place in the smelter receipts.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR BUTTE & ELY

Joseph B. Cotton Elected President and E. J. Maney Treasurer.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 28.—The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Butte & Ely Copper company was held in Butte a few days ago, and a board of directors elected. Joseph B. Cotton of Duluth, first vice president and general counsel of the Giroux Consolidated Mining company and a director of the Butte & Ely, attended the meeting and brought with him an exhaustive report of the board of directors, which he read to the stockholders.

According to the report, the property of the Butte & Ely has been thoroughly proved by the Nevada Consolidated and Giroux companies. The Nevada Consolidated has opened a new pit near the east end line of the Butte & Ely ground and the Giroux has done a lot of churn drilling on the west side, close to the Butte & Ely, where ore of the same character as found in the Alpha shaft was encountered. In the spring the Giroux will do a lot of work of the same character along the north line of the Butte & Ely. In the near future work will be done on the Butte & Ely ground itself. The valuable water rights of the company are being protected and will in time be utilized by the Giroux.

The financial statement shows that the Butte & Ely has no indebtedness and has $242,037.95 in the treasury, which is drawing interest. The following directors were elected: Joseph B. Cotton and E. J. Maney of Duluth; J. C. Adams, B. E. Calkins, and Roy S. Alley of Butte. The directors then elected Cotton president, Adams vice president, Maney treasurer, Alley secretary, and W. E. Wright, assistant secretary. Mr. Maney is also treasurer of the Giroux company.

How Union Pacific Country Population Increased in the Last Ten Years

A Few Statistics to Show How West and Northwest Progress and Prosperity Attract Settlers

	INCREASE
Nebraska	11.8 per cent
Kansas	15.0 " "
Colorado	48.0 " "
Wyoming	57.7 " "

But in spite of all this wonderful growth there is still room for additional millions. Just note the following.

Number of persons per square mile:

Nebraska	15.5
Kansas	20.7
Colorado	7.7
Wyoming	1.5
Utah	4.5
Idaho	3.9

During this same period the New England States increased, as a whole, about 14 per cent. But in this old and densely populated district 211 persons must wrest their living from every square mile.

(Copyright, 1911, by E. J. Edwards.)

It is sometimes a decision seemingly of small consequence at the time it is made, or some fortuitous circumstance, that determines the course of a brilliant and successful career. There are probably many men who, though they have risen to prominence and power through sheer ability, can say, nevertheless, after taking a retrospect, "It was a matter of chance that I decided thus or so at such a time, or I thought it of only immediate concern when I did such a thing. Yet if I had decided or acted differently, then my whole career would have been changed."

Instances of this sort are furnished by the careers of a number of men who have risen to eminence within comparatively recent years.

In 1875, when the present senior senator from Iowa was admitted to the Illinois bar at the age of 25, he settled down to the practice of his profession in Chicago, where he had studied in a private law office.

But Chicago was a very big city. The young lawyer was completely lost there, and he was willing to accept any decent employment which would eke out his income. At last, with no clients appearing before him, there dawned upon him the conviction that if he were going to make a career in the law, it would be the better part for him to go to some small town where he could speedily make acquaintances and gain friendships.

There were a half dozen thriving little communities west of the Mississippi in each of which the young lawyer thought of establishing himself. But before he had definitely decided upon any one of them he happened to read a newspaper report of some exciting political events that were taking place in Iowa—it was in the year 1878—and it occurred to him that there might be a good opportunity for an ambitious young lawyer in the center of the political hubbub, the state capital, Des Moines.

Now, the young lawyer had no thought of a political career. He simply wanted to make enough money to support himself and his little family; he had married while still a law student. Des Moines appealed to him; he was certain it would grow in population and in influence, and that considerable railroad business would center there—he had abandoned railroading, in which he had become an assistant chief engineer, for the law. Besides, he was told that the Des Moines people were as hospitable as any to be found west of the Mississippi.

Therefore, he packed his few belongings and went to the Iowa capital city, not knowing a soul there when he set foot in the town. He secured a little office and hung out his shingle; and when clients were slow in putting in an appearance he worked at the carpenter's trade, in which he had become adept as a lad in the extreme southwestern corner of Pennsylvania, so that he could make both ends meet. But little by little he began to gain a law business, and finally he attracted the attention of Judge George G. Wright, United States senator and head of the biggest law firm in Des Moines. Judge Wright took the young man into partnership, and when in the early '80s Mr. Cummins became one of the associate counsel for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, it was recognized in Iowa that the comparative newcomer to the state had gained prominent success in the legal profession. Ten years after removing to Des Moines he found himself in the state house of representatives, later governor of the state, and today he is of commanding influence in the United States senate—all because of that chance account of political events in Iowa he read back in 1878 when he was looking about for a new location.

A Case That Parallels Senator Cummins.

Curiously parallel to the early career of Senator Cummins was that of another man who is now very much in the public eye. As in Senator Cummins' case, a decision made as the result of current political excitement played an important part in determining the lines of the career of the newly appointed solicitor general of the United States, Frederick W. Lehmann.

Frederick W. Lehmann was a ranchman and farmer's helper in Southwestern Iowa not far from the large farm now owned by President W. C. Brown of the New York Central, to which Mr. Brown plans to retire some day when he is ready to step out of harness as an active railroad man. Lehmann had had little schooling, but he was eager to learn. Near by was Tabor college. This afforded him opportunity, and he worked his way through the prescribed courses at that institution. Across the Missouri river in Nebraska City was the home of Justice Mason of the supreme court of Nebraska. Judge Mason became interested in young Lehmann, and gave him a chance to study law in his office.

Nebraska City was a small place, well supplied with lawyers, and three years after hanging out his shingle, there, Mr. Lehmann came to the conclusion that he could do better somewhere else. His first impulse was to go farther west, and he had Denver in mind, but just at that time his interest was aroused in certain political developments in Iowa and that decided him to go to Des Moines, the state capital. "He simply dropped into the town and stayed there," was the way one of his friends put it.

A year or two after Mr. Lehmann began the practice of law at Des Moines, and while he was occasionally occupied with some newspaper writing, Jay Gould began the work of extending his Wabash railroad system into the state of Iowa. The Gould interests in Iowa were under the direction of Col. Alfred Howe, whose headquarters were at Des Moines. Between Mr. Lehmann and Col. Howe a strong personal intimacy was established. Whether or not that led to any professional relation of Mr. Lehmann with the Gould interests, is a matter of doubt. But it did lead Col. Howe to have a very high estimate of the young lawyer's ability. So it happened that in 1889 when Mr. Gould was looking for a man of especial qualification to serve as an assistant general solicitor of the Gold system at St. Louis, he asked Col. Howe: "Do you know just the kind of lawyer I want?" To that question Col. Howe instantly replied: "I certainly do; his name is Frederick W. Lehmann, and I have known him intimately for ten years."

Upon the strength of that statement Mr. Gould offered Mr. Lehmann the post of assistant general solicitor to the Gould system of railroads, with headquarters at St. Louis. The offer was accepted and Mr. Lehmann removed to St. Louis in 1890. He served the Gould system about five years, and then began general practice, in which he soon attained a leading position. He became president of the American Bar association three years ago, and is now solicitor general of the United States

Doubtless, if that chance interest in Iowa politics had not caused Mr. Lehmann to settle in Des Moines, his career would have taken a quite different course from that which has made it so conspicuously brilliant, and brought him to the eminent position he occupies today.

The Decision That Made Adlai Stevenson a National Figure.

An interesting story of a decision that had a marked effect upon the careers of two men of national prominence is told by George F. Parker, the biographer of Grover Cleveland.

In his first administration, Mr. Cleveland appointed William F. Vilas of Wisconsin, postmaster general. Mr. Cleveland was anxious to have the position of first assistant postmaster general, the principal executive office in the department, filled by a very strong man. He and Vilas differed as to the appointment that should be made, however.

One day about this time, Alton B. Parker, then a practicing lawyer of Kingston, N. Y., received a telegram, calling him to Washington to see the president. Mr. Cleveland and he had become well acquainted while the former was governor of New York.

"I want to appoint you assistant postmaster general," said the president when Mr. Parker called.

"Mr. President," replied Judge Parker, "I appreciate the high compliment implied by this offer, and I regret exceedingly that I am not able to accept it."

Mr. Cleveland urged him to take time to consider it, and suggested that Mr. Parker, as a good Democrat, ought to be willing to make a sacrifice for the benefit of the public service and the party.

"I recognize the force of what you say, Mr. President," Judge Parker said, but I have a family to provide for, and in view of that fact, I should not feel justified in accepting the appointment."

At this point in the conversation, Postmaster General Vilas entered the room.

"Parker says he can't take it," Mr. Cleveland explained turning to Vilas.

Mr. Vilas received the announcement with an expression that seemed to indicate that it was not unwelcome to him. "Then Mr. President," he said, "there is no reason why the place should not be offered to the man whom I want, Adlai E. Stevenson."

So it came about that Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, was appointed assistant postmaster general, in which position he achieved things as the political headsman that made him well known throughout the country, and led to his nomination for vice president by the Democrats in 1892, after Governor Boies of Iowa had refused the nomination, or had had it refused for him by his political intimates.

The same year in which he declined appointment as assistant postmaster general, Alton B. Parker became a justice of the supreme court of New York state, and entered on the judicial career that resulted in his nomination for the presidency by the Democracy in 1904.

A Decision That Influenced Two Careers.

"How would you like to go to Chicago?"

Lyman J. Gage, then a young man of barely 20 years, holding the position of junior clerk in the Oneida Central Bank of Rome, N. Y., pondered over this question for a while, and then decided that in could do no harm. That decision fixed the direction of his whole career—a career that made him one of the leading figures in the banking world and ultimately a member of McKinley's cabinet.

Mr. Gage was a native of the little town of De Ruyter, N. Y. The township was named after an old Dutch family settled in Rome. With boyish enthusiasm young Lyman Gage had looked forward to a mercantile career, but finding a place in the Oneida bank, he accepted with the idea of promotion there as the hope for his future.

Two years later one of the De Ruyters from Chicago, meeting him casually, put to him the question quoted above. The place offered young Gage was that of clerk in a planing mill. After filling this place for some time Mr. Gage got a job as bookkeeper in a loan and trust company. Promotion in the banking business came regularly after that, until finally he became president of the First National Bank of Chicago. His prominence in the banking world and his authority on questions of finance by this time indicated his peculiar fitness for the position of secretary of the treasury, and to that position he was appointed by President McKinley in 1897.

If Mr. Gage had given a different answer to that question with reference to Chicago, he would doubtless have been a successful up-state banker, but the chances are that he would never have sat in a president's cabinet.

That decision not only determined Mr. Gage's own career, but also made possible the career of another man who has since risen to the highest prominence in the banking and financial world; for if Mr. Gage had not gone to Chicago, Frank A. Vanderlip, it is pretty safe to assume, would not be president of the National City bank, the greatest and most powerful banking institution in New York city and the country at large.

As a bank president in Chicago, Mr. Gage received frequent calls from a young newspaper man, a writer on financial subjects, who sought his views on the important financial news and questions of the day. Mr. Gage took a strong liking to the young man and finding that he wrote with understanding, ability and discretion, placed the greatest confidence in him. Mr. Gage discovered also that this young man had not only ideas, but executive ability as well. Soon after he had accepted appointment as secretary of the treasury, Mr. Gage said to the young newspaper writer:

"Vanderlip, I want you to go to Washington with me."

"In what capacity?" Mr. Vanderlip asked.

"As private secretary to the secretary of the treasury," Mr. Gage replied.

Mr. Vanderlip accepted. His new position began March 4, 1897, and ended June 1 of the same year, when he became assistant secretary of the treasury. Acting in that capacity, he consummated the negotiations for the floating of the great Spanish war loan, in connection with which he became personally known to the great bankers and financiers of New York city, who were not slow to recognize his ability. When, therefore, his term as assistant secretary came to an end, they were eager to enlist his services in positions of the highest trust and authority in the financial world. So began Mr. Vanderlip's extraordinarily successful career as a banker in New York city.

The Quick Action That Probably Made a President.

But for a quick decision made on the spur of the moment in the early summer of 1898, Theodore Roosevelt might never have been president of the United States. That decision, as it appears now, supplied a link in the chain of circumstances that made possible his entire subsequent political career.

It was in Tampa, where the regiments were encamped waiting the order to take ship for Cuba. The Rough Riders, the regiment organized by Col. Leonard Wood and Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt, were among them. On June 7, the order went out that the regiments would start at daybreak the next day from Port Tampa, nine miles distant. There was a good deal of confusion in the arrangements for transporting the troops from the camp to the port, and it was only by taking possession of an empty coal train attached to a live engine that Col. Roosevelt got his men to the quay.

On arriving there he found that apparently no arrangements had been made for his men. No body seemed to know what ship they were assigned to, and Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt and Col. Wood saw that they would have to do something pretty quick if they were going to get any transport at all. They hunted up the depot quartermaster, and after making a protest or appeal, succeeded in getting a transport—the Yucatan—allotted to them.

The Yucatan was lying out in midstream. Col. Wood, taking a stray launch, went out immediately and boarded her. He had hardly gone when Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt learned by accident that the Yucatan had already been allotted to two other regiments, the Second regulars and the Seventy-first New York. There were more men in the Seventy-first alone than could be put aboard the transport.

Lieut.-Col. Rosevelt made up his mind on the instant what he would do. Leaving the baggage in charge of a strong guard, he ran as fast as his legs would carry him back to the train where his regiment was waiting, and marched his men double quick to the quay. They arrived there just as the Yucatan came in, and they boarded her just a few minutes before the regulars and the Seventy-first came up. There was a lot of expostulation and protest from the two regiments, but the Rough Riders had possession of the transport, and they kept it.

Speaking of this incident, a friend of Col. Roosevelt, who afterwards received an important civil appointment at his hands, said:

"I have often thought how different the subsequent course of politics might have been if Roosevelt had not made that quick decision to get his men aboard the Yucatan. If they had arrived a few minutes later, they would not have got aboard and the chances would have been that they would not have reached the front in time for the fighting. It was Roosevelt's war record that made him the Republican candidate for governor of New York in 1898, and, therefore, made possible his success to the presidency."

The Mission That "Made" Dan Lamont.

If the late Daniel S. Lamont had not decided rather reluctantly in 1882, when a legislative reporter for the Albany, N. Y., Argus, that he would go on a mission through the western and central part of New York state with the object of sounding political sentiment there, he might never have been secretary of war.

The late Daniel Manning, owner of the Albany Argus and president of a leading Albany bank, was the great power in the Democratic party in New York state north of New York city at that time. Several months before the Democratic state convention of 1882, Manning became much disturbed by the intense and bitter struggle that was developing between the friends of Roswell P. Flower and those of Gen. Henry D. Slocum for the capture of the nomination for governor for their respective candidates. Manning feared the contest would endanger the chances of the party at the polls and he began to look around for some one who would be available as a compromise candidate. While Manning was making this survey, a very capable politician, the late E. K. Apgar, one of the shrewdest of the younger Democrats of the day, said to him:

"There's a mayor out in Buffalo who has been writing some extraordinary veto messages."

"What's his name?" said Manning.

"Cleveland," was the reply.

Manning sent Apgar to investigate further and then called in Lamont.

"Dan," he said, "how would you like to take a run out to Buffalo and through the middle of the state and sound the Democrats with respect to this man Cleveland?"

For some reason or other Lamont was not eager to make the trip, and with Lamont to beg off, but as Manning seemed anxious about the matter, he undertook the mission.

The report that he made was so clear and convincing, and it so completely confirmed other investigations, that Manning was greatly impressed with Lamont's ability and political insight. So, when, six months or so later, Mr. Cleveland, then about to begin his administration as governor, said to him: "Manning, do you know any one you could recommend to be my secretary?" the Democratic leader replied on the instant: "Yes, Dan Lamont. He is just the man for the place."

That was the beginning of Lamont's political career, which ended only with his term as secretary of war in the second Cleveland administration.

WHAT THE WIDOWS GET

Values Placed on Lives of Workmen Killed—Sums Paid at Big Disasters—How Family Fares in Ordinary Accidents.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

An ambulance backed up to No. 17 Bond street, Chicago. Abe Miller was in the ambulance. His wife now had to face the world unaided, for Abe, who was a worker in a steel mill, while handling hot metal had been burned and died from the injuries. A three-line notice in a list of accidents in one newspaper was all the world at large ever heard of his death. The company settled for $500 and promised permanent employment to Abe's wife. She went to work and her inadequate earnings were supplemented by charitable relief.

The circumstances of Abe's misfortune are fairly typical of fifty other fatal accidents of which information was obtained through charitable organizations in ten of the largest cities of the country.

A torch and a bale of hay caused one of the most dramatic mine disasters in industrial history. Andrew Dovin and 257 of his fellow workmen lost their lives. For weeks the press of the country pulsed with stories of thrilling rescues by a heroic band of men who finally perished in an act of supreme sacrifice. Twenty-one men buried alive for eight days were saved. Ministers made the disaster the text for sermons that stirred profoundly the imagination and sympathy of the public. This publicity acted with compelling force upon the employing company, the generous public, city councils and the state legislatures.

Andrew Dovin's family received $1,800 from the company that employed him and nearly as much again from public contributions, miners' unions and the legislature. Fate decreed that Abe Miller should die all alone from a violent accident and as a consequence his widow received less than one-seventh the sum she would have enjoyed had her husband chanced to be in the mine at Cherry. But her need as a widow would have been unchanged by the fact that her husband was one of 258 to be killed. Luck was simply against her.

Fortune is almost always against the widows of husbands who are killed one at a time in industrial accidents. Abe Miller's widow fared better than very many. The families of the fifty men referred to who suffered obscure deaths received in compensation $8,749 or $187 apiece. The fifty Cherry families received from the company $90,000—$1,800 apiece.

In the case of Cherry, on account of the publicity and activity of the Red Cross, the press, business associations, fifty families received in contributions, from the state and from unions $87,000 in addition making a total of $177,000. The other fifty families received besides the $8,749 an indefinite amount in relief and pensions from charity societies and a still more indeterminate sum from institutions, nurseries, hospitals, etc.

In 115 cases of married men killed by industrial accidents in Erie county, New York, the families received nothing in thirty-eight cases and the compensation in nine was $100 or less. Thirty-four families got from $101 to $500 and fourteen from $501 to $2,000. In only eight cases was over $2,000 given to the families.

Substantially similar figures were shown by an investigation in Pittsburg, where out of 235 cases of married men killed, in 124 or 53 per cent the compensation was either nothing or $100 and under. In but eight cases was the award over $2,000.

A car inspector lost his life in a crib fire at Chicago. He left a wife and three children, aged 7, 4 and 2 years. He earned $750 a year. The employer offered $1,500 in settlement. This offer was not accepted and suit was begun and was still pending after two years and three months.

Had the laws of the following countries been in operation in Illinois the family would have received aid in the form of annual pensions in the total amounts given below:

Austria, until youngest child is 15	$4,268.23
France, until youngest child is 15	5,162.50
Germany, until youngest child is 15	5,062.50
Great Britain, three times annual wages	2,250.00
Hungary, until youngest child is 16	5,615.06
Italy, purchase of annuities until 18	3,750.00
Norway, until youngest child is 15	4,268.23
Russia, until youngest child is 15	5,800.00

The compensation to the victims of fifty fatal accidents which were contrasted with the fifty cases at Cherry ranged from $3,000 to nothing. In two cases $7,000 each was awarded, but they were appealed from court to court and the victims finally got nothing. The uncertainty and delay had a most demoralizing effect. These people set their expectations on sums of money that would make them independent, huge fortunes in their eyes, and after living in this anticipation, adopting a scale of living accordingly, so far as they could, they were finally disappointed and got nothing.

Some of these excessive awards were an injustice to the employer, but when they were reversed and nothing was received, it certainly was an injustice to the employe. This engenders bad feeling between employer and employe.

The manufacturing and business concerns of this country have in the last five years paid to casualty companies in premiums $95,000,000. Less than $45,000,000 has gone in settlement of damages, and less than half of this $45,000,000 has reached injured persons. After lawyers' fees, court costs and other expenses were met not more than 20 or 30 per cent of the whole sum actually reached the families of those killed and injured.

"It is estimated that one accident out of eleven is prosecuted in the courts and that one out of ten prosecuted is successful," say the report of the commission on industrial accidents in Washington.

This enormous expense has, of course, been added to the cost of the manufactured product. If this matter could be taken from the war basis on which it rests, it seems altogether likely that the money which employing concerns are already expending would go a long way to meet the needs of a just, fair and adequate compensation.

ELLIOTT'S GOOD ADVICE.

There were some corking good things in the talk President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific made before the state federation of commercial clubs in St. Paul. Many of them have been said before in one form or another, but they are the kind that ought to be drummed into the people, and particularly the organizations, of the state in order to keep the movement alive.

Of particular interest is Mr. Elliott's statement of the Eastern ideas of Minnesota as compared with the states farther west. "In those parts of the country," he said, referring to the Mississippi valley basin and the regions east of the Allegheny mountains, "Minnesota is considered more of a settled state, without so many opportunities for the man seeking a new home as exist in the states farther west." Here is a difficulty that can be met by advertising and in no other way, and the speaker hit the nail squarely on the head when he said: "Minnesota has the goods to sell; it must push its business and advertise."

Perhaps the suggestion made by the railroad president contains the best solution of the advertising problem—the establishment of an office in some city in the East where exhibits from Minnesota would be kept and where literature concerning the state would be distributed. That, however, is a detail to be worked out by those to whom the publicity work shall be left. The point which Mr. Elliott urged, and the things that should be impressed on the state organizations, is that Minnesota must advertise her goods in order to get buyers; must correct these false impressions and show people that there is something here worth coming after.

In part of his suggestions Mr. Elliott followed closely the plans suggested at the Brainerd meeting—to secure and classify information regarding the character of the land and the things for which it is best fitted, and to provide for sales of state land at any time instead of making prospective buyers wait for the periodical sales by which the lands are disposed of under the present system. With such information at hand and with the market always open, he pointed out, the railroads would be in a position to afford the greatest possible aid in advertising the state and in bringing settlers, and aid of that character is something that ought to be accepted gladly.

Minnesota not only needs settlers, but has the things the settlers need in the way of rich soil and ready markets, and Minnesota, by every means in her power, ought to let the world know of her resources, that the settlers may be attracted here by the opportunities that are waiting to be taken advantage of by them.

CARNATION DAY.

Tomorrow will be Carnation Day, the date on which Americans will pay particular attention to the memory of the last of our presidents to fall a victim to assassination. The day is the anniversary of the birth of William McKinley, and its observance this year brings us toward the tenth anniversary of his death, which occured in September, 1901. It was on account of his having designated the carnation as his favorite flower that it was chosen as the symbol of remembrance of the man himself, and certainly the custom of wearing a carnation on that particular day is a beautiful and unostentatious way of showing remembrance.

Although the carnation is one of the most familiar blossoms and probably one of the most popular, few people realize that it has not always existed in the many colors in which it is seen today. Its cultivation for ornamental use has been in progress for more than 2,000 years. Southern Europe is its native country, though the plant is clased as "semi-hardy," and grows readily in other parts of the world. The name, taken from the Latin, was given on account of the flesh color of the flower, and it was known to have no other color until the sixteenth century, when a process of cross-breeding and experimentation finally produced the pure white, the yellow, the red and the variegated blossoms. Today it would be hard to say which of these is the most familiar.

Like the rose, the carnation is used in the language of flowers to express different sentiments according to its color, but the carnation itself, irrespective of color, stands in the language of flowers for "woman's love." The other sentiments include "fascination" for the white blossom, "ardent love" for the red and "refusal of an offer" for the variegated flower.

These "meanings" of course do not enter into the ordinary use of the carnation. They are survivals of the days when love mesages were conveyed by the presentation or exchange of bouquets with the flowers arranged according to a particular code. If an interpretation were to be placed on the carnation as it will be worn by thousands of Americans tomorrow it would be something like this:

"We honor the memory of one who, loved and respected by all and recognized alike for high character and worthy achievement, became a martyr to the cause of our country, and by thus displaying the flower which found most favor in his sight, we express our sympathy with that integrity and manhood which he exemplified in his daily life."

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE HOUSE.

After the result of the "test" vote on reapportionment taken in the senate at St. Paul last Wednesday, there is encouragement in the action of the house yesterday in passing the Congdon reapportionment resolution by a vote of 91 to 19. The resolution now goes to the senate, and with such a vote in the house as an example, there is reason to hope that it will pass there by at least a good margin.

That the state is entitled to reapportionment is so plain that it does not seem possible the measure can be defeated, even with the ten years of neglect that have piled up behind the opposition. Neither is it possible to see how the effort to give the country districts an advantage over the thicker populated parts of the state can be successful. It would be impossible to get a more direct statement than that of the Minnesota Constitution. In Section 2 of Article IV the Constitution declares:

> The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state, IN PROPORTION TO THE POPULATION THEREOF, exclusive of Indians not taxable under the provisions of law.

There you have it in the fundamental law of the state, in terms that nobody can interpret otherwise than meaning representation according to population. And for the partisanship spirit there is also an unanswerable argument, for in the Republican state convention at St. Paul last June the following plank was adopted:

> Believing that each and every section of the state should be fairly represented in the law-making bodies, as is provided in Section 2, Article IV of the Constitution, we pledge the Republican party to the passage of an apportionment law by the next legislature, based on population, as shown by the United States census for 1910, to take effect on or before Jan. 1, 1912, that will give to each county the representation it is justly entitled to in both branches of the legislature.

This was followed by a declaration in the Democratic platform, adopted a month later, that read thus:

> We are unequivocally in favor of a reapportionment of representation in the state legislature, with a view to making the composition of that body a true reflection of the distribution of population.

There is no record that any candidate for either branch of the legislature opposed these planks during the campaign. The members were elected on their respective platforms and if party pledges mean anything, if the state Constitution means anything, and indeed if there is any such thing as justice in the Minnesota government, the reapportionment measure ought to go through booming.

"THE LYING REPORTER."

"I said in my haste, All men are liars," wrote the psalmist. Prof. Hugo Muensterberg, Harvard university's psychology expert, amends the line by eliminating the reference to haste, changing the tense to the present, and substituting for the one word "men" the two words "newspaper reporters." This declaration of faith Prof. Muensterberg sets forth in an article in McClure's Magazine. His experience with American reporters, he declares, has led him to the belief that they are given to wilful invention and grotesque exaggeration. His specifications for the "reckless reporter" include the trained men who "have gone through the high school of reporterdom and acquired a new instinct by which they see and hear only that which can create a sensation." He adds that their reports are not merely careless, but "hopelessly distorted."

Prof. Muensterberg is unfortunate, both in his experience and in his conclusions. He probably has been talking in technical terms to the newspapermen about some abstruse theories of psychology, and whatever errors crept into their accounts of what he said were undoubtedly due to failure to understand the terms he employed. Other men than the psychology expert have had such experiences, and have laid the fault on the writers instead of on their own failure to talk in language that their hearers could comprehend. The New York World comes to the rescue of the reporters as to the charge of wilful exaggeration and misstatement, as follows:

> The amount of intentional misrepresentation by reporters is so small as to be negligible. Accuracy in presenting the news is recognized as an essential of a newspaper's character, and reporters individually, from long practice in weighing the credibility of men, gain a perhaps stronger habit of veracity than obtains in other professions. Truthfulness is indispensable to a reporter's professional standing. He may be careless or ignorant or be led into inaccuracies based on the statements of others, but deliberate misrepresentation is quite a different matter.

The reporter works many times under a peculiar disadvantage. He probably is the only person on earth whom everybody feels privileged to call a liar. It is an old story in the experience of every reporter to have an interview denied after its publication, though he knows, and the man who gave it knows, that it was printed as it was given.

When a man is talking for publication he sometimes lets his mind wander for a moment and his tongue goes wrong. He does not notice it, and the reporter takes it as it is said, not being sufficiently versed in mind-reading to distingush between the spoken word and the intended meaning. But it is not fair to charge him with untruthfulness for that.

Another and more frequent difficulty is that a man will say things and regard them as accurate expressions of his opinion until he sees how they look in black and white. Then, instead of doing the decent thing and saying, "I did not express that as I should," he leaps into the air and damns the reporter who took him at his word. Men prominent in public life are especially given to denying authentic interviews in this way. An instance is on record of a Chicago banker who denied a published interview in which he had revealed important plans regarding certain prosecutions in the recent Booth company case. He denounced the reporter as an unprincipled liar and the writer lost his position. Later, when the developments proved that the story as printed was correct, the banker admitted that he had told the reporter of the plans, but afterward concluded that it would be "policy" to deny everything. The experience of the reporter was nothing new. The only peculiar feature was the ultimate confession of the real liar.

There is too much general inclination and too much readiness to jump on the reporter. He is human, and he is fallible. But he works daily under a greater tension than most men reach more than once in a month or a year, and if all other lines of work were conducted with the same ratio of care and accuracy that is displayed in his profession, there would be fewer men in prison and less need of expert auditors of the books and accounts of business houses.

HIGH SCHOOL IGNORANCE.

A few days ago—to be exact, a week after the sensational closing of a line of banks in which Joseph Robin had been interested—the officers of a New York high school society went to one of those banks to deposit some money belonging to the society, which already had a small sum on deposit there. For seven days the papers, morning and evening, had been telling about the closing of that bank in type that ran the whole gamut of publicity. But these high school students did not know about it.

If that incident is a fair sample of what the high school pupils of today know about current affairs, there is something radically wrong in the general system of education. It shows a state of ignorance that is very nearly inexcusable. But it shows something more than that, for it is almost conclusive proof that the pupils, in their study of history, geography, civics, etc., are being trained to think of the people and countries they read of in the textbooks as objects apart from the world in which we are living at present. And by so doing they are missing the most important points in their education and in the events of every day they live—the things that show the part each event plays in the development of the world, politically and otherwise. How can students of history overlook the history that is being made day by day in our own times? Look at developments of only the last few months in Portugal, in England and in the Far East. Think of the political changes in our own country; of the tremendous step that is proposed in this plan for reciprocity with Canada. To come nearer home, consider the schemes for state development made at Brainerd, plans that, if carried out, mean more to Minnesota than any other step since she was admitted to statehood. And think of the big local questions that are being considered by Duluth people—the proposal to change the form of the city's government, for example.

Is it possible that the pupils in the Duluth high schools do not know of these things, do not connect the events of today with those of yesterday and last year and of years and years ago? It does not seem possible. But if it is a fact, the sooner these young people realize that the world is making history today just as fast as it was in Caesar's time, if not faster, the sooner they will begin to take an intelligent interest in their book studies and in what the world is doing. That would be a real education. Mere grouping of facts for memory is not studying history. The relationship of those facts to one another and to other groups must be traced, and the only way to do that intelligently is to bring the step down to the last possible moment and see to what purpose the past has been, the better to understand the significance of the present and the possibilities of the future.

DIFFERENCES.

What we often call Fate—perhaps more for want of a better name than because of any thought of predestination—often does strange things. Within the last few days the life of a young Duluth girl was brought to a violent end. There is intense pathos in the circumstances—the sudden blow, the helpless lying for hour after hour in the snow-filled ditch; the sorrow of family and friends as they waited vainly for some sign of hope at the hospital where the injured girl had been taken, and the final falling of the curtain of life.

It is all pathetic. It is all past the realm of human understanding—why such a thing should be, and why this particular girl should be the victim. The thought often comes under circumstances akin to these. Why should it not have been—yourself, for instance, who was struck by the train?

Then there is another series of questions, springing from the same instance. Why should this 17-year-old girl have been obliged to lead such a life—compelled to work during half the night in order to attend school during the day? Think of that side of it for a moment, you who spend the day in the schoolroom and the evening in study or reading or social pleasure of some sort. Why do you have such a comparatively easy time while others, just as worthy, probably, and just as ambitious, with the same mental capacities as yourself, have to give up to some sort of remunerative labor the hours that you spend in doing whatever happens to please your fancy for the time being? You do not know why, though the question has been asked in some form for ages upon ages, and though many attempts at answering it have been made. But you do know that the differences exist, and that you have been given privileges that do not come to all.

And what use are you making of those privileges? Do you appreciate them? They are yours, for good or for ill, according to the way you take advantage of them. Their existence has been passed down the years ever since some one man, by industry or frugality, succeeded in gaining enough of worldly wealth to enable him to give his children respite from the force of the common law of toil. They are yours today; tomorrow shall they belong to your family, or to that of some one who, by appreciation of opportunity, has proved more worthy than you?

Take a lesson from the life of Marie Mattson—a lesson of appreciation of the good things that come to you, a lesson of sympathy for those less favored, and learn that the possession of special advantages calls for the use of those advantages to the best purposes in the life that you have today, but that may be taken from you in another week or even another hour.

Scientists claim there are 200 active volcanoes in the world. And yet some people want to increase the size of congress.

With all their political musses down there, nobody has claimed yet that the Central Americans sell their votes as low as four dollars apiece.

The David Graham Phillips case emphasizes the existence of another kind of man behind the gun that needs some exploitation.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Placing the Responsibility.

Deer River News: Some member has introduced a bill in the house for a friend, which would take from the locomotive driver the responsibility of seeing that his spark screen is all right, and placing the burden of law on the engine wiper. Sure, put it onto the call boy, the cow catcher, or anything but the company.

The main thing to do is to prevent fires, and the suspicion grows that perhaps if the call boy were made responsible some good results would be attained.

Paying the Fiddler.

Nashwauk Herald: At a dance in Bear River recently two farmers paid their admission fee with $20 gold pieces, mistaking them for silver dollars. Farmers in Northern Minnesota evidently are "coining" money. The mint used is generally a forty-acre tract of land.

That's the most eloquent plea for the "back to land" movement that has come to print in a long while.

Nerve vs. Sense.

Walker Pioneer: What that New York man needs, who tried to shoot himself three times and each time ducked the bullet is a good sure nerve tonic.

Still, he showed good sense, even if his nerve was no good.

Mrs. Young of Chicago.

Red Wing Republican: Mrs. Ella Young has been re-elected superintendent of the public schools of Chicago and a leading paper of the city says: "Mrs. Young has ceased to be an official; she is a Chicago institution." That is what it means to make good.

She has clearly demonstrated that Chicago has long been in need of such an "institution."

In the Legislature.

Stillwater Gazette: The first contest on the reapportionment question was brought out in committee yesterday, the point being that the country feared the three cities, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, would secure control of the senate. This reapportionment promises many pretty scraps before the legislature adjourns.

No question but what there are scraps in store, but we can't see anything pretty about them up here.

Classified?

Cass Lake Times: With Lorimer on the gridiron and La Follette, Borah and Beveridge to turn the toaster its candy to cubebs that Lorimer will get all the hell that's coming to him right in the senate chamber.

Meaning that Messrs. La Follette, Borah and Beveridge are to be classified as imps of his satanic majesty?

Cleaning the Capitol.

Elk River Star-News: The newspapers say a movement is on foot to clean the new capitol. Upon first reading we supupt it was the inside and considered it a good thing, especially when the legislature was in session, but it appears to be the outside of the building they propose to clean.

No use of attempting the impossible.

Apple Trees to Line Roads.

Albert Lea Tribune: President Armstrong of the Albert Lea State bank, in a paper before the Horticultural meeting Wednesday, advocated the planting of apple trees along the roadside. Possibly Brother Armstrong did not realize it at the time, but he made a suggestion which will make him solid with every small boy in the country for all time. But seriously the scheme is a good one. Let's have the apple trees.

Sure—then we'll all be small boys.

Descent of the Egg.

Walker Pilot: "Eggs going down" say the daily newspaper reports. At 40 cents a dozen there are mighty few of them going down, in most families.

Even at 40 cents, there are eggs and eggs that won't go down.

Author Phillips a Woman Hater.

Chicago Record Herald: David Graham Phillips caused a sensation a few months ago by applying a merciless verbal lashing to the American woman in a novel called "The Husband's Wife." Mr. Phillips' writings oftentimes contain sharp and biting passages and this vehement attack upon the fair sex is characteristic of his work.

In the novel Mr. Phillips thinks it is time to tell what he calls the truth about the American woman and destroy what he characterizes as the literary and journalistic fiction that has long represented her as a superior being. It takes him nearly 500 pages to tell all he thinks about the American woman and he nominates her for membership in the Ananias club and accuses her of everything from doodle wit to bad cooking and curl papers.

As to woman's sphere, Mr. Phillips says it may be "that woman will some day develop another and higher sphere for herself. But first she would do well to learn to fill the sphere she now rattles around in like one dry pea in a ten-gallon can."

"Why are the savings banks accounts of our working classes a mere fraction of those of the working classes of other countries?" asks Mr. Phillips and answers, "the American woman."

"Why do more than ninety per cent of our small business men fail?" Again the American woman.

"The American woman is hopeless," says Mr. Phillips. "Her vanity is triple-plated, copper-riveted. She's hopeless so long as the American man will give her the money to buy flattery at home and abroad. And the American man will give her the money as long as he can, because it buys him peace and freedom. He doesn't want to be bothered with the American woman."

"A nice easy profession is lady," Mr. Phillips says, "and universally admired and envied. It doesn't call for brains or for education or for taste. The dressmaker and milliner supply the toilet. The architect and decorator and housekeeper and staff supply the grand background. Father or husband supplies the cash. A dip into a novel or book of culture essays supplies the gibble-gabble."

"Why is it," Mr. Phillips asks, "that married women—unless they have to work—spend so much time in a sick-bed or near it? They say we in America have more than nine times as many doctors proportionately to population as any other country. The doctors live off our women—our idle, overeating, lazy women, who will not work, who will not walk, who are always getting something the matter with them."

Pennsylvania Neighborliness.

Philadelphia Record: Neighborliness is one of the good qualities of the people of Greenwood township, Columbia county. About fifty men and women of the township recently gathered at the home of the Misses Agnes and Mary Heacock, aged 84 and 80 years, respectively, and held a wood cutting bee. There were twenty-three men in the party and every one of them pitched in with a vim to lay in a supply of firewood for the aged ladies. The men of the party immediately started for the woods, while the ladies, who had all brought baskets loaded with edibles, repaired to the house and proceeded to prepare a dinner. While some of the men were chopping down trees others were putting up a circular saw and attaching it to a gasoline engine. In this manner the work was quickly accomplished and the saw was soon running full blast. Enough wood was stored and piled up to last for more than a year. Another surprise in store was brought to light when the baskets which the women had brought along were opened. Everything that the old ladies could possibly be in need of was there, and more too.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A CHANCE TO SHOW RIGHT CITY SPIRIT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A citizen of Denver, Col., in a conversation this morning touched upon our very small registration as indicating an indifference in municipal affairs on the part of our citizens. He said a very different spirit prevails in his city; that every citizen feels that his vote is necessary from a standpoint of the credit of the city and the maintenance of a proper public spirit.

We expect a conscientious and loyal service from our officials and the officials in turn have a right to expect a corresponding interest in all matters on the part of the public.

Many of us can give expression of such interest only in our vote. Let us bring the registration up to a figure that our present population should insure.

DO IT FOR DULUTH!

A. N. McRAE.

A HOME MADE BUGBEAR.

New York Sun: The exchange of trade advantages with Canada would stand a far better chance of popular approval than it now does if the road to that highly desirable end had been better paved. The president and his associates in the enterprise may be well informed regarding the certain and the probable results of lowering or removing the tariff barriers that now shut out the products of Canada, but the Americans in general are not. For many years there has existed and there still exists in this country a general belief that the fields and farms of the Dominion are a menace to the agricultural interests of the United States, that unless the products of Canada's soil are shut out by high tariff rates the farmers of the United States will be driven out of business. The notion is so preposterous that its persistence is puzzling.

Canada's fiscal year ends March 31, and until the returns are complete the exact value of its present surplus foodstuff for export will not be known. It is probable that the total will not greatly exceed $125,000,000 and practically certain that it will not reach $150,000,000. This estimate, based on the returns for earlier years, includes live cattle and all meat products, all cereals and their products, eggs, fruits, vegetables and dairy products. Assuming absolute freedom of entrance for all the products of Canada's fields and farms, only a part would find its way to our markets. England and Europe would still want and buy what they could get of Canada's superior wheat, its excellent cheese, its bacon, flour, beef cattle and fruits. The United States sold in Canada last year more than $300,000 worth of cattle, about $5,500,000 worth of corn, more than $1,000,000 worth of wheat, about $6,000,000 worth of fruits and nuts, more than $200,000 worth of salted or pickled beef, $200,000 worth of bacon, $350,000 worth of hams, $1,300,000 worth of pickled pork and $1,000,000 worth of lard. Canada's surplus of vegetables would not supply the dinner tables of the city of New York alone for more than a day or two; its surplus of eggs would not supply New York for more than one day, if for more than one breakfast; its butter surplus is about one pound in every 250 pounds required in this country, and its wheat we need for mixing with our own to give us the best flour in the world.

If Canada is willing to give us in exchange for a market for such foodstuffs as might come across the border more liberal terms for some of our natural and manufactured products so much the better for us; but we should not haggle for terms on any hypothesis of ruin or injury to the agricultural interests of the United States as a result of Canadian shipments of farm products to this country. A little study of the awful spectre that has for years given our farmers a fine assortment of cold chills shows it to be only a garden variety of bugbear.

How Railroads Waste Coal.

Technical World Magazine: When the panic of 1907 struck the country the railroads suffered severely. Among others was the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road, with more than 1,700 miles of track. When, in November, 1907, the net earnings of the road showed a loss of $210,000 over the same month in the previous year, A. W. Trenholm, the general manager, decided on a radical step. He sent for representatives of the various unions of railroad employes and asked their aid in saving the dividends for the stockholders, and jobs and high wages for the workmen. The union officials promised their fullest co-operation. At their suggestion joint meetings of employes were held at all division points. These meetings were attended by from 200 to 600 men, each, including in every case, at least one of the general officers. Every man present was asked to make suggestions as to how savings could be effected in any department of the road. Perfect frankness in making criticism was invited. As a result the men left these meetings full of determination to do everything in their power.

The first month after the meetings began—with practically no difference in the tonnage hauled—the saving in the coal bill alone was more than $38,000. If a proportionate saving were carried out for one year on all the railroads in the United States it would amount to the great sum of $55,000,000.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Pretty near next to the ten commandments, fresh air makes people better.

A girl has beautiful eyes whenever she herself examines them in the looking glass.

We all know we have weaknesses, but it's only in other fellows they stick out so everybody can see them.

A soft answer gets you a lot more abuse, because it makes the man who is abusing you think you will stand it.

Turkish Parliamentary Etiquette.

London Globe: The etiquette of the members of the Turkish chamber almost vies with the politeness of the young Chinaman to his prospective father-in-law, so amusingly told by Goldsmith. At the commencement of the new era, either by accident or design, a custom arose that when any member of the house entered all those who were present rose from their seats and made their salaam to the newcomer. Even if a member was addressing the house a breach in the speech was considered preferable to a breach of courtesy, consequently the orator paused, and the civilities complied with, proceedings resumed. To put matters bluntly these amenities proved themselves a nuisance, so Mukhtar Pasha took the matter in hand, with the result that the house agreed that these courtesies should only be observed before the house was in session. As the members drop in now all in their seats rise and exchange compliments with the late comers, but as soon as the business begins the belated one, metaphorically, like Longfellow's Arab, "folds his tent and silently steals away" into his seat.

A Conservative.

Youngstown Telegram: In a local shoe store one day this week a stout man appeared to be having considerable difficulty in finding just what he wanted.

After showing him a dozen or more pairs the salesman blandly observed:

"Now, here is a pair that I think will suit you to perfection."

After examining the shoes the stout man exclaimed: "I don't like them. They are too narrow and too pointed."

"Ah," returned the clerk, "but they are wearing narrow, pointed shoes this season."

"Possibly," returned the stout man, "but I am still wearing my last season's feet."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Higher Giving.

Americans cannot be called the stingiest people in the world. Records of gifts, large and small, for a single year evince a gratifying spirit of generosity. Though the big gifts of the rich men are the ones which are featured in head lines, they are by no means the only ones who are learning to look upon what they have as so much material good entrusted to them for wise use and distribution. Our churches, social orders and philanthropies are maintained by the moderate sized gifts of many persons and the spirit of the age will in time lead some people now tight-fisted to unclasp their purses in the presence of human need.

But money is the easiest thing to give and such giving, good as it is, does not represent the highest form of giving nor meet the Master's test when He said, "Give and it shall be given you." We all ought to be ambitious to become experts in the realm of the higher giving.

Time is one of the most valuable things we have to give away. We often say that time is money; but it is more than money; it comes closer home to the personal life; our use of it determines our bent, our tastes, our ideals. Do we busy people every think about the bestowal of our time where it will count most?—an hour or two in patient committee work or conference with others in behalf of some worthy enterprise—a half hour devoted to a cheery chat with an invalid, who seldom sees outsiders and who yearns for the tonic of a cheerful presence. Some parents are much more ready to draw their check for their children or supply them with spending money at their call than they are to give the time necessary to entering into their daily life so that a better understanding may be reached, dangers of misunderstandings and collision avoided and greater sympathy induced between those who ought always to be in the closest touch with one another.

Another thing we can give people, and that is their dues in the way of civility and courteousness and the display of those qualities which persons have a right to expect of other persons. There is a vast difference between a curt nod on the street and a gracious salutation. A father would rather have his son's prompt and willing obedience than any present the son might make if the filial spirit were lacking. A man would rather have his neighbor's respect than to have him bring him now and then a peck of apples. The ordinary relationship of everyday life tests us at this point of courtesy and considerateness. We ought to be giving one another in the way of deference, civility and good manners, those things which we should like to receive from others.

And we mount one step higher when we become liberal in point of goodwill toward others. That, perhaps to my mind, covers the field of magnanimity. We ought to construe other persons' actions in the best possible light, ascribe to them worthy motives, defend their good name when gossip would drag it through the mire, extend our forgiveness when they have wronged us. This is giving on the highest scale, giving play to the emotions which ennoble conduct, giving men not simply a covering for their nakedness nor soup for their hunger, nor books for their minds, but an expression of confidence in their essential rightmindedness until we have absolute proof to the contrary, our tender sympathy when they are in sorrow or distress, our word of cheer and hope in the midst of their moral struggles.

Anyone can have his name written in golden letters on the roll of those who exemplify the higher giving. Abou Ben Adhem hit the secret when he asked to be enrolled as one who loved his fellowmen. We need not wait for more money, but we can give what we already have—our time, our consideration and our goodwill to all with whom we have to do day by day. And depend upon it, those who receive these things at our hands will bless us twice as much as if we dowered them with wealth.

DEMOCRATIC MAINE

By SAVOYARD.

Maine became a state in 1820, and in that year she cast nine votes in the electoral college for James Monroe for president of the republic. That election was practically unanimous, only one vote of the entire 232 being thrown against the successful candidate. New Hampshire, that was for Monroe, gave one vote of her eight for John Quincy Adams for sentimental reasons—the elector, a Monroe man, holding that only George Washington should have a unanimous vote. In 1820, there was but one political organization, the Republican party of Jefferson, a very different affair from the Republican party of Lincoln.

In 1824, there were four candidates for president, all claiming to be Jeffersonian Republicans—John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, William H. Crawford, and Henry Clay. Maine voted for Adams. There was no election in the college, but the house of representatives chose Adams. Clay would have been elected if he had not been the hindmost man of the four in the college and thus barred from entry in the contest in the house. In 1828 Maine gave eight of her votes to Adams and one to Jackson, but from 1832 to 1852, both inclusive, Maine was Democratic every presidential year except 1840, when she went hell-bent for Governor Kent, Tippecanoe and Tyler too."

In 1847, which was seven years before the present Republican party was born, Maine was represented in the United States senate by two Democrats, one of whom was James W. Bradbury, who lived to a great age and died a Democrat. His term expired in 1853, since when no Democrat has sat in the senate from Maine. Here is the Republican list covering a period of fifty-eight years: Hamlin, Fessenden, Nourse, Morrill, Farwell, Blaine, Hale and Frye, and from that list might be erased the names of Nourse and Farwell, who served only small fractions of terms, Blaine, too, was a senator less than six years.

Hannibal Hamlin was of Democratic antecedents. The slavery issue drove him out of the party he had served so long and faithfully. Lincoln said that his administration was a composite affair of Whig and Democrat. Himself, Seward, secretary of state; Bates, attorney general; and Smith, secretary of interior, were Whigs, whilst Hamlin, vice president; Chase, secretary of treasury; Cameron, secretary of war; Blair, postmaster general, and Wells, secretary of navy, were Democrats. But they were agreed as to the issue of slavery, and that was the momentous question.

Indeed, much of the cream of the Republican party of 1860 came from the Democrats. Boutwell of Massachusetts, was a Democrat; so were Todd and Brough of Ohio. Morton of Indiana was a Democrat, and so were Trumbull and Palmer of Illinois, both of whom returned to the Democratic faith and died members of that party. My excellent old friend, yet among the living, I am happy to say, Charles H. Grosvenor, remained a Democrat until the enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska bill in 1854. Champ Clark calls him "Old Figgers." I believe I improved on that when I characterized him as "Old Tare and Tret." Perhaps it is not extravagant to say that at least 40 per cent of the Republican party was made up of Democrats. Wilmot himself was a Democrat, and so was Curtin, the war governor of Pennsylvania. William Cullen Bryant, the great poet, able editor and scholarly publicist, was a Democrat of the strictest Jeffersonian sect.

But Seward was right. It was an irrepressible conflict, and so strong it was, the chains of party were as impotent to bind our statesmen as the green withes were to surely fetter Samson. At the South, Toombs, Hill, Stephens and Wise had been Whigs and there were numerous others.

Notwithstanding Maine was a Democratic state, presidential years, between 1820 and 1856 her two greatest men were Whigs—George Evans and William Pitt Fessenden. Of these the late Thomas B. Reed held Fessenden to be the greater man, and so he was in character, for in that regard Fessenden was all that John C. Calhoun was; but all others with whom I talked put Evans above Fessenden, above Blaine, above Reed. But Evans, gigantic as he was in intellect, prodigious as were his powers in debate, burned the candle at both ends and in the middle. He was intemperate in food and drink. He was a gamester. He was a voluptuary. Harvey Watterson used to tell a very interesting story of that indignation with which President Taylor rejected the advice of Webster to appoint Evans secretary of treasury, though from the Whig standpoint Evans was the best fitted man living at that time in the entire republic for finance minister. He was fresh from the great tariff debate with McDuffie, and my excellent old friend, now dead, I am sorry to say, Joseph Henry Walker of Massachusetts—an old Israel Putnam of a statesman—old Joe Walker swore, as nearly as a consistent Baptist could employ expletive, that there had been no tariff speech in either house of congress since 1846, when Evans and McDuffie exhausted the subject. All others he claimed were but weak echoes of that Titanic contest. But then Adam Smith and Jeremy Bentham "exhausted" it in the eighteenth century.

Evans was to Webster what Choate was—his follower, though he might have been his rival. He was as faithful to his chief as McDuffie was to Calhoun, as Crittendon was to Clay—prior to 1848—as Canning to Pitt and Grey to Fox, in the Old World, as Connlingwood to Nelson.

A cultivated New Englander like Senator Lodge will perhaps tell you that Evans was the one who overcame John Quincy Adams in debate, and there is no doubt that Adams himself realized that he was worsted. The quarrel was about Webster. Adams had as much malice in his composition as it was needful for a man to have.

And if we do but watch the hour,
There never yet was human power
Which could evade, if unforgiven,
The patient search and vigil long
Of him who treasures up a wrong.

Adams believed he was a greater man than Webster, or anybody else, for that matter, and he hoped to get Webster's seat in the senate when the latter became secretary of state in Harrison's cabinet in 1841. But Webster was a candidate for president and the boss of Massachusetts, and he knew Adams was not his friend. So he had Rufus Choate elected to the vacancy in the senate, and Adams was not only grievously disappointed but filled with the bitterest resentment.

The old fellow nursed his rage waiting for opportunity for revenge. Webster continued in the state department in the cabinet of Tyler after the death of Harrison and the country got into a fierce controversy with England over the Northwestern boundary question. It was then that "Old Bill" Allen, a Democratic senator from Ohio, gave to "Young America" the slogan, "Fifty-four Forty or Fight." It has been years since I read it, but I think I am correct in saying that it was proposed to vote $2,000,000 secret service money to put in the keeping, without condition, of the administration for emergency purposes. In 1898, just before that inglorious and causeless kirmish with Spain, McKinley was entrusted with $50,000,000.

The proposition emanated from Webster. Adams and Evans were then members of the house of representatives and Adams assailed Webster with all his tremendous intellectual powers of debate and all the rancor of his venomous heart. It was terible arraignment and to Evans it looked like blasphemy. Evans never met his master in such a conflict and his reply was crushing. Adams was the bully of congress and as usual with a bully he had no real friends, and Evans was unmerciful, closing, as I recollect, with this denunciation of his adversary: "I leave him to the pity of his friends and to the contempt of his enemies." Pretty harsh language to fire at an ex-president of the United States.

Before Evans left the carpet, Fessenden came on, before Fessenden died Blaine appeared, before Blaine retired Reed arrived, and thus for seventy years—1829-99, Maine had a great figure in the national Sanhedrim, ofttimes two, and Dingley and Hale were little inferior to them.

I started to write something about Maine's return to the Democratic fold last November. In a few weeks she will be represented in part by a Democrat in the senate, and in the Sixty-second congress, three of her four representatives will be Democrats.

Give us Harmon and Wilson for the ticket and it will sweep Maine in 1912. It would also carry Massachusetts and Connecticut, and New Hampshire and Rhode Island would be almighty doubtful.

AUTOMATICALLY FAIR TAX ASSESSMENTS

Cleveland's Experience With Somers' System—Home Owners Save $2,500,000 in Taxes—Unit System of Valuation.

By FREDERIC .C ROWE,
Member of Board of Assessors of Real Property for the City of Cleveland.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

The total taxes collected in this country—national, state and municipal—amount to about $1,800,000,000. Of this amount from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 are raised by local authorities from real estate; the proper appraisal of real property, for local taxes affects therefore 30 to 40 per cent of our entire revenues. The problem of securing equality as between individuals, and the full valuation of property as between the property owner and the state has been looked upon as more or less insoluble.

Up to 1910, in Ohio, assessments were made every ten years. The majority of states assess every two years or every year. Conditions in Cleveland were due partly to the decennial assessments but more largely to the fact that we elected in each one of the assessing districts an official, who appraised his own particular locality. Over the districts there was a board, which endeavored to secure equality as between these appraisers. The local appraiser tried to satisfy his neighbors and constituents and each district tried to keep valuations down as low as possible.

Not only were there great divergencies in assessments in the resistence districts but the undervaluation in the business section was so great that the Cleveland board in completing its report said that under the new valuations the annual saving in taxes to home owners would be in the neighborhood of $2,500,000 a year. In some localities manufacturing property land was on the tax duplicate at 5 cents per square foot. It was placed on the tax duplicate by the new assessment at something like 50 cents per square foot.

In 1909, a law passed providing for the quadrennial appraisal of real estate. It provided also that the old district appraisals should be abolished and five officials elected in every city to value the property within it. It also required that every individual should be served with a notice not only of his own appraisal but of that of his neighbors.

The constitution of Ohio provides that all property shall be assessed at its full value in money. No county had attempted to do that. The board decided at once that it would assess land and buildings at their market value though this meant that Cuyahoga county would pay more than its share of the direct state tax as the other counties do not assess at full value.

The board had three alternatives. One was to employ and send out in the community district men more or less familiar with land value and then to revise their returns. Another was to employ experts from among the real estate men of the city and pay them large salaries for making valuations. We concluded that the testimony of real estate experts is about as unreliable as any other testimony as there are bulls and bears among them.

So the board employed Mr. Somers, who had been connected with the New York board of commissioners of taxes. A chief engineer and an architect were secured as assistants to Mr. Somers. The first step taken was to map out rough block lines in the central part of the business district. We sent out a notice to all of the property owners of that district to come before the board. The first point taken up was. Where is the most valuable spot in the city of Cleveland? This was easily settled and probably would be in any community. A number of census takers were put on various corners to take count of the men and women who passed by during certain hours of the day as a method of confirming the common opinion.

By the aid of leases taken from the county records, by the sales of property and from the testimony of real estate men, the board finally, against the protest of the owners, fixed the point of highest values in Cleveland for land without the improvements at $5,500 a front foot, 100 feet deep. We would have had a catch-as-catch-can valuation had we not adopted a unit system. The unit we chose was a parcel 1 foot wide and 100 deep.

The work then became easier, for the man whose property had been valued at all it would bear was unconsciously desirous that all other property should be valued on the same basis. Men who had been doubtful of the honesty of the board became convinced when they saw the most valuable piece assessed at its highest possible value. The value of a tract 100 feet deep and 1 foot front on the other three sides of the block containing the most valuable land, was then fixed.

Under the Somers system all the valuations are matters of relations. If a property is worth a thousand dollars here it is worth a certain percentage of that elsewhere. These relative values were obtained by the community, not ourselves. They were fixed by the conflict of testimony.

From the central business area, the work radiated out into other districts with comparative ease. The newspapers published the news and our maps. Improvement associations and small groups of men took maps and put their figures of tentative values as units upon them. They tended to under value but these returns fixed the relation of values to each other.

The unit system practically prevents fraud or favoritism in making values. The board determined unit values without any knowledge of lot lines, which were not printed on the maps used. An attempt to favor one by favoring a whole district would throw the whole system out and could not be done with so many watching.

The appraising of individual lots was done by clerks secured from the Case School of Applied Science, Western Reserve university, and elsewhere, who applied to the lots the unit in the center of the block. For lots of irregular shape it was necessary to apply certain fixed rules and formulas. A ratio was also adopted for lots less than or over 100 feet. For corner lots a ratio based upon the relative unit values for the front and side streets was evolved and not a fixed increase of 25 or 30 per cent, which is the customary rule.

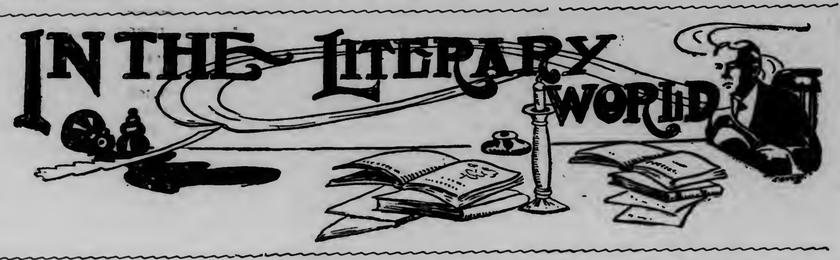

The board had an architect prepare schedules of costs of frame buildings, of brick buildings, and of brick and frame buildings so that we had unit values of buildings also. Then the board made out blanks with a list of questions which a man of very little skill can answer. These were made out for each property and according to the type of building, the superficial floor area was multiplied by a sum ranging from $1 to $40. From this figure sums for depreciation were deducted, based on age, condition of repair, and character of the neighborhood.

The result of this scientific appraisal of property has been that whereas in other Ohio cities the percentage of complaints ranges from 3 to as much as 21 per cent, in Cleveland the number was only 1 per cent, although Cleveland was the only city to assess property at its full market value as required by the state constitution.

THE GOLDEN WEB. By Anthony Partridge. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

Anthony Partridge is known by other works as a writer of interesting fiction, nad he earns the continuation of that reputation in this new novel. There is something fascinating, always, in the story of the love affairs of a magnate. Even though one may have but little of the world's goods himself, he likes to read about those who are amply supplied. When romance and finance can be combined the result is sure to prove reasonably good reading if the combination is worked out with any sort of skill, and nobody will question Mr. Partridge's ability.

There is something to be desired in the character of the hero. He is not a man to whom one can give unqualified admiration. Perhaps that is a natural result of the position he occupies in the commercial world, at least as such a position is understood by the public at large. Neither is there entire satisfaction to be found in the disposal made of the would-be heiress to the Little Anna gold mine. Indeed, it would be difficult to find more than one character in the story who is thoroughly likable, and that is Lady Olive. But one doesn't have to admire people in order to enjoy reading about them, and "The Golden Web," which by the way refers to the tangle of the commercial life in which the hero lives, makes pleasant and interesting reading.

THE ROOT OF EVIL. By Thomas Dixon. New York: Doubleday, Page & Co.

Would a woman who would sacrifice a great love on the altar of the money god, commit murder to accomplish her desires? Mr. Dixon says she would, at least under stated circumstances. He also thinks a young girl's love for a man sixteen years her senior will grow into the ripe affection of a mature woman; that great wealth can be gained only through unrighteousness; that a man worthy to be the hero in a novel is not inconsistent when he tries to induce his friend's wife to elope with him and later spurns her by illustrated that husband because she helped through the door to eternity by giving him what he begged for. Mr. Dixon also believes many other things, if we are to take what he says in "The Root of Evil" as an exposition of his views. He is not lacking in views. His other books have proved that, and this one supplies cumulative evidence of the fact. It is a romance of three Southerners in New York, with generous sprinklings of portrayals of poverty, excessive wealth, Wall street schemes, high finance, operatic matters, law court matters, love scenes of one kind and another and various phases of life in the big city. The author does not moralize to any extent. He gives little space to simple description. He lets the characters in the story furnish all those details, and therefore, though the movement sometimes is slow, there is always movement.

Whether one may agree with his attitude toward his characters and toward the principles they represent does not matter particularly, if one likes the story. There are some rather strong bits of work in it, and some places that are quite the reverse. Probably the most impressive scene is the death of the multi-millionaire who offers his doctors $100,000 apiece for one more year of life. The disposal of characters is unsatisfactory. Jim and his bride somehow do not seem suited to one another, and one cannot help wondering what became of some of the others. Though Mr. Dixon seems to be trying to teach a lesson of some kind, the book gives a very strong impression that it is only a pot-boiler, after all.

"Ben Hur" seems to have achieved perennial life on the stage as well as between covers. The book is in a steady demand and its sales each year, the Harpers believe, would indicate very closely the number of new readers added to the adult fiction public. "Ben Hur" as a play has long been familiar on the American stage. Within a week J. C. Williamson has arranged with Harper & Brothers and Klaw & Erlanger for a revival of "Ben Hur" in Australia.

The fourth edition of Robert L. Dugdale's "The Jukes," with an introduction, especially prepared for this edition, by Franklin H. Giddings, professor of sociology in Columbia university, has just been issued by the Putnams. This little volume, which is a painstaking study of the persistence and the modifications of heredity through several generations, as revealed in statistics of the crimes, pauperism, and diseases of a family of degenerates, whose real identity the author has disguised under the name Jukes, is a unique chapter in sociological investigation and has proved, and should prove, invaluable to students of criminology and to those interested in eugenics, and informing and suggestive to all who are concerned with social betterment and with the removal and the correction of the causes of criminality.

Readers and students will alike welcome the robust discussion of modern social problems, together with the constructive social philosophy which it proclaims, which is to be found in Social Adjustment by Scott Nearing, just published by the Macmillan company. The past two decades have given birth to numerous social questions. Each one presents some peculiar phase; yet all are susceptible of classification. The value of the present book lies in the success with which the author has analyzed and co-ordinated these various aspects of present social phenomena.

Grace MacGowan Coke, author of "The Power and the Glory," one of Doubleday, Page & Co.'s most successful publications of 1910, is living this winter at Oraibi, an Indian pueblo in the Moki reservation. Here she is working on her next novel, the closing scenes of which take place in this environment. With her is a small daughter who has a big mane of flaxen hair, and the Mokis, or Hopis as they prefer to be called, being very fond of children anyhow, have shown such special favor to the little girl that her white friends nickname her "The Indians' Delight."

Sir Gaston Maspero's new book on Egypt will appear just in time to be useful to this season's travelers up the Nile. The author is a trained observer, full of enthusiasm, and in this book he points out countless things of interest and beauty which the tourist might otherwise miss. The Appletons announce M. Maspero's book for issue the end of this month under the title of "Egypt: Ancient Sites and Modern Scenes."

Japan seems to be closely watching the course of American literature, as has already been noted in the case of Gen. Homer Lea's book, "The Valor of Ignorance." A large native bookhouse has just sent to the Harpers an order for a supply of "Money and Banking," by Charles A. Conant, a recently published work on the American financial system. With the order came a request, couched in the politest Japanese, that a certain number of copies of every book on scientific, social or literary subjects was to be sent immediately on publication.

From Cuba has come the suggestion that a translation of "Edison; His Life and Inventions" would reach in a beneficial way the Spanish-reading youth. He adds that these books are eagerly read and suggests that the wonderful rise and achievements of Edison would fire the young Cuban mind with ambition.

One of the new departures which have been made in "The American Year Book," of which Messrs. A. Appleton & Co. are publishing the initial volume on Feb. 1, will be its prompt appearance. It is said that no other book of similar scope has ever been brought out so soon after the close of the year whose events is recorded. The editor of this volume is S. N. D. North, formerly director of the United States census; and the entire work has been prepared under the care of a supervisory board, working through its chairman, Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart.

Among the Magazines.

This is "Lincoln month," and the February Columbian fittingly opens with an article on Abraham Lincoln by G. T. Ferris, who, on the Fourth of July, 1859, spoke from the same platform as Mr. Lincoln at Lodi, Ill. Mr. Ferris, then a youth just out of college, was a keen observer, and his description of Lincoln is a singularly graphic portraiture of the Moses who led the American people for four awful years through the wilderness of civil war. Lincoln's "Must," which brought the haughty Stanton to prompt obedience; the presence of John Wilkes Booth at Lincoln's second inauguration, and other incidents relating to the martyred president, now for the first time published, add special interest to Mr. Ferris' narrative, with its quaint illustrations of scenes and characters in Lincoln's career. Senator Bourne, on "Where the People Rule," presents a clear and cogent exposition of the operation in Oregon of certain reforms, such as popular election of senators, which are being widely discussed in other states of the Union.

Bechdolt; "The End of Karl Hendricks," a piano mystery, by John Life; "Johnny Aylwin, R. N. W. M. P.," the life story of a Royal Northwest Mounted Policeman, by A. M. Chisholm.

In the February Ainslee's appears a reprint of the first story ever published by O. Henry in any magazine. It is entitled "Money Maze," and appeared originally in Ainslee's for May, 1901. It is an excellent example of O. Henry's humor, broadly human in sympathy and delightfully told. Its appearance will be very welcome to lovers of this widely loved author. In the same issue is a brilliant story by Edgar Saltus, entitled "Ropes of Sand." It is a highly emotional story with American and English setting, dealing with the tragedy and misunderstanding of a marriage, in which the wife, discovering, as she thinks, some horrible secret in regard to herself and her husband, leaves him on the honeymoon, goes to England, and after divorce marries another man. The husband, torn with grief and ignorant of her reasons, follows her and seeks reconciliation. The outcome is dramatic and spectacular.

Somehow, we are all more or less interested in the sirens of the stage and the particular siren depicted by Elizabeth Goldo in "The Glacier Woman," in the February Young's Magazine, is more than usually fascinating. There is an uncanny something about this heroine which gives the story a compelling charm, and some of the situations are so unusual as to approach the sensational. Matrimonial mixups are rare neither in modern fact nor in fiction, but the mixup in "The Glacier Woman," is entirely unique. Fancy a father and daughter discovering themselves to be upon the point of respectively marrying a divorced wife and her husband! The imagination positively staggers at the possibilities of this scene, which in "The Glacier Woman" is carried to a triumphant conclusion—as is the gradual unfolding of the remarkable character of "Olivia."

One of the most important features in the February Hampton's Magazine is, of course, "Dr. Cook's Own Story." In this installment Dr. Frederick A. Cook maintains a style of writing which, no matter whatever else may be said about the feature, is certainly graphic and an important contribution to literature. He tells of the intense suffering he endured on the return journey of a year or so from the region about the North Pole, and he also tells for the first time all of the details about his meeting with Harry Whitney, with whom he left his much discussed scientific instruments, note books, etc. He also tells of his remarkable reception at Copenhagen. Another important article, is headed "Cassidy and the Food Poisoners," in which Cleveland Moffett tells of the remarkable miscarriage of the Pure Food Law. It is a remarkable revelation of deplorable conditions of the food supply in many of our leading cities. "What Will the Democrats Do?" is an important political article written by Judson C. Welliver and Louis Brownlow, noted political experts.

Elizabeth Lonergan writes of "The Ladies of the Diplomatic Corps" at Washington, and John Holt Schooling contributes a remarkable paper on "The Signatures of Charles Dickens."

Juliet Bredon writes of Korea and Rook Carnegie describes how the bustard of Roumania is hunted from the saddle. A weird fascination surrounds F. E. Taylor's "A Chinese Ghost Story."

The frontispiece of Scribner's Magazine for February is a reproduction in color of a striking portrait of John La Farge. Price Collier's articles on India and the East are attracting the widest comment not only here but abroad. His cosmopolitan point of view, founded on travel and residence in many countries, gives special authority to his utterances on present-day political conditions. Mr. Collier's second article is entitled "The Gateway to India," and deals particularly with Bombay, where he was a guest at Government House. He gives a comprehensive view from first-hand observation of what it means to govern a great province in India, and outlines the general scheme of government through nine provinces. The point of view of the native is also presented. Another article of intense present-day interest is "German Railway Policy," by Elmer Roberts. In this paper there is much that will surprise American students of transportation; for, instance, the fact that German railways give discriminating rates, grant rebates, and treat individuals and localities exceptionally, and all these under the direct authority of the government. These discriminations are made on principles of equity intended to benefit the whole nation; through them the German is aided in his competition with other nations for foreign trade.

One of the important features in the February American Magazine is an article by Albert W. Atwood describing the enormous monopoly exercised by six express companies in America which control 90 per cent of the country's express business. They have acquired their gigantic power owing to the fact that there has been no parcels post in this country and they have determined as it has pleased them what rates they shall charge for doing business. Mr. Atwood shows how these companies have usurped the privileges that are not rightly theirs and how the public have had to pay the unfair tariffs the companies have imposed and contribute to their tremendous profits.

Another interesting article is Ernest Poole's study of the remarkable character of Louis D. Brandeis—a man whose life is a long record of unselfish work done in the public interest.

Other features are A. J. Nock's description of the personal property tax laws in different states in the Union—in none of which are they either adequate or just: "The Will to Live—With Death at Hand," which is an account of the terrible struggle for existence made by Lieut. Greeley and his men at Cape Sabine and their timely rescue by Admiral Schley; and William Allen White's keen political article entitled "The Old Problem of the Dog and the Engine."

The leading feature in the February McClure's is the first installment of the series of true detective stories, "Great Cases of Detective Burns," recorded by Dana Gatlin. Burns is unquestionably the most famous detective in the United States, and these stories of his most interesting cases are told in his own words. The first of these, "How the Red Cross Confessed," is a story of the famous San Francisco graft prosecutions. "The Case of the Reporter," by Hugo Munsterberg, deals with the methods of the newspaper reporters. Prof. Munsterberg as a noted psychologist is considered good "copy," and his account of the sensational distortions and the fake interviews which the newspapers have printed about his work is an especially interesting example of the inaccuracy and the exaggerations of the press. The article on "Women Laundry Workers," by Edith Wyatt and Sue Ainslie Clark, is composed of the reports of Miss Carola Woerishofer, Miss Elizabeth Howard Westwood, and Miss Mary Alden Hopkins, who have made a thorough investigation of the conditions existing in the commercial, hotel, and hospital laundries in New York.

New methods and means of safeguarding life and the stories of recent life-destroying disasters, in stern contrast, feautre the February number of Poular Mechanics magazine. The Chicago stockyards fire, the acetylene gas explosion on Manhattan Island, the great Cincinnati fire, the aeronautics death roll for 1910, and the London anarchist war, all are described in picture and story—an appalling list, truly. On the other hand, a new fisherman's dory, which, if capsized, becomes a life-saving apparatus, is described; a special deluge pipe for fighting basement fires has been invented; a new system of building charts to aid firemen has been devised; an unusually efficient type of forest-fire fighting train is in operation; H. H. Windsor, in his editorial, discusses the peril to firemen and urges ceaseless vigilance in building inspection, and improved construction regulations as the only remedy.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for January 21 contains an article by Sydney Brooks entitled "London's Striking Lesson," in which the recent anarchist outbreaks are made the cause for a discussion of England's alien problem. Wendell Phillips Dodge describes how the weekly bath-tub has been made a compulsory institution in Aurora, Ill., under threat of imprisonment. William Hemmingway contributes "The Last Blue Ribbon"—a story which will appeal to chicken fanciers. "T. Haldane's Bequest" is a grim story of the sea by John Fleming Wilson.

DISFIGURED WITH SCALES AND CRUSTS

Eczema from Top of Head to Waist. Suffered Untold Agony and Pain. Neck Was Perfectly Raw. Doctors Said It Could Not Be Cured.

A Set of the Cuticura Remedies Successful When All Else Had Failed.

"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me. Cuticura Remedies cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem Corp., Boston, Mass., for free booklet on the skin.

ATTENTION, LADIES!

You Are No Older Than Your Spine.

There is no treatment equal to the scientific massaging of the spine, which is accomplished by the use of a mechanical device that thoroughly massages the cartilages and connective tissues throughout the body, thereby restoring the youthful appearance.

When the spine is in a healthy and flexible condition, and each one of the spinal joints perfectly free in action, there will be no need to call in the "Beauty Doctor" to remove the outward marks of ill-health. Nature will furnish the chemicals from her own laboratory to paint the cheek, brighten the eye, give tone and vigor to the countenance, and produce a clear and perfect complexion. When you are in perfect health the wrinkles caused by worry or anxiety will gradually disappear and only those lines remain that go to indicate character and add to the beauty of any face. Don't lose your youthful appearance when it is unnecessary; health is the greatest beautifier known.

If suffering from any diseased conditon, call for FREE CONSULTATION.

Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAINMENT.

"Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works" Feature of a Pleasing Program.

"Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works" was the feature of the entertainment given last evening at the Young Women's Christian association building by a few of the members.

Dr. Stella Wilkenson, as Mrs. Jarley, was excellent in the presentation of her wax figures, assisted by Miss Ada Benfield, Miss M. McDermott and Miss Anna Jacobson, attendants.

The figures she presented were "The Laughing Girl," Miss Caroline Klatt; Miss Sadie McLean representing "Scotland;" Miss Gladys Cowen as "The Chinaman;" Miss Etta Murphy, "Ireland;" Miss Christene McLean, "America;" Miss Evelyn Stack as "Grace Darling;" Miss Marie Cheska, "Mrs. Winslow with her soothing syrup;" Miss Tess McDermott, "Annette Kellerman;" Miss Sophie Cheska as "Bluebeard;" his wife, Miss Beatrice Brophy, and Miss Jennie Gadde representing "Germany."

The representations were all good and afforded much amusement to the audience.

Before and after this sketch an interesting program was given. Miss Claire Malloy was heard with pleasure in vocal solos, as was Miss Daisy Smart in two piano numbers.

A chorus, consisting of Misses Edith Bryden, Lillian Irwin, Eva Robbins, Mary Lindahl, Isa Bottan, Lucile Youngs, Georgia Johnson and Fannie Rhodes, sang a medley which was pleasing, and Miss Bottan and Miss Mae Irwin played a piano duet very creditably. Mrs. Rollins in the reading of "The Church in Keough's Barn" was enjoyed, as was the quartet, "Four Old Maids," sung by Miss Graven, Miss Isabel Reikson, Miss Josephine Brophy and Miss Boehne, in costume. Miss Mae Irwin played the accompaniments for all the numbers.

This entertainment was the first of a series which the girls will give during the winter, and was arranged by the entertainment committee, which is composed of Mrs. Ethel Hardin, chairman; Mrs. Claypool, Miss Marie Cheska, Miss Beatrice Brophy, Miss Caroline Clapp, Miss Mae Irwin and Miss Isabel Reickson.

The First Christian society will meet in the church at 6:45 p. m. The leader for this meeting will be Mrs. E. A. Risdon.

Lakeside Presbyterian society will meet at 6 p. m. in the Endeavor room. An especially good program is promised for this week. Miss Estelle Hicken will be the leader, and the prayer meetings committee has arranged an attractive and helpful service.

Westminster Presbyterian society reports that the regular meeting will be held at 6:45 p. m., in charge of the prayer meeting committee. The Junior Endeavor society will meet at 3:30 p. m. The leader of the junior meeting is Miss Mabel Melin.

Union Church Disciples society will meet in the Knights of Pythias hall at 7 p. m. The meeting is to be in charge of Mrs. L. L. Sparks, chairman of the missionary committee, and the rest of her committee. This society, which is located in the hall over the Kelley Hardware company store, cordially invites any strangers in the city to be present at the meeting.

First Presbyterian society will meet at 6:45 in the lecture room of the church, leader, Miss Elsie Campbell.

The Pilgrim Congregational society will meet at 6:45 p. m. The leader of this meeting is Mrs. Stewart.

Regular Sunday afternoon poor farm service will be in charge of the Second Presbyterian society. It is expected that a number of Endeavorers from the other societies will also attend.

The City Union has arranged with Rev. Arthur Ellwood, the well known lecturer, to address them on Friday evening, Feb. 10, on subjects of live interest to every Endeavorer. The committee which has in charge the securing of one of the large down town churches for this meeting will have some interesting announcements to make in regard to this service at a later date.

It will be noted that the lesson for this Sunday's study is the first missionary subject of the year. The United society is arranging the year's course of mission studies, which covers twelve meetings one held each month, made plans to complete a circuit of the world mission fields in this year. This lesson covering the North and East of the United States and the one following will cover the missions in this country. A plan which will be worked in some of the societies will be to have different members prepare talks upon certain centers of missionary effort, and the work that is being done in each. This is expected to bring out many interesting facts in regard to the mission work of the various denominations at these points.

IS HELD UP BY BURGLAR

Woman Relieved of Cash and Jewelry in Her Own Home.

Thief Enters Rooms While Husband Is Working Downstairs.

The apartments of Alex Tifer, 1002 Garfield avenue, were rifled about 10:30 last night by a burglar who held Mrs. Tifer up at the point of a revolver. The thief secured $2.50 in cash, a gold bracelet and a pair of gold cuff buttons.

The Tifer family resides upstairs over the saloon conducted by Mr. Tifer at that place. The robbery took place while Mr. Tifer was working downstairs with several men in the place. Mrs. Tifer was able to furnish the police with an excellent description of the thief, but thus far no arrests have been made by the police. The license of Mr. Tifer was held up in the city council at the last meeting by the aldermen from that ward. A petition was presented asking that it be refused on the grounds that a house of ill-repute was conducted in connection with the saloon. Another and larger petition was filed at the same time stating that Mr. Tifer bears a good reputation and has always conducted the saloon properly. The police and license committee will meet at the city hall this afternoon to hear the statement of both sides.

EXPERIMENT A SUCCESS

Zinc Concentrates From C. & S. Mine Are Treated at Plattsville.

Means Much to Rich Property Owned By Duluth Men.

Messrs. A. L. Warner and Dwight E. Woodbridge, general manager and consulting engineer of the Calumet & Sonora Mining company at Cananea, Mexico, have just returned from the South. On their way to Cananea they stopped at Plattsville, Wis., and conducted a test of a complete and representative sample of the zinc concentrates from the mine, of which concentrates there are thousands of tons now piled at the property.

The ores of this mine are somewhat complex, carrying both zinc and copper, besides lead, and in the past it has been impossible to get full value for them, on account of the penalty charged by the smelters for zinc in copper ores, or the smelter losses of copper in zinc, when the material was shipped as the latter. Since the middle of last summer no zinc ores or zinc-copper-iron concentrates have been shipped from the mine, as they could not be sold except at a heavy loss, and there has accumulated a pile of zinc middlings now amounting to more than 3,000 tons, on which all costs of mining and milling have been paid and charged off, but which has not been available for profitable treatment. There has not been the slightest doubt in the minds of the management, as to the possibility of treating this product successfully, and getting out of it a large sum, but the final experiments made three weeks ago at Plattsville, which were the last of several, have actually done the work, and done it remarkably well, and at a low cost.

What this means to the company may be understood from the fact that there are not only more than 3,000 tons of this product now on hand, being added to at the rate of from 13 to 17 tons a day, but also that there are many thousand tons of zinc-copper ores standing in the mine and as yet untouched on account of their low lead percentages, that will become available for profitable mining and treatment as soon as a suitable mill for this separation is in commission. This tonnage is increasing steadily. It is estimated by J. L. Hauser, superintendent at the mine, and by Mr. Woodbridge, that the entire zinc pile on surface will net the company more than $20 a ton, which will mean better than $60,000 for what is now on hand.

The company is running its wet concentrating mill steadily, and is making a finished product of about 600 tons of 70 per cent concentrates per month, which is sold to the Guggenheim smelter at El Paso, Texas. It is a part of the waste from this mill that is now being piled up for treatment by the electrostatic process examined at Plattsville.

Development at the mine is going on below the 400 foot level, and a depth of some 450 feet has been reached. The same class of lead-zinc-copper ore as above is being encountered below the 400, and it is of a grade and character that indicates the probable continuation of the ore bodies to a very much greater depth. While there is not yet any tonnage really blocked out below this 400 foot level so that it can be measured, it is safe to assume that the mine can now show about 250,000 to 300,000 tons of ore, with the strong probability that this will be increased by continued development for a long time to come.

The company is re-opening its Catalina mine, which has been idle for some years on account of the complexity of its ores, these containing zinc, lead, copper, silver, antimony and bismuth. A method of making this ore commercially profitable has also been devised and some shipments have been made that point to complete success of the plan adopted. There is considerable high-grade ore in this mine, and a promise of a large tonnage to be developed.

The erection of an electrostatic separation mill for the zinc middlings, as planned, will cost about $18,000 and will return a very large daily profit. This mill will be put up as soon as possible. A thirty-ton mill can return a net profit of not less than $660 per day and before such a mill can be in operation, say ninety days hence, there will be so much on hand for it to treat that it will take a year to catch up.

WILL SEND RINKS TO PORTAGE SPIEL.

It is stated today that two rinks from the Duluth Curling club will be sent to the bonspiel to be held at Portage, Wis., next month. Whether two of the rinks that have played together during the spiel will be sent, or whether two rinks will be chosen from the strongest players at the club, has not been decided upon at the present time.

According to the information that has been received here the bonspiel at Portage will be the best ever held in that section of the state. The officials of the club are endeavoring to secure rinks from both St. Paul and Minneapolis, while it is stated that all of the Wisconsin rinks present at the Duluth 'spiel will be represented.

Superior will, according to the belief of the Portage officials, send several rinks to the little Wisconsin village.

GETTING ALONG NICELY.

Rumors of Estrangement Between Spain's Rulers Denied.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The attention of the Spanish legation having been attracted by certain publications to the effect that domestic infelicity has brought about an estrangement between King Alfonso and his royal spouse, Queen Victoria, Minister Rieno today entered an emphatic denial of the story.

The minister's denial, he declared, is based on his personal knowledge as well as upon that acquired in his official capacity and he asserts unhesitatingly that the royal pair enjoy the happiest of relations. The rumors of a separation are believed by him to have been set afloat maliciously by anti-dynastic influences.

Few Changes in Colorado.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 28.—Only minor changes were shown in the Democratic votes for United States senator in joint session of the legislature today and no election resulted. The Republicans honored C. C. Dawson today, giving him thirty votes.

SHOP TOUR NEXT FRIDAY

Novel Method of Teaching Duluthians About Duluth to Be Begun.

Commercial Club Publicity Committee Will Start the Work Next Week.

Shop excursions, for the purpose of acquainting Duluthians with the manufactures of Duluth, will be begun next Friday, when the Commercial club publicity committee will conduct a party through a section of the wholesale and manufacturing district. The establishments to be visited include those of the Duluth Corrugating & Roofing company, the Marshall-Wells company, the Gogebic Steam Boiler works, the De Witt-Seitz company and the Northern Shoe company. The excursionists will leave the Commercial club at 1:30 o'clock p. m.

At a meeting of the publicity committee today it was arranged to notify a large number of local business men of the fact that this initial excursion is to be held next Friday. Notice of it will be posted at the board of trade and every other available method of advertising it will be used, and it is hoped that the result will be a general response, to the end that Duluth business men will be sufficiently informed to talk intelligently about what Duluth manufactures, when the series of excursions has been continued long enough to cover the field.

The excursionists will be taken about the city in sections, as it is probable the crowd will be too large to travel through the factories and jobbing houses in a compact mass. One section will start at one plant, and each of the others at another, and the firms mentioned have signified their intention to see that the visitors are given every facility for learning what is being done in the plants.

Duluth not only makes good, but it makes a lot of other things, according to a report made yesterday afternoon to the manufactures committee of the Commercial club.

A list of the things known to be manufactured here was submitted, showing a wide range of products, and it was brought out that the value of the manufactured output of Duluth has doubled in the last decade. It is estimated that the value of the goods manufactured here in the last year was $18,000,000. Hurriedly enumerated, there are 150 factories in the city, but it is believed that this enumeration failed to take account of many small concerns. Hundreds of different kinds of marketable articles are turned out daily.

The manufacturing committee will co-operate with the publicity committee to make the shop excursion series a success.

ATTORNEY WILL TELL EVERYTHING

Jones Says He Wants to Go Before the Grand Jury.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 28.—The search for vote traffic in Vermillion county today was at a complete standstill. The grand jury will reconvene Monday, when a new host of witnesses will appear to tell where the money went which is said to have been spent in the campaign at the November election.

All interested, directly or indirectly in the outcome of the inquisition, today abandoned their watch on the grand jury's deliberations. Much interest is still felt, however, in the announcement by City Attorney Frank W. Jones that he wished to go before the grand jury and tell them anything and everything they desired to ask him.

Judge E. R. E. Kimbrough, who said he feared no practical results would come from the present search, admitted that it was possible there may be interesting developments when witnesses are heard next Monday.

EXPECT TO FIND MISSING HEIRESS

Officials Believe She Will Be at Home Very Soon.

New York, Jan. 28.—Developments today in the search for Miss Dorothy Arnold, the missing heiress included the receipt of additional letters demanding a ransom for the young woman's return, a reported declaration by Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn that he believed the girl had not been harmed and that she would return home in a short time and the announcement that Miss Arnold's brother, who has been abroad on a secret mission since her disappearance was on his way back to New York.

Both the police and the lawyers directing the search scout the theory that Miss Arnold is held for ransom. John S. Keith of Mr. Arnold's legal advisers, asserted his belief today that the letters were written by blackmailers. If they were taken seriously, he said, the searchers would face the untenable theory that Miss Arnold was held for ransom by four different persons or more. Mr. Keith was disinclined also to credit the reputed theory of the police that Miss Anold would return home shortly.

The trip of John Arnold, the missing girl's brother, to Europe, which was made soon after Miss Arnold disappeared, had nothing to do with the search, Mr. Keith declared.

NORTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIALS IN CITY.

George T. Slade, third vice president and manager of traffic of the Northern Pacific, and E. C. Blanchard, general superintendent of the road, were in this city for a few minutes yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Blanchard, known by many here, has been seriously ill but at the present time is well on the way to recovery.

FANTASTIC CAVES AND HUMMOCKS ARE BEING ERECTED BY ICE KING ON SHORE OF PARK POINT

Action of Waves on Beach Throwing Up Odd Ice Formations.

Boys Risking Their Lives to Investigate New Ice Caverns.

Plant Flags and Placards on the Most Dangerous Spots.

Park Point residents and visitors have recently been greatly interested in the ice formations that have adorned the bay, strange hummocks, caverns and pillars of ice fringing the point to a distance from shore varying from 300 to 400 feet.

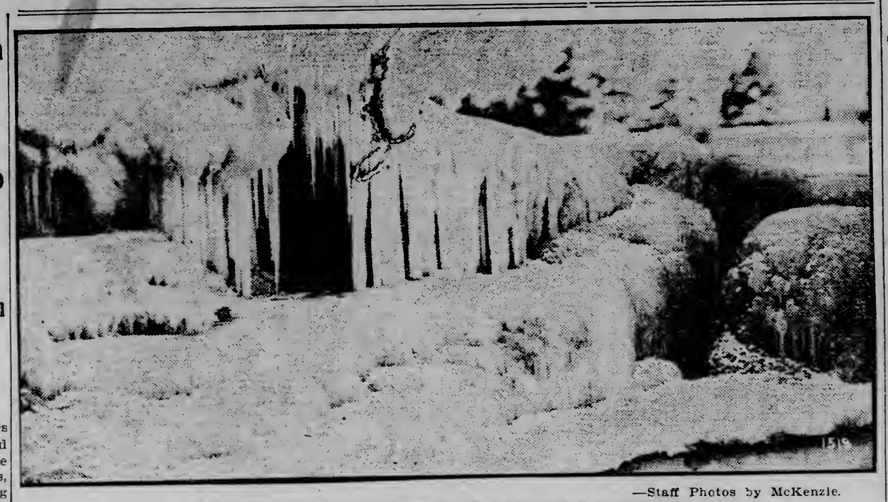

These ice formations are beautiful things, and their beauty has lured venturesome people, especially boys, to places of extreme danger. Under the glittering, shimmering, fantastic shapes there is about 100 feet of water, and all the time that churning water is washing away the under side of the ice over which the venturesome one must make his way to get a near sight of the marvel. A person's weight might at any moment serve to break the ice and in such an event it is highly improbable that the imperiled one could be saved from death.

Boys have been particularly bold in exploring these remarkable ice fields. Flags are stuck up on glaring crags, with placards bearing the proclamations of discoverers of the North Pole. So far as known none of these lads has taken the name of Cok. Great caverns have been made the haunts of play-bandits, and many a Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn have found delightful retreats on the dangerous field.

Great structures of marvelous conformation rear themselves along the natural breakwater of the harbor. Ice formed in the wave shape was the nucleus of each of these strange congealments. Each succeeding wave added its mite to the continuous process of fantastic construction, and the reverse wave carved away the ice that had formed until such piles as are shown in the accompanying photographs were left.

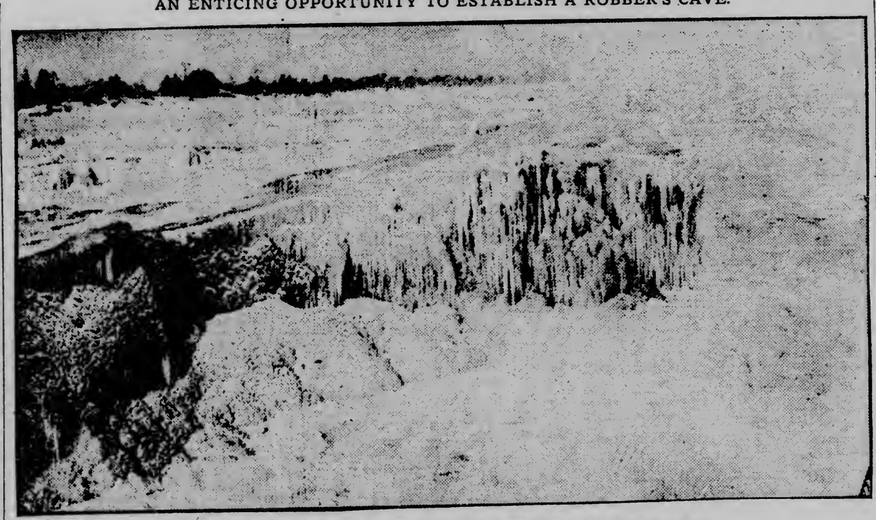

And all the time the restless waters of the lake are washing away the under side of the ice. Each day the face of the cliff that one saw yesterday possesses some new feature, and while the facade is being altered by the waters they are making an adventure over the ice to see the new wonders even more perilous than they were yesterday, by gradually decreasing the sustaining strength of the ice.

Some of these ice hills are as high as fifteen feet.

LUMBERMEN GO TO FEDERAL PRISON

Five Wealthy Men Are to Serve Sentences for Peonage.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 28.—Five wealthy Southern lumbermen will enter the federal prison today to serve sentences for peonage. They are: W. S. Harlan, Robert Gallagher, Dr. W. E. Grace, C. C. Hilton and E. S. Huggins, all of Lockhart, Ala. Harlan and Gallagher will each serve eighteen months and pay fines of $5,000. The three others will serve thirteen months and pay fines of $1,000 each.

Their cases were the first to originate in the South and the prosecution was vigorously pushed by the department of justice. The case was twice taken before President Taft in hopes he would sign pardons.

CANADIAN NORTHERN OFFICIALS COMING.

Several of the Canadian Northern officials are expected in this city next week. It is reported here that M. H. McLeod, general manager of the Canadian Northern, and J. R. Cameron, general superintendent, will be here, to consult with the local engineering force in regard to details of the work that is being pushed at the present time on the extension of the road from Virginia to this city.

It was stated at the Duluth office today that operations would be rushed just as soon as the frost left the ground, and that during the coming summer the work will be completed. It is believed in Duluth that the coming of the two officials has to do with some of the details of the work on the extension.

BUT LITTLE NEW EQUIPMENT NEEDED.

No extensive new equipment will be purchased the present season by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern or the Duluth & Iron Range railroads. The purchase of many new and thoroughly modern cars by both of these roads last year, and also the purchase of some new heavy locomotives, is the reason why further rolling stock will not be added to the present equipment.

Both of the roads at the present time are well supplied with ore cars as the result of the heavy purchases of last year, and the officials of the road believe this equipment is sufficient to handle the tonnage that will be moved the coming season.

HUNTING FOR REPORT.

Committee Wants to Know What Happened in Ballinger Matter.

Washington, Jan. 28.—An investigation to determine what happened to the Ballinger-Pinchot committee's special report, which Representative Hitchcock of Nebraska declared had been unaccountably lost in its transmission from the house to the committee on agriculture, was began today by the house committee on rules.

The committee summoned Asher Hinds, parliamentarian to the speaker and J. W. H. Resinger, printing and document clerk, and requested an exact statement of the methods that had been followed in referring the report to the committee. The public printer will be summoned before the committee next week.

QUESTION NOT PERTINENT.

Young's Magazine: "It doesn't do," said Wilton Lackaye, apropos of nothing in particular, "to look too closely into the source of beneficent legislation. Have you heard the yarn they're telling about President X of the Y Insurance company? X came home the other night, slapped his hat on the table, did a double shuffle and cried to his wife:

"'My dear, our fortune's made. That piece of insurance legislation has at last been passed in Albany.'

"'Honestly?' exclaimed his wife, overjoyed.

"X frowned.

"'What's that got to do with it?' he growled."

CARELESS.

Whenever anything goes wrong
The cause is quickly seen;
There isn't any graft so strong
Nor petty rogueus so keen
But we might spoil their little jokes
And stop each wicked caper
By which they plunder honest folks,
If all would read the paper.

The gold brick and the green goods game,
The badger trick so old,
For many years have been the same,
As often has been told.
When there is any crooked biz
That turns our hopes to vapor,
The answer nearly always is,
"They didn't read the paper!"

HOME PETS IN ENGLAND.

London Chronicle: Yesterday the ninth exhibition of home pets was held in the hall of St. Mary's, Plaistow. A chaos of barks, snarls and growls deafened the visitor who ventured into the dog department, for, although fewer than fifty animals had been entered, each competitor was engaged in trying to outbark his neighbor.

The cat section was much stronger than that for dogs; no tax is payable on cats. There was also a fair show of canaries, parrots and other birds, and a great variety of miscellaneous live stock, including tortoises, lizards, hedgehogs, mice, frogs, guinea pigs.

Ducks and geese, fowls and pigeons were also represented, and there was a large number of rabbits. Donkeys and ponies included "Jerry," a famous old donkey, 28 years of age, but still equal to a day's work.

THE STORY OF RAB.

The immortal story of "Rab and His Friends" was written "on the quick," to use one of Dr. John Brown's favorite expressions. His uncle, the Rev. Dr. Smith of Biggar, asked him to give a lecture in his native village. He had never lectured before, but was anxious to say something to the "strong brained primitive people of my youth."

In a rare moment of inspiration he decided to tell them Allie's story, the memory of which had never left him since his days in the Minto House hospital. Ever he saw the beautiful face of the suffering woman, heard the voice of the heart-broken carrier entreating him to tell all the world what his Allie was, and listened to Rab whining at the hospital door.

At 12 o'clock one midsummer night, says Mrs. Sarah Tooley in the Cornhill Magazine, he sat down to tell the tale, and by 4 o'clock he had finished it. He called the lecture "The Howgate Carrier, His Wife and His Dog Rab," but his uncle in introducing the subject to the Biggar audience omitted the last word, at which Dr. John complained that his friend Rab had been grievously insulted.

"There is no doubt he was a dog," he explained, "but he was a great deal more—he was Rab."

Perhaps is was to make amends to the faithful creature that, when the story appeared in print, the author entitled it "Rab and His Friends."

FISH THAT SHOOTS FLIES.

London Globe: In Queensland some of the most interesting forms of animal life are to be found. The duck billed platypus (with the web feet of a duck, which lays eggs and suckles young), the lung fish, the walking perch and many other queer creatures might be mentioned in confirmation of this.

A remarkable little fish is the rifle fish, which lives in the far northern rivers of Queensland. A full grown specimen, writes a correspondent, measures about ten inches in length and averages one and a half pounds in weight. The rifle fish derives its name from the fact that it shoots its food. It swims leisurely about the stream a few inches below the surface and is always on the lookout for flies and other insects that settle on the floating leaves and twigs or on the surface of water plants. On getting close enough to its victim it discharges a tiny jet or ball of water, which if shot straight knocks the fly into the stream, where it is instantly gathered in by the shooter.

LATTICE SCREENS FOR INNS.

Cycling: Many quaint old inns are to be seen in King's Lynn and the sign of the Lattice Inn is one of the oldest in existence. In the olden times the windows of inns were kept open, and in order to hide the revellers within a lattice screen, painted red, was placed in the window.

There is an old saying: "As well known by my wit as an alehouse by a red lattice." The lattice continued up to the beginning of the eighteenth century and when they disappeared from the windows they were adopted as signs. The latter are getting very scarce and it is questionable whether half a dozen could be found in this country.

ENGLISH ON RECIPROCITY

Tariff Reformers Oppose It Strongly, While Free Traders Approve.

Alarming Predictions of Weakening of the Imperialistic Tie.

London, Jan. 28.—Discussion of the American-Canadian reciprocity agreement continues on strictly partisan lines. The tariff reformers oppose it strongly, while free traders approve. The former are making most alarming predictions of a weakening of the imperialistic tie if the understanding is ratified. The Pall Mall Gazette today says:

"Is it for the ultimate benefit of Canada that her resources should be thrown open to exploitation by southern trusts; that her career should be deflected into the walks of a mere producer of raw materials?"

The Pall Mall Gazette argues that the United States would have lowered its tariffs generally in the interests of its own consumers, anyway, and adds: "Those parties in Canada who place imperialism first will resist the agreement in the name of all the hopes that they have cherished of an empire closely unified in interests and sympathy."

The Nation, a Liberal paper, holds that such an approach of the sound principles of commerce is more advantageous to Great Britain than any imperial preference, and forms the soundest foundation for an alliance of the English-speaking nations.

Sir William Mackenzie, the Canadian railroad man, says: "I am dead against any such agreement, being convinced that such ties are antagonistic to the best interests of the Dominion. Canada is prosperous enough at the present time. Her hands ought not to be tied."

CHAMPION FISH STORY.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Many strange tales come out of the North. Tales about balloons and game wardens, Dr. Cook, John Dietz, about deer hunters, gumdrops and the shortage of the cranberry crop. Tales that to the man who has a soft-boiled near egg for breakfast and travels on a street car seem almost as impossible as the rumor that a thief in the night has stolen the Grand avenue pillars.

Some of these stories, however, have the truth branded all over their sides, stenciled on in front and tied behind. Here is one that came out of the North via Racine:

Some time ago a party of tired business men of the city to the southward hung the "Closed for Repairs" signs on their respective office doors and departed. Two days later they were out on one of the up-country lakes fishing.

One of the party took along a gun. He was a great nuisance. Every time he blazed away the roar of his artillery scaring into mad flight every finny inhabitant for miles around, he received an enthusiastic burst of disapprobation.

But he was persistent. Even though his companions declared that the reason he took the firearm along was because a lake was about all he could hit and that only when he was right on top of it. They said other things. But he had his revenge by and by.

A bunch of mudhens were sitting around on the water amongst the rushes just about nice gunshot range from the boat on which the artillery was mounted. The gunner didn't see the birds, but he thought he could hit the clump of rushes. He had a pretty good chance because the shot from his gun scattered like a bunch of kids with a cop after them. So he took a try at it.

The mudhens adjourned the meeting as a mark of disapproval and arose—all but one of them. That one had connected with a shot.

It was only a flesh wound, but it made that mudhen madder even than if it had been killed. In fact, the creature became absolutely wild. Any alienist would have testified that it was suffering from temporary insanity of the kind likely to produce homicide among other things.

The sight of an angry, not to say frenzied, mudhen charging you, coming hippity hop across the water with blood in its eye and the eye fixed on your most vital spot is terrifying in the extreme. The fishermen dodged into the bottom of the boat and hid among the angleworms. But the artilleryman, responsible for the frightful situation, kept his nerve. After he had picked up the bird and calmed its feelings with a bit of lunch he explained to his comrades, emerging from packages of bait, that the bird was only bewildered.

His intrepid feat served to re-establish the gunner in the good graces of the company. A little later he became the positive hero of the occasion when he proposed and proceeded to carry out probably the most ingenious plan of enticing the fishes from the depths that has yet been tried. It beats to a frazzle the system of diving down under them and scaring them to the surface to be picked up by an accomplice with a net.

With a full meal in its stomach and a spoonhook or troller, or whatever it is you nautical men call those bright, whirling fish lures that you drag through the water, attached to one of its hind legs the mudhen set sail, having been successfully launched by its captor and kind friend. It paddled along at a great rate suffering no apparent inconvenience from the leg iron—in fact seeming to enjoy its distinction.

When about thirty feet away from the boat it squawked. That a Mudhen is not as Patti was when it squawks you may readily believe, but they say it lets out a creditable sound so far as volume is concerned. At any rate the men in the boat were watching. They saw the mudhen dive backward, emerge, fly upward about one-half inch and dive again. All the time that it was possible it kept up the serenade. Then the "muskie" jumped out of the water with the hind leg of the mudhen close to its jaws. And the two reversed and repeated ad lib. The fish didn't let out any yelps, but it made a lot of water get a move on. All in all it was as interesting a little bit of aquatic sport as has been pulled off on and in a Wisconsin lake for a long time.

When the relief party relieved the situation and the two performers, they found that the little mudhen had hooked a thirty-pound fish with its own little spoonhook presented by its own captor.

After that they naturally kept the bird fishing all the afternoon and the fresh water food supply that they brought back to Racine with them—well, if you want any further particulars write to "Clint" Hamilton.

AITKIN

Aitkin, Minn., Jan 28.—(Special to The Herald.—The Weyerhaeuser concern is shipping about forty cars a day of logs from the northern part of the county to their Little Falls mill. Most of them are cut in the vicinity of Shovel Lake and above there.

Hill City, in this county, is about to buy a $2,500 site of ten acres for a high school, which will have an agricultural department, and it is expected that $40,000 will be expended in the project. The coming of the big Armour plant for making cooperage has given the people of that town great encouragement.

The members of the Tamarack Creamery company will meet next Wednesday to open bids for the construction of a creamery building at that place. Sufficient stock has been subscribed for by local people to insure making a success of the undertaking. The cream from that part of the county has been shipped to Duluth and Aitkin in the past.

Mrs. Magaret Cliff, who slipped and broke her wrist a few days ago, is recovering satisfactorily.

The Capital City society of equity has been arganized by Aitkin farmers with W. F. Murphy, president; L. E. Turner, vice president; Fred McDonald, secretary and treasurer. There are a number of local societies and a county organization now in this county. For the most part they are working for uniform crops and a co-operative market, planning to build a warehouse on track here.

J. B. Galarneault of the Aitkin County State bank was a visitor to the cities of the Mesaba range last week.

Manager Moork of the Aitkin-Deerwood Telephone company is having all telephones equipped with new receivers and transmitters. The company is expanding right along and proposes to keep the new range well covered with wires.

A number of real estate transfers have been quietly made in the Waukenabo lake country for the mineral values supposed to exist there. The Thief River division of the Soo Line now makes it an easy matter to get in and out of that locality.

Postmaster B. A. Goff of Glen, whose store was recently burned, will rebuild in the spring and in the meantime is doing business in temporary quarters. The neighboring farmers have each agreed to haul in a load of logs as an encouragement toward putting up the new building.

Reports just published by the two local banks show their deposits to exceed $465,000, an indication of healthy business conditions.

O. D. Davis, whose cigar factory and contents were totally destroyed by fire Tuesday morning, is already figuring upon rebuilding and again taking up the business. He carried a small insurance which will be adjusted in a few days.

The Aitkin creamery paid out to the farmers $38,465 during the past year, and showed a steady gain over the preceding year. The Aitkin creamery is one of the most successful of the newer creameries in the northern part of the state and has come to be the mainstay for a great many farmers. Cream is shipped down the Mississippi river by boat during the navigation season, and this is a great convenience to settlers who merely deliver their cream cans on the river banks and the boat does the rest.

Aitkin and the other Cuyuna range towns are highly pleased with the announcement of President Pennington of the Soo Line that another passenger train will be put on the Crosby-Duluth run next season and that buffet cars will be added to the equipment.

The city water supply which threatened to run out for a time is now coming in adequate quantities from the upper lakes of the reservoir system that feeds the river, and the city and railroad are both pumping all they want. The exceedingly cold weather and the low stage of water are supposed to be the causes of a stoppage of water flow until the supply from above forced its way through.

The high school basket ball boys will play at Staples Friday night after a most victorious season on the home floor in which Grand Rapids and Cloquet were defeated. The girls' team will on the same night play the Grand Rapids girls' team in the auditorium here.

The school now has 575 pupils enrolled, ninety of whom are in the high school and twenty-four in the normal department. Manual training is progressing well under the second year in the department.

An art exhibit is announced for the school auditorium next Wednesday afternoon and evening, the collection being from the Beard Art gallery of Minneapolis. An art exhibit is an annual event and proceeds go to purchase pictures for the schoolrooms, the collection now owned by the school being quite a worthy one.

E. E. Erickson has bought the building he has been occupying for several years as a photograph studio from the owners, Hodgeden & McDonald, and will repair and enlarge the building.

The annual cut of ice for the local market is now being put up by D. M. Falconer and is twenty-four inches thick.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

PLATTING LAND INTO LOTS FOR THE SEASON'S SALES

Dealers Preparing to Get Into Easy Payment Plan Business.

Experimental Stage Has Been Passed—"Own Your Own Home."

The dealers who intend to get into the easy payment plan lot sale business during the coming season are lining up their fences. They are picking out choice forties here and there within the city limits, are having their plats prepared, are preparing their advertising campaign and when the snow leaves the ground and the balmy spring breezes blow, if balmy spring breezes ever do blow in Duluth, the Saturday afternoon and Sunday sales will attract the land hungry populace to places where their hunger may be satisfied.

Any dealer who attempted the easy payment plan of selling lots last year will say nothing but the best words for it. The plan was in the experimental stage in Duluth last year. The people took to it like a worn-out laborer to a feather bed. Every Saturday afternoon and Sunday; some afternoons during the week and many evenings, hundreds of people flocked to different new properties scattered over the city to look over the lots and to sign contracts for deeds.

It was regarded as a strange fact last year that nearly every visitor to additions on sale days were bona fide purchasers, either when they went or when they left. Stranger still, perhaps, when the history of such sales is considered, most of the purchasers have proved their good faith by making their payments promptly since they made their purchases. One big firm, which conducted several of the easy payment plan sales last summer, has had but one default and, though the average is not as good as that, it is good enough to indicate that the easy payment plan is a complete success in Duluth.

No Longer An Experiment.

The plan is no longer in the experimental stage. Not only Duluth people, but people outside of the city, want Duluth property. They do not all have money enough to purchase property outright, but when the opportunity is given them to purchase by the payment of a small sum each week or month, they are quick to take advantage of it. Dealers who looked on the easy payment plan as visionary last year, a mere boom incident that could not last, are now convinced that it is a scientific solution of the problem of getting people to own their own homes and many who were scoffers last year will be found this year in the front rank of those who are willing to give the people the land they want on terms so easy that any man earning a regular wage should be able to meet the payments.

Some forties, which have been held for years within the city limits for just such a situation as has not come about, are being platted now and will be put on the market in the spring. The land has laid unplatted for years while the city was building up all around it. The owners bided their time and now they think the time is ripe to reap their harvest. The building up of the territory around has increased the value of their land, but when it is cut up into building lots, the prices fixed will really be bargain prices for the purchasers.

The land hunger of the people in general is shown by the number of purchases which have been made on the easy payment plan this winter When the sales were on last summer, some people visited the additions with the desire to buy without the ability to assume the obligations of payment just at that time. They obtained information in regard to the property in order that they might get in at the first opportunity if any lots remained on the market. When the snow came last year, there were a few scattered lots left in each addition which had gone on the market last summer, but now few lots remain. Every dealer has had a demand for lots during the winter from people who were willing to buy despite the fact that the snow covered the ground.

"Own Your Own Home."

Although many were supplied last year, there is room for more. The "Own Your Own Home," idea is spreading to take in all classes of people. The renter is tired of having nothing but rent receipts to show for what he pays out and, with the easy payment plan a means of making rent money go as payments on his home, he is not slow in seeing the opportunities it offers.

One feature of the new boom which has struck Duluth is the fact that there is little "wild-catting." With possibly one or two exceptions, every proposition offered the people was a bona fide one, good land being offered at fair prices by responsible people. The exceptions, if exceptions they were, were relieved of the odium of "wild-catting" by the fact that, though the land offered might not be all that one could desire, the price was low enough to make the purchase speculative ventures.

Market Garden Tracts.

What applies to city lots on the easy payment plan also applies to market garden tracts. Several market garden districts attracted people last year and several more will be put on the market for their consideration this year. The building up of a market garden district near Duluth is of vital importance, not only to the individual who is given a means of earning a good livelihood and bringing his family up in healthful environment, but to the community, which it must benefit by reducing the prices of produce to the consumer.

The market garden tracts offered for sale last year were all within easy access to the city, so that purchasers might retain their employment in the city and cultivate their land during their spare time. Several other such tracts are being platted and the man with a land hunger will be given a chance to satisfy it in a manner that will benefit himself and benefit the community as well.

The objection is raised by some people that the easy payment plan of selling city lots and market garden tracts injures the general real estate market and makes it hard for private owners to sell property. The private owner who has a good piece of property to sell need have no fear of the easy payment plan. If his property is well located, on a well graded street, near the car line and is attractive, there are always people ready to buy it and to pay its full value, very often in cash. The easy payment plan is more attractive to those who cannot pay the full price down and are not able or willing to pay the prices which property will bring in sections which have already been built up.

GROUP PLAN FOR THREE DWELLINGS WHICH WOULD COST $12,000 HERE

The above sketch shows a group of three dwellings, and the arrangement would be a large saving in cost of site, materials, and upkeep. The grouping gives a large and picturesque group of buildings which, from an artistic point of view, is preferable to isolated dwellings with no particular relation to each other and perhaps in a different style of architecture or material.

The exterior is finished in brick and stucco and roof of shingles.

Each dwelling has a large entrance porch, staircase, hall with coat closet, living room, dining room, and kitchen with entry and back porch.

The second floor has three large bedrooms, with roomy closets and a bathroom. Space for two rooms is shown in the attic.

The first floor finish will be stained pine except kitchen, which will be birch. The bedrooms and bathroom will be finished in white enamel. The floors will be all maple.

The above group of three dwellings will cost inclusive of heating and plumbing the sum of $12,0000.

INQUIRY FROM EASTERN INVESTORS INCREASING

Good Undertone Is Developing on the Duluth Real Estate Market.

Owners of Business Property Are Holding on---The Week's Transfers.

The real estate market is still marking time, but a better undertone is developing as spring approaches and the dealers maintain that the year will be one of the best Duluth has ever had. The inquiry continues to increase in volume and it is indicative of a widespread interest in Duluth real estate.

Much of the inquiry is for residence lots on the easy payment plan, people of small means in other cities and especially in the range towns, seeing opportunities for large returns on small investments in Duluth property. Last summer when the easy payment plan sales were on, many range people made special trips to Duluth to see property and many sales were made to them.

The inquiry which has the most significance, however, is that in regard to investment property. Eastern capitalists are alive to the development of Duluth. They see probabilities of good returns on investments, not only in regular interest on their money, but in speculative returns, although investments made in business property here are far from speculative in its true meaning.

The investment market has been quiet for so long that the public may think there is no market. The quietness is not due to any apathy on the part of the investing public. It is more due to the fact that holders of Duluth property are alive to the value of their investments and are averse to releasing their holdings. If they are willing to sell, the prices fixed are such obvious anticipations of profits that no conservative investor will meet them. The inability of real estate brokers to get parties together has been responsible for the dullness more than any other one fact.

Interest in improved residence property continues strong and a number of sales have been made during the past week. The prices paid for improved property in the old established residence districts during the past few months are regarded as very fair by real estate experts. Many people who are contemplating building in the new additions are willing to sell their old homes at figures much lower than they would demand under any other circumstances and buyers have reaped the benefit.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTER

Work for Everybody in Building Trades During the Coming Season.

Better Weather Allows Contractors to Rush Winter Building.

The fine weather of the past week allowed contractors with winter jobs on their hands to make good progress and they made up for some of the time lost during the period of intense cold. Good headway is being made on all buildings in course of construction and, if fine weather continues, the builders will be able to catch up and complete their work in contract time.

New buildings is coming out slowly, although architects report that they have work on their tables and prospective builders are showing a disposition to go ahead with their work during the coming season. It was said yesterday that one new building is planned for Superior street and First street will have one or two new structures, it is said.

The volume of residence building is expected to be exceptionally great during the coming season and, although the prospects for the building trades were not bright a few weeks ago, the gloom is clearing away and it is now thought that there will be work for everybody.

J. J. Wangenstein, architect, has awarded the contract to Richard Hanson for the one-story brick building to be built for M. A. Fedji at 1911 West Superior street. The building will be arranged for three stores.

Kelly & Lignell have about completed the plans for the four-room addition to the Lowell school at Duluth Heights. The plans will be submitted to the board of education for approval next Friday night.

COASTERS HIT FENCE

Three Members of "Bobbing" Party Are Seriously Injured.

Ben Billingson of 23 East Eighth street, Miss Clara Bye of 1815 East South street and Miss Ruth Weborg of 530 North Twenty-fourth avenue east, were seriously injured last night when the loaded bobsled on which they were coasting on Mesaba avenue, crashed into the iron fence surrounding Cascade park.

The other members of the party, consisting of six girls and three boys, were badly shaken up, several of them sustaining bad cuts and bruises on the head, face and body. Miss Weborg has a broken leg and Miss Bye a broken leg, a fractured nose and an ugly cut on the head. Billingson sustained a long gash on the scalp, but had no fractured skull.

Dr. Hovde and Dr. Clark, who attended the injured people, responded immediately. Miss Weborg was taken to the residence of Louis Anderson, 109 Cascade avenue. Both the young women were removed to St. Luke's hospital this morning.

It appears that Reginald Hood, who was steering the bobs, lost control of them when he tried to drop a chain under the runners in order to slow the sleds. When the heavily loaded bobs smashed into the fence three of the iron posts were dragged from the ground and a fourth was broken. Had it not been for the fence, it is likely that several of the party would have been killed, as there is a sheer drop of twelve feet on the other side of the fence. As it was, it was a miracle that no deaths resulted.

HOUSE BURNS ON PARK POINT

Residence of C. K. Grewer at Twenty-Eighth Street Destroyed.

Fire, suposed to have been started by an overheated stove, completely gutted the residence of C. K. Grewer, 2809 Minnesota avenue, Park Point, shortly after 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

No members of the family were home.

Mr. Grewer is a barber employed at the Spalding hotel, and his wife was uptown shopping at the time. The house was valued at $1,800, partly covered by insurance.

For a time several adjoining houses were threatened, but the wind was fortunately blowing directly across the point.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Voters Must Get Their Names on Lists Before 9 p. m.

Not More Than One-Third of Voters Have Appeared.

Today is the last day of registration. All those who do not have their names entered on the books before 9 o'clock tonight will be ineligible to vote at the city election, which will be held Feb. 7.

Probably the most important matter up for consideration is the proposed $300,000 bond issue asked by the water and light board. The board states that it needs the funds for improvements and extensions. The bonds bear interest at 4½ per cent. An alderman from each ward, a city comptroller, a city treasurer and a municipal judge are also to be elected.

At the primaries and last Tuesday, the second day of registration, 4,267 voters were registered. It is hoped that this number will be doubled before the polls close tonight. Up to date little more than one-third of the voting population of the city had been registered.

HOLDS UP BANK AND IS KILLED

Young Gambler Loses Life After Meeting With Heavy Losses.

San Francisco, Jan. 28.—Bankrupted by his losses in gambling, which his wife and young son had vainly begged the police to stop, Gustave Postler yesterday held up the bank at the Saratoga Social club and was shot dead in a revolver fight with Edward Kripp, proprietor of the resort. Postler's 14-year-old son witnessed his father's death.

Kripp is in jail, charged with murder. He told the detectives that the last shot was fired by Postler into his own breast when he found himself trapped and sorely wounded. The result of an autopsy tends to confirm this assertion.

Menominee Plant To Resume.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plant of the Michigan Hoop factory on Witbeck Island, which has been closed for several weeks, will resume operations on Monday. The company will manufacture between 40,000 and 50,000 hoops a day.

In Favor of Tax Income.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 28.—Montana's legislature yesterday decided in favor of the income tax amendment to the Constitution. The senate concurred in a house resolution, ratifying the amendment.

Dairying and Gardening Opportunities in Minnesota of Interest to Every Homesteader!

The advanced colonization methods employed by the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, at "Meadowlands" Colony near Duluth, are made the subject of extended articles by the editors of many of the farm papers at the present time, in which they tell "How a Railroad Company Settles Its Lands." In these days when wildcat schemes of every description are foisted on the public, and people are being induced, often by misrepresentations, to settle in faraway districts often unfit for habitation, it is worthy of note that Northern Minnesota, and particularly this favored district in St. Louis county, near Duluth, with its wealth of resources and its special adaptation to profitable home making, should receive the attention it has from the farm and city papers. With the low prices at which these lands are offered, the exceptionally easy terms, and their proximity to a market, concededly one of the best in America, together with the soil and climatic conditions so favorable, especially to the great dairy and truck growing industries, no one should fail to investigate them who wants to locate his family in the most promising of America's Agricultural districts, particularly when you can, as in this instance, deal direct with the Owners, who are interested in helping you to succeed. Write for full particulars, maps and facts to

UPTURN AT THE CLOSE

Wheat Sags All Day But Closes Firm and Higher.

Flax Develops Activity Late in Session and Closes Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 28.—After sagging weakly all morning at about yesterday's closing level, wheat took a sudden upturn on a sudden demand just before the close and closed 1c up. All American markets were stronger today than yesterday, the advances being due to a natural reaction from the declines of the week.

The news was all bearish. Foreign cables were weak, the demand for cash wheat continued at low ebb, the estimates place the visible supply well above that of last week, Argentine and Australian offerings were heavy in Europe and weather conditions continued favorable in the Southwest.

The prospect of a contest over the ratification of the Canadian-American reciprocity agreement in congress is not believed to have much effect on the market. The traders are doubtful as to the ultimate effect of the treaty and it is believed to have little influence on their attitude toward the market.

Stocks at Minneapolis increased 95,000 bu for one day and 550,000 bu for the week. The increase for the week in Duluth is 246,000 bu. Minneapolis reports that only the very best grades of spot wheat can be sold and soft Minnesota wheat is hard to market. In Kansas City 140 cars of wheat were unsold at the close yesterday and 63 more were received today. Storage is almost impossible and the receipts must be headed off or continued on to Chicago.

It is expected that a big increase will be shown by the visible supply report Monday. Buffalo is expected to be the only American point to show a decrease and heavy increases are expected to be shown at other primary points.

May wheat opened unchanged in Duluth at $1.04¼, advanced to $1.04⅜, declined to $1.04, advanced to $1.04¼-⅜, and then to $1.05¼, the close being at $1.05¼ asked. There was little trading in July wheat, which closed at $1.06 nominal.

The flax market was quiet at the opening, but some activity developed later in the session and at the close was 3c up. May flax opened 1c off at $2.62, advanced to $2.64, then to $2.66, fell off to $2.65 and closed at $2.66 bid.

Oats, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum wheat was ¾c up at 91¼c for May. Cash wheat held at 1c under May.

Cash Sales Saturday.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market at the opening was influenced by larger offerings and values were ⅜d lower. Pressure came largely from realizing in March on the continued free Plate offers and larger Australian and Russian offers and increasing receipts here. Following the opening March held unchanged with offerings lighter, while May was supported and an advance of ⅜d in this option was shorts taking profits. European crop accounts continue favorable and advices from Argentine are to the effect that new wheat is moving freely to the ports with some disposition shown to lower offers. At the close the market was steady but dull with prices ⅛@⅜d lower than yesterday.

"The corn market was steady but dull, and after opening about unchanged, the American grade advanced ⅛d on firmer American offers and a prediction of lighter American shipments this week than expected."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Free Selling of Wheat Creates Bearish Sentiment in the Pit.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Free selling of wheat today overcame the bullish effect of a considerable number of purchases made on resting commission orders. Sentiment in the pit was largely bearish and the lack of more aggressive support led to suspicion that leaders on the long side were well out of their wheat. Many traders however, believed that the big holders still had lines intact. The opening was unchanged to ¼@⅜c higher. May started at 97c to 97⅛c, a gain of ⅛c to ¼c@⅜c, but gradually declined to 96¾@⅞c.

The fact that cash business was in almost a comatose condition had much to do with the depression of the market but lack of courage to push selling in a continuous manner led to a reaction. The close was steady with May at 97⅛c, a net gain of ¼@⅜c.

Better weather promising increased offers from the country made corn easy. May opened the same as last night to the shade lower at 50c to 50⅛c and fell to 49¾c.

The market appeared to be pegged with buying orders at 49¾c for May. At the close the tone was easy with that month ⅛@¼c net lower at 49⅞c.

Scattered demand for oats proved insufficient to hold that cereal firm in the face of weakness in other grains. May started unchanged at 34⅜c and receded to 34¼@⅜c.

Higher prices for hogs strengthened provisions. First sales were 2½@5c to 7½c up except for January pork, which showed a drop of 25c. May options during initial trades went at $18.27½ to $18.30 for pork, $9.80 for lard and $9.80 also for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 28.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 3@5 points on a little trade buying in absence of prompt offerings. Cables were about as due, and while reviews of the general drygoods situation read a little more favorable,, sales of print cloths at Fall River for the week were estimated at small figures, and curtailment both there and at New Bedford was said to be increasing. The news consequently seemed to be about a standoff and business here was very quiet during the morning, with prices easing off a point or two toward the end of the first hour, under local selling.

GAINS MADE BY STOCKS

Best Prices of Session Are Recorded in the Second Hour.

United States Steel Makes New Record for Present Movement.

New York, Jan. 28.—Price movements were irregular at the opening of the stock market today, with a fairly large volume of business. A further weakness was developed in the copper shares, Amalgamated Copper declining a point in the first few minutes of trading. St. Louis Southwestern advanced 1½ and Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland and Canadian Pacific ⅝ each. Union Pacific and Reading gained fractionally.

The market moved upwards although the gains for the most part were comparatively small. United States Steel rose to 79⅛, a new high record for the present movement. Northern Pacific crossed 120 and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a point. Higher prices uncovered some selling orders and the market receded slightly, but soon steadied again.

The market closed active and firm. Best prices of the session were made in the second hour, with further gains in Atchison, Northern Pacific and other active issues. Amalgamated Copper made only partial recovery but pressure on United States Steel and Reading was less marked. Union Pacific was quite the heaviest of the standard shares.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

New York, Jan. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"There has been a distinct improvement in the two directions in which the progress of business contraction has been most pronounced. This has contributed notably to the growth of confidence without which active enterprise is impossible. The larger activity in iron and steel, shared to some extent by the other industries, the better feeling exhibited in the financial markets, and the increased confidence resulting therefrom, are the most important developments of the week. The betterment in iron is chiefly in finished products, tin plate, wire and structuarl materials. The advance of $1 a ton in wire products was closely followed by the placing of the New York Central railroad contract for 176,750 tons, while several other railroads have taken moderate tonnages of this class of equipment.

Tin plate operations are on a more active scale than for several months past and the outlook in sheets is also materially improved. In pig iron, however, demand has diminished in all Eastern markets and prices are weaker. The dry goods market is exhibiting more encouraging aspects in various lines and the outlook is more favorable. The footwear market shows no material change. There is still a contingent of buyers in the Boston market, some of whom have placed good sized orders. Trade in leather continues to improve especially in sole and belting stock and transactions in New York and other markets have been on a more liberal scale. Prices of sole leather show a firmer tone, but upper leather is still rather quiet. The hide market has developed considerable activity, especially in Western packer and Latin-American dry hide stock.

OPPOSED BY ASSEMBLY

Union Men Do Not Favor Bill Restricting Small Litigation.

Trades Assembly Says It Might Be Hardship to Poor Man.

At the largest and most enthusiastic meeting of the Duluth Trades and Labor assembly held in many months, fifteen new delegates were obligated last evening in Kalamazoo hall, the passage of a bill at present before the legislature was discussed, and resolutions against it adopted, some speeches on various labor subjects were made, and a new union label committee appointed to push the campaign for the advancement of union label goods.

It was the best meeting held in some time. There were more members present and more enthusiasm was shown than for any months, and new interest seems to have been aroused in the work of the assembly.

The bill which the assembly does not want passed is an act amending section 4105 of the state revised laws for the year 1905, which provides that the plaintiff in an action file his complaint and at the same time pay the costs in the action. The filing of the summons and complaint shall be made with the clerk not longer than ten days after the serving of the answer, and the costs of the action must be paid at that time. If this is not done the judge shall have the right to dismiss the action, the dismissal to act as a bar to the commencement of another action for the same cause.

Oppose the Bill.

It is thought that this would work a hardship on poor men, for they may not always have the ready money with which to pay the costs of filing. If they were unable to pay at the time required, they would not again be able to bring their suit.

The assembly went on record as being against the bill and adopted resolutions against it which will be sent to St. Paul.

A new department was organized last night, the union label committee. There has never before been such an interest in the pushing of goods made by union help. The committee under the auspices of the assembly will soon begin a publicity campaign to draw to the attention of the public the good done by insisting on goods that are union made.

The committee is composed of James Walsh, chairman; Frank Heidman, Mrs. Catherine Dempsey, Miss Sarah Shore, A. L. Juten, R. S. McGregor and Ernest Rickard. They will meet from time to time and decide on the campaign soon to be inaugurated.

The publication and lecture committee is composed of P. G. Phillips, chairman, James Walsh and James H. Powers. It is the duty of this committee to secure speakers for the meetings of the assembly. Attorney John A. Keyes spoke last night, and Alderman Shartel will be the speaker at the next regular meeting.

The organization committee is composed of S. S. McDonald, chairman; Joseph Miller, Henry Perault, William P. Perry and P. G. Phillips. This committee has the boosting of the membership of the assembly in hand.

WILL AROUSE INTEREST IN SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

Interest is growing in the meeting of the Minnesota Sunday School association, which will open here Monday evening.

Mention of the meeting will be made in many of the city churches tomorrow, as every Sunday school in Duluth is expected to take part in the meetings. Several of the prominent speakers will reach Duluth tomorrow.

It is expected that the meeting will arouse a new interest in Sunday school work in this city and will prove the means of teachers and workers securing new ideas. Many of the prominent church workers of the city are assisting in creating interest in the work the state leaders will take up here in the two days' meeting.
